OPERA ASSURED FOR 1940; PLAN 7 WEEK SEASON

Labor Pledges Aid for Its Success.

Chicago is assured of a 1940 opera season with productions on a scale even more ambitious than those of the past. This was announced yesterday after a series of meetings that resulted in the reorganization of the Chicago City Opera company and the planning of a sound financial setup.

Henry Weber, musical director of radio station W-G-N, has been named artistic director and James C. Thompson, president of the Civic Opera Building corporation, will be business manager. Both said they had decided several important policies and promised a season at least as long as the one of seven weeks in 1939.

Extend Sphere of Support.

The backers of the program announced that coöperation had been given by elements that have not, in former years, been consulted on opera's prospects. In particular, it was pointed out that union labor leaders had promised to do all in their power to make the season a success.

Among the labor backers are James C. Petrillo, head of the Chicago Federation of Musicians; Frank C. Olsen, secretary-treasurer of the stage employés; George E. Browne, national president of the same organization, and Ernest Charles and Leo Curley of the American Guild of Musical Artists. Charles made a trip from New York to discuss his union's participation. They took the attitude that their men have a definite stake in opera in Chicago and would coöperate to keep it.

"Every one has been helpful," said Mr. Thompson. "The women's board was largely instrumental in raising funds sufficient to enable us to embark on the program, helped splendidly by the board of governors and the Illinois Opera guild."

Confident of Contributions.

He added he was confident that those who had been hesitating would now come forward and contribute to the opera guarantees. Fear that the plans would fail caused most of the hesitation, he said.

His sentiments were echoed by two other trustees, Abner J. Stilwell, treasurer, and William D. Saltiel, secretary.

"Chicago's 1940 opera will be presented for the enjoyment of every one in the middle west," said Stilwell. "Any lover of opera may make a contribution, no matter how small. Particularly we want the great body of music lovers from out of town to attend and to help."

Financing of opera, it was asserted, is a tremendous business. In some of the past seasons total expenses have exceeded $2,500,000 and deficits have been as high as $1,000,000, made up by guarantors. Recent years show losses, but in smaller amounts.

Hope to Make It Pay Way.

It is the hope of the present management that opera, for the first time in history, will be made to pay its own way—that increased income from tickets and a paring of expense where it will not harm the quality of performance, will make unnecessary any subsidization.

Director Weber was enthusiastic about the plans.

"First," he said, "we shall create a new chorus, chosen for musical and dramatic ability and good looks. Instead of the present chorus of 50 we shall have one of 80 to 90.

"In a short time we shall announce a time and a place for auditions. They will be open to all persons who have had the necessary training in voice and in Italian, German, and French. Outstanding and unbiased judges will choose the successful candidates. For the first time the Chicago opera will become a place where those fine new singers who are being graduated each year will have a chance to exercise their talents.

Opportunities Promised Chorus.

"In the past such singers have been used in minor rôles, but that wasn't enough. The chorus now will have many more places and we shall recruit singers for minor parts from its ranks.

"The chorus will be trained under the best chorus master and stage director we can find. Applicants for these two posts will be interviewed soon. Of course, the chorus always must be a part of the dramatic action of the opera. A part of the training period, therefore, will be set aside for dramatic instruction, thus offering a fine opportunity for young

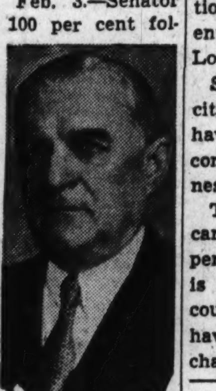
Discard Guffey in Penn Parley; Slap New Deal

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 3.—Senator Joseph F. Guffey, 100 per cent follower of the Roosevelt administration, today was denied indorsement for renomination by the Democratic state committee of Pennsylvania. This surprising turn in affairs came about thru a rebellion smouldering within the party.



Senator Guffey.

Only the inability of a majority of the 109 state committeemen to agree on a candidate prevented the incumbent senator from being shelved entirely. Instead the convention decided to leave the April primary "free and open" to all comers.

Guffey burned up the telephone wires until dawn this morning in a desperate effort to line up committeemen. Pressure was exerted by the Washington régime on behalf of Guffey, one of its chief advocates. Finally Guffey found he could not corral enough votes for the nomination and agreed to the open primary.

Blamed for 1938 Defeat.

Many Pennsylvania Democrats blame Senator Guffey for their defeat in 1938 when Gov. Arthur H. James ushered in a Republican administration in the wake of the scandals under Gov. George H. Earle. Guffey and C. I. O. Chief John L. Lewis sponsored a ticket against the regular organization candidates in the Democratic primary that year.

It was during that heated contest, which the Guffey-C. I. O. candidates lost, that both sides loosed charges of graft and corruption at each other. Subsequent prosecutions have proved there was more than campaign baloney behind the accusations.

Farley, generally regarded as a candidate for President in his own right, spoke before a $25 a plate banquet gathering of Democratic leaders at a lodge temple. He went so far as to indicate a belief that the field will not be narrowed to one aspirant.

According to Farley, there are "many sturdy candidates for the nomination and I anticipate an honest and earnest presentation of their claims before the national convention."

"I believe I can assure you, however, that there will be no deadlock in the convention," the national chairman continued, "and when the final ballot is taken, it will represent the will of our party."

This afternoon's gathering in a local hotel ballroom presented a strange spectacle. The 109 committeemen had been called to the state capital to indorse a slate for senator and state candidates. They went home without doing so after the convention rules were shunted to one side thru considerable parliamentary jockeying.

The only positive action of the convention was the adoption of a resolution calling upon President Roosevelt to run for a third term.

Guffey's Name Brings Jeers.

Guffey stayed in his room upstairs and never put in an appearance, altho his sister, Emma Guffey Miller, occupied a seat on the platform. Mention of Guffey's name on the convention floor was the signal for boos and jeers.

Chairman John B. Kelly of the powerful Philadelphia organization said the Democrats still are "nursing and licking wounds." Kelly, who is one of Guffey's foes, announced a candidate would be found shortly to oppose the senator at the polls in April.

"Kelly for senator" signs blossomed on the convention floor before the meeting started, but the Philadelphia leader, a one-time Olympic sculling champion and popular with the rank and file, refused to let his name go before the committeemen.

ETON'S TAILORS SAD; LONDONERS MAY GET STUDENTS' BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The tailors of Eton, for generations the dressers of Eton college's wealthy young men, are distressed over a recent suggestion of school authorities that parents may buy their sons' clothes in London.

Several firms have protested to the city council and individual tailors have cited the possibility of their becoming public charges should all business be directed to London tailors.

The school is conducting a vigorous campaign to reduce the students' expenses during wartime. Pocket money is limited to $10 for each term, accounts at the school's general store have been prohibited, and the purchase of athletic outfits curtailed.

Now! Europe's a Day's Jaunt from America

The American Clipper of Pan American Airway's trans-Atlantic service took off at dawn today and was scheduled to reach Lisbon, Portugal, early tomorrow morning. The trans-Atlantic service started last June, and the 100th crossing was completed a week ago. More than eighteen hundred passengers and many thousand pounds of mail have been transported.

Azores Stop Eliminated.

In the past, flights from New York have required 27 to 30 hours, with stops at Bermuda and at Horta, the Azores, on the way to Lisbon. Now, with seven months' experience, Pan American has arranged for heavier gasoline loads and will omit Horta from the itinerary. The handling of passengers and mail was speeded. These innovations are expected to reduce the flying time to 24 hours in good weather.

Pan American officials hope to maintain the one-day schedule whether the western terminals are in the north or south.

Experiment on Harbors.

Today's flight may be an experimental one to determine whether the southern harbors of Charleston, S. C., and Miami are to be used regularly during the winter season.

When ice clogged the harbors in Baltimore, Md., and New York, the 40-ton, 75-passenger Clippers were brought into the more southerly port of Charleston, then were flown to Miami, where refueling and servicing facilities already were available.

Netherlands-America Link.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 3 (AP).—Formation of a syndicate to operate a trans-Atlantic air service between the Netherlands and the United States was disclosed today in the annual report of the Holland-America Steamship Line.

Participating with the shipping company in the syndicate are The Netherlands government, K. L. M. [Royal Dutch Airlines], and the Fokker Aircraft company.

Washington authorities have been asked for permission to operate the service, which the syndicate hopes to start at the end of the war.

SWARMS OF RED PLANES SHOWER DEATH ON FINNS

78 Carry Out Raid on One Town.

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 4, Sunday (AP).—Finland's most terrible punishment by bombs in a little more than two months of Russian invasion was reported early today, with a total of 78 planes raiding one city alone and many other cities suffering deadly raids.

First estimates of yesterday's victims said at least 50 were killed and 100 wounded in the south half of Finland, but that was before the 78 planes, in three waves, made an evening attack on Kuopio, the second of the day. Kuopio, a railway city of some 10,000, is located in the great lake country of middle Finland.

Pound Mannerheim Line.

While these raids were going on, big guns of the Red army shelled the Mannerheim line from one end to the other, after two days of direct attack had been broken on the battlefield of Summa.

In a raid earlier in the day, 30 people had been killed at Kuopio. Casualties from the second raid were not known, for the populace was huddled in air raid shelters far into the night.

Three Finnish fighting planes fought a fleet of 20 soviet bombers in a spectacular air battle over Kerava, near Helsingfors, late in the day. The Russians dumped all their bombs and turned on their machine guns. Residents of the town came out of air raid shelters to see one soviet bomber fall and the others turn tail and run. The bombs they dropped started many fires in the town.

Chapel Is Bombed.

Ten people were killed when a 16 plane Russian squadron bombed a chapel at Sienajoki. At Pori, on the southwest coast, there were many dead and wounded. Several others were killed at Viipuri, main target of the Red army's Mannerheim line drive, and heavy damage was inflicted. Sailajoki, Lovisa, and Kotka also were raided.

Residents of Helsingfors listened to the mad music of air raid alarms incessantly. The new attacks brought to at least 150 the civilians known to have died in the week's bombings, one of the worst days of which was Friday, when 400 soviet planes roared over the country.

Prepare for New Drive.

There, 20 miles south of Viipuri, tanks, armored sledges, parachute troops and infantry smashed at the strongly fortified area of the Karelian isthmus. The new assaults were considered preparation for a third offensive.

Gathering new strength behind their forest-hidden isthmus positions, the Finns admitted the incessant shelling was very powerful at times, but asserted their own guns were giving no quarter. The high command last night announced the enemy had suffered heavy losses at Summa Friday and more than 550 dead on other fronts.

Destroy Supply Columns.

On the flank of the Mannerheim line, north of Lake Ladoga, the Finns estimated the Red army dead after futile attacks in two sectors at more than 350. In the Arctic Salla region, the Finns said, the Russians left 200 dead on the field.

On still another front, near Kuhmo, in central Finland, the Finns announced the destruction of several supply columns, 11 tanks and three guns.

Unidentified Red army strongholds were captured in the fighting northeast of Lake Ladoga, the Finnish communique disclosed, with more than 200 Russian dead and 70 prisoners taken, along with 25 tanks—some of them already wrecked—three cannon and several machine guns.

On the solid ice about the islands near the eastern shore of the lake the Russians left 150 dead.

Russians Report Successes.

Yesterday the headquarters asserted that the Finns, tho equipped with

BALKAN NATIONS WANT PEACE, BUT DODGE ALLIANCE

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 3.—After two days of talks the Balkan entente countries agreed today on a policy of "peace at any price except independence." Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Jugo-Slavia comprise the entente.

These four nations hope to go further and get Hungary into a "Danubian entente," Aleksander Cincar-Markovitch, Jugo-Slavian foreign minister, hinted in a speech tonight at a dinner for the delegates.

Any hope of making the Balkan entente into an alliance with guarantees of support to any member attacked has been abandoned. Jugo-Slavia did not like the idea in the first place and, while Turkey and Rumania favored it, Germany and Italy have pulled such strings as they could to avoid having too united a front in the Balkans.

Arrange Coöperation.

A Danubian accord, such as was hinted tonight, would be merely an agreement under which the states in the Danube river basin would get together at intervals to talk over any disagreements and arrange coöperation.

But probably such talks will not be popular with the British or French because Germany, with its vast interests along the Danube, might have a good deal to say in the proceedings.

Hungary and Bulgaria, as foes of the world war treaty frontiers, have given the Balkan entente anxious moments in the past. Now, however, according to Cincar-Markovitch both countries "are in harmony with the peaceful policy of member countries."

A Happy Future.

On that basis, he said, the entente hoped it was possible to establish "durable conditions for a happy future for all peoples in the Danubian basin and the Balkans."

This remark seemed a hint at efforts to link the countries along the Danube as the Balkan countries, except Bulgaria, are already linked.

An official communique will be issued tomorrow, bringing the conference to an end with an announcement of complete agreement, but no military alliance.

Head in Different Directions.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 3 (AP).—While the Balkan entente will continue to exist, in theory at least, for another six years, it was admitted openly today that the four powers already are heading in the following directions for shelter from war:

1. Jugo-Slavia — Toward close coöperation with Hungary and Bulgaria under Italy's leadership.

2. Greece — Traditional friend of Great Britain — toward even closer coöperation with Turkey, the ally of Britain and France.

3. Rumania—Toward close coöperation with Germany in the expectation of a German guarantee to curb Hungarian and Russian territorial demands.

DISCOVERERS SEE RED, BUT SONG WARMS HEARTS

The first robin has to have something more than a red waistcoat and the shivers to convince the skeptics these days.

C. B. Nelson of 6223 Lundy avenue and Joseph P. Immel of 6201 McClellan avenue saw what appeared to be the first robin at the same moment. But, Mr. Immel wrote to the editor yesterday, they didn't exclaim "Goodness, the first robin!" or anything like that. They just looked the bird in the eye coldly to let him know they'd met some imposters in their day, and waited.

BRITISH WOMAN HURLS BOTTLE WITH FOOD IN IT AT PREMIER'S HOME

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Helen Willard, a 36 year old air raid precautions worker, strolled into Downing street today, a red scarf over her head, and in front of No. 10, the prime minister's residence, drew a bottle from her coat and hurled it toward a window.

The bottle struck a railing and was smashed. Out of it fell a rasher of racon, an egg and a piece of paper bearing these words: "People go hungary while food is wasted—1940." As she was dragged off by a policeman, the woman cried: "I want peace!"

BRITISH DOWN 3 BOMBERS AS 20 RAID EAST COAST

Witnesses Describe Air Victory.

BERLIN, Feb. 3 (AP).—DNB, German official news agency, reported tonight that far ranging German air raiders today sank 14 ships in a climax to a week of mass attacks on British and neutral shipping. Three German planes were destroyed by British defenses.

The day's reported toll made a total of 32 ships, 23 merchantmen, 8 British patrol boats, and 1 minesweeper, which the Germans said have been sunk in the aerial forays that began last Monday and have ranged the entire length and breadth of the North sea. Germany had reported nine ships were sunk last Monday and a like number on Tuesday, when Adolf Hitler was promising Britain and France "the war they wanted."

The Germans said all the sunken merchantmen were either armed or convoyed. They have contended that all such ships were subject to attack.

This week's reported sinking of 23 convoyed commercial ships is regarded by the Germans as a telling answer to British claims that convoy system means safety for vessels. They said the attacks demonstrated that England is open to air attack at any point along the coastline.

20 Bombers Raid Coast.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—Britain's royal air force, fighting to protect her vital sea lanes from Germany's bomb blockade, today shot down three German war planes in the fiercest air battles fought over England since the war's start. Late tonight it was reported a fourth German bomber had been damaged so badly that it probably did not reach home.

British observers estimated that at least 20 German bombers joined in the wave of attacks on British and neutral shipping up and down 400 miles of the east coast.

The admiralty late tonight had nothing to say regarding reports by DNB, German official news agency, that 14 ships were sunk during the day. An authorized comment stated comparatively little damage was done in proportion to the size of the raids.

Survivors of the 629 ton Norwegian freighter Tempo landed with a story of having been bombed and machine gunned by three German planes. At least four of the 14 members of her crew were known to have died.

Bomber Downed on Moor.

Swift British pursuit planes went up to meet the German bombers as they began their attacks today. One of the raiders, riddled by bullets from a plane, came down on a Yorkshire moor four miles from Whitby. One of the crew was dead, another died at a hospital, and two others were wounded.

A second was shot down off the mouth of the River Tyne, an important shipbuilding and shipping center. A ship went out to rescue the crew.

The third was reported to have fallen into the sea after a fight near the Farne islands, about five miles from the mainland of Northumberland, England's northernmost county. Two Heinkel bombers had attacked a ship when British fighters overtook them.

The fourth plane is believed to have been hit while north of the Farne islands. It was engaged by two British planes whose pilots later reported they saw their tracer bullets hit the craft, after which it flew away with one wing tilted and its speed slackening.

Further north considerable air activity was reported over the Firth of Forth.

Witnesses Describe Fight.

The bomber downed near Whitby was chased inland by three British pursuit planes when it was caught attacking a coastal vessel.

"I first saw the German plane flying low over land with three planes after it," said a spectator. "As it passed over Whitby one fighter was firing at the tail from below, another was shooting at it from above, and the third was circling in front. The German plane began to smoke and eventually it crashed."

H. Steele, near whose cottage the plane crashed, first into an outbuilding and then into a tree, picked up the story there:

"I saw the swastika on the tail and ran to collect all my valuables, expecting the machine to explode and blow my house to pieces with it.

PUT ROOSEVELT IN PRESIDENTIAL POLL IN ILLINOIS

Sincerity of Surprise Move Is Questioned.

BY PARKE BROWN.

President Roosevelt's name may be on the Illinois Democratic primary ballot on April 9—and it may not.

In a surprise move yesterday, headquarters of the Cook county Democratic organization caused the filing with Secretary of State Hughes at Springfield the petition which was started and completed at ward meetings of workers last Sunday and Monday. That petition, it was said was merely a bit of preparedness to be used only in the event that the President declared himself before next Friday, the last day for filing.

Kelly, Nash Out of City.

With County Chairman P. A. Nash and Mayor Kelly both aboard a train carrying them from Florida to Washington for the meeting tomorrow of the national committee, it could not be determined immediately how much force was behind the unexpected filing or whether it was seriously intended. But lawyers expert in election statutes immediately began to tear the filing to pieces. They declared it merely waste motion.

Secretary Hughes, after venturing a guess that the petition complied with the primary law, said later he would not take any definite position in the matter and would put the whole question up to the state certifying board, consisting of Gov. Horner, Hughes, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, which will meet late this month.

Dewey's Name Is Filed.

Leonard C. Reid personally filed two petitions—in slightly different forms—to place the name of Thomas E. Dewey on the Republican ballot. All of the Republican candidates for the two major offices in the state filed personally. They included Wayland Brooks, candidate for United States senator, and Richard J. Lyons, Dwight H. Green, and Earle B. Searcy, candidates for governor.

Four Republicans filed for secretary of state. They were Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, Richard Yates Rowe of Jacksonville, Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest, and Gilbert J. Luzzo of Chicago. Two Republicans entered themselves for state auditor, William R. McCauley of Olney and Arthur C. Lueder of Chicago. Two filed for congressman at large, Stephen A. Day and George S. Lavin, both of Chicago.

The activities of these well known entrants and the filing of a total of about 500 petitions, including those for district congressman, state senator, state representative, and convention delegates, held the attention until the arrival of the Roosevelt petition became known.

Filed by Machine Man.

It was taken to Springfield by Ambrose Kelly, a young man employed in the Democratic county headquarters in the Morrison hotel.

On all sides it was said at first by political leaders and election law specialists that the Roosevelt petition was of no legal value until the President signed a statement of candidacy which the statutes require must be a part of each nominating petition. It was agreed that if such a certificate were signed it would be a third term declaration.

There was no statement of candidacy attached to the document that Ambrose Kelly carried to Springfield. Then began a discussion during which Secretary Hughes and the chief of the election division of his office mentioned the possibility that perhaps such a statement was not required in connection with a petition for the presidential preference primary, a merely advisory vote which neither nominates nor elects the recipient of the most votes.

No Comment: Roosevelt.

When the discussion began to die down in Chicago and in Springfield the Associated Press brought an answer to the question.

"No comment," was Roosevelt's reply.

Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston arrived in Chicago for conferences that will continue today on whether he will file as a candidate for United States senator against Brooks. He intends to fly back to Washington tonight and said he will make no statement before Wednesday.

None of the present Democratic state officials filed for renomination. All are waiting until after the meeting of their state central committee next Friday.

COURTNEY PETITION FILED

One surprise bobbed up yesterday in the filing of the first petitions of candidates for local offices with County Clerk Michael J. Flynn. State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's petition was handed in by a representative of the regular Democratic county organization.

The name of the prosecutor did not appear on the group petition for which the organization gathered the required signatures. It was explained that he had circulated his own petition because of his desire to have as many of his friends sign it as possible. It had been expected he would appear personally at Flynn's office with the document.

Garry Files Petition.

The Courtney petition was filed personally by Thomas D. Garry, executive for the Democratic county central committee, who had charge of the circulation of the petitions for other Democratic incumbents.

Except for this one incident the first day for candidates to enter themselves for nomination was uneventful. Flynn's office closed at noon. Up to that hour no opponents had filed in the Democratic list in opposition to the incumbents whose terms expire this year.

On the Republican side the comment concerned chiefly the candidates for state's attorney and further discussion of the lack of well known names in the lists for other offices. Flynn gave first place in the state's attorney list to Oscar F. Nelson, judge of the Superior court. The only other candidate to file for this office was Harry S. Ditchburne, the nominee in 1936. Edgar A. Jonas, former Municipal judge, said his petition will be filed later.

Complete List of Filings.

The complete list of filings up to noon follows:

REPUBLICAN.	DEMOCRATIC.
Sanitary Trustee.

The last day for filing is Feb. 19. The last day for withdrawing petitions is Feb. 24.

There were no filings by candidates for judge of the Municipal court at the office of City Clerk Ludwig D. Schreiber. The names of candidates for these 12 seats rotate on the ballot.

Long Trip for Bride

Manitowoc, Wis., Feb. 3 [Special].—Charles Heyda Jr., of Manitowoc, and Miss Catherine Hedman, of Winnetka, Ill., were married in Winnetka today, after which they departed on a journey of 17,000 miles to their home. The end of the long trip is the Philippine Islands. Heyda, a mining engineer, is in charge of work for the East Mindanao Mining company. He returned to Manitowoc last October for a vacation after living three years in the Philippines. During his stay here he met his bride, who came to Manitowoc last September to teach.

69 FILE FOR CONGRESS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Sixty-nine candidates seeking nominations to congressional seats in the state's 25 congressional districts filed petitions today, the first day of filing. Forty-two of the early filers are Republicans and 27 are Democrats.

All but three of the incumbents filed, and they are expected to present their petitions later. The three, all of whom have said they will seek reëlection, are Anton J. Johnson [R., Macomb], 14th district; Frank W. Fries [D., Carlinville], 21st district, and Kent E. Keller [D., Ava], 25th district.

So far there are lone Republican candidates without Democratic opposition in the 12th, 13th, 15th, and 17th districts. Democrats in the 23d and 24th districts so far enjoy a similar absence of competition. The largest number of candidates entered in one district race was in the 7th, where nine Republicans are seeking the seat held by a Democrat.

The following list of candidates, in which incumbents are indicated by asterisks, filed petitions in the Chicago districts:

TVA IS TAKING JOBS OF ILLINOIS MINERS, SAYS DWIGHT GREEN

Harrisburg, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—"With thousands of Illinois coal miners out of work and their families forced upon the relief rolls to prevent their starving, the New Deal is spending huge sums of the taxpayers' money to promote the Tennessee Valley authority," Dwight H. Green, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, pointed out to an audience of southern Illinois coal miners tonight.

"That," Green declared, "is bringing government competition directly into the homes of the people of Illinois, for the 'white coal' of the TVA is in constant competition with the black coal mined by Illinois labor."

Green arrived here this afternoon for a reception celebrating the windup of his first week of speaking in the primary campaign. He returned to Chicago tonight, but will resume his downstate tour at Urbana next week.

"The federal government has been increasing its competition with American business each year since the President took office," Green continued. "The New Deal has piled taxes upon us until we do not know which way to turn, and those very same tax dollars collected from the citizens of Illinois have been poured into a subsidy for the TVA and other enterprises that have taken away jobs from our own citizens."

KELLY AND NASH TO SEE FARLEY ON HORNER 3D TERM

Governor's Health Worries National Chairman.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Postmaster General Farley is awaiting the arrival here tomorrow from Florida of Mayor Kelly of Chicago and P. A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, for a conference that may result in reversing Gov. Horner's decision to seek a third term.

James A. Farley.

Farley, as chairman of the Democratic national committee, is reported worried about Democratic chances in Illinois and reports that Gov. Horner condition has recently grown worse and he is now too ill to make a campaign have increased Farley's concern.

Gov. Horner's condition has been precarious for more than a year. Official Washington now has been informed that two or three days ago the governor was ordered back to bed by his physicians and only his closest friends and cabinet members are permitted to see him.

Scandal Gives Him Anxiety.

The scandal of the appointment of John Howe as a state policeman, despite Howe's record of escaping trial on four robbery charges only because he was found insane, has given the governor much anxiety, his friends here are informed.

Farley, heretofore, has been centering his efforts on the guidance of a Democratic primary fight in Illinois over the office of lieutenant governor. The manager of Franklin D. Roosevelt's two successful presidential campaigns realized the importance in 1940 of the 29 electoral votes of Illinois.

Even tho Kelly and Nash are committed to the third term for Horner as well as for Roosevelt, Farley is said to have taken the position that the Illinois leaders must not put a sick man on the Democratic ticket for governor. It is understood Farley is prepared to tell them that Illinois Democrats must agree on some other harmony candidate.

Senators Told of Condition.

United States Senators Scott W. Lucas and James M. Slattery of Illinois have been advised of Gov. Horner's condition. Slattery is reported to have left for Chicago to discuss the political outlook.

Democratic chieftains here argue that if Gov. Horner was a family man, his family would insist that he quit the campaign at once and go to Florida or some other winter resort as an immediate step toward regaining his health. But the governor can turn only to friends for guidance and the political fate of those advising him is dependent upon his remaining in Illinois as governor and as candidate for reëlection. One, Lynden Smith, a cabinetmaker, who advised him that a campaign was impossible, is said here to have been told to take a leave of absence from his Springfield post.

Meet in Chicago Friday.

After the meeting, at which the date and time of the next Democratic national convention may be decided, the Illinois Democrats are to return home for a meeting in Chicago next Friday of the Democratic state central committee. It was to the state committee they had left the job of making a harmony state ticket.

Horner wanted to oust Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, who filled in for him during the four months Horner spent in Florida last winter. He wants his aid, Louie E. Louis, now state treasurer, nominated for the second place, as heir apparent. Stelle refused to be purged and threatened to run against Horner. That's what Farley originally started worrying about.

HAS FLU, SAYS DOCTOR.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3.—Dr. Nathan Rosen, who has been attending Gov. Henry Horner, today said that the governor is ill with influenza. He has been in bed for several days. Dr. Rosen said he believed Gov. Horner would be over the attack by Monday.

ARLINE JUDGE.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Arline Judge Topping said today her husband, Dan Topping, had agreed to make her a financial settlement of $250,000. The dark eyed movie actress said the agreement also would give her custody of their 2 year old son, Donald. Miss Judge sued for divorce in December in Bridgeport, Conn., on charges of "intolerable cruelty." She said she expected to get her decree in April.

Woman Who Slew Youth Over Noise Is Acquitted

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP). — Mrs. Matilda Loura, 65 year old housewife who shot a young man to death last summer because boys at play in a vacant lot disturbed her sick husband, was found innocent of a murder charge "by reason of insanity" tonight in Circuit court. A jury of six men and six women, which for five days had heard witnesses tell a bitter story of disputes between the elderly woman and romping children, returned its verdict after having had the case nearly 24 hours.

F. LYNDEN SMITH IS PACKING UP FOR EXILE IN FLORIDA

Suddenly Discovers He Has Many Friends.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3.—F. Lynden Smith, director of public works, was packing his golf shoes and fishing tackle today for a two months' leave of absence in Florida.

F. Lynden Smith.

Smith, campaign manager for Gov. Horner, with a record of successes since 1932, plans to remain in the south until April 5, four days before the primary election in which the governor has announced he will be a candidate for a third term.

"I am taking no part in the campaign in behalf of any candidate," said the director.

These words had hotel lobbies buzzing. Politicians and office holders, Democrats and Republicans, are here for the first official filing of notices of candidacies.

Finds Many Friends.

Director Smith, who has received the brunt of attack from scandals during the Horner administration, suddenly finds himself with many friends and admirers. Republicans and those Democrats who are not members of the Horner-Nudelman-Schwartz-Lindheimer-Lieberman group credited Smith with telling the governor that he is too sick for the nervous and mental strain of public office. This advice, certain of his friends say, brought about the "exile" of Smith.

"Will you support Lieut. Gov. John Stelle or any one other than Horner who might become the Democratic nominee for governor?" Smith was asked.

"I haven't any political plans and I haven't any political ambitions," he answered. "My only plan is to stay out of the campaign as much as candidates will let me."

He's the "Fall Guy."

This last remark was a reference to the many blows that Smith has received, accepting responsibility that might otherwise involve Gov. Horner in such scandals as the solicitations of campaign funds and appointments of state policemen who get into trouble. He has been known as the fall guy for the state house gang.

"Are you going to resign?" Smith was asked.

"No," he answered emphatically.

"What about these reports that you have told Horner he is in no condition to run for office?" Smith was asked.

"I am not making any public statement regarding my reasons for going to Florida at this time," he replied. "The fact that I am going speaks for itself."

Defeated Will County Judge in Race for State's Attorney

Former Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet, who was defeated for reëlection last June in the 12th circuit judicial election, filed yesterday for the Democratic nominaton for state's attorney of Will county. James E. Burke of Joliet, the incumbent Will county state's attorney, filed his petition for the Republican nomination.

Yesterday was the first day of filing for county office nominations in the April 9 primary. Filings were light in the five counties surrounding Cook county. Few Democrats entered the contests.

Defeated in Hot Fight.

Former Judge Wilson was defeated for reëlection to the judgeship after a heated campaign. He was the subject of criticism because of an injunction he issued in 1937 restraining Joliet authorities from interfering with the operation of slot machines. An effort to impeach him was made in the Illinois house of representatives.

Other filings in Will county were:

Circuit clerk—Republican: Paul V. Wunder, Plainfield, and Elzie Bertrand, Josiah Treharne, Michael Boraine, and Elmer F. Brockman, all of Joliet. Democrat: John R. Barney, Joliet.

Coroner—Republican: Dr. E. A. Kingston, Lockport, and Leo Ivnic, Elmer Essington, and Floyd Olson, all of Joliet. Democrat: Dr. Londus B. Brannon of Manhattan, the incumbent.

In Lake County.

Filings in Lake county follow:

Circuit clerk—Republican: Lyman J. Wilmot, Waukegan, incumbent.

Auditor—Republican: Robert J. Persall, Waukegan, incumbent.

Coroner—Republican: Dr. John L. Taylor, Libertyville, incumbent, and Charles H. Krueger, Prairie View.

Circuit clerk—Republican: Robert Haenish, Glenn Ellyn, incumbent.

Recorder—Republican: Lawrence Hattendorf, Wheaton, incumbent.

Auditor—Republican: Robert D. Bradle, Naperville, incumbent.

No candidate filed for the nomination for state's attorney.

In McHenry County.

Filings in McHenry county:

State's attorney—Republican: William M. Carroll, Woodstock, incumbent.

Circuit clerk—Republican: W. T. Conn, Harvard, incumbent.

Coroner—Republican: E. H. Cook, Huntley, incumbent, and Harry L. Ehorn, Richmond.

There were no filings for the nominations of recorder and auditor.

Kane county petitions follow:

Circuit clerk—Republican: Charles F. Farmiloe, Aurora, incumbent.

Recorder — Republican: Merill H. Agnew, Elgin, incumbent.

Auditor—Republican: George A. Chapman, Elgin, incumbent.

Coroner—Republican: L. Victor Peterson, Elgin, incumbent.

Feb. 19 is the last day for filing for nominations for the county posts. Democrats are expected to enter their candidates by that time.

9 VOTE OFFICIALS SURRENDER; FACE CONTEMPT COUNT

Nine polls officials of the 1939 mayoralty election surrendered in County court yesterday on contempt charges resulting from reports of irregularities at the voting places.

Judge Edmund K. Jarecki released all nine on their recognizance, but ordered them to be in court again Tuesday, ready to post bonds of $2,500 each.

Four who surrendered are from the 33d precinct of the 4th ward. They are Mrs. Florence Proskauer, 1310 Hyde Park boulevard; Nathan I. Schwartz, 1318 Hyde Park boulevard; Mrs. Octavie Valiquet, 1318 Hyde Park boulevard, and Ralph J. Weber, 1380 Hyde Park boulevard. Mrs. Dorothy K. Auerbach, 1318 Hyde Park boulevard, the other member of the board under fire, is out of the city.

The others who surrendered formed the board of the 9th precinct of the 22d ward. They are Thomas Molloy, 2109 South Christiana avenue; Sophia B. Nelson, 1935 South Homan avenue; Sophie Harte, 2101 South Christiana avenue; Anton Cieslielski, 2116 South Spaulding avenue, and Agnes M. Rizbski, 1917 South Christiana avenue.

58 File for Primary Race; 39 Are Republican.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Thirty-nine Republicans and 19 Democrats today filed with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes their petitions for nominations as candidates for state senatorships.

Elections will be held this year in the even numbered senatorial districts of the state, and also in the 27th district where the death of Senator John Broderick [D.] created a vacancy. Twenty-six state senators thus will be elected. There are 51 senatorial districts, and odd and even numbered districts alternate in elections held every two years to fill the four year senatorial terms.

Today's list of senatorial filings does not include the names of eight incumbents. Two of those missing are Republicans. They are Senators Louis E. Beckman of the 20th district and T. Mac Downing of the 32d. The remaining six Democrats are: Wilber H. Hickman of the 22d district; W. E. C. Clifford, 24th; L. C. Sieberns, 26th; Nicholas L. Hubbard, 28th; Melvin Thomas, 34th, and H. NEW ICE GORGES APPEAR AS RIVER CUTS THRU SOME

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 3 (AP).—The chief ice menace in the Mississippi river shifted to a gorge near Helena, Ark., tonight after the river cut a channel thru a 13 mile ice blockade near Caruthersville, Mo.

Danger was believed past for the huge towboat Illinois, which was jammed near Caruthersville until last night when the gorge started breaking and tore loose seven of her 10 barges.

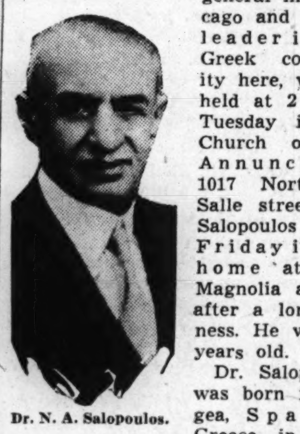
DR. N. A. SALOPOULOS, 74, IS DEAD; PATRIARCH OF GREEK IMMIGRANTS



Dr. N. A. Salopoulos.

The funeral of Dr. Nicholas Athanasiou Salopoulos, first Greek consul general in Chicago and long a leader in the Greek community here, will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the Church of the Annunciation, 1017 North La Salle street. Dr. Salopoulos died Friday in his home at 4436 Magnolia avenue after a long illness. He was 74 years old.

Dr. Salopoulos was born in Tegea, Sparta, Greece, in 1866. During the war between Turkey and Greece in 1897 he was on the medical corps staff of the Greek army. Subsequently he was appointed consul general in Chicago. He occupied this post from 1898 to 1918.

As a pioneer among early Greek immigrants he was known as the "Patriarch of the Greek Immigrants." He was active as publisher of the local weekly newspaper, Saloniki, which was formerly published by his brother, Constantine A. Salopoulos, who died in 1929. In 1912 Dr. Salopoulos was a leader in forming volunteer brigades which went to Greece to fight in the Balkan wars.

TRIBUNE AWARDS 3 R. O. T. C. MEDALS AT ST. NORBERT

Green Bay, Wis., Feb. 3 [Special].—The Chicago Tribune medals for military proficiency in the R. O. T. C. were awarded here tonight to three students of St. Norbert college at nearby De Pere. Presentation of the medals was made at the college's second annual military ball, which was attended by 500 couples.

A gold medal went to Kenneth D. Simmet of Green Bay, a junior, highest point winner. Second place and a silver medal were won by Paul Vanderheiden of Wrightstown, a senior. Vincent Deleers of Marinette, a postgraduate student, was awarded a bronze medal.

Vanderheiden, who spent a month at Camp Custer, Mich., last summer taking an advanced R. O. T. C. course, is one of two St. Norbert seniors who will be given examinations next week for regular army duty. Army examiners will come to the college Thursday after giving examinations at Ripon college and other schools in the area.

FRESHMAN ASKS SOME QUESTIONS AND GETS REPLIES

Sweet Briar, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—Into the postoffice of Sweet Briar College for Girls came a post card, addressed to box 408, from a southern school.

"Dear box 408," it read, "I was just wondering what the holder of my box number at Sweet Briar looks like. As for me, I am tall, dark, and I drive a Ford V-8. I am a freshman. What do you look like? What class are you in?"

Out from Sweet Briar went the reply to box 408 at the southern institution. It read, in part:

"I am tall, too, and not as thin as I once was. My hair is white and I drive a Buick. I was a freshman in 1896.

"Maybe you will get to Sweet Briar in your V-8 some day. If so, come in to see me."

Postoffice box 408 at Sweet Briar college belongs to the president of the college, Dr. Meta Glass, sister of Virginia's senator Carter Glass.

CHICAGO EXTENDS CONVENTION BID TO DEMOCRATS

Presents Formal Claims to Party Tomorrow.

Chicago, host to 16 national political conventions since 1860, including several when the nation faced vitally important problems, will lay its claims as an ideal convention center before the Democratic national committee in Washington tomorrow. The Republicans will be similarly importuned Feb. 16.

Since Abraham Lincoln was nominated at the famous "Wigwam convention" in 1860, the city has been host to 10 other Republican and five Democratic conventions. Both parties met here in 1884 and again in 1932.

Center of Emergency Periods.

Republican nominees chosen in Chicago show that that party turned here during several great national emergencies and periods of political strife.

One of these was the dramatic "Bull Moose" convention in 1912, when Theodore Roosevelt bolted the party and was nominated here a short time after the regular nominee, the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft, had also been selected in Chicago.

Four years later, in 1916, with the country on the brink of war, the G. O. P. turned again to Chicago, nominating the present chief justice, Charles Evans Hughes, who came so close to defeating Woodrow Wilson for a second term.

Chicagoans saw the late Warren G. Harding nominated in 1920, with Calvin Coolidge, who was to succeed him, as his running mate. And it witnessed the renomination of Herbert Hoover and the late Charles Curtis in 1932, a few days before the Roosevelt-Garner ticket was selected by the Democrats in the same hall—the Chicago Stadium.

Other Nominees Chosen Here.

James A. Garfield was the G. O. P. nominee in 1880, and James G. Blaine in '84—two other nominees picked at Chicago. Four years later, Benjamin Harrison was chosen here, then the Republicans skipped Chicago until 1904, when "Teddy" Roosevelt was the nominee. Taft's two nominations—in 1908 and 1912—were both made here.

Chicago's 1940 bid will be made by William J. Hennessy, chief of the convention bureau of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and by William J. Kelly, a director of the association and president of Arthur J. O'Leary & Sons, a steel concern. Kelly is also president of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute.

These men will appear before the Democratic national committee in the Mayflower tomorrow to urge Chicago's distinct availability as a host to large conventions.

Climate, the lake breezes, the abundance of hotel space, the ideal setup of the convention hall, and the advantages of the city as a rail and air terminal will be the talking points in the Hennessy-Kelly arguments. They will point out to the committeemen that Chicago is not more than a day's ride from the homes of most delegates and alternates.

Hotel Rates to Hold.

Hotel rates, the committee will be assured, will not be raised if the Democrats choose Chicago. Mayor Kelly will be on hand to second all the arguments.

Philadelphia and San Francisco will be other bidders for the Democratic convention. At Republican headquarters in Washington the list of interested cities includes Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, Brooklyn, and San Francisco.

U.S. ACTS TO HALT JAP BOMBING OF RAILWAY IN CHINA

WarnsAmericansUseLine Owned by French.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).--The United States has made informal representations to the Japanese and French governments against activities on the Haiphong-Yunnan railway which were held to be detrimenta' to American interests.

Authoritative sources disclosed today that the American ambassadors in Tokio and Paris during recent weeks "had brought to the attention of the Japanese and French governments the interest the United States has in the railway linking French Indo-China and China as a normal artery of commercial transportation.'

The representations, made before Japanese bombers blasted a tunnel and train on the line on Thursday, killing five occidentals and twenty Chinese, emphasized that goods destined to and from the United States are carried over the railway, and that Americans frequently are passengers on it while carrying on legitimate activities.

It was reported that long delays in movements of American goods also motivated the state department in taking the question up with both the French and Japanese governments. The railway is French owned to the Chinese border.

Paris Prepares Protest.

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP).—Government spokesmen voiced "indignant surprise" today at reports that Japanese warplanes had bombed a train on the French operated Kunming-Hanoi railway in southwestern China and said the matter would be "taken up" at once with Tokio.

Five Europeans were reported killed in the bombing, which destroyed 100 yards of track and wrecked a bridge over which the train was passing.

Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with the Japanese ambassador, presumably regarding the incident.

Authorized quarters said the bombing was a surprise, because France had been given to understand by Japanese officials that attacks on the railway, which have occurred several times in the past, would cease.

Seek Settlement.

These sources said the United States also had protested previous bombings, and declared that the French ambassador to Japan, Charles Arsene Henry, had pointed out that the railway is of wide international interest.

The bombing came as negotiations were being conducted in Tokio to settle problems bearing on the railway, which the Japanese assert has been used to transport munitions into China. The French have denied this.

The railway extends from Kunming, capital of Yunnan province, to the French Indo-China port of Haiphong by way of Hanoi.

London Gets Jap Note.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—A second Japanese note on the seizure of 21 Germans from the Japanese liner Asama Maru by a British warship was received in London today.

Japan originally protested the seizure and the British replied with a note seeking to justify the action under international law.

Japanese Claim Victories

Principal events of yesterday in the war between Japan and China are indicated on the map. The shadings show how, according to a Chinese propagandist, the Japanese advance was slowed down in 1939.

Japan's Army Chief Defends Nation's 'Sacred' War in China

TOKIO, Feb. 3 (AP).—Benefits from Japan's projected "new order" in China, War Minister Shunroku Hata declared tonight, will more than make up for any sacrifices, including the lives of 100,000 officers and men he said Japan already had lost in the war.

Genl Shunroku Hata.

In reply to the criticism of army policy in China by Takao Saito, member of the house of representatives, Hata said the army regards the war with China as a "sacred campaign.

The war minister said the Chinese war was "entirely different from the so-called aggressive wars wherein the strong prey upon the weak" because peace will be restored to the orient after "the procomintern and anti-Japanese government of China" is crushed.

It is a matter of "profound regret," Hata said, that there are some who "entertain some doubt as to our objective in China."

Saito, who questioned plans to set up a Japanese sponsored government in China, resigned from his political party, the Minseito, today and the house disciplinary committee is considering further action against him. Already his speech has been stricken from the official record.

His resignation was offered on the advice of other Minseito leaders and promptly was accepted, as the army, smarting under his advice that Japanese troops be withdrawn from China to pave the way for peace, demanded to be heard in answer in the diet [parliament].

Aroused army officers charged that Saito had made "open insults against the objectives of the sacred war in China."

The full text of his statement was stricken from the record, and newspapers merely referred to what were called objectionable parts but, apparently, he demanded to know what reward the people have had for their sacrifices of blood and money in China.

The political tradition of Japan permits free, unrestricted criticism of the government, but the fighting services presumably are exempt, particularly during the "emergency period" which began with the Manchurian incident in 1932.

To a chorus of "No! No!" from angry diet members, Saito questioned plans to set up a Japanese-sponsored government in China under Wang Ching-wei, former Chinese premier who differed with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

He told the house the Japanese people were "acting in accordance with the dictates of the government because they believe they will bring the affair to a satisfactory conclusion."

"If the government betrays this confidence," he warned, "the results would be disastrous."

JAPANESE SMASH CHINESE ARMIES; CAPTURE A TOWN

Push Back Foe in Both North and South.

HONGKONG, Feb. 3 (AP).—Climaxing a week long drive, Japan' northern armies reported today they had captured Wuyuan in Suiyuan province, Inner Mongolia, after smashing the resistance of 50,000 Chinese who were said to be fleeing in disorder across the snow covered plains.

The Japanese said their troops were advancing beyond Wuyuan in hot pursuit of the Chinese. The dispatches contradicted earlier Chinese reports which declared that the Japanese had been thrown back at several points in Suiyuan province.

At the same time the Japanese reported from the southern province of Kwangsi that their troops were closing in on 200,000 Chinese caught in a gigantic pincer movement north of Nanning.

A Japanese column on the right flank was said to have killed 1,000 Chinese and captured three tanks and two antitank guns in a fierce encounter. Another Japanese column engaged 3,000 Chinese troops in a bloody three hour battle in which 1,000 Chinese also were reported killed.

The Japanese ground forces were supported by mass attacks by warplanes as they carried out an onslaught along the entire Kwangsi province front, it was said.

Belated Chinese reports conceded that a Japanese column had reached a point 31 miles northeast of Nanning, the provincial capital, in a drive to sever China's vital links with British Burma and French Indo-China.

JAPS BLACK OUT LINER TO GUARD 16 NAZIS ABOARD

HONOLULU, T. H., Feb. 3 (AP).—All lights on the Japanese liner Kamakura Maru were blacked out for three successive nights to protect 16 Germans on board, passengers reported after the ship's arrival today.

They said the blackouts were ordered on the first three nights out of Yokohama, Japan. American passengers said the N. Y. K. line refused to transport the Germans until they signed statements absolving the steamship line if British warships took them off the ship.

A German said his countrymen were en route to Mexico and South America.

NAME PEARL HARBOR AS HOME PORT FOR 13 NAVAL VESSELS

HONOLULU, Feb. 3 (AP).—Naval officers said today Pearl Harbor, mid-Pacific naval base near Honolulu, would become the home port of 13 vessels of the American fleet.

Vessels to be based here include the heavy cruisers Indianapolis, Northampton, Houston, Pensacola, Salt Lake City, Minneapolis, Astoria, and New Orleans. Others are the light cruisers Raleigh, the destroyer tender Dobbin, and the minesweepers Kingfisher, Partridge, and Turkey.

The order will enable 700 first class and chief petty officers to transport their families to Hawaii.

State to Rule Mexican Town as Killing Sequel

GUAYMAS, Sonora, Mex., Feb. 3 (AP).—The municipal government of Empalme, nine miles west of here, ceased to exist today by decree of the Sonora legislature. The municipality will be governed by a commissariat appointed by the Guaymas government. The action is reported to have grown out of the recent killing of Antonio Garcia Pandura by Ignacio Glanco, a former chief of police, and other alleged corruptions.

JAPANESE CHARGE CHINESE GUNFIRE PERILS U. S. SHIP

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3 (AP).—A Japanese army spokesman said today that Chinese artillery fire along the banks of the Yangtze river yesterday endangered the American gunboat Luzon carrying Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and Rear Admiral William Glassford and other American officials.

The incident occurred, the Japanese said, about 20 miles above Wuhu. The gunboat was coming down river from Hankow. The Japanese said a Japanese transport was about 500 yards up the river from the Luzon and it was impossible to tell at which ship the Chinese were firing as shrapnel fell around both.

Johnson was returning from a visit to Hankow. Glassford is commander of the American Yangtze patrol. Others aboard the gunboat included Maj. William Mayer, military attaché, and Maj. James McHugh, assistant naval attaché.

The Japanese declared the Chinese sought to take advantage of the presence of the American craft by launching a bombardment against Japanese river traffic.

PUTS HIGH COST OF RUNNING STATE AT HORNER'S DOOR

Lund Says Illinois Ranks Highest for Size.

Size for size, Illinois has the most extravagant and slipshod state government in the Union, State Representative Arnold L. Lund [R., Riverside] said yesterday following a survey of finances of all 48 states. Lund recently recommended a cut of $57,000,000 in the biennial budget following a study of Illinois government.

"Illinois is the worst offender among all states of comparable size against the common sense principle of economy," Lund said. "Taken alone, its record is bad. Compared with other states, Illinois' record is shocking."

Lund, a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, said he found that most states have raised their budget requirements only about 5 per cent, while others have lowered budgets, during the last eight years.

Costs Under Horner Rocket.

In the same period Illinois under Gov. Henry Horner has increased operating costs nearly 100 per cent, Lund said. Altho the Democratic state administration has blamed relief and old age assistance for increased spending, every other state has faced the same problems, Lund noted.

"The cost of Illinois state government jumped from 187 million dollars for the 1929-31 biennium to 463 millions during the present biennium," Lund said.

"But in the last two years Massachusetts cut $5,000,000 from its appropriations. Kansas, Maine, Florida, and California have made proportionate cuts, as have a score of other states.

"Illinois lags far behind the other states in allotments to schools. California allots $159,432,000 each biennium, while Illinois provides about one-sixth of this amount.

Money Goes for Pay Rollers.

"Our money here is spent on 38,000 pay rollers, 3,000 state automobiles for them to joy ride in, and political trimmings which produce votes but not service."

Relative costs of state government during the 1939-'41 biennium follow, according to Lund's survey.

	Cost.	Population.
Illinois	$463,001,179	7,878,000
Pennsylvania	336,975,000	10,176,000
Michigan	334,966,354	4,830,000
Texas	328,646,000	6,172,000
Indiana	289,446,314	3,474,000
California	286,882,141	6,154,000
Massachusetts	153,352,000	4,426,000
Florida	135,642,000	1,670,000
Oregon	91,456,989	1,027,000
Maine	82,354,887	856,000
Arkansas	76,470,000	2,048,000
West Virginia	67,797,000	1,865,000
Oklahoma	47,642,000	2,548,000
Vermont	19,424,000	383,000
Kansas	17,085,104	1,864,000

This is the only state that makes lump sum appropriations which provide official spenders with much leeway, and the only state to permit appropriations for "contingencies" in large amounts, Lund said.

Kiss for a Queen

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Two tiny guests on their way to the ball to pay homage to the king and queen.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 3 [Special].—Splendor rivaling that of the Mardi Gras celebrations held by grownups was enjoyed by children from 1 to 4 years old who gathered here yesterday for the ball of the Krewe of Valentine. The pageant had a king and queen and other gala accoutrement. The king, John Virgil Dugan III., even stole an unglamorous kiss from her majesty, Queen Jearnine Wagner, which she endured without interest. Both are 4 years old.

URGES PRIVATE COUNCIL TO CUT FEDERAL COSTS

Private citizens should organize their own council of experts to scrutinize federal spending and halt waste, George S. Lavin, candidate for the Republican nomination for congressman at large, said yesterday. He asserted that this program would cut federal expenditures more than a billion dollars a year without harming any public service.

George S. Lavin.

Lavin is widening the scope of his campaign for one of the pair of "at large" places on the G. O. P. ticket, A former assistant state's attorney and assistant Illinois attorney general, on Jan. 9 Lavin stepped out of the race for nomination in the 9th congressional district in favor of Charles S. Dewey.

Lavin's program calls for creation of the fact finding council by business, industry, labor, and agriculture. These private interests would provide the technical staff to analyze all government disbursements to determine where there is waste that can be eliminated.

The plan is already in operation in dozens of local, county, and state governments from coast to coast, Lavin said. Already it has saved many millions of dollars for taxpayers in these communities, he said.

"If a public official calls in accountants and tells them to investigate his spending, you know very well that the result is going to be favorable to that official," Lavin asserted. "But, if private citizens are behind the program, there will be no whitewash.

"Such a program is succeeding because it recognizes that you can't cut taxes simply by shifting them from one group of citizens to another. The only way you can reduce taxes is to reduce what causes them—spending."

COL. M'CORMICK ENDOWS MEDICAL RESEARCH FUND

Gift to Northwestern U. Honors Dr. Cutter.

Property at the northwest corner of Lake Shore drive and Pearson street has been given to Northwestern university by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Receipt of the donation was announced yesterday by Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of the university. According to the gift agreement, the property is to be used "for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a fund, the income from which is to be spent for research in the medical school."

Dr. Cutter Honored.

The fund is to be called the "Irving S. Cutter Fund for Medical Research" in honor of Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the medical school of Northwestern university and health editor of THE TRIBUNE.

"Northwestern university is sincerely grateful to Col. McCormick for this generous gift," President Snyder said. "It makes it possible for us to investigate some of the many unsolved problems of medicine and at the same time honors a man who as dean of our medical school since 1925 has made significant contributions to medicine and medical education."

Near Athletic Club Building.

Dr. Snyder said the university has not yet formulated plans for utilization of the property, which is located immediately south and west of the Lake Shore Athletic club building at 850 Lake Shore drive. The lot fronts approximately 80 feet on the drive and about 335 feet on the north side of Pearson street.

The gift was made by Col. McCormick in appreciation of Dr. Cutter's distinguished service to the field of medicine. He has been medical director of Passavant Memorial hospital since 1928.

Dr. Cutter also is a lecturer and writer of learned monographs including "The Origin of Life," "School of Medicine," "The History of Obstetrics and Gynecology," and the "History of Physical Therapy."

Born in New Hampshire.

Born in Keene, N. H., he came west with his parents in 1882. The family settled in Lincoln, Neb., and he was graduated from the University of Nebraska and from the medical school of that institution. In 1910 he entered general practice in Lincoln, later becoming instructor in the medical school.

When the university medical school was moved to Omaha, Dr. Cutter went with it as the dean. He remained there until 1925 when he was called to take over leadership of Northwestern medical school.

Rockford College Girls Air Their Economic Knowledge

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP)—Prof. Meno Lowenstein of the Rockford college faculty asked students to define a number of economic terms. Some of the girls came up with: Fixed capital, stationary city where the governor lives; cumulative stock, 100,000 guinea pigs; elasticity of demand, woman's prerogative; latent competition, lying down on the job.

Wash Apparel to Be Shown

Tomboy slack suit in shepherd check cotton with Spanish linen finish, and a two piece, two tone chambray golf dress, two of the styles to be shown at Palmer House beginning today.

Play suits, slacks, beach wear, lingerie—10,000 new styles in women's wash clothes—will be placed on display for 5,000 buyers at the Palmer House today. The occasion is the spring market sponsored by the Chicago Wash Apparel association.

One hundred and fifty manufacturers will have goods on exhibit. They expect to sell $2,500,000 worth of merchandise during the style show, which ends Friday. Mayor Kelly and David H. Mayer, president of the State Street council, will welcome the buyers at a luncheon in the hotel today.

14,000 Apply for Posts as Election Judges, Clerks

Nearly 14,000 persons have applied for jobs as election judges and clerks, H. E. Maski, superintendent of judges and clerks for the board of election commissioners, said yesterday. Examinations of applicants started last Tuesday and will continue until all are examined, he said.

TAFT MAKES BID FOR CONVENTION VOTES IN SOUTH

Hits New Deal's Doctrine of Hopelessness.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 [Special].—Industrial recovery in this country is being blocked by the New Deal doctrine of hopelessness about the future of private enterprise, Senator Robert A. Taft declared tonight.

The Ohioan spoke before a large Republican rally at Bayfront park in bidding for southern support of his Presidential candidacy at the G. O. P. national convention.

Voters Must Choose Now.

The Republican candidate told his listeners they were approaching the most important election this country has ever seen because they must decide whether a New Deal administration, which already has checked enterprise in the nation, shall govern the United States for four years more.

"What has checked our progress?" he asked. "Without question it is New Deal government policy. There is a determined hostility in many government departments to the development of private industry. The government includes many men who desire to change our system to a form of state socialism, and who spread a doctrine of hopelessness about the future of private enterprise."

Says Red Tape Deters Business.

As deterrents to employment-creating enterprise, Senator Taft cited the red tape and restrictions of the Securities and Exchange commission, direct competition with business by such agencies as the Tennessee Valley authority, the biased conduct of the National Labor Relations board, the duplicating inspections and investigations under such laws as the wage-hour and Walsh-Healey acts, the growing tax burden, and the general business-baiting policies of the New Deal.

"The cycle of increasing prosperity in the past," he said, "has been set in motion not by increased consumption, but by increased production, by the constant growth of private enterprise."

Downstate Newspaperman to Run for State Senator

Johnston City, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Harris W. Jones of Johnston City, a member of the Herrin Daily Journal staff, has announced that he will be a candidate on the Republican ticket for state senator from the 50th district at the April 9 primary.

The candidate is the son of Editor R. W. Jones of the Johnston City Progress and is a graduate of the school of journalism at the University of Illinois.

RETIRED MANUFACTURER DIES.

TWO-STRIKE STARTS

By CALEB

DISCOURAGED because you have bumped your spiritual shins on the sharp corner of a failure? That's natural. But the next move —after the shin-bumping—should be prompted not by "nature" at all, but by reason for nature—one's automatic response to a reverse—suggests retreat; crawling away; lying low; nursing one's bruises. And in so doing, the danger is that morale will ooze away, too. Retreat once rationalized into something permanent . . . presto! the man with "two strikes" is out.

Reason proceeds differently. Say a student flyer has crashed. Before he can count his bumps, or retreat, his trainer has him up in the air again. Had he been allowed to wait—stayed down till his nature got afraid—the ten-to-one answer would be: No more flying!

This distinction between "natural" reaction to a setback, and reasoned disposition of it, is one of the earliest lessons developed from Experience. Something goes wrong, doesn't work, "blows a fuse" . . . and you can immediately do one of two things about it. You can cry, sigh, shiver, shrink—and quit. You can scramble up, think through, plan ahead—and tackle the whole situation anew!

How fortunate for us humans that this second course is just as wide-open and chooseable as the first! Suppose there were no such option; that we were limited to a third strike only . . . where would be the possibility of a hit?

We all receive bumps on our spiritual shins. In this space has been told before how a veteran storekeeper tried out Marshall Field and predicted he couldn't possibly become a merchant. Edison's boyhood cronies prophesied no good for him; he was too flighty. And plenty of early failures seemed to prove them right. High-up critics advised Tennyson and Keats to try anything else but poetry! The author of Sherlock Holmes sent out manuscripts for five years before he got into print. Joseph Hergesheimer was nearer fourteen years in getting his acceptance. And Browning, at first, had to publish his work himself. . . .

Someone asked "Babe" Ruth if he didn't get nervous and uncertain when he had come up to bat, and heard the umpire call out: "Str-r-r-ike one"—then, after a few paralyzing moments: "Str-r-r-ike two!"

"Why should I?" grinned the imperturbable King of Swat. "I don't need to hit that ball three times. I only need to hit it once."

Luckily for mankind, Life gives you and me a better deal than any baseball diamond. Strike three on the ball lot, and you're out! But Life may have a dozen strikes up on you—and still you can remain at bat. Why is it, then, some of us forget that golden fact—and retreat to the bench in despair?

FISTS FLY WHILE BRITONS HECKLE WAR SECRETARY

Stanley Rebukes Pleas for Peace Parley.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, Feb. 3 (AP).—In a speech interrupted several times by hecklers, Oliver Stanley, Britain's war secretary, today answered advocates of peace negotiations. The war must go on, he said, to end forever the power of Germans "to inflict upon the world the misery which twice in our life they have done."

Oliver Stanley.

While the heckling was going on a fist fight involving one of the hecklers broke out and six men were ejected from the hall. Leaflets headed "War Is in Vain" were showered from a balcony.

Stanley told his audience that under "the system which we are fighting" the hecklers would have been sent not to the street, but to a concentration camp.

Shuns "Troubled Truce."

Vehement in his first speech since taking office, Stanley said that to halt the war now would bring only a troubled truce.

"Within a few months, at the most within a few years," he said, "we should find we had not won peace but had sacrificed victory."

Britain is ready to grasp with both hands at a peace which is both secure and honorable, but only victory can assure such an end, he added.

Stanley singled out Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, former prime minister of the Union of South Africa, as one of the advocates of peace and an apologist for Adolf Hitler.

Hertzog went out of office on Sept. 6 after losing a campaign for a separate peace with Germany, and was defeated recently when he revived the issue in the union parliament.

Stanley said distance had lent enchantment to Hertzog's views on Europe.

Calls Europe as Witness.

"Let us go around Europe," Stanley added, "and ask the small neutral countries . . . if they feel this confidence in Hitler."

"Are we just a little inconsistent? No, Gen. Hertzog—just 2,000 miles nearer the facts. Millions of different race, of different language, and of different creed bear witness to the fact that with this man [Hitler] leading, and with his nation allowing him to lead, there will be no peace . . . for the world."

Conceding the treaty of Versailles had faults, Stanley resumed:

"Do you think a victorious Germany would give a defeated Britain a treaty of Versailles? Shorn of our empire, our fleet, and our trade, we would be a small, overcrowded island, its recovery impossible and even its survival in doubt."

Goal a "Peaceful Germany."

"We do not desire their destruction," he said. "We do not threaten their prosperity, we do not want to make their land the desert they have made of a quarter of Europe. We want them to be peaceful and happy members of a peaceful and happy Europe."

The first object of the government, Stanley said, is maximum military aid to its allies. The second, he added, is to avoid sending men to battle without adequate training.

DELAYED SHIP'S SKIPPER ASSAILS BRITISH TACTICS

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Capt. N. S. Groves, master of the American Export Liner Excalibur, criticized British interference with American shipping and mails when his vessel docked at Jersey City today.

He said that on the eastward crossing the Excalibur was held for two weeks at Gibraltar on orders of the British contraband control, and that all mail addressed to Germany was taken off the ship and was still in possession of the British when he sailed.

"What took them two weeks should have been done in two days at the outside," Capt. Groves said. His cargo, consigned to Switzerland, finally received the approval of the British authorities when they were convinced that it was not destined for Germany. Capt. Groves said most of the seized mail probably was sent on to Germany after it had been censored.

FIVE CHICAGOANS QUALIFY AS ARMY FLYING CADETS

Five young men from Chicago are among 21 newly qualified army flying cadets from Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, Lieut. Gen. Stanley Ford, commanding the 6th corps area, announced yesterday.

On Feb. 14 they will begin a 12 weeks' course at aviation schools, in Oklahoma, Texas, or California. Those who complete this course will then continue three months' training at Randolph field in Texas and will finish with three months' training at Kelly field. They will then be commissioned first lieutenants. During the training period they receive $75 a month, meals, uniforms, and quarters.

The Chicagoans are Gilbert E. Erb, 6329 South Kedzie avenue; Stuart J. Heiss, 7515 Cregier avenue; Gilbert I. Omens, 1055 Ainslie street; Elmer E. Ambrose, 25 South Oakley boulevard, and Edwin A. Woods, 9342 South May street.

LAST OF FLINT CARGO LANDED IN BRITAIN, DESPITE NAZI BOAST

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The last of the cargo of the American freighter City of Flint, which the Germans boasted would never reach Britain, has been landed at Liverpool and Manchester, it was announced today.

The perishable part of the cargo aboard the ship when it was captured by a German prize crew was auctioned at Bergen, Norway. The rest was transferred to another port and stored. The stored cargo, including machinery, radio parts and raw materials, was brought across the North sea in small ships. Some were unloaded at northeast and southeast ports.

CATHOLIC PAPER RAPS APPEAL TO TAKE WAR SIDES

Neutrality Plea Assails 2 Protestant Bishops.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The official publication of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, The New World, yesterday assailed the neutrality views of thirty or more educators, clergymen, and leading laymen of many denominations who recently issued a public letter asking American Christians to take moral and ethical sides in present wars.

Among signers of the document were Presiding Bishop Henry St. George Tucker of the American Episcopal church, Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, and the presidents of Union Theological seminary, New York, Yale and Brown universities. Their letter asserted that American churches are under obligation to lead the United States to assume responsible relationship to present wars.

Rap War Drum Beatings.

Under the editorial title of "Getting Necks Out," the New World editorial praised the stand taken by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist church, against what was called the "war drum beatings" of the signers of the open letter. The editorial also contained reference to a series of articles in The Christian Century, entitled "Preachers Present Arms." This series reviewed the war mongerings of occupants of many prominent pulpits prior to the United States' entry into the world war.

The New World's editorial said in part: "

"We agree with Bishop Waldorf wholeheartedly that most ministers would not like to see America's neutrality violated even if England and France can base their present struggle of ethical arguments. It is doubly surprising that the hishops in question [Bishops Tucker and Stewart] should so confuse 'whose war this is.'

Blames Unjust Treaty.

"Very few Americans can be found who want Hitlerism and communism to win. Hitlerism and communism were not caused by any equation of victory or defeat. They were spawned directly from the injustices of the Versailles treaty. If Christianity is taking a beating is it not immediately from the swords of the Nazis and soviets. It dates back to the treaty makers, who had less genuine Christianity than the average Nazi or communist.

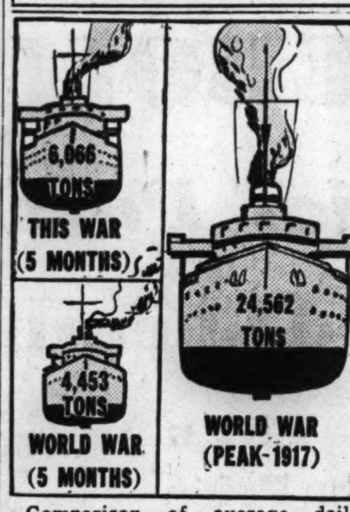
"If treaties sowed the seeds of the present situation, why think that 1940 or '45 will suddenly change the nature of victors? Why throw active support on the side of the conqueror when he probably will sow Germany with salt and just as surely breed a resentful people, whose innate resourcefulness and genius can never be stamped out?"

Scent Note of Prejudice.

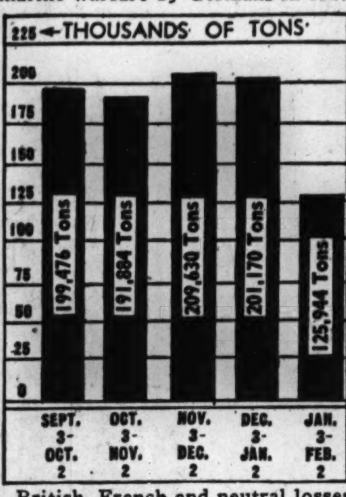
The editorial admitted Christianity is being threatened, but said it has always emerged greater than ever from wars, migrations of nations, and persecutions.

"We who love America," the editorial continued, "should feel that neutrality can be maintained with honor, that statements should not be signed with ink which smells strangely of Anglophile prejudice."

Sinkings Below 1917



Comparison of average daily shipping tonnage lost by Britain and France during the first five months of the present war with average daily losses of the allies during the first five months of the world war and with average daily allied losses during period of unrestricted submarine warfare by Germans in 1917.



British, French and neutral losses of merchant shipping by months during the first five months of the present war. The figure for the fifth month is tentative, pending verification of reports.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

British, French and neutral ships are being sunk faster in the current European war than they were for the first two years of the world war, but the rate of destruction still is far below that after Germany launched unrestricted submarine warfare in February, 1917.

In the first five months of the world war an average of 4,453 tons of allied and neutral shipping was sunk daily. This war's figure for the opening five months, up to Feb. 2, is 6,066. But this is nowhere near the peak established in the second quarter of 1917, when the daily average was 24,562.

In the first five months of the current war a total of 928,104 tons of allied and neutral merchant vessels has been sent to the bottom.

Known German merchant losses in the current war have totaled 159,122 tons in the first five months.

14 BOATS SUNK, NAZIS REPORT; 3 PLANES LOST

Britons Describe Fight That Downed Bomber.

I saw two members of the crew trying to pull out an injured airman. All the time the three British fighters were circling low overhead, watching what was taking place."

Helps Pull Two from Craft.

Steele helped the two flyers to pull from the wreckage the body of their dead comrade and the one who was so seriously injured that he died.

An authorized statement said the survivors set the wreckage on fire.

Antiaircraft batteries on the shore as well as fighter planes went into action against the bomber sighted off the mouth of the River Tyne. The invader was shot down about two miles off shore while spectators lined the sea front to watch the battle despite a police warning of danger from shell fragments and bullets.

Trawler Sinks Submarine.

With an elated display of the royal air force showing against the Germans, the press gave prominent space to the story told by survivors of the torpedoed Swedish steamer Pajala in Oslo that a British trawler had sunk the submarine which attacked their ship. They said the trawler sank the submarine with a depth bomb after the underseas craft had torpedoed the Pajala on Jan. 18 while it was being escorted to a contraband control station. The Danish steamer Hroar, which took the survivors to Stavanger, Norway, also landed survivors of the Vidar, 1,353 ton Danish freighter, which hit a mine two days ago and sank with the loss of 15 of her crew of 23.

Planes Help Save 16.

Royal air force planes were instrumental in two rescues at sea in the last two days. A reconnaissance plane yesterday saw seven men adrift on a raft in the North sea, off the Scottish coast, and directed a trawler to their aid. Today a convoy escort plane saw nine seamen in a lifeboat and showed a fishing smack the way to the rescue.

FEARS VAST WAR 'SLAUGHTER' MAY COME AT EASTER

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 3 (AP).—Fear that the Easter season may bring "slaughter on a vast scale" was expressed today by Cardinal Joseph MacRory in a Lenten day pastoral.

"Let us continue to hope and pray that peace may soon return, but hope will be less if once the spring campaign opens, accompanied as it inevitably will be by slaughter on a vast scale," he said.

"I think of the possibility, not to say the probability of another unjust peace, of long war, of hundreds of thousands, even millions bound to be killed or wounded. Unemployment, misery and discontent are sure to ensue even among the victors.

"I cannot help asking myself 'Why do not statesmen on both sides meet even now and at least try to negotiate for a just peace? Why do not the people concerned on both sides call upon them to do so?"

MEXICANS DROP CLASS STRUGGLE IN SIX YEAR PLAN

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3 (AP).—The final draft of a Mexican six year plan was made public today by the Mexican revolutionary party, political organ of President Lazaro Cardenas.

It charts a program for Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, the party's presidential candidate in the July elections. He was reported to have said he would encourage private capital and foreign investments if elected.

"It should not be thought that it will be either possible or advisable to force the class struggle to its ultimate consequences," the platform states. Another section declares that "guaranteed as the rights of the worker will be, private initiative will not encounter in the six year plan any obstacles or hostilities."

British and Turks Conclude a New Clearing Agreement

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP).—A new British-Turkish trade and clearing agreement, described as consolidating and modifying one concluded in 1936, was signed today by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax and Turkish Ambassador Tevfik Rustu Aras.

A German bombing plane was shot down near Whitby, England (1), by British airmen yesterday. Another was brought down off the mouth of the River Tyne (2). A third was reported to have fallen into the sea off Northumberland and a fourth to have been severely damaged near the Farne Islands (3).

SISTER OF FINNS' WAR COMMANDER ARRIVES IN U. S.

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Aboard the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord when it docked here today was the Countess Eva Sparre, sister of Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim. Altho she has not been in Finland since the start of the war with Russia, she said she had heard from her brother, who commands the Finnish army, that he is in excellent health. The countess, who lives in Sweden, is 69 years old. She said she had come to this country to lecture about Finland and to urge that the United States refuse to sell gasoline to Russia.

SHIP HITS MINE; CREW PUTS OUT FIRE AND GOES ON

Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Feb. 4 [Sunday] (AP).—Radio messages from the 5,825 ton Dutch steamer Laertes early today said her crew of 100 had extinguished fire that swept the ship after it hit a mine in the English channel.

An S O S was sent out by the ship, but later messages stated the Laertes was proceeding at half speed. The crew, which at first took to the boats, had climbed back on board and put out the flames. No one was reported hurt. A tugboat was on its way from Flushing to help the steamer, which first gave its position as four miles east of the lightship Royal Sovereign.

BULLITT LEAVES PARIS FOR U. S. TO SEE ROOSEVELT

PARIS, Feb. 3 (AP).—United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt left for Lisbon, Portugal, tonight to board a trans-Atlantic Clipper for home next Wednesday to report to President Roosevelt on the European situation. Bullitt was accompanied by Carmel Offie, secretary of the Paris embassy. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, ambassador to the Polish government in France, and John Cudahy, ambassador to Belgium, were at the station to see them off. Mr. Roosevelt on Thursday called Bullitt home for consultation.

Russian Big Guns Pound Mannerheim Line.

"airplanes of the most up-to-date designs from Britain, France, the United States, Sweden and Italy" not only had not attacked Russian warships in Kronstadt and other soviet objectives but were unable to protect their own headquarters.

Only Partial Clashes.

It also contended that instead of a big offensive by the Russians on the Karelian isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga there were "in reality only partial clashes" of several companies "of purely local nature."

The headquarters' announcement, circulated by Tass, official news agency, suggested that only in comparison with "the microscopic scale of operations on the western front" could the clashes of several companies be considered a "big offensive."

[The Finnish army communique of last Tuesday said Finnish planes had bombed "a certain harbor and vessels lying there." Informed sources in Helsingfors said they assumed the Russian naval base of Kronstadt near Leningrad was meant.]

False All the Way.

The full statement issued by Tass follows:

"Headquarters of the Leningrad military area issued the following denial:

"Mercenary agents of enemies of the U. S. S. R. are circulating in the foreign press rumors to the effect that 'Finnish airplanes raided soviet districts and bombed in Kronstadt soviet warships which are in flames,' et cetera.

"Headquarters declares that all these rumors are fabricated from beginning to end.

"Despite the fact that Finnish aviation 'received airplanes of the most up-to-date designs from Britain, France, the United States, Sweden, and Italy' it not only made no 'raids' but proved incapable of protecting commanding points of Finnish headquarters in Lahti, Rovaniemi, Sortavala, and Viipuri which were demolished by soviet aviation.

"Finnish aviation did not and could not carry out any raid in the direction of Kronstadt or any other direction in districts of the U. S. S. R.

Devoid of Foundation.

"The same mercenary agents of enemies of the U. S. S. R. allege in the foreign press that 'soviet troops on the Karelian isthmus and north of Ladoga lake commenced a big offensive whose prospects are not yet clear.'

"Headquarters states that this allegation likewise is devoid of any foundation. In reality only partial clashes of several companies of a purely local nature, accompanied by artillery firing of short duration, are occurring on the Karelian isthmus and north of Ladoga lake.

"Possibly from the viewpoint of the microscopic scale of operations on the western front in Europe clashes of several companies appear as a 'big offensive.' We, however, find such a scale ridiculous and cannot consider clashes of several companies either a big or small offensive."

Russian Army a Herd, Edouard Herriot Says

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 3 (AP).—The Paris correspondent of the Diario Lisboa tonight quoted Edouard Herriot, president of the French chamber of deputies, as saying in an interview. "The Rusisan army is no army; it is a herd. When I visited Russia I almost believed in its efficiency. But after its defeats in Finland, I realize my mistake."

FIND INCENDIARY BOMBS HIDDEN IN BRITISH BUSES

BIRMINGHAM, England, Feb. 3 (AP)—Incendiary bombs were found hidden in buses today after two explosions occurred in a garage. No one was hurt in the blasts. Authorities said the bombs were concealed in seats of the buses.

Authorities blamed members of the outlawed Irish Republican army for the explosions. Two I. R. A. members have been sentenced to death for an explosion in Coventry, Aug. 25, which killed five persons.

GUERRILLAS KILL TWO BRITONS IN AMBUSH IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 3 (AP).—Two members of a military party were killed and three wounded by tribesmen on a road near Bannu today as guerrilla fighting broke out anew in northwest frontier province.

The tribesmen ambushed the party and set fire to several automobiles, but the military saved a pay roll they were carrying and finally drove off the attackers with the aid of reinforcements.

FRENCH ANGLING FOR NEW PLANE BUILT FOR ARMY

Negotiations Authorized as Ship Is Accepted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Army officials admitted today that "sales negotiation" has been approved for one of its latest design fighting planes, capable of a speed of more than 400 miles per hour. This is considered the forerunner of actual export sales to the French, who have been dickering for as many of the new ships as can be spared.

Louis Johnson.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson said that the plane, the new Bell Airacobra pursuit ship, has not yet been released for foreign sale, but that approval has been granted for negotiation for its sale, minus its secret power plant and armament.

"This plane represents, in some respects, late army development and design and it has not yet been released for foreign sale," Johnson repeated.

Board's Action Assailed.

Officials of the joint army and navy aeronautical board, which controls the release of military planes and motors in the light of American national defense interests, explained that the export version which they passed upon for "negotiation" is known as the P400, same as the new P39, except that it excludes the latest developments in engine and armaments embodied in the P39.

Nevertheless, the action of the board was criticized as another example of sacrificing American national defense interests for the benefit of the French. According to reports from New York a French air mission has visited the Buffalo, N. Y., plant of the Bell Aircraft corporation and expressed a desire to buy as many of the new single seat interceptor pursuit monoplanes as the army air corps can spare.

Raise Issue of Aid to Finns.

The argument the French used was that sale of the planes would indirectly aid Finland by giving France the latest type of fighting ship to replace present French models which can be sent to the Finns for use in their war with Russia.

Last week Capt. Harry E. Collins, treasury procurement chief, visited the Bell plant on behalf of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, head of a committee appointed secretly by President Roosevelt to coördinate national defense needs and foreign war orders with our production facilities.

A little more than a year ago Morgenthau succeeded in overriding the objections of the war department to the release of military secrets embodied in a new Douglas experimental bomber. This resulted in a disclosure that President Roosevelt asked favors to France in airplane orders. The facts were uncovered when the bomber crashed at Los Angeles on Jan. 23, 1939, killing an American test pilot and injuring a representative of the French air ministry.

Plane Secrets Revealed.

Secrets of the new fighting plane, armed with an automatic 1 pounder cannon, were released today simultaneously with the announcement that the warplane has passed its acceptance tests for the air corps.

The plane's maximum speed was revealed as "over 400 miles an hour" in straight level flight. This means that it is the world's fastest fighting machine. The German Luftwaffe has set a world's absolute speed record of 469 miles an hour in a modified and stripped down Messerschmitt fighter, but standard Messerschmitts have speeds of 356 miles an hour in fighting trim.

The Airacobra cruises at "about 325 miles an hour," has a cruising range of over 1,000 miles and a ceiling of more than 36,000 feet. Loaded the airplane weighs 6,000 pounds. The plane is entering volume production at the Buffalo plant.

Carries Cannon, 4 Machine Guns.

The ship is the first to be designed around the 37 millimeter cannon which fires explosive shells. Any one of these shells is enough to bring down the largest bomber or fastest fighter now flying. In addition to the cannon the plane carries four synchronized machine guns. All are aimed by pointing the plane.

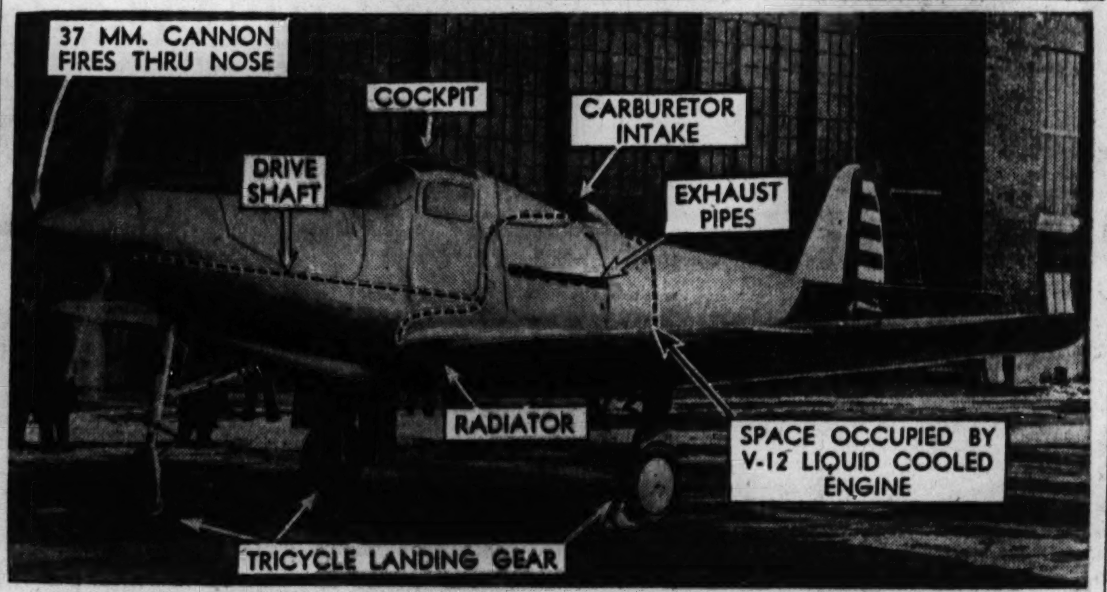
All five of the guns are mounted in the front of the ship. In order to make this possible the Allison V-12 1,200 horse power liquid cooled motor was "swallowed" in the fuselage. It is placed behind the pilot's compartment. A retractile tricycle landing gear is provided. The nose wheel can be pulled up inside the gun compartment at the nose. The main landing wheels, back beneath the engine, fold into the wing. The Airacobra is constructed entirely of metal. The wings span 34 feet and the ship is 29 feet 9 inches long.

The pilot, engine, and the landing gear when retracted, are located in the center of the plane which, thru concentration of these weights at one central point, has a higher degree of maneuverability than planes with large engines in the nose.

Cooling radiators for the motor, which uses Prestone coolant, are in the leading edges of the wings. The oil tank is behind the engine and the radio receiver, transmitter, and battery are in the tail.

The plane was designed by Robert J. Woods, chief designer for the Bell Aircraft corporation. The air corps and the national advisory committee for aeronautics aided in the research necessary for its development.

Cannon Carrying Pursuit Plane Accepted by Army



The Bell Airacobra, which has a maximum speed of more than 400 miles an hour, and which is being put into production for the army air corps. The plane has a 34 foot wing span, is 29 feet 9 inches long, and is unusual because the V-12 liquid cooled motor is placed behind the pilot. The propeller is driven by a shaft which runs underneath the cockpit. [Acme Photo.]

AMERICAN NEUTRALITY PARLEY QUITS AFTER DRAFTING PROPOSALS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 3 (AP).—An inter-American neutrality committee conference recessed today after deciding to send secret proposals to strengthen the American neutrality zone to the 21 American republics. How to prevent auxiliary vessels in American ports from giving information to warships at sea was reported to be one of the important issues settled.

Recommendations on the status of belligerent submarines and warships in the safety zone will be forwarded to the republics by the Pan-American Union. No more full meetings of the committee are planned until next month. Subcommittees, however, were assigned to consider the question of American exports to Europe and a memorandum from Venezuelan delegates concerning the effect of mines on American shipping. The American delegate, Prof. Charles G. Fenwick of Bryn Mawr college, planned to return to the United States by plane immediately.

ITALY PROTESTS AGAINST BRITISH SEIZURE OF MAIL

Aroused by Stopping of Ships at Suez Canal.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The growing irritation of Premier Benito Mussolini at British interference and search of Italian mails, particularly those on the way from Italy's African possessions, by way of the Suez canal, was conveyed to Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, by Giuseppe Bastianini, Italy's ambassador here.

Italian annoyance at Britain's control of shipping both at Suez and Gibraltar has got to the point where Rome has appointed a special attaché to its London embassy. He will deal with all cases arising out of delays in shipping which are the outcome of British seizures of Italian ships and the forcing of them into contraband control ports.

Discuss Europe's Issues.

The Italian ambassador had a long conference at the foreign office on Friday, it was disclosed today. Apart from a discussion of the problems arising from contraband examination of ships, Bastianini discussed European political issues with Viscount Halifax.

[The Ottawa British imperial economic conference in August, 1932, furthered the empire's policy of preferential tariffs and set up new trade agreements with the various dominions.]

Italy to Double Air Force.

ROME, Feb. 3 (AP).—Italy plans at least to double the number of her military planes and pilots this year, Gen. Francesco Pricolo, undersecretary for aviation, announced today.

The size of Italy's air force is a secret but the number of planes has been estimated unofficially to total 4,000 and the pilots 10,000 to 18,000.

Gen. Pricolo indicated Italy seeks extremely fast fighting planes and more modern bombers.

DEMANDS MORE POWERFUL GUN IN ANTIAIRCRAFT

American Weapon Is Not Effective, Expert Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—An army expert today criticized the army's new antiaircraft gun as ineffective against modern high flying bombing planes and urged the adoption of foreign type weapons.

Writing in the Coast Artillery Journal, Maj. Thomas R. Phillips, an instructor at the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., said that the standard three inch gun with which regiments now are being equipped has a shorter range than foreign weapons.

"Airplanes now are in being that can make the round trip from Europe to the United States with a small load of bombs," he wrote, adding that aircraft carriers could launch raids against our ports with results "almost incalculable."

Aviation Progresses Yearly.

"While aviation has progressed by yearly bounds," he said, "American antiaircraft has devoted itself to refinement of the material of ten years ago. It no longer can fulfill its mission."

Aerial bombing now can be carried on from altitudes 5,000 to 8,000 feet above the effective range of the three inch antiaircraft gun, Maj. Phillips asserted. Urging adoption of a larger cannon, he said that Great Britain, France, and Germany maintain such longer range weapons.

Machine guns, which the American army relies upon for defending troops against low flying airplanes, are not now effective weapons for the purpose and never have been, Phillips declared. Nor is the American army's new 37 millimeter gun effective for the purpose, Phillips added, asserting that a smaller, faster firing 20 millimeter cannon developed by the Germans is superior.

Defense Planes Not Enough.

Adequate protection against the bombing of coastal cities can not be furnished by defense aviation as many military authorities believe, the Leavenworth school instructor contended.

As an irreducible minimum, Phillips proposed 180 batteries of antiaircraft weapons for the regular army and from 800 to 1,000 for the National Guard, manned by a force of 125,000 additional men. Fewer than 100 batteries are in service and in prospect for both.

Explains New Weapon.

Another comment on the army's weapons came from Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson, chief of ordnance, who told the National Rifle association last night that within two years the entire army will be equipped with a rifle whose sights are not adapted to long range accuracy shooting. He referred to the new Garand semiautomatic rifle.

He said that the new rifle is being manufactured for the army at the rate of 4,000 per month and that this number will be nearly doubled within a year.

He praised the rifle as having met almost every expectation, but added: "The sights with which it is equipped are especially designed for infantry combat use and are not adapted to long range accuracy shooting." He explained, however, that "the new semiautomatic rifle has put into the hands of each soldier the equivalent in aimed shots per minute of 2½ Springfield rifles up to ranges of 600 yards."

GEN. DRUM ASKS BEST OF ARMS FOR OUR ARMY

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum demanded today that the nation support its fighting men with the best arms and equipment as a step toward saving the nation's peace.

Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum.

"It is evident," he asserted in an address before the Boston Bar association, "that young Americans have the spirit of their forefathers—a spirit and patriotism that respond quickly to the demands of duty. I am confident they will never fail the nation in any emergency.

"On the other hand, our country must never fail them by neglecting to provide the best arms and equipment and the widest opportunities for adequate training. The present situation thruout the world is too critical for us to remain indecisive on this question.

"Now is the time for positive action to secure essential modern armament and adequate training facilities for the army, as such steps taken now may save peace for us in the future, and, if we are forced to engage in combat, will surely save many lives."

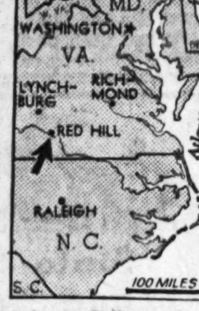
PATRICK HENRY'S OLD PLANTATION WILL BE SHRINE

Richmond, Va., Feb. 3 [Special].—The United States government will create another national shrine in Virginia soon when it buys from Mrs. Matthew Bland Harrison of Charlotte county for $100,000 the thousand acres along the Staunton river known as Red Hill, home of Patrick Henry, Mrs. Harrison's great-grandfather.



Arrow Indicates Location of Shrine.

In its purchase the government will acquire a number of concentric boxwood circles six feet tall, 130 years old that surrounded the original house of the Henrys; the clapboard law offices of the statesman and the weed choked depression with its crumbling stone walls that marks the site of the Henry mansion which burned in 1919. The plantation includes about 175 acres of the finest bottom land in Charlotte county; considerable corn and tobacco acreage and the homes of seven tenants who look after these crops.

The government also comes into ownership of the graveyard where Patrick Henry lies buried with five other members of his family.

Mrs. Harrison is herself the daughter of William Wirt Henry, grandson of Henry and author of his biography. She confesses that the government's crop control and limitation policies have taken all the fun out of farming, and on the day the transfer of the property is effected she will be ready to vacate the place which has been in the Henry family for 150 years, and where she has lived since 1905.

Mrs. Harrison and her nurse, Miss Elizabeth H. Kerper of Philadelphia, now live in the old Henry law office, which has been fitted up for a dwelling. Only 20 yards away is the grave of the man who thrilled assemblies in the Virginia house of burgesses at Richmond and the first continental congress at Philadelphia.

The transformed law office building is filled with mementoes of the man and his age, including wainscoting, colonial doors, huge soapstone hearthstones and a staircase taken from the original house, water colors of the famed backwoods mansion and a set of money scales. What is left of the Henry silver and jewelry is in a bank vault.

A. F. OF L. ASSAILS NLRB AS STUPID, BIASED, DESPOTIC

Council Asks Congress to Set Up a New Body.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3.—The National Labor Relations board today was branded as despotic, biased, stupid, and incompetent by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor. The board was charged with undermining public confidence and with guilefully and deliberately trying to destroy the federation and to enhance the interests of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations.

After delivering these indictments, the council asked congress to enact amendments to the labor relations act to sweep out of office the present three members of the board and to substitute a new board of five members.

Specific Program Offered.

Other legislative changes which the A. F. of L. wants would:

1. Give workers in a plant the right to decide in each case what unit and representative they want for collective bargaining with employers.

2. Limit and clearly define the board's assumed power to abrogate bona fide contracts between legitimate unions and employers.

3. Compel the board to investigate, hear and decide cases within definite time limits to avoid long delays and confusion which labor and business have had to endure in the past.

4. Permit review by the Circuit Court of Appeals of the board's rulings as to what union should represent workers. [The A. F. of L. contends that its unions which have been discriminated against have had no recourse in past "life or death" decisions.]

5. Allow employers to petition for a plant election when caught between two conflicting unions which demand collective bargaining rights.

6. Allow employers to express an opinion to workers on what union to join when that expression is not accompanied by threats or coercion.

Oppose Nullifying Changes.

"We are unalterably opposed to amendments which have been introduced on behalf of employer groups," the council reported, "because we believe they are intended to nullify the basic principles of the law. For the same reason we oppose with equal force the proposed amendments which were announced by the C. I. O., but not introduced in congress."

The employer group amendments, the A. F. of L. believes, would tend to hamper the equalizing of labor's rights with industry, such equalizing being the original purpose of the Wagner act.

The C. I. O. amendments would provide jail penalties for employers who violate the labor act and would authorize the board to set up a bargaining unit in a plant, regardless of the wishes of employés.

Confidence Destroyed.

"Labor, industry, and the American public have lost all confidence in the present National Labor Relations board," the A. F. of L. council report read. "Disclosures before the special house committee investigating the labor board have justified and confirmed the charges of bias and maladministration directed against the board by the A. F. of L.

"The evidence has made clear to all, which we have known for a long time, to wit:

"That the present board and its staff are totally unfit for their important duties.

"That this government agency never has been an impartial umpire, but has guilefully and deliberately sought to destroy the A. F. of L. and promote the interests of the C. I. O."

The council added that the A. F. of L. amendments should be enacted now and should not be dragged in as an issue in election campaigns.

Tobin Opposes Program.

Daniel Tobin, head of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and one of the A. F. of L. vice presidents composing the council, has indicated opposition to the way in which the council is considering political issues.

Tobin was a member of the labor platform committee in the Democratic national convention in 1936. There always has been ill feeling between him and William Hutcheson, head of the carpenters' union, another A. F. of L. vice president, who did the same work for the Republican convention that year.

It was learned that the executive board of Tobin's union may issue a statement next week setting forth its political attitude. A rumor that Tobin threatened to withdraw his 350,000 union members from the A. F. of L. was denied by William Green, president of the federation.

Sues Husband

MRS. PAUL H. SMYTHE JR.

Mrs. Katherine Keasel Smythe, 33 years old, yesterday filed suit in Superior court asking an accounting of the finances of her husband, Paul H. Smythe Jr., 38, Evanston inventor. Mrs. Smythe and her husband dropped divorce proceedings last July after a reconciliation before Judge Rudolph Desort. Mrs. Smythe now charges, however, that her husband has failed to pay her the $200 monthly which he promised in 1938. She says Smythe, who lives at 802 Madison street, Evanston, receives $75,000 yearly in royalties from an automatic record changer for phonographs. The suit asks that Smythe's property holdings be placed in joint tenancy with Mrs. Smythe.

FEDERALLY FINANCED HOUSING PROJECT TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 3 (AP).—Foreclosure sale of Manhasset village, 354 family apartment project built in 1938 with a $1,600,000 government insured loan, was advertised today by trustees under the mortgage. Only about 110 of the apartments are rented.

The trustees, acting in behalf of the New York Life Insurance company, the mortgage holder, declared the full amount of the loan due because of a default in payment on Dec. 16 and announced the property would be sold at public auction Feb. 26.

The likely procedure at the sale will be for the insurance company to bid in the property and then turn it over to the Federal Housing administration, receiving in return FHA debentures bearing 3 per cent interest.

Manhasset village was the subject of a congressional inquiry last spring when it was charged promoters of the project had written up the value of the 21 acre site in obtaining the government insured loan.

AFFIRM SENTENCE FOR SUGAR SALES TO ILLICIT STILLS

An eight month county jail term for James E. Mustari, 4106 Jackson boulevard, was affirmed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Mustari was found guilty last Oct. 24 when tried before Judge John P. Barnes in the federal District court on a charge of failing to report dealings in distillers' sugar to federal authorities. He was charged with having sold 3,047,100 pounds of cane sugar, much of it to illicit still operators. A fine of $1,500 also was upheld. Mustari, now free on $5,000 bail, is the first person in this area to receive a jail sentence on such a charge.

GLASS PREDICTS RESTORATION OF FARM BILL CUTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Despite substantial cuts in President Roosevelt's spending requests, Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.], a leading economy advocate, said today that there was little chance for "any substantial reduction in the total budget."

The 82 year old Glass, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, told reporters that "people like to spend money too well—especially when they are spending other people's money."

While Glass was talking, the senate farm bloc was organizing for an attempt to add hundreds of millions to the house-approved $722,001,084 farm bill, and Glass said it was unlikely that the house figure could be retained.

The house measure, providing money for the fiscal year beginning July 1, was $66,928,435 under the President's budget estimate and $579,339,231 below the funds available for this fiscal year.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

Henning Borman, 45 years old, unemployed, was found shot to death yesterday in the bathroom of the home of his sister, Mrs. Ada Swanson, at 509 North Lockwood avenue. Police said he had killed himself. Borman lived at 2977 Michigan avenue.

Young Woman Killed in Leap from Sixth Floor

Miss Mary Hayden, 23 years old, of the Evanshire hotel, Evanston, died in St. Francis hospital yesterday after she had leaped from a sixth floor fire escape at the rear of the hotel at 860 Hinman avenue. Miss Hayden, a dental assistant, fell to a concrete alley. She told police before losing consciousness that she had jumped. Police were told she had been under the care of physicians for a nervous disorder.

What makes a gasoline good?

Let's clear up this question now!

GASOLINE PLAYS SUCH an important role in your life today that it's smart to know what makes it good. And it is easy to know.

WHAT GASOLINE DOES

Gasoline is the fuel you burn in the cylinders of your car to create the gas-pressures which give you driving power.

If your gasoline contains enough highly volatile portions it ignites readily and you get quick starts on cold mornings, as you do with Red Crown. If it has too much you may get inefficient, costly consumption.

If it burns promptly and uniformly it develops the maximum power of which your engine is capable. If it burns smoothly, you enjoy freedom from "knock." If it burns too slowly (as may occur if any part is too "heavy") your pistons never have a chance to use all its potential power and gasoline is wasted.

WHAT MAKES IT GOOD?

Good gasoline, then, must combine those qualities that give you quick-starting and "warm-up," those that give you mileage and capacity power, and those that have come to be known as "anti-knock."

Too much of any one quality, at the expense of others, does not create an efficient fuel. You can have gasoline that packs scads of quick-starting volatility but lacks the follow-through "oomph" to give you good mileage. You can also have gasoline with an amazingly high percentage of potential power, that simply won't start your car easily on a cold morning!

Obviously, the art is to give you a product that packs all three advantages for you in the highest possible degree.

RED CROWN ANTICIPATES YOUR NEEDS

Standard Oil technicians are constantly testing fuels and motors, in their laboratories and on the road. They had developed the fuel that would perform most efficiently in your car before your car was built!

The Red Crown at Standard Oil Dealers today is that fuel for most cars. Stanolind Gasoline is that fuel where reasonable concessions in starting and anti-knock properties must be made in the interest of reducing fuel cost. Solite is that fuel for unusually high-compression motors and when "flashiest" possible performance is considered most important.

Red Crown Gasoline has just recently been given higher anti-knock rating without any sacrifice of quick starting or mileage-making quality—and at no increase in price.

RED CROWN
gasoline is better than ever today

MADDEN ADMITS WAGNER ACT IN NEED OF CHANGES

Concedes NLRB a Failure in CIO-AFL Disputes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations board, admitted to a congressional investigating committee today that the board has been unable to reach a satisfactory formula for settlement of disputes between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

J. Warren Madden.

Retreating from the administration's former attitude that the Wagner labor act is a perfect law and in need of no amendments, Madden conceded that removal of the board's authority to decide A. F. of L.-C. I. O. disputes deserves careful study.

Nobody has been satisfied with the way the labor board has decided interunion quarrels, the chairman remarked. He admitted also that the three board members differ among themselves on this problem, adding to the general confusion.

Construed as Retreat.

Madden's testimony was viewed as a strategic withdrawal from the position that labor act amendments are unnecessary.

Labor board representatives have followed with great attention the inquiry conducted by the house committee headed by Representative Howard W. Smith [D., Va.].

Questioning of witnesses by members of the committee and Committee Counsel Edmund Toland over a two months' period has indicated that the following amendments are under consideration:

1. Restrictions of picketing in labor disputes.
2. Prohibition of the use of unions' funds in political campaigns.
3. Requirement of a waiting period before strikes.
4. Prohibition of strikes that would close down power plants, public utilities, hospitals, and similar essential public services.
5. A requirement that employers and unions show "some responsibility" under labor agreements.
6. A requirement that labor agreements be in writing.

Change Urged by Prof. Garrison.

Madden's concession came in commenting upon testimony yesterday by Lloyd K. Garrison, chairman of the old labor board under the NRA, who now is dean of the University of Wisconsin law school. Garrison told the committee that the act should be amended to remove from the board the responsibility for settling quarrels between unions.

"I must confess," Madden said, "that the board has not succeeded in reaching any satisfactory formula in this regard. Mr. Garrison may have the solution which congress would want to adopt. The views of the three board members vary somewhat on this point. The suggestion is very far-reaching and no snap judgment should be reached by any one."

First Move Up to Unions.

Under Garrison's proposed amendment, in a case where the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. were in conflict, no election to determine which would be the collective bargaining agent would be held unless they themselves could get together and agree upon the formula for holding it. If they agreed, then the board would step in and hold the election. In the meantime, the employer would not be allowed to sign a closed shop agreement with either faction.

"It seems to be a solution of letting warring labor factions stew in their own grease," remarked Chairman Smith.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—Justice James C. McReynolds of the United States Supreme court became 78 years old today. Altho a Democrat, he has been the court's most consistent opponent of New Deal legislation thruout the Roosevelt administration. He also has been the court's leading dissenter in recent years.

Friends of McReynolds do not expect him to retire until after the next presidential election. The justice, oldest member of the court both in age and in service, was appointed by President Woodrow Wilson in 1914. He had been Mr. Wilson's attorney general.

OPERA ASSURED FOR 1940; PLAN 7 WEEK SEASON

singers to get such training without cost.

"Few people realize what a task it is to train a chorus. It takes 12 hours a week for eight months. That is the sort of chorus we intend to have; one that has beauty and musical ability and knows and remembers 24 operas in full."

The new chorus will be affiliated with the American Guild of Musical Artists, of which Lawrence Tibbett is president.

Weber said that the same system to be used in selecting a chorus would be employed in the choosing of orchestra members. They will come from the ranks of the Chicago federation, but each will be given an individual audition before being engaged.

The artistic director added that the company would present a large number of revivals and was considering some novelties. Principals, he said, will be selected from the stars of the Chicago, Metropolitan, and San Francisco opera companies, from the opera houses of Europe and from the great body of fine young American singers.

"Musical talent knows no boundary lines," he asserted, "but where other things are equal the Americans will be given preference."

Praises Unions for Help.

Business Manager Thompson said he wanted to emphasize the part that had been played by the unions in guaranteeing the continuation of opera in Chicago.

"Petrillo, Browne, and Olsen gave us every bit of help they could," he said. "They are intelligent, able leaders and they saw our proposals in the proper light. They realized, as we did, that unless they coöperated we could not have opera. We have been assured there will be no labor-opera troubles and thus we can proceed in confidence."

Under Petrillo's leadership the Chicago Federation of Musicians has grown from a few hundred to more than 8,000 members. This organization has an extensive program of aids for sick and unemployed members.

The stage hands' organization — Chicago Theatrical Protective Union No. 2—is 53 years old and has 600 members. All members must be American citizens. So well have finances been handled that no member, according to Olsen, is on relief.

R. H. McCormick Heads Governors.

Under the present plan the board of trustees is to be composed of Jason F. Whitney, chairman; Robert Hall McCormick [who is president of the board of governors]; Mr. Stilwell, treasurer; Frank McNair, Col. George T. Buckingham, Fred A. Poor, Weymouth Kirkland, Robert Carr, Barnett Farroll, Walter R. Kirk, and Mr. Saltiel, secretary.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter is chairman of the woman's board and Mrs. James G. McMillan is president of the Illinois Opera guild. It was announced last week that it was largely thru these groups that the guarantee fund had been carried past $138,000.

'Gone with the Wind' Near 3 Million on Third Printing

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Macmillan company, publishers, today announced a third printing of 350,000 copies of the motion picture edition of "Gone with the Wind," six weeks after its publication in Atlanta and New York. This brought to 2,843,263 the number of copies of all editions printed in this country.

Reorganize Opera

CHICAGO OPERA: ITS UPS AND ITS DOWNS SINCE '89

Triumph Over Many Odds to Give City Music.

Chicago first acquired an opera company of its own in 1910. The city's real operatic history, however, began with a performance of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" on Dec. 10, 1889. It was given in the Auditorium, which had been formally dedicated with much speechmaking the day before.

Featured on that occasion was Adelina Patti, then the most noted of singers. She was paid a minimum of $3,500 a performance and was highly approved by the audience. The critics, on the contrary, held she was no tragedienne and would have appeared to more advantage in something lighter.

The season that followed was regarded as a success. Total receipts for the 22 performances were $232,953, paid by more than 100,000 operagoers.

Lapses for Two Decades.

For the next two decades traveling companies came and went with great irregularity. The statistics show that up to 1909 the number of performances in the huge old Auditorium was 278. During that period, however, the city's musical reputation was upheld by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Theodore Thomas.

When the 1910 opera company was organized here Cleofonte Campanini was made musical director. He was also conductor. Among the stars who appeared were Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden, Enrico Caruso, and John McCormack.

One of the outstanding features of the season was Miss Garden's Dance of the Seven Veils in "Salome." It aroused so much criticism from the prudish that it was withdrawn, much to the amusement of the sophisticated music commentators in other cities.

The opera company had its troubles in the next few years, but it was not until the end of the 1913 season that its directors, headed by Harold F. McCormick, got their first financial headache. They discovered they had a deficit of $250,000. In 1914 the war in Europe began and the season was abandoned. One of the principal losers was McCormick, who had advanced $260,000 to the company.

1915 Guarantee Revives It.

In 1915 opera was revived by Chicagoans who guaranteed $110,000 for each of two years to come. This agreement later was extended for five years. The guarantors included J. Ogden Armour, Charles G. Dawes, Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, John G. Shedd, R. T. Crane, and Martin T. Ryerson.

Some difficulty was found in gathering an acceptable company in 1915, but the obstacles were surmounted and the opera ran a full season. Among the stars were Antonio Scotti, Emmy Destinn and Alice Nielsen. The next year Chicago, alone, discovered and made a great star of Galli-Curci, who had been an unknown.

In the following years Raisa, Rimini, Myrna Sharlow, and Cyrena Van Gordon were applauded in a variety of rôles. In 1918 Giorgio Polacco, later to be musical director, appeared for the first time with the company.

Mary Garden Becomes Director.

Campanini died in 1919 and his successor was Mary Garden, who took the title general director. Herbert Johnson was made executive director. About this time [1920] the name of Samuel Insull appeared on the board of directors.

For five or six years the affairs of the company had been involved. The deficit for the year preceding Miss Garden's assumption of the directorship had been $350,000. A large part of this, and of previous years' shortages, had been paid off by Mr. and Mrs. McCormick. But the opera went on and the 1921 deficit climbed to the alarming total of $1,000,000.

At the end of the season Mr. and Mrs. McCormick made good all their pledges, satisfied the debts of the company and turned all properties, clear, over to a reorganized organization known as the Chicago Civic Opera company. Insull was president, Gen. Dawes and R. T. Crane, vice presidents; Charles L. Hutchinson, treasurer, and Stanley Field, secretary.

Change Guaranty Methods.

They inaugurated more businesslike methods. They had no notion of making opera stand on its own feet, but they had a fairer plan of raising guaranties than to leave some wealthy enthusiast holding the sack alone. They let guarantors sign for from $100 to $1,000 each and so raised a guaranty fund of $525,000 annually. At the end of the 1921-'22 season the guarantors had to pay a deficit of $290,000. The next year the deficit was $325,000.

New singers came along to delight the patrons, among them Chaliapin and Tito Schipa, Edith Mason and Vanni-Marcoux. And in 1927 Insull brought forth his proposal to build a magnificent new Civic Opera building. The building was first used for opera in November, 1929.

But the deficits continued to grow. The 1929 season's loss was $588,000. That of the following year was $1,079,000 and Insull contributed about $400,000 above the payments made by the guarantors.

Slumps after Insull Passing.

With his passing from the scene and the onset of the depression opera became less spectacular and the deficits, never absent, more modest.

There was something of a revival of interest in 1936 and the performances, returned to the Civic Opera house in 1935 after a lapse of several years, became more elaborate. The last three years have been artistically successful under the leadership of Jason F. Whitney as president of the board, but the financial situation has not improved. It was this that impelled a new reorganization and a setup which, it is believed, will make Chicago opera safe for years to come.

WASHINGTON'S FARM HOME OF BOYHOOD ON RAPPAHANNOCK SOLD

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 3 (AP).—Ferry farm, where George Washington spent his boyhood years, was sold at public auction today for $25,000, the purchaser assuming also $18,000 in Federal Land bank mortgages.

Miss May Belle Colbert, daughter of the late J. B. Colbert, owner of the property for many years, offered the successful bid at the sale, ordered by Circuit court to settle Colbert's estate.

Efforts to buy the farm, across the Rappahannock river from Fredericksburg, as a shrine for American youth, were launched 10 years ago by the George Washington Foundation, Inc. A public subscription raised $85,000 of the $130,000 asked by Colbert, but the depression ended the attempt with approximately $88,000 in principal and interest still due Colbert.

THE first place any man or woman shows signs of age is in the stomach muscles. And these very muscles are important protection for the vital organs. Yet how few people can or will take time to correct this relaxed muscle condition.

That is why every man—or woman—over thirty should know about electrically operated EXERCYCLE. It is completely effortless . . . really fun to use. All you do is get on, turn the switch and let the machine exercise you without voluntary exertion on your part. A few minutes a day is enough and, after you have used it for a week, you'll never want to give it up. The gentle exercise will have started its work—your unused muscles will begin to strengthen, your circulation will be speeded up, you'll look more alert and begin to feel as if the years were rolling right off your shoulders. GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

DEPRESSION IN "LITTLE EGYPT."

A frightfully bad unemployment situation prevails in a group of counties in southern Illinois, according to the leading article in the December number of the Monthly Labor Review, the official publication of the United States department of labor. Franklin, Williamson, and Saline counties, which possess the richest coal deposits in the state, are in such a state of economic collapse as to be regarded by the government as one of the country's outstandingly depressed areas.

These findings were based upon a census conducted by WPA between December, 1938, and March, 1939, among the inhabitants of seven principal towns in the three counties, with a total labor force of 15,698. Forty-two per cent of those able to work at the time of the investigation were found to be jobless. The percentage varied from 35 per cent in Eldorado and 38 per cent in Herrin and West Frankfort, to 80 per cent in Bush. Even in the town with the lowest percentage idle the situation is nearly twice as bad as the average for the state as a whole.

More significant than the extent of unemployment are the facts reported about how long it has persisted. Taking the seven communities as a whole, the average unemployed man was thrown out of work in one of the years of the Roosevelt administration. Misfortune in the form of unemployment struck the average unemployed man in Bush 61 months ago. This would mean that he ceased working about the time that the NRA scheme was started. Those in Herrin lost their jobs on the average 41 months back, or about the time President Roosevelt signed the Guffey-Snyder coal conservation act. In West Frankfort and Herrin the average unemployed were last at profitable jobs 38 months ago, or in late 1935 or early 1936—about the time the President urged that undivided profits of corporations should be taxed. Unemployment in Eldorado goes back 23 months, or to approximately the date of the adoption of the Guffey-Vinson coal act.

The incidents mentioned serve to date the beginning of hard times for the average jobless man in the seven towns and may have contributed to the result. But other acts of the Roosevelt administration are so clearly the cause of the distress in southern Illinois that there is no reason to consider the influences which possibly are causal but may be only coincidental.

First and foremost, coal mining is practically the only industry in the three counties. Therefore the cause of the distress there can be found by considering the factors which have influenced coal mining during the last five years. The development of water power by the New Deal has been a major cause of the miners' catastrophe. It's as simple as one-two that, if waterfalls supply power formerly obtained with coal, the demand for coal will decline and miners will lose their livelihood. The development of water power in the Tennessee valley at public expense cut off the demand for coal from southern mines. These mines then entered the markets formerly served by Illinois coal and, because of lower labor costs, were able to undersell the Illinois operators.

The effect of water power upon the Illinois miner is the same whether the government's hydro scheme takes away the coal customer where he is or if it is the inducement to move where the water power is. A number of midwestern manufacturers who would use power developed with southern Illinois coal have accepted the government's offer to move their plants to the Tennessee valley. It was calculated several years ago that when all of the government's water power projects under construction were completed the services of 60,000 miners would be dispensed with.

Depression came upon corn belt farmers because the automobile displaced the horse. In a free competitive fight gasoline supplanted corn as the fuel of locomotion. But some horses are still used advantageously. If the government should offer to use public funds to supply low priced gasoline to people who find horses preferable to autos it would be clear that the government was intensifying the corn farmers' depression.

But exactly that is what the Roosevelt administration has done to the miner. Where the best informed engineers have found coal preferable to water power the government is subsidizing water power so that coal is displaced anyhow. Whenever hydroelectric juice is turned on, coal miners somewhere go on the relief rolls. The government's figures show that unemployment in our great southern Illinois coal field has become serious during the Roosevelt administration. And there can be no question but that specific New Deal acts were the cause.

SECRETS FROM WHOM?

Members of the senate, in recent debates, have indicated suspicions that there is too much fake secrecy in discussions of our national defense requirements. They have voiced further suspicion that the prime purpose of the secrecy is to cover up blunders and extravagance in the spending of defense appropriations.

To generals who complain of the inefficient state of the army Senator Tom Connally commented on the enormous sums already appropriated for its support, adding: "If the army is not efficient, if it is not properly cared for, and not properly fed and not properly equipped, I should like to know what in the name of Tom Hill they are doing with the money."

The army was not the only service singled out for criticism on the senate floor. The navy came in for its share, which is not surprising considering disclosure of some of its recent shipbuilding blunders.

Senator Connally voiced a general discontent when he spoke. We have the most expensive armed forces in the world, but there is a growing impression that in many respects we are not getting our money's worth.

The nation wants more adequate defense. That may mean added facilities and may involve increased expenditures, but this does not necessarily follow. A wasted dollar is a wasted dollar, whether it is lost on a WPA project or a battleship, and the nation has already endured about all the waste that it is possible for it to endure.

It is necessary for the navy and war departments to tell the people of this country what they need, in order that the people may judge. Congress is the proper forum for these hearings. The information must be given in detail. The navy should say what ships it needs for any battle task that may be assigned it. It will be for congress to decide which of those tasks are probable enough, in view of our national interests and foreign policy, to justify building the ships requested.

The army, similarly, should make a frank statement of the number of troops that it is possible for any foreign power, or combination of powers, to bring to an attack on American shores or our vital possessions. By all sensible calculations this is not a large number, and its size should govern the maximum size of any army we need prepare. The army's present projects for a nation in arms are ridiculous unless in preparation for a foreign military adventure, which is the last thing the American people will tolerate.

The statements of the admirals and generals must be both frank and complete. Any attempt at secrecy, either to exalt their own egotism or to conceal ignorance or blunders, should be sternly corrected by congress.

Aside from a few technical devices this country has no important military secrets. With these few exceptions foreign powers know all they wish to know about our defenses. This fact should govern the discussions in congress. If, as is a fact, the state of our armed forces is not a secret to potential enemies, from whom should it be kept secret? Certainly not from the people of the United States, who know less today than the admiralty or general staff of any world power.

RUSSIA UNDER THE YOKE.

Most events in Russia are hermetically sealed against the knowledge of the outside world. Likewise, the people of Russia know only what their dictators choose to tell them, which is very little. There is no public opinion in the soviet union. It would be foolish to have opinions when it would be fatal to express them. The attack upon Finland reveals anew how completely the revolutionary instincts of the Russian people have been destroyed by the present rulers in power. For the first time in the history of modern Russia the spirit of opposition to tyranny is crushed and apparently completely crushed. It hasn't yielded to the virtues of the rulers but to their vices.

The old bolshevists themselves began the process of extermination in the first terror when they started the systematic liquidation of the very classes of Russians who had made their own revolution possible. They executed or drove out the intellectuals, the progressive industrialists and land owners, the individual nobles who had been for popular rights, and all of the bourgeoisie who had hoped to create a workable democracy with a representative government. These people were either killed by gunfire or starvation or made their escape. The bolshevists then turned upon the peasants, who had been ignorant but still individualistic and crudely revolutionary, and reduced them to abjection after subjecting them to several famines which took them off by the millions.

The next step in exterminating the revolutionary spirit and destroying all political opposition was taken by Stalin when he turned upon the old bolos themselves and executed all of them but Trotsky, who was in exile. The purges of the army, the commissars, the diplomatic corps, and the governments of the constituent states followed. When Stalin, with his judges and his gunmen, had completed the job there was no one left in all the land who would have the courage or the desire to oppose the Kremlin dictatorship in any way, or who would dare undertake a conspiracy against the ruler.

Russia was always revolutionary under the czars, and the revolutionary class which was striving for moderate reforms was never destroyed under the monarchy. Indeed, it was treated with what would be regarded now as distinguished consideration. The police rule was mild as compared with the Stalin methods, and the punishments for the most part were neither cruel nor unusual. If they had been, Lenin would not have lived to head the Red revolution. But Stalin has so thoroly massacred all persons even suspected of the slightest nonconformity that it would seem improbable that a revolutionary spark could be lit during his lifetime. The crimes of the ruling burocracy, which even in a military way seem to have completely overshadowed the stupidities and crimes of the czar's ministers, must be endured by the Russian millions who are afflicted by them.

This small war with Finland is adding enormously to the sufferings of the misgoverned Russian people, but the political commissar, the police, and the secret agents can hold them in check, and there would seem to be little chance that they will find the spirit or the opportunity to rise against their masters. Nothing else has been thoroly done in communist Russia, but the liquidations have been complete.

DE VALERA TURNS ON I. R. A.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—The activities of the Irish Republican army, its drillings, and its alleged menace to the existence of the government of Ireland have displaced the European war as a subject of common conversation. There is much material for speculation. The seizure of 30 tons of ammunition by the I. R. A. from the Phoenix Park national arsenal here about a month ago seemed to bring matters to a head. In some quarters an invasion of Northern Ireland was believed imminent.

In the circumstances, the government of Eamon de Valera was obliged to take action. Ever since it came into power seven years ago the De Valera government has treated the I. R. A. with patience. It has banned the organization as unlawful, interned its members, and, when they went on hunger strike, set them at liberty. The first act of the government when it took office was to make a general jail delivery of all left in prison by the Cosgrave régime. This was not altogether unexpected, because De Valera and most of his followers a short time before had been members of the same organization. Indeed, the I. R. A. had no small part in the election that turned Cosgrave and his ministers out of office, and there is scarcely any doubt that it expected to share in dictating government policy and in patronage. De Valera soon found out, however, that in the circumstances prevailing the I. R. A. plans to cut Ireland loose from Britain were not feasible.

De Valera considered it necessary to advance warily. He was eager to go as far as the I. R. A. as regards complete separation, but with the responsibilities of government on his shoulders matters were different. As the years marched he put one part of his policy regarding England into operation—the removal of the oath of allegiance, the abolition of the governor general representing the king, and finally the establishment of a constitution in which the name of England does not appear. By these means De Valera had hoped to conciliate the intransigeants. He was mistaken. By this time the De Valera government was regarded by them as no less pro-British than their Cosgrave predecessors.

A part of the De Valera policy remains unrealized: the northern six counties are still separated from the rest of the country. De Valera believes this problem can be solved only by negotiation with Britain; the I. R. A. would drive the British out by force. De Valera, it is believed, would not rule out force if there were the slightest hope of it being successful. He is said to see no such hope. Moreover, he wants a settlement under which the reunited communities will work in harmony, and an imposed settlement would leave one of the parties dissatisfied.

Reduced to its essential elements, the situation is this: The I. R. A. claims to be the sole repository of Irish patriotism and holds that the De Valera government is the tool of England. The Cosgrave government was obliged to suppress and imprison the I. R. A. and now, after seven years of a policy of tolerance, the De Valera government is doing the same thing. Cosgrave passed repressive measures to enable him to deal efficiently with the I. R. A., and he did so in face of bitter opposition of the De Valera party, then in opposition in the dail. De Valera has now passed equally strong measures, with the support of Cosgrave and his followers. At the moment, therefore, virtually the entire membership of the dail is united on the policy that the I. R. A. must be squelched. Only nine deputies voted against the repressive measures.

Armed with legislative powers and the means of carrying them out, it is up to the De Valera government to put an end to the outbursts of the outlawed organization. Will it do so? In recent debates in the dail many deputies expressed doubt. They charged the government with too great tenderness, lack of moral courage that prevented it from striking effectively. Minister for Justice Gerald Boland confessed that the raid on the arsenal had given the government a shock, and added that there would be no more shilly-shallying with this organization. He said he wanted the public to realize the menace with which it was threatened.

Many persons have inquired as to the actual strength of the Irish Republican army. Minister Boland told the dail that he could give only an estimate of little value. From his knowledge of such actions as the raid on the arsenal he believed that not fewer than 150 men were engaged. The total number of what might be called operative members of the organization is probably not more than a few hundred, but there may be many hundreds of active sympathizers. Following a spectacular feat like the raid on the arsenal, many are considered likely to seek to join thru admiration of a successful exploit against the government.

Assuming that the government uses the powers it now has, no one here can foresee anything in the nature of what might be called a civil war outbreak.

The obvious intention of the government is to put all the well known leaders of the I. R. A. in detention prisons where, under a recently passed law, it is believed they can be held without trial until such a time as the authorities are satisfied they are no longer dangerous. A line of escape for such interns is provided in the new act by the setting up of a commission to which any person who believes himself to be unjustly interned may appeal and attempt to show cause for release. It is declared the authorities, if they get a pledge that they believe will be observed that an individual will avoid seditious organizations and act as a good citizen, will be glad to grant a release.

The I. R. A. members refuse to recognize the authority of the courts or of government institutions generally, and when put in jail frequently resort to the hunger strike which is difficult for a government to meet. Some of the Republicans are prepared to face death itself in an attempt to force the government to free them. This happened in one recent case.

It is no part of the policy of the I. R. A. to seek to control the country by winning a general election. In the present circumstances that would not be possible since their number is believed negligible in comparison with the followers of the two major parties. Their only hope apparently is a coup d'état, and that would mean civil war. The government has no doubt that in certain circumstances such a scheme would be attempted. The accumulation of arms and ammunition seems to have no other purpose. Minister Boland told the dail that the government was aware that the I. R. A. had large sums of money at its control, and that this came mostly from America. That was a disturbing matter because it suggested that men not otherwise employed could be maintained in readiness to take part in a coup at short notice. The government hopes to get in all the arms in the country and to put under restraint the men most likely to use them.

EVEN EXCHANGE.

"From the looks of you," said the fat one belligerently, "there must have been a famine."

IS SYPHILIS A SEX PROBLEM ALWAYS?

MEDICAL historians probably will not be able to settle the question as to the origin of syphilis. Popular legend has it that the sailors of Columbus' fleet carried it back on the return voyage. Like any illness which is new to a given population no immunity existed among Europeans and the ailment was sown with great rapidity. There is reason to believe that its dissemination was not confined wholly to sex contacts and recent reports lend color to this opinion.

E. H. Hudson describes a disease which is called "bejel," supposed to be a nonvenereal form of syphilis. It is common among the semi-nomad inhabitants of certain parts of Syria. Inasmuch as he lived for many years in that region, he became familiar with native customs, spoke the language, and —during his long sojourn there—kept accurate clinical records. As a well trained physician and epidemiologist his suggestions deserve careful consideration.

In the first place, he describes the difficulty as a contagious disease of childhood. Lesions break out in the mouth or on the surface of the body. These become open wounds and the secretions are loaded with spirochetes. Naturally, the youngster, in his play with others, is a source of contagion and—because of the unhygienic habits of these people—the distemper is scattered widely. Our author states that at least 60 per cent of the inhabitants who reach adult life have acquired the affliction and are, therefore, syphilitic.

After the eruption disappears the infection becomes latent. Nevertheless, the blood of these patients remains positive to the Wassermann and Kahn tests. The same tendency holds true with bejel as with syphilis as we understand it in this country. In other words, with the passage of time—regardless of treatment—the victim is less and less able to transmit the germs. This means that relatively few cases of marital contact have been noted among the Arab bands.

Another curious observation is that there seems to be far less damage to the blood vessels, the heart, and the nervous system from bejel. Perhaps this may be explained on the ground that it is more virulent at a time when immunity is developed rather quickly—in the same manner that a child combats measles or chickenpox. In the section of Syria where Hudson worked very little is done for the sufferers. The disease is allowed to pass from child to child—sometimes from child to adult.

It has been found that this Asiatic type presents many similarities to yaws, a semitropical affection having a spirochete basis. But the locality described by Hudson is not tropical and hence it is assumed yaws is unlikely.

It would look then as tho there were evidence that lues can exist apart from sex. Perhaps it did so at one time in Europe, with its epidemic character persisting in the Arab tribes. The spirochete abominates good sanitation. It cannot withstand light, dryness, or soap —and intimate association is required for its transfer from one person to another. Lack of cleanliness presents an ideal environment for propagation among the progeny of these Arabs. In support of this contention it has been shown that in Syrian towns and villages where bathing is practiced and where clothing is laundered, bejel appears far less frequently.

Against Hudson's thesis are other reports by visiting physicians, none apparently with his experience. Some think that the disorder is not true lues, but something akin to Vincent's infection, which can become epidemic among school children as a throat and mouth complaint. A recent investigation sponsored by the surgeon general of the United States public health service indicates that syphilis—as we know the pest —is dispersed among the Bedouins exactly as it is in our allegedly civilized communities. The point is well taken, however, that in some circumstances the malady—even as we see it—can be distributed [perhaps not extensively] in a nonsexual fashion.

NOT DEAF BUT HEEDLESS.

T. W. writes: A relative spread the story that I was hard of hearing, and since then whenever any one speaks to me I am so afraid I won't hear that I ask them to repeat. Before they do so the remark registers. Two specialists have said there is nothing wrong with my ears. Do you think I just imagine that I am deaf?

REPLY.

Since you have been assured that your hearing is normal, forget your worries. Pay strict attention to what is being said. Perhaps you have become heedless. Some people who hear perfectly habitually indulge in "How?" "What's that?" or "Excuse me. I was not listening."

CRACKED SKIN.

F. W. writes: The tips of my fingers are constantly cracking open. I use the best soaps and powders in my housework. Naturally I must have my hands in water a great deal of the time. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY.

Wear rubber gloves when it is necessary to put your hands in water. In addition keep the skin anointed with cold cream. Before retiring dip the fingers in warm olive oil, then don cotton gloves and wear them thru the night. Eczema is probably responsible.

RABIES VACCINE.

Mrs. R. D. writes: My wire haired terrior has had rabies vaccine. Does this mean that he is immune for life or for only a period of time? He is 10 months old.

REPLY.

Vaccination of dogs gives only a temporary immunization. While no definite length of time has been established, a series of three injections will be protective for at least six months. Some dog fanciers have their pets inoculated each year.

RED NOSE AND WHY.

M. B. writes: Ever since undergoing a plastic operation on my nose it has been red. The doctor tells me that the blood vessels are dilated. Is there any treatment that will help this condition?

REPLY.

Little can be done for the congestion. Local applications are of but temporary value. However, hot packs may help.

NOT CONTAGIOUS.

H. R. writes: Is there any danger in wearing the clothing of one who succumbed to pernicious anemia?

REPLY.

No. This condition is not contagious.

TOY PISTOLS DEFENDED.

Bellwood, Ill., Jan. 31.—Some men and women of Chicago are advocating prohibition of toy pistols. I wish to protest against their conclusion that such toys lead youth to use real guns and commit crimes.

Since the beginning of recorded history men have been bearers of arms in defense of the family, tribe, and nation. What then could be more natural than that boys should love to play with the weapons of the times. Weapons are to boys what dolls are to girls.

The honorable ladies and gentlemen seem to forget that this nation owes its independence to the fact that its citizens knew about guns, yes, real ones, and this knowledge was not acquired after the age of 21, either. Perhaps the argument will be raised that this was long ago and that knowledge of weapons today is an evil rather than a necessity. Well, just try and tell that to the Finns and Chinese.

An understanding of firearms is no more responsible for crimes involving guns than knowledge of chemistry is responsible for poisonings or forestry for ax murders.

It is my honest opinion that these good people could serve their community to infinitely greater advantage by sponsoring the organization of gun clubs thruout the city where the youngsters could be taught the proper way to handle rifles and pistols. Training of this kind would practically eliminate accidents with firearms by every one so instructed. It would help to build self-reliant citizens capable of defending their country and it would interest our youth in a clean, healthful, appealing, and manly sport under proper supervision and thereby lessen the temptation to mischief or crime.

I would call to the attention of our city leaders that about 98 per cent of the shooting of pistols in this country is done for clean sport and in the training of law enforcement officers, postal clerks, bank guards, and messengers, and that every officer in the military service must be proficient with the pistol. These officers are gentlemen in fact and by act of congress. There is absolutely nothing dishonorable about pistols.

It is not sensible to condemn pens and ink because a few forgers use them; or playing cards because of crooked gamblers. A skull can be crushed with a Bible. It is not what you do it with that is important but what you do with it.

NORTH DIVISION ALUMNI.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Recently you were kind enough to publish a letter in which I requested that readers of this column who graduated from old North Division, now known as Waller High school, send their names and addresses to the undersigned as alumni secretary, so that arrangements might be made for an "Old Timers" banquet and reunion of alumni to celebrate the 65th anniversary of old North Division High school, which was established in 1875.

Hundreds of names and addresses have been sent in by alumni from as far back as 1877. As a result of this enthusiastic response, arrangements have been made by our alumni association to hold our banquet and reunion at the Germania club of Chicago on the evening of April 17.

We are grateful to you and alumni readers for this coöperation.

THE WAR DRUMS.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The tom-toms are beating. Listen to their rhythm. It's the war beat. Blood is the message. Blood, stirred to a fever pitch, so that it can be better poured out in another futile blood bath.

Is this the sweet mystery of life?

Think about it seriously every time you see a screaming headline with the tom-tom beat in it. Think about it every time you hear proposals of financial and military aid to warring factions. Realize that one step leads to another.

Recall the last war? Was it worth it?

BATTLE OF THE CENTURY.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—What this world needs today is a new boxing commission. For instance, they allowed Germany, a seasoned fighter, to be matched with a fighter who was not in her class and did not do any training for the fight [Poland]. They allowed Japan, a lightweight, to be matched with a heavyweight [China]. They also allowed Russia, heavyweight, to be matched with a featherweight [Finland]. The only way they can square themselves with the rest of the world is to make a match between the God loving and Christian people of the whole world and the hoodlums and racketeers. We could obtain a large audience to this fight if you would use your good paper and radio facilities for advertising same. I think it would be a good idea if you would call this to the attention of all the professors and trained and learned men who are debating the cause and the outcome of the present trouble. Make announcers and boosters out of them for this championship battle that is sure to come.

A PLACE TO TALK.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—How to escape the boredom of the too impersonal city life is a problem facing many single men and many retired older men.

In the rooming house neighborhoods of the west side there are large numbers of lonely men and no recreational or club facilities for them. They are found standing in the streets or sitting on curbs during good weather.

The lower west side needs an Old Men's club designed for the middle aged and elderly. These people desire mostly a place to talk, and some public agency could easily help them without much cost.

LOW NUMBERS.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—I would like to challenge the statement of E. J. B. regarding distribution of low number license plates. Most of this group below 10,000 are not in politics or belong to the "I gotta drag boys."

It is a case of prior right, as most of the low numbers have been in the same hands for years. A law was enacted to protect owners of specific numbers whether large or small and I can see no reason why it should be abolished.

I possess a number under 10,000 and am proud of the fact that I have retained it for 21 years by making application prior to Dec. 1.

COLLECTION ON NOTE.

Chicago, Jan. 25 [Legal Friend of the People].—Eight years ago a business man borrowed $1,000 from my husband and gave a note for same. Four years ago my husband died. I gave my note to a lawyer to collect. He made payments of $400 and told lawyer he cannot pay any more.

He owned property for which I got notice they were foreclosing but the [1] lawyer tells me my claim will be wiped out altogether; that taxes and mortgages come first.

Still this man is running a well paying business and [2] told my lawyer if he wouldn't leave him alone he would go thru bankrutcy. I was informed lately that my attorney and this man were old friends. I am a widow.

What I want to know is [3] what further steps I would take to collect remainder of note, as I am about to lose my home.

C. L.

1. We are confident that you misunderstood his advice. He doubtless told you merely that your right to follow the mortgaged real estate would be lost. The foreclosure would not bar your debtor's personal obligation to you.

2. We are not in a position to say that this is impossible.

3. If the debtor's liabilities exceed his assets, so that he is in a position to go thru bankruptcy, then it would hardly seem practicable for you to collect. It seems probable that your attorney is doing what can be done for you.

1. Can this person who owns the home turn the title over to the mortgage holder or must the mortgage holder foreclose?

2. Either way this person who owns the home at present would have nothing. She is 68 years old.

3. Can this person get an old age pension after she lost her home?

4. Will the turning over of the title to the mortgage holder interfere with the pension?

TINY RABBIT AIDS STATE IN BATTLE WITH PNEUMONIA

BY GREER WILLIAMS.

Another revolution is quietly taking place in the treatment of pneumonia, No. 1 killer among the contagious diseases.

This is the adoption of antipneumococcic rabbit serum in preference to horse serum, a standby in the battle against pneumonia since 1925. Dr. Howard A. Lindberg, chief of the pneumonia division of the state department of public health, said yesterday that horse serum was abandoned in favor of rabbit serum in the state laboratory in Chicago last November.

This laboratory supplies 18 state serum centers which, as part of the state's year old pneumonia control program, distributes the new drug, sulfapyridine, which has been making sensational news as a cure for pneumonia, and antipeumonia serum free to all physicians who request them for their patients.

Oxygen Treatment Aids.

A third weapon in the modern war on pneumonia—the two others being rabbit or horse serum and sulfapyridine—is oxygen. All three rank in almost equal importance, altho their order of priority generally stands as serum, sulfapyridine, and oxygen.

The new rabbit serum was developed in 1934 by Drs. L. A. Barnes and B. White of the Massachusetts department of health, who found it was superior to horse serum. It was rabbit serum that was used last week to save Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, widow of Patrick A. Valentine and of Philip D. Armour Jr., from serious and possibly fatal consequences from type 23 pneumonia.

Serum therapy of pneumonia means treatment with injections of an organic fluid containing antibodies which have been built up to resist a particular germ. The antibodies reinforce the same neutralizing materials which the body begins to create as soon as the pneumonia infection begins. But a specific serum is needed for each of the 34 known pneumonia types, since the antibody which destroys one strain of pneumococcus will not faze his many cousins.

Serum Made for 32 Types.

Scientists have been able to produce horse serum for only nine types of pneumonia. On the other hand, the state laboratory is now producing rabbit serum for 32 types.

Another advantage of rabbit serum, according to Dr. Lindberg, is its comparatively rapid action. The antibodies, or chemical particles, in a rabbit's blood are smaller than those in a horse's blood, and, therefore, can penetrate the human system where the horse derivatives cannot. Too, the rabbit serum provides a higher concentration of pneumonia fighters, and can be given in larger doses.

Both horse and rabbit serums are made in the same way, following the refining method developed in 1925 by Dr. Lloyd D. Felton. Under this method the animal is injected with gradually increasing doses of virulent pneumococci of the type for which serum is desired.

How Serum Is Prepared.

After a month or six weeks the animal is bled and the fluid portions in the blood are drawn off. The antibodies are precipitated thru distillation of the fluid portions with water and sodium sulphate. The precipitation process is repeated, and after the antibodies have been acidified and clarified the serum is evaporated until the antibodies make up 12 per cent of the solution.

Great care is exercised to remove as much of the blood's proteins as possible, since the serum may induce protein poisoning, allergy, or fever reaction in the patient.

Pasteur, French father of bacteriology, and Sternberg, later surgeon general of the United States army, discovered pneumococci almost simultaneously in 1880.

First Serum Tried in 1891.

The advance toward antipneumococci serum began six years later when Frankel discovered that rabbits which had recovered from experimental pneumonia exhibited a resistance to the disease when exposed a second time. The first attempt to immunize humans with serum was made by Drs. E. and F. Klemper of Germany in 1891, with little success.

In 1910, two more Germans, Neufeld and Handel, found the reason for immunization's failures.

It remained for Dr. Rufus Cole and the group of illustrious researchers he gathered around him in the Rockefeller institute in New York City to develop a serum.

Pneumonia Types Classified.

During 1911-'13 they classified types I, II, and III, and lumped an indefinite number of other strains in group IV. [now comprising 31 distinct varieties of pneumococci]. And they developed a serum from horses for type I. This serum was too toxic for general use, and medical science had to wait another decade for Dr. Felton's refinements.

The latest, and some believe, the greatest, discovery in pneumonia therapy was made in England by Dr. Lionel E. H. Whitby in 1938. This was the discovery of the drug derived from sulfanilamide, known in Great Britain as M. and B. 693 and named sulfapyridine following its introduction in the United States in July, 1938.

The drug's action differs from that of serum. The serum quickly builds up the body's defenses and precipitates the typical crisis of pneumonia which precedes the turn for the better. Sulfapyridine, in contrast, fortifies the body for " the long pull," the crisis occurring after the usual four to six days.

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The " electric eye " has been given greater seeing power by an invention announced today by a scientist at the University of Illinois.

Prof. J. T. Tykociner.

The device is a development of the photoelectric cell and involves the use of potassium as a light-sensitive surface. It was reported as extremely valuable in the development of television because it improves the response of the "eyes" to color. Astronomers will be able to measure light from millions of stars which are not visible to the human eye even thru the most powerful telescopes.

The development was carried to completion by Prof. Joseph T. Tykociner, father of the sound-on-film for movies. One of the first patents issued in 1940 covers the device. The patent was assigned to the university.

The method consists of bombarding the light-sensitive surface in a photoelectric cell or "electric eye" with atomic hydrogen and electrons. The bombardment is done in a high vacuum. This increases the light-sensitivity of the potassium from 10 to 50 times, Tykociner reported.

FORT SHERIDAN PRIVATE DIES OF AUTO INJURIES

Chauffeur Accused After Lake Forest Accident.

Private George Banas, 26 years old, of the quartermaster's corps at Fort Sheridan, died yesterday in the fort hospital of a skull fracture suffered Thursday night when he and another soldier were struck by an automobile on Western avenue near Ryan road in Lake Forest.

Banas and Private William Hall, 26, had stepped out of their car to repair the windshield wiper. A car driven by Moses Jenkins, 226 North 2d avenue, Highland Park, chauffeur for Attorney Bernard Nath, 288 Hazel avenue, Highland Park, struck the parked car and both soldiers. Hall was injured.

Jenkins said the car of the two soldiers had no tail light. At the Lake Forest police station Jenkins was charged with driving while intoxicated. The inquest into Banas' death will be held tomorrow. His home was in Fair Chance, Pa.

Hunt Hit-and-Run Driver.

North avenue police were looking yesterday for a hit-and-run driver whose car struck and seriously injured John Humphrey, 15 years old, of 1235 North Maplewood avenue, as he was riding his bicycle Thursday at Hirsch boulevard and Western avenue. The boy, a pupil at Lane Technical High school, is in St. Elizabeth's hospital with a fractured skull.

Curtis Peterson, 6146 Eddy street, and his brother, Kenneth, of 631 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, were arrested by Austin police, who accused them of being the hit and run drivers whose car struck Mrs. Anna Pomczak, 56, of 4338 Augusta boulevard as she was crossing Augusta boulevard at Kilbourn avenue. She suffered head injuries and lacerations.

License Number Obtained.

The license number of Curtis Peterson's car was obtained by another motorist who witnessed the accident. The car was found in Kenneth's garage, and the two men were driving in Kenneth's car when police found them. Curtis admitted switching cars, the police said. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and his brother with disorderly conduct. Curtis Peterson is a superintendent for the Hoffman-Stafford Tanning company, 1001 Division street. His brother is a printer.

Joseph Kallas, 52, of 8050 Stewart avenue, a laborer, died in St. George's hospital of skull fracture incurred Friday night when he was struck as he crossed Vincennes avenue at 81st street by a car driven by Clarence Strombeck, 19, of 11406 Church street.

An unidentified man, about 48 years old, was killed by a hit and run car in front of 2222 Elston avenue last night.

Another unidentified man, about 55 years old, was killed by an automobile at Higgins road and Nashville avenue. The driver was Sylvester Kowalski, 6944 Berwyn avenue.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 99 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 73 were killed in Chicago, where 2,087 were injured in the same period.

GEN. FORD WILL SPEAK IN W-G-N R. O. T. C. SALUTE

Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area, will be guest speaker in the second annual W-G-N broadcast dedicated to the R. O. T. C. on the night of Feb. 22. The broadcast, to be presented by station W-G-N over the Mutual Broadcasting system's coast to coast network, will be viewed by 600 cadets, army officers, and officials connected with R. O. T. C. units in the midwest.

Lieut. Gen. Ford.

A second address will be made by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. He will speak on "The History of the Star Spangled Banner." The speeches will punctuate a 30 minute musical program by the W-G-N symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber.

The program, to be presented in the W-G-N studio at 9:30 p. m., will be preceded by a 15 minute prolog entitled "A Tribute to Youth." The prolog will consist of a preview of a bronze statue of Nathan Hale to be unveiled publicly at Tribune square in the spring. The work is a replica of the Hale statue on the Yale university campus done by Bela Lyon Pratt [1867-1917], an American sculptor who also created the statue of Alexander Hamilton in Grant park, Chicago.

FIRE ROUTS FIVE FAMILIES.

Freeport, Ill., Feb. 3 [Special].—Fire early today swept the W. H. Wagner business block in Orangeville, causing a loss estimated at $6,000 and driving from their beds five families occupying apartments on the second floor. The blaze started in a tavern on the ground floor.

EDITH M'CORMICK TRUST RECEIVER IS ASKED IN SUIT

Appointment of a receiver for the Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust, a real estate concern, was asked in a suit filed yesterday in Circuit court. The suit also seeks to enforce a judgment of $219,568, representing the balance due bondholders on an award of $361,309 obtained in 1936 after bonds of the trust were defaulted.

The plaintiff is the American National Bank and Trust company of Chicago as successor in trust. The trust was formed in 1923 by Mrs. McCormick, who was the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, and Edward D. Krenn and Edward A. Dato. Mrs. McCormick died in 1932.

The trust purchased real estate in Kenosha county, Wis., in 1925 and issued bonds totaling $1,337,500 against it. The bonds subsequently were defaulted. A sheriff's sale provided funds to pay part of the amount then due bondholders and a deficiency judgment was obtained for the remainder, which is the amount sought in yesterday's suit.

FAILS IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT.

Clarence Sandford, 64 years old, 29 South Sangamon street, drank disinfectant, slashed his throat, and tried to strangle himself with wire yesterday. But last night he was reported recovering.

ARMOUR, LEWIS MERGER WON'T EXCLUDE WOMEN

Lewis institute alumni need worry no more about the possibility that women will be excluded when their school is merged with Armour institute. Alex D. Bailey, president of the Lewis trustees, explained yesterday that the merger marks a step forward for the co-eds: The school's going to stop referring to them as respectable females, which is what they're called in the Lewis charter.

Bailey testified before Judge Robert Jerome Dunne at a hearing on objections to the merger, which were brought by a group of the alumni. The board president indicated that the objectors had misunderstood an announcement regarding elimination of a paragraph about women from the charter because of its archaic language.

He and other witnesses said the merger hopes to give Chicago the nation's finest technical school.

SAFETY COUNCIL TO MAP ANNUAL WORK TOMORROW

The Greater Chicago Safety council will hold its 14th annual meeting tomorrow night in the Stevens hotel. The principal speaker will be John A. Stephens, director of industrial relations for United States Steel corporation. His subject will be "Industrial Management and the Safety Function."

The council also will discuss its safety program for the year. This embraces a wide field of activities. George G. Traver, manager, said that since its origin the council has given safety training to 650,000 persons. It conducts two semiannual interplant accident prevention contests and has 125 companies enrolled in its interfleet trucking safety contest.

The meeting is to plan arrangements for the annual midwest safety conference in May, which will bring more than 3,500 delegates from 20 states to Chicago.

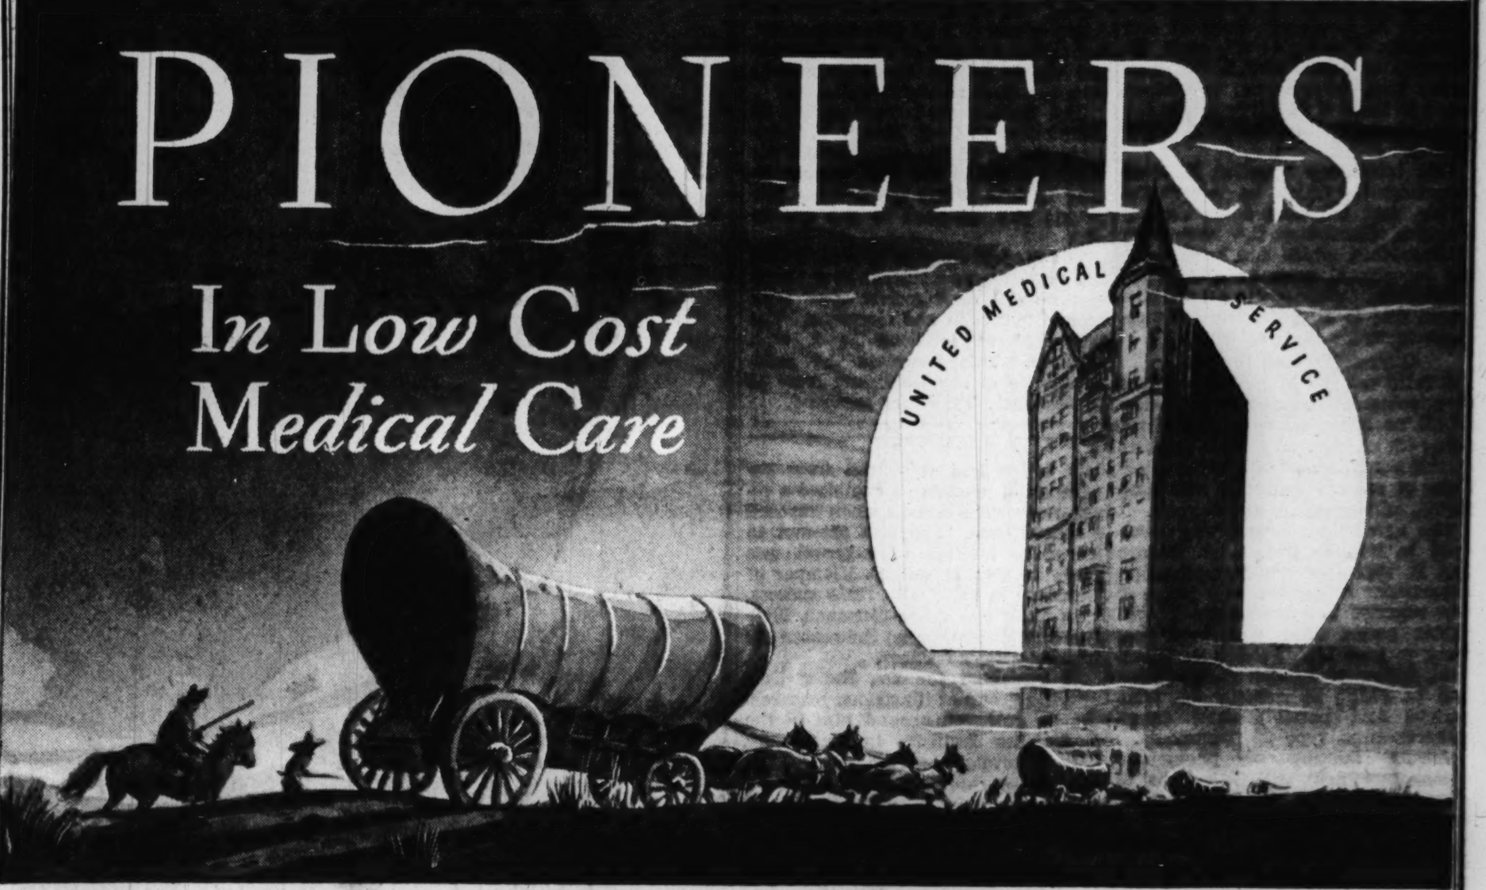
PIONEERS
In Low Cost Medical Care



OF the pioneers who contributed so generously to the progress of this nation, none deserve greater glory than the pioneers in medicine. Their discoveries, particularly during the past 50 years, represent one of the greatest achievements of all time . . . victory over disease. So far-reaching has been their success that the big problem in medicine today is not one of accuracy in diagnosis or proper treatment, but one of making this great pool of medical knowledge more accessible to the public. For while medicine advanced in knowledge and skill, costs also advanced until only the well-to-do could afford to pay for these necessary services. The first attempt to solve the problem was made February, 1920, in Chicago, by a young physician supported by a group of civic minded citizens. This first effort, although limited to a highly specialized field of medicine, was immediately accepted by the public and became one of the largest medical organizations of its kind in the world. Its success inspired this same physician to further explorations in the fields of medical economics and brought about in January, 1933, the organization of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE. This was Chicago's first pioneering effort to make all of the great discoveries in medicine available to greater numbers of people through a drastic reduction in costs. The public was even more enthusiastic in their support and acceptance than before. We believe that its success during the past seven years has proven that this plan of providing low cost medical care is fundamentally right. We base that assumption upon the fact that with less money to spend more people have been able to obtain complete medical care . . . between 100,000 and 150,000 men, women and children have been examined and treated . . . and that over 65 per cent of all patients come through the recommendations of others. Over 5,000 physicians in private practice have used our X-ray and medical laboratory facilities as well as council of our medical staff for more than 25,000 of their patients. Our complete facilities and low fees are available to the public direct or through physicians in private practice. Those who need medical care as well as those interested in the advancement of this modern idea in medical practice, are invited to visit our offices and personally inspect our facilities and services.

Health Protecting Medical Care at Low Cost

BY JUDITH CASS.

Among the many weddings that took place yesterday, the last Saturday before Lent, were two of especial interest. Miss Barbara Mechem of Lake Forest and Benjamin Atwood Smith II. of Gloucester, Mass., were married in Lake Forest. George Payne Bent of Chicago and Miss Alice Edwina Babst were married in New York.

Blue and yellow were the colors of the Smith-Mechem wedding, which took place at 4 o'clock in St. Patrick's church. Blue velvet drapes hang behind the altar of the church, which was further decorated with yellow roses and cybotium fern. The bridesmaids wore dresses in various shades of blue and carried yellow roses.

Bride Wears White Velvet.

The bride, who is tall and blonde, wore white velvet and carried lilies of the valley and bouvardia. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mechem, gave a reception at the Onwentsia club following the ceremony. The receiving line extended from the fireplace in the main lounge. Large yellow acacia trees stood at either side of the fireplace. The trunks of the trees were surrounded with white primroses and blue iris.

Mr. Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Russell Smith of Gloucester, Mass., will take his bride to Gloucester to live following a wedding trip to Florida.

In the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church, New York, Mr. Bent, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Harry Bent of Pasadena, claimed the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Babst of 580 Park avenue as his bride. Cedar trees and white azalias adorned the chapel. A reception followed in the Colony club and was attended by many Chicago relatives and friends of the bridegroom. After a honeymoon in Nassau, Mr. Bent and his bride will be at home on the near north side.

Boynton-Rutter Engagement.

An announcement of interest in Chicago is being made today by William McMurtrie Rutter of Pine Forge, Pa. It is of the engagement of his daughter, Martha Ryerson, to Woodward Leavenworth Boyton of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Perry Boynton of Highland Park.

Miss Rutter is a graduate of Bennington college. Mr. Boynton attended Andover academy and was graduated from the University of North Carolina. The marriage will take place at an early date. Mr. Boynton and his bride will live in New York.

MANY FLUNK LAW TEST FOR STATE DRIVERS LICENSE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP).—Nearly half of the Illinois motorists applying for drivers' licenses are "abysmally ignorant" of state traffic laws, the state highway division reported today. More than 25,000 persons have been "flunked" on their first tests and have been forced to study the laws before passing a second examination. Since last October all new applicants for drivers' licenses have been required to take physical and law examinations.

Few applicants, for example, seem to know:

That motorists must signal 100 feet before they turn or stop.

That pedestrians have the right of way at unprotected crossings.

That it is illegal to pass another car on a hill or curve or within 100 feet of a bridge, viaduct, tunnel, railroad crossing or intersection.

City Auto License Sale Month Ahead of Last Year

The sale of city vehicle license stickers is more than a month ahead of last year, City Clerk Ludwig D. Schrieber reported yesterday. Collections so far this year are $3,309,548. That total was not reached until March 16 last year. Yesterday 13,789 stickers were sold for a total of 338,572, compared with 247,614 on the same date in 1939. In the 24 hours ended at 4 p. m. yesterday police issued 320 summonses to autoists whose cars lacked stickers.

T. ROOSEVELT III. TAKES BRIDE IN LOUISVILLE, KY.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 3 [Special].—The second Presbyterian church was the scene this afternoon of the wedding of Miss Anne Babcock, daughter of George W. Babcock, and Theodore Roosevelt III. The Rev. Dr. Teunis E. Gouwens performed the ceremony. The bridesmaids were Misses Penelope Harrison, Peggy Wymond, Fannette Horner, Martha O'Brien, Jessie Barker, and Mary Anne Tyler. Cornelius Roosevelt was the best man. Ushers included Quentin Roosevelt, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; Sewell Gardner, Charles Symington, and Gordon Palmer, all of Chicago. A reception was held following the ceremony at "Rockledge," the home of the bride's parents. The bride and groom left later on a wedding trip to Florida. On their return they will make their home on Brownsboro road here.

FREE 2 MANTLE CLUB WORKERS ON BOND IN QUIZ

A. C. Schmalfuss, secretary of the Mantle club, and T. O. Lackey, an assistant, who were arrested Friday in a raid on the club's office, were released yesterday on bonds of $50 each on charges of disorderly conduct.

Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan of Police Commissioner Allman's office said an investigation is being made into the conduct of the club, a fraternal organization with approximately 25,000 members thruout the country.

The raid was made after members complained they received no benefits from the club altho they paid initiation fees of $20 and dues of $2 a month. Records of the organization, which has an office at 310 South Michigan avenue, were seized by police.

CITY'S FATHERS WELCOME PROBE OF BUILDING CODE

If the government challenges Chicago's new building code, the aldermen who aided in drafting it will welcome such an investigation. They said so yesterday, following the announcement of Leo F. Tierney, special assistant to the attorney general.

Tierney said the government, as an owner of homes, plans to attack the code on the ground that its "arbitrary and capricious" provisions restrict low cost housing. The attack, he said, would be part of the government's investigation of alleged trade barriers in the building industry.

"We took the advice of architectural and building experts in preference to manufacturers who were trying to get their new products into the Chicago market," said Ald. John J. Duffy [19th], a member of the council building committee subcommittee. "I acted according to the dictates of my conscience."

Other aldermen who expressed similar views are Arthur G. Lindell [9th], James J. McDermott [14th]; William J. Cowhey [41st], and William A. Rowan [10th].

Youth Fleeing Holdup Hit by Truck; Escapes

Mrs. J. Anderson was returning from a grocery last night when she was seized by a youth, apparently intent on robbery, in front of her home at 3341 Seminary avenue. She screamed. Her husband and several neighbors ran to her aid. The hoodlum, fleeing, was knocked down when he ran into the path of a truck. But he jumped to his feet and got away.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

KNOWN FOR THEIR GOOD WORKMANSHIP

Now, that old question which has always plagued owners when they go to remodel or build—"Where can we find a reliable contractor who will do satisfactory work?"—has been solved for you by Hines! No more do you have to rely on guesswork, hearsay and third-hand recommendations — with this new Hines service you have this old, reliable company to put you in touch with the right man who will do satisfactory work at a price you can afford to pay.

HINES DOES NO CONTRACTING

We are not in the contracting business nor ever have been. However, through years of experience we have learned, in this age of specialization, that Bill Smith does fine interior work, John Jones makes a specialty of enclosed porches and garages, and so down through the line of carpentry contracting. We know these selected contractors as reliable men who do satisfactory work and use the best of materials. They are ready and willing to give you ideas and cost estimates without charge or obligation.

ATTIC BEDROOMS

Such an attractive attic bedroom can be built in some attics inexpensively by using knotty pine and insulating board in tile or plank designs which serve as insulation, wall covering and decoration all in one. And sometimes whole attic flats can be built to bring you extra income. With FHA remodeling loans, and no money down, these improvements can be yours on easy monthly terms if you so desire.

If you have a "perfectly impossible" corner in your dining room let a Hines colonial corner cabinet come to your rescue! These cabinets are perfectly proportioned in a true colonial design and are made of Hines Ponderosa Pine. The upper divided glass door keeps the shelves dust-free. To save you money they come pre-fitted and carton packed, with instructions for assembly 7'0" high and adjustable to fit space 32" to 35¾" wide. Without hardware $17.95

BASEMENT GAME ROOMS

Don't go through another winter without a rumpus room where you can play! A Hines selected contractor will give you a wide choice of wall treatments to fit your pocketbook—variegated or colored insulating board, knotty pine, pecky cypress, wormy chestnut or rare woods. Phone your nearest Hines yard for free estimates and FHA financing details — this Hines service is yours without obligation.

FIND BILLBOARDS MARRING BEAUTY OF SHORE DRIVES

Women Note a Long List of Violations.

Two members of the Women's City club made a sightseeing tour yesterday to lay the groundwork for the club's state-wide campaign against the billboard blight in city parks, boulevards, and rural highways.

They found, they said, that every available corner had a backdrop of glaring billboards, blatantly evident in defiance of the Chicago zoning ordinance that forids their use in residential zones.

List Is Extensive.

The list was an extensive one, covering Chicago, but Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Lunde roamed only along Lake Shore and Marine drives. There they found sufficient evidence to warrant bringing the drive before their club's board meeting tomorrow.

The visages of several political candidates, among them Gov. Horner, were posted in felicitous spots. Liquor advertisments were more prevalent, however. "Whisky is the specialty," Mrs. Lunde remarked.

Surprised by Candidates' Pictures.

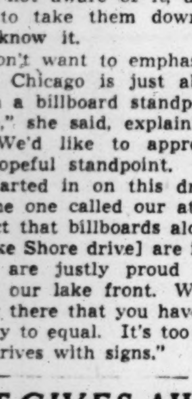
"The candidates' pictures are surprising," Mrs. Fox said. "I believe they are not aware of it, and will be glad to take them down when they do know it.

"We don't want to emphasize the fact that Chicago is just about as bad, from a billboard standpoint, as it can be," she said, explaining the drive. "We'd like to approach it from a hopeful standpoint.

"We started in on this drive because some one called our attention to the fact that billboards along the drive [Lake Shore drive] are increasing. We are justly proud of the beauty of our lake front. We have something there that you have to go a long way to equal. It's too bad to line our drives with signs."

MOTT GIVES AWAY 100,000 SHARES OF GENERAL MOTORS

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 3 (AP).—Charles Stewart Mott, vice president of General Motors corporation and the corporation's largest single stockholder, confirmed on a vacation trip today that he was making a gift of 100,000 shares of General Motors stock valued at $5,200,000.



Chas. S. Mott.

"The gift will be announced Tuesday in a Securities Exchange commission report," he said. While Mott would not disclose the projected recipient, it was thought he might fashion the gift after his favorite benefaction, the Mott Foundation for youth in his home city of Flint, Mich.—possibly as a family foundation.

With Mrs. Mott, the former Ruth Rawlings of El Paso, he is visiting friends here while en route to Phoenix, Ariz.

Mott, who is 68 years old, set up the Mott Fundation in Flint more than a decade ago to keep children off the streets and out of trouble. He since has carried on child welfare work so extensively that it has consumed a large part of his time and money. His holdings in General Motors corporation are officially listed at 523,087 shares.

MARY DAVIES, POET, IS FOUND ILL AND BROKE

Today she was too ill to write, her purse was empty, and she had no food. She was found sick and emaciated in a bleak little hall bedroom, packed with manuscripts and little else.

Almost hysterical because her plight had become public knowledge, she said she still had poems she could write, but not the strength—just now—to set them down.

Doctors said the poet is suffering from anemia. Her neighbors say she has too little food. She has been depending on home relief for $3.65 a week rent and $2.50 weekly for food and medicine.

Getting Up Nights, Nervousness and Kidney Strain

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, late hours or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and put a heavy load on your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Nature's Way

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters and the heart pumps blood through them about 200 times an hour night and day. No man has ever made a machine that would stand up under the work that the Kidneys are asked to do, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down as you grow older.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three natural ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, aliveness and enthusiasm which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee, so get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

SERVICES HELD FOR ARCHITECT J. E. PRIDMORE

Funeral services for John E. Oldaker Pridmore, veteran Chicago architect, were held yesterday in the Church of the Atonement. He died Thursday, after a brief illness, at the age of 75. His home was at 6003 Winthrop avenue.

J. E. O. Pridmore. [Russell Photo.]

Mr. Pridmore was born in England and came to Chicago as a boy with his family. He was a world traveler, author, and war correspondent, and during his professional career of 50 years specialized in theater and church architecture. He designed the Episcopal chapel on the University of Illinois campus, buildings at Harvard university, Austin hospital, the American Forestry building in Paris, the Church of the Atonement, People's church, and the Bush Temple of Music.

During the world war, altho over age, he volunteered and was accepted by the British army as an interpreter in France. He was a former president of the Iroquois Memorial association, and a member of the Union League and Edgewater Golf clubs, the American Institute of Architects, the Art institute, and the Architects' club.

14 ARE SENTENCED IN MINNEAPOLIS WPA STRIKE CASE

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 3 (AP).—Fourteen men convicted of violation or conspiracy to violate the federal relief act in connection with the WPA strike here last July were sentenced to prison or workhouse terms here today.

Heaviest terms, eight months each in a federal correctional institution, were given Edward Palmquist, chairman of the federal workers section of General Drivers union, 544; Max Geldman, secretary of the section, and Leslie Wachter, who was convicted in two trials in separate indictments. Wachter, whom Federal Judge M. M. Joyce termed the most ruthless defendant, also was placed on probation for 18 months.

Three of the 17 men who appeared for sentence escaped with probation. Five others, who pleaded nolo contendere Wednesday when 125 remaining WPA indictments were dismissed on motion of the government, will be sentenced later. No date has been set for sentencing 14 women convicted in the same trials as the men sentenced today.

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Feb. 3.—The largest crowd ever seen in Westervelt cemetery near Haarlem assembled today at the ceremony in which the urn with Anthony Fokker's ashes was interred. Members of the family, 1,400 workmen from the Fokker factory, and many officials were present. The mayor of Amsterdam, Dr. W. Devlugt, recalled events in the airplane builder's career.

DISCOVERY MAY REVISE VIEWS ON MAYAN CULTURE

Monolith of Ancient Chief Held Significant.

BY FERNANDO CUSI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MERIDA, Yucatan, Feb. 3.—The discovery of a new monolith at Chichen-Itza is considered of such historical importance that long held views on the ancient Mayan Indian civilization may have to be revised. The monolith, 13th of the chacmool [tiger] type, was unearthed by Manuel Cirerol Sansores, who directs archæological investigations for the Mexican government in this district.

Arrow locates Chichen-Itza, in Yucatan [black area].

The discovery, which Sansores considers the most important ever made, is a result of the unceasing search for additional information about the ancient Mayan tribes that developed a flourishing civilization in Yucatan in the fifth and sixth centuries. They cleared the forest, established their cities, and erected beautiful temples. Their empire lasted hundreds of years. It was crushed only by the Spanish hordes of the 16th century.

A Powerful Chieftain.

The word "chacmool" is an arbitrary one conceived by an American archæologist. The chacmools generally represent deities or powerful tribal leaders.

The discoverer of this latest monolith is convinced that it represents a powerful chieftain who ruled a great domain.

"My theory is that the statue is that of a vanquished Mayan leader, and was buried to symbolize his defeat," Sansores said. "He was a leader beloved by his people, however, so his triumphant opponent ordered that all necessary precautions be taken to guard against the monolith ever breaking."

Perfect Preservation.

So extraordinary were these precautions that the monolith now is in a state of perfect preservation. Because of this, Sansores believes that authorities will leave it in its present location rather than move it to a museum. This will afford examination of it under natural conditions.

Other chacmools discovered have been characterized by a similarity in their decorations and design. Conventional features are ear ornaments, headgear with feathers, an emblematic necklace, and a sacred bird.

This 13th chacmool, however, is distinguished by its ear ornaments, which are phallic symbols instead of serpents; by its vestment and double collar, from which hangs a large plaque with phallic symbols; by the effigies of man carved on its chest, representing man as the supreme creation, and by the jewel that hangs from a cord around the neck.

Whisky Raiders May Find They Have Something Here

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 3 (AP).—Two deputies and a state prohibition operative may have picked up something besides the 612 pints of whisky they seized today in a raid on a nearby farm home. After their search the housewife said: "I'm sure glad you came. My baby has scarlet fever." The raiders left and sent a doctor.

KILLER OF BABY SON ONE OF 331 CONVICTS WHO ASK FOR PAROLE

Parole applications of 331 convicts in Illinois penal institutions will be heard by the state parole board starting tomorrow. One hundred thirty-seven were sentenced from Cook county.

One of those seeking parole is Ralph Koch, 25 years old, formerly of Norwood township. On Nov. 11, 1938, he became enraged because his son, Tod, 4 months old, was crying, and slapped him. The infant died. Koch was sentenced to 1 to 14 years for manslaughter.

Also seeking freedom is Miss Justine Le Blanc, now 20, who was sentenced to 1 to 20 years for robbery in May, 1937. She was a member of a holdup gang.

Other parole seekers include Ben Simons, Victor Friberg, and Sigmund Bukovitz. Simons is serving a manslaughter sentence for killing his WPA boss in a fight. Friberg, a former Republican precinct captain in the 42d ward, is serving a similar sentence for killing a pedestrian with his car. Bokovitz is serving a term for attempted robbery. Previous to his sentence he had been an inmate of the Dixon State Hospital for the Feeble Minded. He escaped from the hospital eight times and was seized in the attempted robbery case while a fugitive.

ALLMAN ORDERS POLICE TO CLOSE ALL HANDBOOKS

Acts After Warning from Federal Prosecutor.

The federal government projected itself into the Chicago gambling picture yesterday, and as a result Police Commissioner Allman gave personal orders to all district captains to close every handbook in the city. Allman acted less than 24 hours after meeting with William J. Campbell, United States district attorney. Campbell gave Allman a list of 300 handbooks which are said to be operating openly.

Prosecutor Campbell [upper] and Commissioner Allman.

Campbell is directing a nation-wide drive to stamp out illegal wire services which supply the bookies with horse race results in violation of federal lottery laws.

Government Expects Aid.

The district attorney is said to have told Allman that local officials are expected to aid the government by closing the gambling places, thus reducing the demand for the bootlegged race results. Federal investigators, meanwhile, are concentrating on cutting off the wires at the other end—the race tracks.

Campbell warned the police commissioner that city officials who continue to wink at gambling will be liable for prosecution in the federal courts as members of a general lottery conspiracy.

Allman in turn told his captains that he will hold them personally responsible for any handbooks found operating in their districts. He parceled out to each captain a list of addresses in his district taken from Campbell's list.

No specific orders were given as to the manner of closing the places. Captains were told to use their own judgment on whether or not to make arrests. It was indicated that the government's purpose will be accomplished by merely closing down the handbooks and keeping them closed.

Procedure Is Unusual.

This was one of the few times that Allman has called all the high ranking police officials to his office in a body—an indication, according to observers, that Campbell's warning was not taken lightly at the city hall.

Campbell declined to comment on Allman's action. Last week, however, he indicated that the government is not satisfied with the progress of its drive on the illegal race wires. He hinted at the possibilities of grand jury action against Chicago gamblers and their associates who have found new sources of race information as fast as the government cut out the old ones.

Cleveland Seeks Phone Ban.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 3 (AP).—Safety Director Eliot Ness tonight announced he will ask the Ohio Bell Telephone company to discontinue service to horse race betting establishments.

"We ought to require the same sort of coöperation from the telephone company as is extended to authorities of other cities," he said.

Curtailment of telephone service, the safety director asserted, would block communication between bookies operating in the city and central race news distributing agencies outside the city limits. Police in several other cities have taken similar steps.

PURSE SNATCHER SHOT AS WOMAN LEADS PURSUIT

George Hart, 16 years old, was shot and seriously wounded last night when he fled after snatching a purse from Mrs. Jean Kroll, near her home at 4227 North Hermitage avenue.

Mrs. Kroll's screams attracted William Loughrin, a street car motorman, and Henry Bright, a bank clerk, both of 4243½ North Hermitage avenue. The three entered Bright's car and began searching for the thief. Mrs. Kroll identified him in front of 1619 Irving Park road and Loughrin fired one pistol shot when the purse snatcher refused to halt. The bullet struck Hart in the spine. Mrs. Kroll's purse, containing $7, was found under his sweater.

Hart, whose home is at 725 Wrightwood avenue, was taken to Bridewell hospital. Damen avenue police questioned him about recent purse snatchings in the Ravenswood neighborhood.

THE FORD WAY OF DOING BUSINESS

The Ford Motor Company was founded by a working-man for working-men. Its present officers began as employees of the Company. It was the first company to pay a minimum wage, beginning in 1914, at the then astounding figure of $5 a day. That was double the prevailing wage of the time. The Ford minimum is now $6 a day for all employees engaged in production work. And from that, the wages rise to $10.80 a day, with the average wage $7.25, exclusive of salaried employees.

The Ford Motor Company was the first large company to establish the 8-hour day—also in 1914. And the 40-hour week was inaugurated by the Ford Motor Company in 1926, years before any such laws existed.

The Ford Motor Company employs men without regard to race, creed or color. It is common knowledge that working conditions in the Ford shops are the best that science and constant care can make them. A square deal, a just wage and stabilized employment for a large proportion of our employees—and as fully stabilized for all as conditions will permit—enable our men to retain their personal independence.

In consequence of these policies the Ford Motor Company has one of the finest bodies of employees in the world. The larger proportion are mature men of long service with the Company—sober, decent family men. Hundreds of them have been with the Company for more than 25 years—thousands for more than 15 years. Their health record, home ownership and citizenship records are gratifyingly high.

All this is reflected in Ford products, whether cars, trucks or tractors. The work is honestly done. The materials are the best that can be made or procured. Less profit to the Company and more value to the customer is known throughout the world as "Ford's way of doing business."

Ford Motor Company was the first to make a motor car within the means of the average family—quitting the manufacture of what was then the largest selling model in the world to do so. Its chosen field in all the 30 years since that time has been the average American family, for which it has consistently provided car facilities which formerly only the wealthy could buy.

It is the policy of the Ford Motor Company to share the benefits of advanced methods and management with workers and public alike. Increased wages and employment over a period of many years have resulted in a 300 per cent increase in the built-in value of the Ford car and a 75 per cent reduction in its price.

NOTRE DAME, CHICAGO, INDIANA FIVES WIN

NOVICES OPEN CHICAGO'S GOLDEN GLOVES TOMORROW

FIRST BATTLES WILL BE HELD ON WEST SIDE

21 Cities Assemble Teams.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Twenty-one cities, including Chicago, will organize their armies of amateur boxers this week. At the end 45 performances will have been given in nine states and four teams of champions will have been named to compete in the 13th Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions in Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

Championship teams will be named this week in Quincy, Ill.; Vincennes, Ind.; Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City, Mo. Four already have been chosen: Richmond, Ind.; Sioux City, Ia.; Bloomington, Ill., and Cleveland, O. Next week and the week following will see the roster of 45 teams completed for the Tournament of Champions.

Novices Open Tomorrow.

Sharing the spotlight with the beginning of the assault by out-of-towners, and of more importance in the metropolitan district, is the opening tomorrow night of the first of Chicago's sectional tournaments in the Madison A. C. On Tuesday evening the south side meet starts in White City. The third Chicago sectional tournament, all for novice boxers, will be held next week. The schedule of these tournaments is:

NORTH—Loyola university gymnasium, Loyola avenue and Sheridan road, Feb. 12, 13, and 14.

The tournament tomorrow night will start at 7 o'clock. One ring only will be used, altho more than 40 bouts are scheduled for the first night. Admission is 75 cents. No seats are reserved. Boxers report for their physical examinations between 4 and 6 p. m.

Entries Close at Midnight.

The most important announcement to Chicago boxers, however, is that this is the last opportunity to enter the Chicago title events. Entries close at midnight. The final physical examination will be given Friday night in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. This group of experienced boxers, several of whom hold C. Y. O. and Illinois Athletic club championships, will compete in the Coliseum Feb. 20, 21, and 22 for city titles.

The eight champions in the Coliseum tournament then will enter the Tournament of Champions on Feb. 26. Each Chicago champion will receive a golden glove. The boxer defeated in the final round will be awarded a silver glove. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will outfit this team with blue trunks and sweater coats.

Golden Gloves Expands.

The Coliseum tournament resumes the city title bouts started in 1928 when Golden Gloves was confined to Chicago and suburbs. By 1930 Golden Gloves amateur tournaments had spread thruout Illinois and Indiana and in another year had swept into Ohio, Iowa, Michigan, and Minnesota, with Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, and other states lining up soon after. When these teams came to Chicago it was not feasible to continue Chicago's own tournaments beyond the sectional stage and so 32 boxers were sent into the Tournament of Champions and joined there by the champions of the Catholic Youth Organization.

The Chicago championships now will include all experienced boxers in one three-day tournament. It has been divorced from the novice tournaments.

Chicago Champions Recognized.

Chicago now has no more chance in the Tournament of Champions than, for instance, has Cleveland. However, Chicago's champions now

This is the boxing team entered by the Lincoln Turners, 1005 Diversey parkway, in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournaments, Novice and Open. The Novice sectional tournaments start tomorrow in the Madison A. C. Left to right, first row: John Karberns, John Weissgeber, Gerhard Piltz, George Herling, Robert Brown, Robert LaVan, Deno Lovekus, and Hans Pilz. Second row, left to right: A. C. From the 124th Field Artillery ranks will come Stanley Murczek to bid for the open Golden Gloves welterweight title. Murczek recently won the I. A. C. title in this class.

HOOSIERS DEAL DE PAUL ITS 2D DEFEAT, 51 TO 30

Pile Up 34 to 11 Lead in First Half.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Red hot Indiana basketball, the kind the Hoosier kids learn to play from the time they're old enough to make the grade school team, was on exhibition last night in the Coliseum. Five thousand spectators, many of whom were amazed at what they saw, witnessed the collapse of De Paul university's victory march, 51 to 30.

It was De Paul's second defeat in 16 games and the first since Southern California won an overtime battle 10 games back on the trail.

De Paul, of course, isn't as indifferent a team as their efforts last night indicated. The Blue Demons have come over a rocky road and the pace has taken a toll.

Possner Is Crippled.

But more important, Lou Possner, injured five days ago, was in no condition to play. A bandaged knee handicapped him as much as Indiana's speed. This same defensive speed shackled Elmer Gainer, De Paul's center, and eventually it had the entire crew of Demons upset offensively and frequently guilty of mental lapses defensively.

De Paul's starting lineup, the boys who have licked Purdue, Oregon, and Santa Clara, were held to two field goals. And at the end of the first half Indiana led, 34 to 11.

Five Baskets in Seven Shots.

Elmer Gainer, De Paul center, scored the opening point on Andy Zimmer's foul, but in the next few minutes the Hoosiers gave De Paul an exhibition of fancy shooting such as has not been seen in the Coliseum this year. Indiana scored three field goals in four shots and after seven shots had five field goals. In a bit more than nine minutes Indiana led, 15 to 1.

This opening sortie was fashioned from long shots. Curly Armstrong tossed in the first goal from far out. Marv Huffman duplicated it and then, after missing another, Zimmer made a long goal from the side. Huffman intercepted a De Paul pass and dribbled down to score. Armstrong missed a long shot and on another drive scored from the side with a one hand toss.

Possner Taken Out.

Bill Menke added a point on Possner's foul and two one hand shots at full speed by the same agile youth completed the 15 to 1 lead.

Possner left the game after 9½ minutes, in which time he scarcely had a shot. De Paul staged a brief rally to make six points, but Indiana resumed the attack to pile up a 23 to 8 advantage. With substitute forwards on the floor and Menke shifted to center, the Hoosiers closed the half with another burst of 11 points to De Paul's 3. The Hoosiers led, 34 to 11, at the intermission.

Demons Drop in 3 Baskets.

Gainer did not start the second half for De Paul and in the early minutes the Demons dropped in three field goals to revive the crowd. But with Zimmer and Armstrong back in the lineup for Indiana, the Hoosiers pulled ahead, 43 to 17.

Zimmer committed his fourth foul on an attempted follow up and Huffman, who had been resting, returned.

IRISH WHIP ILLINI, 58-40; 6 IN ROW; MAROONS DEAL LOYOLA 33-28 LOSS

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 3 [Special].—Notre Dame continued its comeback tonight, whipping Illinois, 58 to 40, to avenge a 42 to 29 defeat at Champaign last Dec. 27.

It was Notre Dame's sixth straight victory, tenth in 14 starts, and the fifth straight in which the Irish have scored 52 or more points. It was the ninth straight time the winner has alternated in the Illinois series, the most decisive victory of the series for either team, and the Irish total broke the Illini record of 49 points for one team, established in 1922.

Riska Leading Scorer.

Eddie Riska, Notre Dame forward, took scoring honors from Capt. Bill Hapac, Illini forward, with 13 points to Hapac's 12. Hapac got all of his points in the furious first half in which Notre Dame led three times, and Illinois twice, with the Irish forging ahead, 25 to 22, at the intermission.

Gene Klier's short shot, Capt. Mark Ertel's long one, and Riska's short shot gave Notre Dame a 31 to 22 lead after two minutes in the second half. After four minutes it was 34 to 23.

The University of Chicago basketball team broke a losing streak which had reached six straight with a 33 to 28 triumph over Loyola last night in the Midway fieldhouse. It was Loyola's eleventh straight defeat.

Ed Schell's basket from near, midfloor with two minutes to go brought Loyola within two points of the Maroons, but Chicago then ran its lead to five points to kill the final Loyola bid. Joe Stampf, Chicago's lanky center, was the leading scorer with 19 points on six baskets and seven free throws. Dan Cahill with eight points, led the Loyola scoring.

Rottner Is Checked.

The Maroons successfully stopped the offensive work of Mickey Rottner, Loyola sophomore guard, but his alert defensive play bothered Chicago thruout. The Maroons' largest margin was at the game's end.

Loyola opened the scoring after two minutes with free throws by Captain George Wenskus and Rottner. The score was tied six times in the following 18 minutes, and at the half Chicago led, 20 to 19.

Nine minutes before the end of the game Richardson's field goal put the Maroons ahead, 27 to 26, and a free throw by Stampf and two more by Captain Dick Lounsbury gave Chicago a four point lead with four minutes to go. Schell's long basket gave Loyola rooters a moment of hope, but Art Jorgensen sank a one-handed shot and followed it with a free throw to clinch victory for the Maroons. Lineups:

San Jose, Cal., Feb. 3 (AP).—Coach Dud de Groot, whose San Jose State college football team was undefeated and untied last season and had the highest scoring record of any major eleven in the nation, resigned today. He will become football coach and head of the physical education department at Rochester university, Rochester, N. Y. De Groot, head coach here for seven years, will replace Bill Cox, who coached at Rochester three years.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 3 (AP).—The Yale swimming team set a new world's record in the 400 yard freestyle relay today as it defeated Amherst, 55 to 20. Yale's relay team of Kelly, Pope, Duncan, and Johnson swam the distance in three minutes, thirty and seven-tenths seconds, lowering by six-tenths of a second the old mark of 3:31.3 set by a New York Athletic club team in 1939.

Leo Freisinger Gains on Ice Skate Leader

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 3 (AP).—Del Lamb of Milwaukee, Wis., maintained a 10 point lead in the North American ice speed championships today by taking only a single second place in two events.

Close on his heels came Leo Freisinger of Chicago, premeet favorite, who suddenly found his form and won the half mile, took a third in the two mile and boosted his point total to 70. Lamb, second in the half mile, had 80 points. Defending Champion Chuck Leighton of Minneapolis took the two mile race.

HERGESHEIMER LEADS BLACKHAWKS TO 3-2 VICTORY OVER MAPLE LEAFS

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 3 (AP).—The Chicago Blackhawks scored late in the third period tonight to defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3 to 2, and solidify their fourth place standing in the National Hockey league. The victory also salved wounds suffered in the two previous games of the road trip, a 5 to 0 defeat in Boston and a 5 to 2 setback from the New York Americans.

The Hawks had Rookie Phil Hergesheimer to thank for heading back to Chicago with one triumph to show for their efforts. Tomorrow night they meet the Detroit Red Wings in the Stadium. Hergesheimer scored the Hawks' first goal early in the first period, then set up tallies in the second and third periods. It was Chicago's first victory of the season over the Leafs in Toronto.

Bill Thoms, former Toronto player, sank the winning goal with seven minutes to play, taking Hergesheimer's pass at the Leafe defense and racing in to flip a shot over Goalie Turk Broda's shoulder. Hergesheimer gave the Chicagoans a lead after four minutes of play but Lex Chisholm tied the score a minute later.

Bentley Puts Hawks Ahead.

In the second period, Hergesheimer made the play for Doug Bentley's goal that put the Hawks ahead, 2 to 1. Just before the period closed Nick Metz evened the count for Toronto, whacking in Bingo Kampman's rebound as it came off a goal post.

A crowd of 10,776 cheered the rushes of Wally Stanowski, who led repeated attempts to put the Leafs ahead on drives that took him right to the feet of Goalie Paul Goodman.

Dodgers Offer Cullenbine $25,000 Bonus to Sign

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—A $25,000 bonus for signing with the Brooklyn Dodgers, tonight dangled before Roy Cullenbine, former Detroit outfielder recently declared a free agent by Commissioner K. M. Landis. The Dodger offer, tendered by President Larry MacPhail, is the best of the six bids received by Cullenbine.

Reached at his hotel room here, Cullenbine said, "I expect to make a decision before I leave for Detroit on Monday. I wouldn't be surprised if I signed with the Dodgers."

Nurmi, Maki Arrive; Seek Aid for Finns

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Two great athletes, Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maki, fresh from the snow-shrouded, heavily-shelled Mannerheim line and the bomb-blasted Finnish capital city of Helsingfors, arrived in New York today determined to fight for their country with stopwatches instead of bullets.

The veteran Nurmi plans to make exhibition track appearances while his protégé pits his record-shattering feet against America's best in a series of indoor meets intended to raise $300,000 to $400,000 toward the Finnish relief fund.

As the ship's band played "The Star Spangled Banner," the Norwegian-American liner Bergensfjord passed the statue of liberty and soon was warped into its pier where a welcoming committee awaited. Reporters threaded their way thru Scandinavian tots in sealskin parkas who swarmed the hurricane deck. They came first to Maki.

His Theme: We Need Help.

"Can Finland win the war?" he was asked thru an interpreter.

"Naturally, we can—if we get help," he said.

"What do you think of the Russian army?"

"Bad. I saw lots of soviet prisoners, but I did not talk to them because I do not speak Russian. However, I found many of them to be

Beats Glenn Cunningham by Three Yards.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Chuck Fenske, tacking a blazing last quarter on to the sizzling early pace set by Blaine Rideout, won the 15th running of the Wanamaker mile tonight before a capacity crowd of 16,000 in Madison Square Garden in 4:07.4, beating Glenn Cunningham by three yards. The time was the fastest ever recorded in the Garden.

Not only was it the fastest individual mile the garden ever has seen, but it probably also was the fastest collective effort seen anywhere, on board track or cinders. Cunningham, running in this event for the last time in his career, turned in a second place 4:07.7 that would have been good enough to win all previous Wanamaker miles with over three seconds to spare. Gene Venzke, in third place, and Lou Zamperini of Southern California in fourth, were caught in exactly the same time, 4:08.2.

Lash Beats Rice.

While Cunningham failed to get revenge for earlier defeats, Don Lash of Indiana made up handsomely for his loss of a week ago in the two mile run to Greg Rice of Notre Dame. Cutting loose with the famous Lash kick as they came off the next to last turn, Lash barely caught Rice going into the final turn and held him off by two yards in the race to the finish.

Lash's time of 9:00.9 bettered his own 1938 meet record by 5.1 seconds. Ralph Schwarzkopf of Michigan was third, 40 yards back of Rice.

John Woodruff jumped into the lead at the gun, held it all the way and finished all by himself to win the 880 yard run in the meet record time of 1:52.8. The former record was 1:53.8, made in 1921 by Russell Chapman of Bates.

The Olympic 800 meter champion, bothered before by trying to fight thru jams with his long stride and keeping that stride curbed to banked tracks, showed a Madison Square Garden sellout crowd just what he could do as a front runner. He ran away from the field in the final lap.

Curtis Giddings, former New York U. Star, was second by two yards over Jim Kehoe, University of Maryland's southern conference champion.

Herbert Wins Again.

Jim Herbert of N. Y. U., two time winner of the Millrose 600 and outright winner of the first Millrose 600 trophy, won a leg on the second cup, repeating Woodruff's performance in the earlier race. He finished in 1:11.4, only a tenth of a second off the meet mark and three-tenths off his own world record for the distance.

Allan Tolmich of Detroit gave the crowd its first chance to cheer for a real record when he won the 60 yard high hurdles final in 7.3 seconds, equal to the world record set in last year's Millrose meet by Roy Staley of Southern California.

The 60 dash final, with an all Negro field of four survivors, went to National Champion Herb Thompson of Jersey City in 6.3.

An expected world record failed to materialize in the 440 yard run. In two heats and a final, the boys took pot shots at Tom Halpin's 27 year old indoor mark of 49.6 seconds, but the closest they could come was Johnny Quigley's 50.2 in the final. The Manhattan college freshman won by two yards over Joe Matyunas of Seton Hall.

Evanston Polo Club Defeats 124th, 13 to 6

With Bobby Nichoalds scoring nine goals, the Evanston polo club staged the upset of the indoor season by whipping the previously undefeated 124th Field Artillery, 13 to 6, in the 124th armory last night.

It was the second loss in three years of league play for the artillery team.

Fairy Chant Wins $10,000 Race on Coast

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 3 (AP).—The Foxcatcher Farm's Fairy Chant, 3 year old filly, led from start to finish over a sloppy track today in capturing the $10,000 added Santa Margarita handicap at Santa Anita.

With Apprentice Douglas Dodson up, Fairy Chant completed the mile and one-sixteenth journey three and a half lengths in front of Mrs. J. F. Waters' Omelet. Norman Church's Sweet Nancy, runner-up in the Santa Margarita a year ago, was third.

Fairy Chant, installing herself as a threat in the $50,000 Derby Feb. 22, particularly on a slow track, paid $30.80, $13.80, and $7.40. Omelet, ridden by Jackie Westrope, paid $10.60 and $6.40, and Sweet Nancy $4.20.

RED DOCK SCORES UPSET.

The winner of the seven furlong event gave a jolt to most in Hialeah's biggest crowd of 1940, estimated at 20,000, which wagered approximately $700,000 on eight races. Red Dock looms as a new future book choice for the $20,000 3 year old Flamingo stake, the main event of this meeting for horses of that age.

A sprinter, Charlieinfeld, landed second, a half length back of the $22.60 to $2 shot. Charlieinfeld faltered in the stretch, and Red Dock picked him up to win going away. Third place went to Jessie Gladys.

MAROONS WHIP INDIANA, 52-32, IN SWIM MEET

Pakucko of Hoosiers Takes Two First Places.

The University of Chicago's swimming team won six of nine events to beat Indiana, 52 to 32, in the Bartlett gymnasium tank yesterday afternoon. Mike Pakucko of the Hoosiers won both the 220 and the 440 yard free style events to capture scoring honors.

The 200 yard breast stroke was won by the Maroons in a dead heat when Capt. Jim Anderson, third ranking breast stroke swimmer in the Big Ten, slowed up to finish with Art Bethke, sophomore, two lengths ahead of Klafs of Indiana.

Chuck Brown, Maroon junior and sole entrant of his team in the diving event, scored 319.5 points to win over Hall and Ganger of Indiana by more than 20 points.

Chicago won the 300 yard medley which opened the meet and was never behind. The Maroons had previously lost their season opener to Minnesota in Minneapolis. It was the first meet of the season for the Hoosiers. The results:

Ingwersen Devotes Full Time to Football.

Stan Klores, assistant baseball coach at Northwestern university for the last three years, will take over the head coaching duties this spring, replacing Burt Ingwersen, who will devote full time to his position as football line coach. This was announced yesterday by K. L. Wilson, athletic director.

Stan Klores.

Since he joined the Wildcat staff five years ago Ingwersen has divided his duties in the spring between coaching baseball and assisting in spring football practice. Now that Klores, a graduate student, has acquired sufficient coaching experience, he has been elevated to the head coaching assignment, Wilson pointed out.

Klores, who hails from West Allis, Wis., acquired his knowledge of baseball both as assistant coach and player. When still in high school he attracted the attention of major league scouts while playing first base on the Milwaukee C. Y. O. team which won the national championship in Wrigley field in 1934.

He was signed by the Cubs and went to Catalina Island for spring practice. He was farmed out to Peoria in the Three Eye league as an outfielder. Klores later played with Portsmouth, Va., in the Piedmont league, Montgomery, Ala., in the Southeastern league, and Milwaukee in the American association. He has been carrying a full course of study at Northwestern university, where he is enrolled in the college of liberal arts.

Dorothy Lenz models a yachting outfit selected by style creators of Chicago as the proper attire for yachtswomen for the summer of 1940. In addition to the boat display, recreation areas of Illinois and surrounding states offer interesting outdoor exhibits.

34 CUBS LISTED FOR FREE BOARD IN SPRING CAMP

Five of Them, However, Are Still Unsigned.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Thirty-four Cubs will enjoy free board and lodging at the Catalina Island training camp from Feb. 22 to March 13. That's the number on the official roster, which after weeks of preparation by Editor Robert C. Lewis, was published yesterday as a three colored job.

The thirty-four, however, doesn't mean that Manager Gabby Hartnett will have that many athletes, including himself, to watch. Some of the listed fellows, such as Hank Leiber, Augie Galan, Stan Hack, Clay Bryant, and Bill Rogell, are balking on salary and whether all of them will solve their problems in time to get in on all the free meals is questionable.

And three or four of the boys are merely being taken along for the ride because of Commissioner K. M. Landis' ruling that certain types of rookies can't be turned back without at least a semblance of a trial.

The Complete Roster.

Gabby's present squad, the battery portion of which will reach camp Feb. 22 followed by the others on Feb. 29, is made up of 16 pitchers, four catchers, eight infielders, and six outfielders. The complete roster is as follows:

Pitchers—Richard Bass, Clare Bertram, Julio Bonetti, Clay Bryant, Ray Campbell, Jerome Dean, Albert Epperly, Larry French, Bill Lee, Jake Mooty, Vern Olsen, Vance Page, Claude Passeau, Ken Raffensberger, Charles Root, and Julian Tubb.

Sox Release Two.

Vice President Harry Grabiner of the White Sox announced yesterday that two names had been chiseled off the club roster. Jess Dobernic, a pitcher who has had several spring trials, was optioned to Oklahoma City. He toiled at Shreveport last season. The other departure was Infielder James Decker, a Belleville, Ill., athlete who played ball at Oglethorpe university. He was optioned to the Sox farm at Waterloo, Ia.

Grabiner also revealed that six more members of James Dykes' baseball troupe had accepted terms. They are Joe Kuhel, Julius Solters, Ken Silvestri, Edgar Smith, Bob Kennedy and Joe Weeks, the latter a catcher from Tufts college.

Landis Plan Is Worthy Idea, A. A. Contends

Columbus, O., Feb. 3 (AP).—Directors of the American association definitely think something fine will come from Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis' recent recommendation that farm chains and player agreements between minor and major league teams be abandoned, George M. Trautman, A. A. president, said today. He canvassed directors of the league after receiving Landis' bulletin.

"There wasn't a single man who thought the plan wasn't worthy of consideration," Trautman said. "The consensus seemed to be that perhaps there was some good and some bad in the total idea and that it might be wise to appoint a committee from the majors and minors to sit with the commissioner to make a thoro study of the situation.

"All expressed their confidence in Landis personally and in what he is trying to do.

"Everybody in baseball realizes that some change from the present front office policy in regard to ownership of ball players is necessary. They also realize that any changes along this line are vital to the game.

"Baseball has come along for 100 years and steadily grown. Neither Landis nor anybody else in the game is knowingly going to hurt it. If mistakes are made, it will be because of errors in judgment or because of too hasty action, not from intention."

INTERNATIONAL SAYS 'NO'

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Interrupting a struggle over their 1940 schedule the club owners of the International league discussed proposals of Commissioner K. M. Landis for abolition of farm systems today and came out in flat opposition to the suggestions.

"At its meeting today the International league, with the fullest appreciation of the aims of the commissioner expressed in his plan under date of Jan. 25, is, however, of the opinion that the suggestions made therein are not generally practical from the standpoint of higher classification minor league clubs.

"While certain abuses in the present farm system operation may exist, the league feels that the remedy possibly can be worked out within the present successful structure of baseball—which has enabled the national association to increase its membership from 19 leagues in 1933 to a proposed 45 in 1940 and to give employment to more than 13,000 players in 1939 as against approximately 3,500 in 1933.

"This league always has operated in a manner which it felt was in the best interests of baseball and assures the commissioner of its coöperation and efforts in the future to that end."

The problem of the schedule was carried over into a second session tomorrow. The opening date of April 18 and closing Sept. 15 were adopted, allowing an additional week this year for the 154 games.

A Ski Meet, It Appears, Is the Sport That Wasn't There

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Wrestlers, pachyderm variety, are said to be the hardest workers in the world of sports. These mat experts with a few rehearsals in railroad club cars, display their artistry in as many as six widely scattered cities in one week. There are several other factions, however, which will bring up the tireless efforts of athletes in a few other branches of sport. But some one should dig into the snow drifts and discover the forgotten man—the ski reporter.

There are tales, usually told by veteran reporters in a smoke filled city room after the last edition has gone to bed, of the days when insurmountable odds faced them in covering the Johnstown flood, the San Francisco fire, and the Eastland disaster. But these assignments compare with covering a chess match after a young man has been to a ski tournament, assuming, of course, that the budding journalist is a lover of the great outdoors, such as the Wisconsin north woods in the summer and southern Florida in the winter.

No mother to guide him, and a long way from the office the ski meet reporter toils on.

Work Is Far from Done.

Bundled in the warmest woolens until he resembles a Swiss Alpine climber ready to yodel "Star Dust," the reporter believes half of his day's work is finished when he whoas his team of Alaskan huskies in the wilds of Fox River Grove, Ill. The reporter is about to cover the Norge ski tournament with the temperature lower than it is in Petsamo, Finland, at the crack of dawn.

His day, he is to learn, however, is like woman's work. It's never done. Fifteen thousand spectators have formed a horseshoe around the huge steel slide. The reporter jots down notes while trying to remember the name of a physician friend who treats frostbite. These notes, it is later discovered, mean nothing. For nearly four hours these 15,000 watch brave young men roar down the slide from the steel tower and soar into the air.

Contest Over Only in Name.

The contest has been completed and the half frozen spectators begin their long journey home. Who was the victor? It is the strangest occurrence in sports. The spectators and the reporters have watched an event for four hours and do not know the winner. The reporter is told the decision lies in the hands of the ski judges, whose point rating system is based on the length of the jump and the form displayed while in the frigid atmosphere.

A quick glance around the premises reveals the judges have vanished. It is then found that it would require S. S. Van Dine to discover their whereabouts. The reporter questions a few intimate friends of the judges, but they shrug their shoulders. They may be in a cozy igloo, the Carlsbad caverns, or an overheated supper club.

Throws It Into High.

The reporter then finds a few ice covered bones for his yelping hounds, cracks his whip, surveys the tundra, and begins his quest for the judges' secret hiding place. It is night and the temperature is dropping. The conscientious reporter is given a few clews by wayfarers, but fails to locate the judges' rendezvous. It is believed by this time the officials are in Siberia.

It is nearing midnight when the reporter mushes back into civilization. Fresh clews indicate the judges are in the vicinity. At last they are found in a warm clubroom, still debating over the figures, six hours after the completion of the tournament. The figures are released and the reporter heads for his office, muttering something about his fortunate brethren who have bowling tournaments, billiard meets, and basketball games on their winter schedule. These chums, members of the committee to welcome home the ski reporter, chant:

"Where have you been?"

A. B. C. ATTRACTS A RECORD ENTRY OF 6,000 TEAMS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3 (AP).—The 40th annual American Bowling congress tournament which will open here on March 7 has attracted a record-breaking entry of 6,000 teams, Frank G. Mitzel, Detroit A. B. C. Tournament company secretary, announced today. The prize list will total $240,000, also an all-time mark, Mitzel said.

The previous records of 4,957 teams and a prize fund of $199,158 were set two years ago at Chicago.

Also a record is the Detroit Bowling association's entry of 1,828 teams, 202 more than Chicago mustered in 1938.

The tournament will last for 61 days, closing on May 6, and will be the longest in A. B. C. history. Bowling will be continuous 12 hours daily on 40 alleys to be constructed in the Michigan State Fair Grounds coliseum.

This is the third time that Detroit has been host to the A. B. C. tournament, 401 teams having competed here in 1910 and 2,336 in 1932.

Mitzel estimated that 800 cities would be represented in this year's event. One team from Honolulu will travel 5,000 miles to participate.

Thirty Skeeter class ice yachts gathered yesterday afternoon at Williams Bay, Wis., for the opening of the first annual races of the International Skeeter association were greeted by a complete lack of wind. The regatta was postponed until today, when it will start at 9:30 a. m., an hour and a half ahead of the scheduled time, according to Chester Granath, commodore of the Skeeter Ice Yacht club, Lake Geneva.

Don Campbell sailed his Skeeter [E class] racer to first place in a preliminary race, followed by Jack Vilas Jr. and Charles Edwards. All three are Lake Geneva ice yachtsmen. The fleet includes boats sailed by Toronto, Canada; New Jersey, Detroit, Mich., and Chicagoland ice yachtsmen. Franz Koehler will be starter of the regatta today, and Mrs. Lucille Fitcharles will be scorer.

NURMI AND MAKI ARRIVE TO FIGHT FOR FINNS' CAUSE

young and in good physical shape. But many others were old and in terrible condition. It was a strange, mixed army."

"How do you account for the surprise showing made by the Finns thus far?"

"We owe it to sport. Most of the Finns are athletes. Their legs are good. Their wind is sound. Skiing, mountain climbing, track, and field sports make almost everyone in Finland rugged. The Finn acts deliberately and can think as an individual, the private as well as the officers."

"What did you serve in, mostly?"

"Were you wounded?"

"No. That was a false report when I developed rheumatism in one knee. The government needs money and I decided I could be of more use here in America raising funds than patroling the woods."

Has Army Outfit with Him.

Maki is 29 and married, with a 7 year old daughter. The family lives in Helsingfors. Maki is rather short, chunky, and pink-cheeked. He understands no English. He wore a white ski cap and civilian clothes and admitted bringing his army skis and the white parka worn by patrol scouts.

Maki in civilian life is a foreman in a government alcohol warehouse. Nurmi, 43 and a building contractor as well as proprietor of a haberdashery, is not in the army, but serves as air raid precaution leader. Nurmi forgot what little English he once knew. He is older, balder, and thinner than when last here.

The two famous Finns, officially welcomed by Finnish Consul General T. O. Vahervuori, headed a parade up Broadway to city hall and, altho coming from a country where the temperature is almost constantly below zero, they seemed uncomfortable in New York's damp cold.

Cheered at Garden.

A crowd of 16,000 at the Millrose games in Madison Square Garden tonight gave Nurmi and Maki a rousing reception. They stood together in the spotlight at the center of the arena floor as the Finnish national anthem was played.

According to present plans, Nurmi and Maki will make the first track appearance of their tour in March in Los Angeles' Olympic stadium. They took a bow at the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden tonight, will visit the White House on Monday, and then fly to California. Their tour as now arranged calls for races in 11 cities.

Nearly a quarter of million dollars is available to Northwestern students in the form of scholarships, tuition admissions and loans. Athletes last year participated in them for an amount of $31,273. The Western conference report on Northwestern student aid, the fourth of a series, follows:

Assistance amounting to $246,000 last year went to between 4,000 and 5,000 students on the Evanston campus, of whom 3,000 are undergraduate men and 463 are athletes, and compensated for the higher tuition rates at Northwestern, an endowed school.

Scholarships were held by 440 men and by 23 athletes, a proportion of less than half that prevailing among the entire body of undergraduates. The 23 athletes who did receive scholarships benefited to the extent of $5,525. Scholarships are administered by committees of the different colleges and by the university scholarship committee, of which Dr. Delton Howard is chairman.

Two Get Tuition Remissions.

Two athletes also received tuition remissions amounting to $575, qualifying for the rebate as dormitory counselors.

A major proportion of student aid at Northwestern comes in the form of loans from extensive funds for that use. They are awarded by Joseph Miller, director of student finance, on the basis of proved ability to carry scholastically the work of the university, and verification of need. Freshmen do not qualify. The loans are not for cash but are nonnegotiable applications on tuition and fees. They are for a period of six years. The average term before repayment, however, is two years.

Sixty-five Northwestern athletes received loans in 1939, amounting to $15,065.

An employment bureau is maintained by the university under Robert Day for the aid of all students seeking placement. Athletes at Northwestern last year earned $10,683.40 on campus jobs. The 114 athletes who held those positions included 44 on NYA and 66 program salesmen. Many held more than one position including several on campus maintenance.

Time Flies! Doc Crandall's Son a Baseball Manager

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—James M. Crandall, 27 years old, who played with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast league last year, has been appointed playing manager of Vancouver in the Western International league, replacing Johnny Kerr, manager for three years. Crandall is a pitcher and catcher. He is the son of Otis [Doc] Crandall, one-time major league pitcher.

ANGLERS OPEN THEIR BIG WEEK AT BOAT SHOW

Almost every type of pleasure boat used in the Chicagoland area, from small kayaks to 42-foot cruisers, is on display at the Chicago National Boat and Sports show which opened yesterday on Navy Pier. More than 150 boats are being exhibited. Hundreds inspected them during the first hours of the show.

The exhibits of live game also attracted many show visitors. The Illinois department of conservation display includes game birds, such as ringneck pheasants, Bob White quail, Chukar partridges, and Hungarian partridges, as well as Silver, Golden, Reeves, Lady Amherst, and other species of fancy pheasants which sport feathers of bright hues. Ducks, raccoons, foxes, opossums, skunks, weasels, minks, and muskrats also are exhibited at the show.

Hold Model Power Boat Races.

A special section of the pier has been set aside for model power boat races. A circular tank has been built near the center of the pier, and the tiny boats, powered with small gasoline motors, race around the course at speeds up to 40 miles per hour.

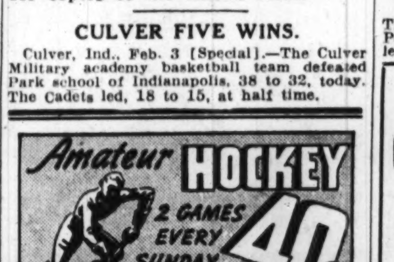
One of the main points of interest in the pier exhibition was the casting pool where more than 250 anglers will compete for trophies during the week. A large crowd watched the first round of competition last night, when Earl Garnsey made 92 for high score. Garnsey, a member of the Chicago Fly Casting club, was not closely pressed. His nearest competitor was Sterling Shoemaker of the Jackson Park Casting club, who scored 72. Eddie Yasulaitis, 17 year old member of the Chicago Fly Casting club, was third with 67.

Copies of Rules Available.

Anglers affiliated with Chicago and other nearby casting clubs will hold the platform again tonight and tomorrow night, and independent casters will compete Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights. Casters planning to compete during the week should write to Bob Becker, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, for copies of the official rules.

CULVER FIVE WINS.

Culver, Ind., Feb. 3 [Special].—The Culver Military academy basketball team defeated Park school of Indianapolis, 38 to 32, today. The Cadets led, 18 to 15, at half time.



Two Outdoor Bouts Planned for Joe Louis

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, will defend his title twice in New York this summer, if present plans of Promoter Mike Jacobs materialize.

The first outdoor battle will be held in June. The second is scheduled for September. The contender in each instance will be selected from the outstanding boxers at the time. This information came today from a source close to Promoter Jacobs after the departure of the 20th Century Sporting club executive for Florida by plane.

The announcement presaged four, and perhaps five, title defenses for Louis this year, three of them to be held indoors, including the battle with Arturo Godoy in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The opponents for Louis in the outdoor title bouts will be selected from among Tommy Farr, Great Britain's heavyweight champion; Lee Savold, Des Moines heavyweight; Tony Galneto, Orange, N. J., heavyweight who knocked Louis to the canvas last June in Philadelphia; Max Baer, former heavyweight title holder, and Valentin Campolo, South American invader who recently won his first American trial.

Jacobs closed two future Garden attractions before leaving for Florida. In addition to signing the Campolo-Buddy Baer battle, the promoter signed Lew Jenkins, Sweetwater, Tex., lightweight boxer, for a 15 round elimination contest in the Garden March 8. The victor will be considered in the selection of a lightweight championship foe for Lou Ambers, world title holder.

Leading fencers of the Chicago area will hold saber and epée team competition this afternoon in the Illinois division of the Amateur Fencers League of America. The meet will be held in the Lake Shore Athletic club, 257 East Chestnut street. There is no admission fee.

Five team entries are assured for the meet representing the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, Edgewater Fencing club, Hermanson Fencing academy, and the Lake Shore Athletic club.

APOSTOLI SAYS HE WILL RETURN TO FIGHT GAME

Down with Grippe Now, but He Won't Quit.

New York, Feb. 3 [Special].—Tho his face was battered and swollen and his body racked with grippe, Fred Apostoli lay on his bed in the Polyclinic hospital today and declared that he would make one more try to regain the ring glory that once was his. Apostoli, showing no signs of the brain concussion feared, had a fever of 101 degrees today but said he would leave the hospital tomorrow.

Freddy, who took a terrific beating from Melio Bettina before being stopped in 12 rounds in Madison Square Garden last night, was removed to the hospital after the bout. It was thought he had suffered a concussion but X-ray examination failed to reveal any internal head injury. Dr. John Hammond, Garden physician, ordered Apostoli to bed for a couple of days and revealed he had a heavy chest cold and a fever of 103 degrees when admitted to the hospital.

Tells How It Happened.

"I think I must have caught cold from Arturo Godoy with whom I worked at Mme. Bey's, Summit, N. J., camp all week," Apostoli began. "I felt fine all day Friday and in the dressing room before the fight. I was sure it was my night and that I would knock Bettina out.

"About the third round I started to feel very funny in the chest and had difficulty breathing. I didn't think much of it but Bettina's body punches hurt more than usual. By the seventh round I was nauseous and my chest pained something awful.

Manager Wants Him to Quit.

"I couldn't breathe at all thru the late rounds and had to pull out my mouthpiece. The doctor later said I had some bad congestion in the throat and chest and that it had been aggravated by the punches."

Manager White today still insisted Fred should retire from the ring but the fighter has his own ideas.

"I'm going to rest for six months," Fred explained, "and then have a couple of tuneups. Then I want one tough fight. I'll know after that one whether I'll continue fighting. I'm smart, too, and won't continue if I think I've lost my real pep. I'll quit if I don't convince myself that I can get back on top."

MacQUINN AND NALON TO RENEW RACING BATTLE

The point standing lead is likely to change hands tonight during the midget auto races in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, as Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, defending champion, continues his drive to take the top spot from Duke Nalon of Chicago. The time trials will start at 7 o'clock and the first race at 8:30.

HOLD WESTERN OPEN SKATING MEET TODAY

500 Expected to Race in Barrett Events.

The George Barrett A. C. closes the outdoor speed skating competition for the season this afternoon in Douglas park when it holds the Western open meet. In addition to the seven title events the Gold Cup relay at a mile will be held.

Frank M. Kalteux, director of the meet, announced last night that entries totaled 456, but because post entries will be accepted, 500 are expected to compete.

Silver Skates Winners Compete.

Tribune Silver Skates winners are listed among the entries, which also include stars from Michigan, Iowa, and Wisconsin. The opening gun for races will be fired at 1:30 p. m. A preliminary program will start at 1 o'clock when trophies won at the Tri-State meet in Elgin two weeks ago will be presented. A loud speaker system will keep the spectators informed of the progress of the races.

Among the individuals from out-of-town who have a good chance to carry off honors are: Gerry Guttormsen of Milwaukee, Peggy Barber and Harley Herbrichtsmeier of Kenosha, Francis Stark of Madison, Michigan's Joe McDonald, Douglas Lyttle and Gerald Jensch, and Iowa's Eddie Shimek, whose brother, George, won the 1940 Tribune Silver Skates; Leo Leonard, and Bill Armstrong.

Massin in Field.

Skaters representing Chicago and the Illinois Skating association include Armin Massin, 1939 Silver Skates champion, Lowell Miller, George Spalten and Steve Gadus. Among the women are Shirley Jameson, 1938 Silver Skates winner and 1940 Illinois state title holder; Elaine Bogda, Genevieve Sweirkos, 1940 Silver Skates champion, and Anna Vitaska, city champion.

Spartas Meet Seconds Today in Soccer Play

BY OFFSIDE.

It will be the Spartas against the Spartas in soccer's only game this afternoon. The Spartas, semi-finalists in the western division competition for the national cup, will meet the Sparta seconds in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

The Sparta seconds last week looked over the first team, picked up two new players, and then decided to challenge the club which has reached the semi-final round for the national title. The two new members of the reserve team, who believe they can give the first string squad a good workout, are Harry Evans and Steve Daniels.

Evans and Daniels formerly played with the Slovaks. The Spartas will use their regular starting team against the seconds. This group includes Jimmy Wolf, who has fully recovered from a leg injury.

Announcement was made yesterday that the American Nickeloids of Dalzell have drawn the Chrysler Motors of Detroit in the national amateur cup competition. The game will be played in Detroit on Feb. 18.

A day before the contest the National Soccer association will step into Chicago and attempt to clarify the state's complicated affairs. George Healy of Detroit, representing the national group; the present soccer commission, and the members of the Illinois state association will attend the meeting in the Sherman hotel.

Trial Period Voted.

The present commission has been in office for a year, a trial period voted upon by the two groups. A week before the term expired, however, the present commission decided to extend its term for another year. The validity of this vote was challenged, the other association charging that it is necessary to have a two-thirds majority to pass a rule at a regular meeting.

LEADING TEAMS MEET TODAY IN ARENA HOCKEY

Today's amateur hockey double-header in the Chicago Arena sends the four top teams into action. Pepsi-Cola and the Chicago Hornets renew their duel for second place in the opener at 2:15 p. m. The Muskegon Sailors, league leaders, make their third appearance in Chicago to oppose C. Y. O. Shamrocks in the second game.

FREISINGER GAINS ON DEL LAMB FOR ICE SKATE TITLE

Horn, Beaver Dam, Wis., girl seeking both to retain her North American title and maintain an unbroken string of major victories this season, placed second in the only senior women's event of the day to increase her lead. Maddy, stumbling after leading for two laps in the half mile, recovered and overtook all of the field except Carmelita Landry of Fitchburg, Mass., to boost her point total to 80.

Competition for titles in other divisions was keen as 8,000 spectators looked on in the windswept, freezing second day of competition.

Bloomington Names Golden Gloves Team

In last night's finals three 1939 winners successfully defended their crowns—Kenneth Billingsley, Roberts heavyweight; Al Morrison, Mattoon lightweight, and Jack Whittinghill, Bloomington welterweight. Sam Ingrassia of Pekin regained the flyweight title he held two years ago without lifting a glove. All others defaulted to him.

One Favorite Beaten.

Whittinghill, who has won more Golden Gloves bouts in Chicago than any other Bloomington fighter, scored a clean-cut decision over John Sutton in one of the headline fights of the night.

Wins Without Fighting.

Schapmire dethroned Paul Hamilton of Henning, the defending champion, to win the open featherweight division. He dropped Hamilton for a count of nine in the third.

After winning his way to the finals with knockouts, Barnes took the middleweight belt without crawling through the ropes. Loren Hendryx, the other finalist, was still in a hospital recovering from his semifinal bout the previous night.

TWO TEAMS TIED IN 'A' SECTION OF SQUASH LEAGUE

The Dartmouth alumni and John Marshall squash clubs remained in a tie for first place in the "A" league of the Chicago District Squash Racquets association by winning yesterday. Each team won its sixth match in seven starts, with Dartmouth triumphing over Chicago Town and Tennis club, 3 to 2, and John Marshall trimming Chicago Dearborn, 4 to 1.

In another "A" match, the Chicago Athletic association defeated Lake Shore, 4 to 1. Alman's gymnasium continued to top the "B" league by beating Dartmouth alumni, 3 to 2, for its seventh straight. Other winners were University club over John Marshall, 4 to 1, and Chicago Dearborn turned back Lake Shore, 3 to 2.

KLUMPP MADE MANAGER.

McKeesport, Pa., Feb. 3 (AP).—Elmer Klumpp, a catcher with New Orleans of the Southern association in 1939, has been named manager of McKeesport of the Penn State association.

GOLDEN GLOVES OPEN TOMORROW ON WEST SIDE

will be given recognition instead of merely being grouped without significance.

Admission to the Coliseum Feb. 20 and 21 is $1.10. On the last night admission is $1.10 and $1.65. Tickets at this latter price will be reserved.

Mail orders now will be accepted for the Tournament of Champions and for the finals March 6. Scale of prices for the finals is 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30. Mail your check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower.

Prices for the first two evenings of the Tournament of Champions [Feb. 26 and 27] are: 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10. For the final night, when 128 boxers in all eight weight classes will fight the third round of the tournament and the winners then engage in the quarter-finals, a total of 96 fights, the price range will be 75 cents, $1.10, and $1.65. Tickets may be reserved for all three nights.

Sioux City Picks Them Early.

Sioux City, Ia., named its champions last December in the annual charity tournament sponsored by the Sioux City Journal. Last Thursday the Richmond, Ind., Palladium-Item became the second team to enter the Tournament of Champions. The Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph held their finals Friday night. Tomorrow the Vincennes, Ind., Sun-Commercial concludes its tournament; the Omaha, Neb., World-Herald and the Quincy, Ill., Herald Whig finish Thursday, and on Friday the Kansas City Star will hold its finals in the municipal auditorium. Thirteen thousand will watch the boxers from three states in their final matches.

Two of the largest tournaments remain, among others. The state championships sponsored by the Fort Worth, Tex., Star, will be held Feb. 15, 16, 17, and 19. Eight sectional teams are entered. The Southern tournament, sponsored by the Nashville Tennessean, which includes eight teams from Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama, will be held Feb. 13, 14, and 15.

FOUR B'NAI B'RITH LEAGUE GAMES SET FOR TODAY

Four B'nai B'rith Lodge Basketball league games will be played this afternoon in the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, 1532 South Hamlin avenue.

Beginning at 12:30 o'clock, the undefeated Haym Salomon quintet will meet the Benjamin Cardozo lodge, followed by Albany Park and Austin, Abram Sachar lodge against South Side, and Lakeview against Garfield Park.

Lakeview lodge, defending champion, will be making its third attempt for its first victory against the Garfield Park team. Player-Coach Saul Farber has reinforced the Lakeview team with Bernie Davis and Dan Riffkind.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Loyola and De Paul, basketball neighbors all of this season in the Coliseum series of double headers, will cease speaking to each other after tomorrow night's dual program against Manhattan college and Louisiana State in the Wabash avenue building. Reason for this coolness will be the fourth annual battle between the two schools for the Catholic Youth Organization's fund for underprivileged children. The Ramblers and Blue Deamons will renew their feud in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Until March 29, 1937, when they were brought together by the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil for the C. Y. O. fund, the two north side universities had met only twice before. That was in a pair of games in 1931, each winning one.

Battle Is Thrilling.

The 1937 game was a post season argument and proved to be one of the most thrilling struggles in Chicago basketball history. It went to two overtime periods before Loyola won, 46 to 43. De Paul at one time held a 20 to 6 advantage, but in the closing minutes of the game Loyola tied the score at 38 to 38, and the regulation conclusion found them still deadlocked at 40 to 40. The end of the first overtime saw a 42 to 42 draw. The Demons went ahead in the second extra session on Willie Phillips' free throw, but a basket and two free throws gave the Ramblers their eventual margin.

In the 1938 game, which Loyola also won, 53 to 40, Wibs Kautz and Mike Novak scored 37 of the victors' points. The Ramblers had to fight all the way, leading only 36 to 34 with six minutes to go. Last year, before a crowd of 12,000, Loyola made it three in a row, but only after thirty-two fouls were called, sixteen on each team. Five players were ejected on personals. Loyola won 36 to 26, but held only an 18-14 edge after the first half, during which they trailed twice.

Loyola Hopes to Break Streak.

Before they get down to the business of facing each other, however, the Demons and the Ramblers have the problem of tomorrow night in the Coliseum. Loyola will attempt to break its unseemly losing streak against the Manhattan Jaspers, veterans of New York double headers, who have won 130 games and lost 57 under the direction of Neil Cohalan, now coaching his alma mater's quintet. De Paul, after losing to Indiana last night will seek to come bac kagainst Louisiana State.

RECORD ENTRY EXPECTED FOR STATE PIN MEET

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

A record entry, exceeding last year's total of 1,305 teams, 1,127 doubles combination, and 2,243 individuals, is expected in the Illinois Bowling association 43d tournament which opens April 19 in Schueneman-Flynn's Portage Park Recreation, 4421 Milwaukee avenue, and continues indefinitely. The tournament is the oldest in big time meets. Albert Sindelar, secretary of the association, will establish headquarters next week at Bensinger's, 29 West Randolph street, where entries will be accepted up to and including March 30. Entry blanks will be mailed out this week. The prize list is expected to exceed last year's $18,494 total and will include $100 per squad for each squad of 16 booster teams. The booster fives, teams with averages of 875 or less, also will be eligible to cash in on the regular prizes. A total of 1,850 prizes will be distributed, including 10 for each booster squad.

Defending champions are the Mineralites of the Windy City and Randolph leagues, with 3,105 rolled at Bensinger's last year; Stan Kosobucki and Jim Veverka of Cicero, with 1,326 in the doubles; N. Wagner of Chicago, with 705 in the singles, and Joe Russell, a member of the Mineralites, with 2,046 in the all-events.

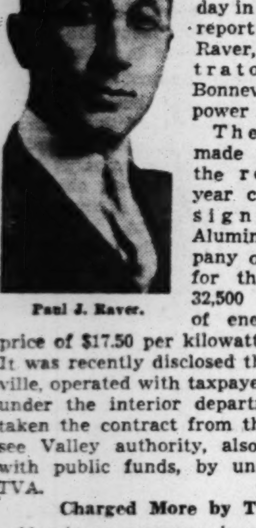
LARGER POWER SALE IS PLANNED BY GOVERNMENT

Northwest Project Outbids TVA.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—Plans for expanding the sale of government produced electric power to private industry in the Pacific northwest were disclosed today in the annual report of Paul J. Raver, administrator of the Bonneville, Ore., power project.



Paul J. Raver.

The report made much of the recent 20 year contract signed with Aluminum Company of America for the sale of 32,500 kilowatts of energy at a price of $17.50 per kilowatt per year. It was recently disclosed that Bonneville, operated with taxpayers' money, under the interior department, had taken the contract from the Tennessee Valley authority, also operated with public funds, by undercutting TVA.

Charged More by TVA.

Aluminum company is one of the TVA's best customers; in fact, one of four big wealthy industrial companies which have bought up more than half of the power produced by the 535 million dollar TVA projects. But in its contract with Aluminum company TVA charged $24 per kilowatt per year. Both projects were able to underbid private power companies because of tax advantages of the federal organizations.

Raver said that this Aluminum company contract "marks the beginning of industrial expansion based on Bonneville power."

"The growing scarcity of hydro sites elsewhere in the nation," he asserted, "is stimulating much interest in the federal program on the Columbia river on the part of established and new electro-metallurgical and electro-chemical industries.

Reports Many Inquiries.

"More than 50 inquiries have been received from firms or individuals interested in utilizing Bonneville power in manufacturing operations in the Pacific northwest. While most of these inquiries, which cover such fields as electro-metallurgical, electro-chemical, and allied operations, are not likely prospects for immediate deliveries of power, negotiations are being actively conducted with a number of those industries having aggregate demands approaching 100,000 kilowatts."

The report said that the Bonneville power administration had received inquiries and signed applications for power from 123 other agencies, with estimated aggregate preliminary demands of more than 600,000 kilowatts of firm power.

Not Ready for Delivery.

"Many of these applicants, such as representatives or sponsors of public utility districts who have applied for approximately 420,000 kilowatts of firm power, are not ready for delivery of power in the immediate future," the report said. "However, applications from municipally owned electric systems, rural electrification cooperatives, and privately owned utilities, totaling over 65,000 kilowatts of firm power, contemplate deliveries upon completion of the necessary Bonneville transmission facilities."

The interior department did not release the entire report or any mention of earnings. It merely released excerpts from the report, explaining that it will take another month for preparation of the printed document.

The release did say that by the close of the calendar year 1939 two municipal systems, Cascade Locks and Forest Grove, Ore., were being served with Bonneville power. It also said that power contracts have been signed for the sale of more than 57,000 kilowatts of firm power [delivered the year around] and other contracts under negotiation will bring commitments in firm power to more than 100,000 kilowatts.

Revenue Near Million.

It estimated revenue of "nearly $1,000,000 for the fiscal year 1940, and $2,200,000 revenue for the fiscal year 1941" from those contracts. The aluminum company contract will bring the government 10 million dollars over a 20 year period, the report said. The government has already poured 75 million dollars into the project. Altho in a position to generate power since the summer of 1938, by the interior department's own admission, only two communities were served by the end of 1939. The first transmission line wa snot completed until Dec. 1, 1939.

A supersales campaign nevertheless was undertaken last summer to line up customers. The object of this vast undertaking, according to Raver's report, is that "benefits of low cost federal hydropower should be spread over the widest possible area, limited only by the economics of transmission line construction and operation."

Eastern Air Lines Reports Large Increase in Traffic

Eastern Air Lines, Inc., flew more than 11,000,000 revenue passenger miles in January, an increase of 49 per cent over January, 1939, Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president, said yesterday. An estimated 21,000 revenue passengers were carried last month, 50 per cent more than a year earlier.

Federal Rule Over Security Mart Extended

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

The federal government's police powers over securities markets was extended further yesterday when the provisions of the federal trust indenture act became effective. The act, passed by congress last July, provides for supervision by the Securities and Exchange commission of all trust indentures established for new issues of corporate debt securities of more than $1,000,000.

[A trust indenture is the legal instrument which defines the duties of the debtor corporation to its bondholders, the duties and powers of the trustee who holds title to the property pledged as security for the loan, and the rights of the bondholders. The trustee's function is to protect the rights of the bondholders.]

SEC Conducts Investigation.

The present act was adopted after the SEC completed a long investigation of existing trust indentures. The need for such legislation, congressional sponsors said, was due to the following practices disclosed by the SEC inquiry:

1. Investors have no control over the preparation of the indenture, which is written in advance by the issuing corporation and the underwriter of the loan. Therefore, investors cannot include in the indenture various protective features which would safeguard their interests.

2. Bondholders cannot protect themselves adequately thru common action because they are widely dispersed, may lack the necessary funds, or may not be able to communicate with each other because they do not have a list of the bondholders' names. Therefore, the trustee must be capable financially and thru his indenture powers to act for the bondholders.

Trustees' Interests Limited.

3. Sometimes the trustee may have, or acquire later, interests which conflict with those of the bondholders. The indenture should provide that the trustee will rid himself of such contrary interests or resign.

4. Indentures may not require the trustee or corporation to furnish complete financial information to the bondholders.

The law was formulated to require the trustee to assume guardianship of the bondholders' interests. To enforce this, the act requires that indentures of new issues must be qualified with the SEC before the bonds are distributed and must require the performance of standard duties by the debtor corporation and the trustee.

The registration statement for new or refunding debt securities must include information about the eligibility of the proposed trustee and an analysis of the indenture provisions covering defaults, use of proceeds, release of pledged property, and the performance of the indenture covenants.

Trustees More Responsible.

Trust companies and the trust departments of banks are thus placed in more responsible positions when assuming title to pledged property under an indenture. Trustees' duties in the past have been usually nominal as long as the debtor corporations met interest, principal, and sinking fund payments, bond experts have indicated. Under the new law this passive rôle is considered inadequate.

The trustee under the standards of the trust indenture act is required to issue periodic reports to bondholders regarding his continued eligibility. He will have to inform them of loans he makes to the debtor corporation as an individual creditor, the condition of the property he holds in trust, and give notice within 90 days of all defaults on interest and principal payments.

Numerous Reports Required.

The debtor corporation will be required to furnish the trustee with numerous reports demonstrating that it has complied with the covenants of the trust indenture covering its bonds. Affidavits and certificates concerning the property pledged as security and the application of proceeds also will have to be furnished by the corporation.

A current list of bondholders must be maintained by the trustee and made available upon the request of three bondholders.

The law not only compels the trustee to make public any loans he may advance to the corporation but also share with the bondholders any cash or property he may receive from the company in the four months preceding a default or after a default occurs.

[Banks or trust companies often lend money to corporations for whom they are acting as trustees.]

Conflicting Interests Banned.

Any direct or indirect affiliation with the debtor corporation or the underwriters of a proposed bond issue bars a bank or trust company from acting as trustee. To remain eligible after being approved, the trustee must avoid acquiring any interests which may be construed as in conflict with those of the bondholders.

The responsibility of the trustee reaches its most active expression under the law when he learns or believes that a default may occur. He cannot wait until bondholders request him to take action, but he is required by the law to initiate proceedings to protect the bondholders. He must exercise the same care and judgment, according to the law, that a "prudent man" would use in guarding his personal rights.

Group Will Make Study of Administrative Law

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The United States Chamber of Commerce announced today that it had authorized a special committee to study the operation of administrative law. The chamber said that the inquiry would include the "rules, procedure, findings, decisions, and orders by administrative agencies of the federal government and the possibility of their review by the courts."

ANALYSIS SHOWS WHAT BIG BANKS EARNED IN 1939

Ratio of Profits to Deposits Varies.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The first complete picture of the comparative earning record of the country's big banks in 1939 was furnished yesterday in an analysis of the year-end figures made public by the banks.

Earlier reports by the banks did not furnish a basis for comparison because of haphazard way in which such figures are given out. Some banks do not make any formal reports to stockholders on earnings. Only a few of the big banks make any pretense of issuing formal income statements comparable to those furnished by industrial corporations. The definition of net earnings varies with different banks.

Compare Earnings of 15 Banks.

A simple formula was used in arriving at net earnings in each case. For purposes of comparison net earnings were considered to be the amount of total income that remained after all expenses, appropriations for reserves and other adjustments were provided for.

Net earnings were calculated by adding dividends paid to stockholders to the amount of the increases, if any, reported in capital, surplus, and undivided profits accounts in the year-end balance sheet. Funds appropriated for reserves were not considered part of net earnings. Thus the earnings of each bank were placed as nearly as possible on the same basis.

Wide Variations Shown.

The study brought out some interesting facts. It showed that the ranking of the banks in total deposits and net earnings varies widely. It brought out, for instance, that two banks had larger net earnings in 1939 than the Chase National Bank of New York, which is the largest bank in the United States. The two banks topping the Chase in earnings were the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust of Chicago and the National City of New York.

The study also disclosed that the earning record of the First National Bank of New York was unusual. It ranks close to the bottom of the list of 15 in deposits and close to the top in earnings. The bank caters only to depositors carrying substantial accounts, being known chiefly as a corporation bank, and has few if any small accounts.

Profit Percentage High.

This situation enables the bank to keep its expenses relatively low and retain a relatively high percentage of its gross earnings as profit. Gross earnings of the First National of New York in 1939 totaled $15,275,798. On this amount the bank realized net earnings of $10,407,174. No other bank of its size in the United States was able to retain such a large proportion of its gross income as profit.

A striking comparison with the First of New York was furnished by the Bank of America [California], which handles thousands of small accounts as well as big ones, and operates more branches than any other bank in the country. The gross income of Bank of America was $71,913,017. Indicated net earnings were $12,387,000. The bank which is headed by A. P. Giannini, ranked fourth in total deposits among all banks and fifth in net earnings.

Only One Shows Deficit.

The Manufacturers' Trust company, New York, which ranks ninth in total deposits, was the only one of the 15 banks which had an indicated deficit for 1939. Its net deficit for the year, after all adjustments, was approximately $1,430,000, or 87 cents a share.

Before provision for reserves and charge-offs the bank had net earnings of $6,123,916, exclusive of $6,100,800 in net profit realized on the sale of securities. All of the security profits were used for reserves and other purposes.

Other adjustments absorbed the remaining net earnings and left a deficit, which was reflected in a decrease in undivided profits. Among the adjustments made was a charge-off of approximately $5,000,000 on German credits.

Statements More Informative.

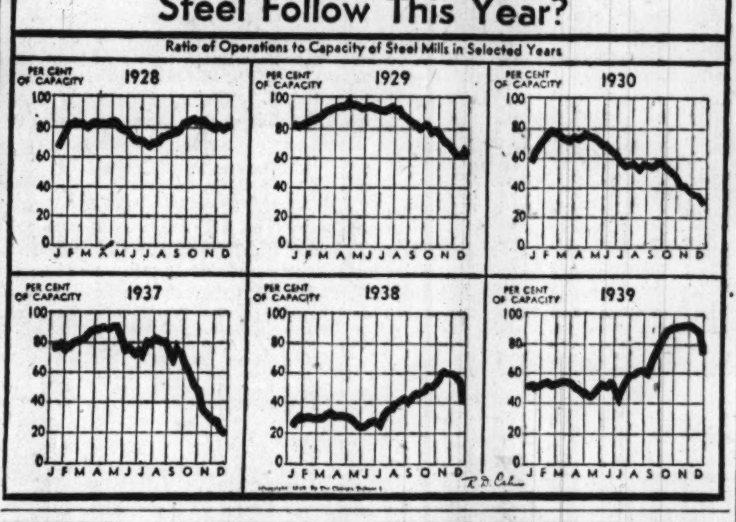
The 1939 reports of banks were, in the main, more informative than the statements issued in the preceding year. There has been a definite tendency among banks to make public more information on operating results.

None of the banks, however, makes public a complete income statement such as that made by many industrial corporations nor does any bank give more than a summary of the income data which they are required to file with the controler of the currency.

Sales at Gift Show Run 23 Pct. Above Year Ago

Sales at the gift show at the Merchandise Mart last week, the first half of the two weeks market, were 23 per cent above sales in the first half of the 1939 market, Percy Wilson, managing director of the mart, said yesterday. Volume of business done by exhibitors in the apparel show rose 17 per cent. Attendance at both markets is expected to set new records, aided partly by the Interstate Merchants council meeting which begins tomorrow.

Which of These Patterns Will Steel Follow This Year?



Loan Company Earns Less on More Business

Household Finance corporation, a leading small loan enterprise with headquarters in Chicago, did more business in 1939 than in 1938, but had smaller profits because of its policy of reducing interest rates to customers, B. E. Henderson, chairman and president, said yesterday in his annual report. The company made 839,322 loans totaling $140,494,413 last year, compared with 662,997 loans for $111,590,170 in 1938, the report disclosed.

B. E. Henderson.

Net income dipped to $6,045,016, from $6,160,912 in the preceding year. Earnings in 1939 were equal to $6.98 a common share, against $7.34 in 1938. In both years cash dividends of $5 a common share were paid.

Issues Complete Statement.

The statement to stockholders was one of the most complete of its kind issued by a corporation. Included was a summary of the company's earnings and dividend record for the period 1929-'39 and data on other phases of the business.

Discussing the rates of interest charged on loans to customers, Henderson said the average monthly rate at the end of last year was 2.36 per cent, compared with 2.51 per cent a year earlier.

A steady reduction in the company's interest rates was shown in a tabulation for each year-end since 1933. These average monthly rates at the end of each year were: 2.95 per cent for 1933, 2.73 per cent for 1934, 2.71 for 1935, 2.60 for 1936, and 2.52 for 1937.

Average Rate Lower.

Henderson said that the average maximum rate permitted by laws in states in which Household operates is about 2.80 per cent a month. He said Household is now making no loans at more than 2½ per cent a month. Borrowers, Henderson asserted, will save about $3,550,000 in 1940 compared with the maximum charge which could be made on the amount of customers' notes outstanding at the beginning of the year. The company's average loan last year was $167.

On Dec. 31, 1939, the company had $70,140,096 of customers' notes [gross amount] on its books, compared with $59,499,687 a year earlier.

Household has 279 small loan offices in 182 cities in the United States and Canada.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS FALL BUT EXCEED 1939

The dollar volume of checks cleared by Chicago banks last week was smaller than in the preceding week, but larger than in the corresponding 1939 week, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. Totals for the respective weeks were $303,000,000, $314,300,000, and $225,500,000.

Checks cleared during January by Chicago banks totaled $1,451,400,000, an increase of $244,600,000 over January, 1939. The association's report follows:

Monday	$ 42,500,000	$ 4,700,000

Procter & Gamble Boosts Wages 39 Pct. in 10 Years

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 3 (AP).—President Richard R. Deupree of the Procter & Gamble company told the employés' 105th profit sharing meeting today that during the last 10 years the soap company had increased wages 39 per cent and reduced the work hour week 28 per cent. Deupree estimated that more than 7,000 employés had received nearly $16,000,000 in dividends on common stock owned under the firm's profit sharing plan. Payments last year totaled $936,000.

Cook County Total for 30 Days Is 9,207.

Automobile sales in Cook county during January were the second largest for the month in history, it was indicated yesterday in a sales compilation made by the Bureau of Motor Advice. The total thru Jan. 30 was 9,207, compared with 7,010 in January, 1939, and 10,082 in December, 1939.

It is not believed that the number sold in the remaining one day will be much above 500. Final official figures will be available in a few days.

The Bureau of Motor Advice is a semiofficial agency which bases its compilation on the registrations of new cars with the secretary of state.

Record Set in 1937.

The largest sales total in history for a January was 13,017 in 1937. In January, 1929, the total was 6,674.

Chevrolet continued in first place last January with a total of 1,893 sales compared with 1,872 in December and 1,079 in January, 1939, when it was in second position.

Plymouth was in second position with a total of 1,300 and Ford was in third with a total of 1,079. The next in order among the first 10 were Buick, Pontiac, Dodge, Oldsmobile, De Soto, Packard, and Mercury.

Comparative Figures.

Chevrolet	1,893	1,872	1,079
Plymouth	1,300	885	1,130

CUDAHY NOTIFIES STOCKHOLDERS OF CAPITAL PLAN

Stockholders of the Cudahy Packing company tomorrow will receive formal notification of the company's proposal to write down the value of certain of its assets by about $8,400,000. The proposal will be voted on at a special meeting of stockholders March 6.

The write off which the management wishes to make includes a $7,000,000 adjustment of property values and related reserves, and the elimination from assets of $588,942 unamortized debt discount and expense, and a $750,000 unamortized advertising investment.

The adjustments would cause a deficit in the combined capital and earned surplus account of about $3,500,000 as of the beginning of the current fiscal year. To offset this deficit, the management proposes to write down the par value of the common stock from $50 to $30 a share, a reduction of $9,349,780. This would create a capital surplus of about $5,900,000.

Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the six-story store and office building at 125 South Wabash avenue owned by the estate of Martin A. Ryerson, it was reported yesterday. The prospective buyer is the 125 South Wabash corporation, a new concern, in which Earl T. Moseley, prominent loop garage owner, is said to have an interest. Tenants in the building have been notified to vacate by March 31.

It is understood the corporation plans to wreck the present structure and put up a new five-story parking garage. M. Louis Kroman is architect for the new building.

Federal Loss on Foreclosed Homes Rises to 78 Millions

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The Home Owners Loan corporation reported today that book losses on the sale of foreclosed homes had reached $78,000,000 and eventually might triple that figure.

BRITAIN FIGHTS TO GRAB LOST GERMAN TRADE

Maps Drive to Keep It from America.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A tightening of the burocratic control on the British economy and disclosures in the house of commons this week that the government is spending $200,000,000 yearly to keep down food prices and set up a "general staff" to take over the export trade caused hardly a ripple of outward excitement in business circles here.

Sir Andrew Duncan.

Under Sir Andrew Duncan, president of the Board of Trade, a new "export council" made up of business men, trades union leaders, and members of various government departments concerned with the economic warfare, is expected to get down immediately to organizing a big push to capture Germany's lost markets for Britain against competitors from America and other neutral countries.

Suppress Individuality.

The council's first task will be to apportion the raw material supplies and available labor among firms manufacturing exports. Individual efforts by exporters will be virtually suspended. For the duration of the war, at least, the government will take command. If necessary, factories and workshops which have catered to the domestic market will be made to change their system and produce goods for sale abroad. Every device will be employed by the government, according to political sources, to boost British commerce in the economic war now raging.

Concentration on the export business means that the home market will go short. But Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon announced this week that the government already has taken action to check the rising spiral of prices. Since the beginning of December, he stated, the food ministry has been losing an average of $4,000,000 weekly by refraining from increasing its selling price for food—chiefly bread, flour, meat, and milk.

Subsidization Checks Rise.

Subsidization, according to market interpreters, explains why the official price index for food showed no rise in December after jumping 19 points in the first three months of the war.

Simon declared that the policy of switching the increased costs from the consumer to the taxpayers represented the government's contribution to the avoidance of inflation in this country. At the same time he emphasized that the treasury could not undertake unlimited commitments in holding food prices down and reiterated the government's arguments against pay increases for workers and the policy of tying up wages with the cost of living.

The British government's latest experiments in economic control along totalitarian lines are being closely studied by financial observers here. The disparity between the increase in wholesale and retail prices since the outbreak of the war has been the subject of puzzled comment recently.

Wholesale prices, as measured by the Financial Times commodity index, show a wartime advance of nearly 24 per cent. The Board of Trade cost of living figures, on the other hand, record an increase of only 12 per cent.

The jump in wholesale prices is attributed mainly to war conditions, such as the devaluation of the pound, higher freights, and heavy war risk insurance on cargoes.

But it seems clear that retail prices are being based on an out of date level of values and do not reflect the full effect of the rise in prices for raw materials and commodities.

Whether the government succeeds in its efforts to peg prices and stave off inflation will be demonstrated as the existing stocks of manufactures and commodities, a large part of which still are prewar, become exhausted.

New England States Ask Southern Rate Rehearing

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—The New England governors' railroad freight rate committee today petitioned the interstate commerce commission for reopening and reconsideration of the commission's decision in the long-fought south to north rate case. The commission ordered reductions on a dozen commodities and adopted the principle that reasonably uniform rates should apply from producing sections to common markets. Various other northern interests, including the railroads, previouslsy had filed petitions asking the commission to reconsider its decision.

Court Blocks New Carving of Morrison Hotel

Further carving of the 42 story Morrison hotel was blocked yesterday when Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe issued an order directing that the trustees for the property pay past due taxes amounting to about $156,000. The judge directed that Thurlow G. Essington and James B. McCahey, the trustees, pay the taxes on the 450 room section at 71 to 79 West Madison street—the strategic section of the big hotel property.

A section of the hotel containing 450 rooms was sliced from the property in 1937 when it was leased by the Hotel Chicagoan. All connections with the Morrison hotel proper were bricked up.

Land Owners Threaten Sale.

The heirs of Jacob Rosenberg, who own the land under the original section, on Jan. 11 agreed to sell this unit to the Hotel Chicagoan for $675,000 in cash unless the taxes were paid by Feb. 16. Total back taxes on the property are about $600,000.

The Morrison hotel was built in four sections. After the 450 room original section was completed in 1911, a second section of 450 rooms was built a few years later at the southeast corner of Madison and Clark streets. This was followed in 1925 by the third section, which includes the 42 story tower, and contains 860 rooms. The fourth section, which was taken for the Hotel Chicagoan, was built in 1930-'31.

Strategic Value Considered.

Section No. 1 is the strategic part of the Morrison hotel. It contains the lobby, dining rooms, kitchen, heating plant, and other necessary services. It is operated by the Morrison Hotel corporation, of which McCahey, one of the trustees, is president. McCahey also is president of the Chicago board of education.

Had section No. 1 been sold it would handicap sections No. 3 and No. 4, it was said, because they lacked lobby, kitchen, and the other vital parts. Attorneys who took part in the hearing before Judge Igoe commented that transfer of section No. 1 to the Hotel Chicagoan would probably wipe out any remaining equity that the bondholders might have in the property.

Can Pay Taxes on Section.

The Morrison Hotel corporation has sufficient cash to pay the $156,000 taxes owed on the property covering 1934 to 1938, inclusive. For this reason it was deemed advisable to pay in full the taxes on the strategic section No. 1, instead of pro-rating the taxes among all three sections. This action, it was said, makes possible the continued operation of the three remaining sections as one unit.

The 29 page petition of the trustees asking Judge Igoe for permission to pay the $156,000 in taxes, which includes penalties, said this was "vitally essential" to the continued operation of the Morrison hotel. It asserted that it would cost about $300,000 to separate section No. 1 from sections No. 3 and No. 4.

McCahey said there has been no question about payment of rentals due the owners of the land for the various sections, but the hotel has not been able to pay the back taxes.

Attorney H. A. Will of Wilson & McIlvaine, representing the Hannah M. Spofford estate, owning the ground under section No. 2, said he would not object to the payment of taxes under the original section.

Attorney Lewis F. Jacobson, attorney for the Chicago Title and Trust company, representing some of the owners of the ground under section No. 4, contended that the tax payments should be pro rated. He was given several days in which to prepare a brief.

Originally $5,746,000 of first mortgage bonds were issued against the Morrison hotel, which was built by the late Harry C. Moir. A reorganization plan provided that the bondholders be given $2,873,100 of new 5½ per cent bonds and 90,000 shares of stock for their holdings.

NATION'S STEEL MILLS SLOW UP; ORDERS LACKING

Steel mills thruout the nation will trim their schedules again this week, mill executives said yesterday, as the industry awaits the materialization of more orders. Chicago's rate, they predicted, will slump heavily to 70 or 75 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity. A week ago mills were operating at 81.8 per cent.

Operations in the Pittsburgh area lso will continue the downward trend that began in November from a peak of 95 per cent. A preliminary canvass of the district indicates most mills will begin the week at 70 per cent of theoretical capacity.

New business dropped last week, steel executives said, and in most instances is only sufficient to support operations of approximately 40 per cent.

Chicago Rapid Transit Passenger Total Rises

The number of revenue passengers carried by the Chicago Rapid Transit company in January increased 653,991 over January, 1939, A. A. Sprague, trustee for the company, announced yesterday. Passengers numbered 13,147,855, against 12,493,864.

TRADE TRENDS HIGHLY MIXED IN LAST WEEK

Production Slumps in Some Lines.

Business activity showed mixed trends last week. Production of steel, power, and automobiles decreased, but 1939 earnings reports continued favorable. Substantial new orders for industry were reported, and car loadings and construction awards increased.

Retail trade moved to higher levels as the January cold wave abated. Volume was 5 to 9 per cent above a year ago, Dun and Bradstreet reported. In the preceding week it was 3 to 6 per cent ahead of 1939. Automobiles, household furnishings, and spring apparel lines received most of the benefit of the better buying, the review said. Wholesalers booked a good volume of business, chiefly on small orders.

Aircraft Orders Placed.

The aircraft industry was outstanding in news concerning equipment orders. Pan American Airways announced an order for three new supertransports was given to Lockheed Aircraft corporation. The four engined 300 mile an hour planes will compete on South American routes with Italian and German lines.

Lockheed also received an $18,000,000 British war order for 200 bombing planes, bringing Lockheed's total British bomber orders to 750. Britain also wanted steel, and ordered 50,000 tons from Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

aircraft, announced it would spend 30 million dollars on plant expansion and improvement. The program is believed to reflect in part the increased demand from aircraft manufacturers, whose backlogs of unfilled orders are already swollen.

Stock Trade Slumps.

But if industry was in a buying mood, the effect was not discernible within the halls of the world's largest stock and commodity exchanges. Trading on the New York Stock exchange was the lowest for many months. The exchange has been expressing official concern over a dribble of business it has lost to smaller outlying markets—business it would have ignored in 1929, when a membership sold for $625,000.

Last week a membership brought only $48,000, the lowest price in 22 years, and the "big board" tried to figure out how to balance its budget and build up a reserve fund.

January share turnover on the stock exchange was the smallest since 1922.

Even more significant, brokers said, was one of the most important Wall street mergers in a decade—the combination of E. A. Pierce & Co., the largest brokerage house, with the big underwriting concern of Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. The merger was said to indicate the trend of brokerage houses toward entering the underwriting and financing field due to the declining volume of commission business.

Seeks to Reduce Loss.

In Chicago the Board of Trade announced it would turn over the management of its 44 story $20,000,000 building to a new rental agency, Hogan & Farwell, Inc. In recent years exchange members have had to dig into their own pockets to pay

LONG STALEMATE IN STOCK MARKET FINALLY BROKEN

But Advances in Prices Are Fractional.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—With the aid of aircrafts and specialties the stock market today managed to break an eight session stalemate and end an apathetic trading week pointing slightly higher.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues ended 0.1 point higher for the day at 49.4. Since Jan. 24, the composite had daily registered a small loss or been unchanged. A year ago it stood at 50.4. On the week it was down 0.5 of a point.

Volume Continues Small.

Volume remained exceptionally light. Transfers totaled 291,040 shares against 317,280 last Saturday. The 6-day turnover of 2,913,715 shares was the lowest since the week of July 8. Last week's aggregate was 3,128,205 shares.

Gains generally were in minor fractions, altho there were a few advances up to about 2 points for particularly "thin" stocks. Losses also were plentiful.

Aviations still were buoyed by expectations of heavier foreign purchases of warplanes. Retaining modest gains were Douglas, Glenn Martin, Curtiss-Wright, Lockheed, and Wright Aeronautical.

New York Tractions Strong.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit and Brooklyn & Queens shares stepped into new high ground for 1939-'40 on the belief New York City's transportation unification plans were about to be completed. Cluett Peabody and Dresser Manufacturing also touched new tops for the last year.

General Motors and Chrysler were a shade improved, altho dwindling sales, due partly to severe weather conditions, were a retarding influence.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, and Republic were laggards. Falling consumer demand, a predicted drop in next week's mill operations and talk of price cutting were contributing factors.

MONEY, GOLD, AND SILVER

The British pound sterling yesterday extended its advance in terms of the United States dollar moving up ½ cent. The close in New York foreign exchange trading was $3.98½. Money dealers again attributed the increased value of sterling to belief that the slump of 2½ cents on Thursday was over done.

The French franc lost .00¼ cent, and the Belgian belga .02 cent. The Swiss franc and the Netherlands guilder were unchanged.

General rains and snow which fell over the larger part of the main winter wheat producing area in Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska overnight and continued yesterday started a selling movement on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prices were down more than 1 cent a bushel at one time. Short covering late in the session wiped out part of the loss and closing prices on wheat were ⅜ to ½ cent lower. Corn lost ⅛ to ¼ cent.

A weather bureau long range forecast indicated that the larger part of the winter wheat belt would receive additional moisture this week. No unusually low temperatures are anticipated. Trade reports indicated that 2 to 6 inches of snow fell yesterday in the southwest.

The moisture in the southwest, coming after a period of thawing weather, is expected to be highly beneficial. Reports were received from Texas indicating that the wheat crop is showing improvement.

Former Eases, but Latter Climbs Last Week.

Copper and silk were most active last week in an otherwise quiet commodity market. Copper prices continued their downward trend as refiners matched the 11⅜ cent a pound quotation previously made by customs smelters. Silk quotations, which began the week in a slump, soared later in the period.

Copper futures prices dropped Thursday following the reduction by refiners, altho a slight revival followed the next day on reports that foreign interests were inquiring for approximately 3,000 pounds of the metal. The price cut followed a series of reductions in refined and scrap copper during January which brought prices ⅞ cent a pound below the 12¼ cent level quoted since last October.

Fear Embargo Against Japan.

The chief factor contributing to the erratic movements of the silk market, traders said, was uncertainty regarding the possibility of an embargo on Japanese products following abrogation by the United States of the commercial treaty with Japan.

Lead futures began the week in a decline following a cut of ¼ cent in the price of the raw metal by leading smelting and refining companies. Previously the price had been boosted to 5.5 cents. The commodity followed an uneven course during the remainder of the week.

Sugar traders saw bearish implications in reports in the middle of the week that negotiations between Britain and Cuba for the sale of 100,000 tons of Cuban raw sugar had broken down. The price of the commodity dropped slightly during the week.

Yesterday's prices:

TRADE TREATIES HARMFUL, HOUSE GROUP IS ADVISED

Declared Blow to Both Farmers and Industry.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3 (AP).—A spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, Dr. John Lee Coulter, told the house ways and means committee today that the government's latest foreign trade figures prove the reciprocal trade treaty program to be harmful to both agriculture and industry.

Dr. John Lee Coulter.

"The Feb. 1 figures of the department of commerce show that agricultural imports have increased 36 per cent since 1934, when the trade treaty act was passed," Coulter said. "Thus, the effect of the trade agreements to the American farmer has been to add more than one-third to foreign products which now enter his domestic market.

Asserts Exports Decreased.

"But that is not all of the story. For the same five year period, 1934-'39 or the trade agreements period, the export of American farm produce has decreased 10.6 per cent. In other words, the trade agreements have failed to develop foreign markets as proponents of the act claim."

Coulter said that proponents of the act also had contended that exports of special commodities had benefited, but he declared that no statistics had been produced to support these claims.

Gives Another Argument.

Comparisons between 1934 and 1937, he said, actually show that "exports of these special items were greater to nontrade agreement countries which made no concessions to us; the increase in exports was greater to these countries; and the rate of increase was greater to these countries."

Coulter was a witness called on the last scheduled day of hearings held by the ways and means committee on extension of the act authorizing the President, thru the state department, to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries.

The first three articles of this series on how to prepare your income tax return were concerned with what to include in gross income. This article will deal with those items that should not be included in gross income. Taxpayers are required to state in schedule I of their returns all nontaxable income, except interest from government obligations reported in schedule B.

Some of the items which may be income in the ordinary sense, but which are not taxable under the revenue act, include:

1. Property or cash received thru a gift, devise, bequest, or inheritance. [Income received from such property after it is transferred is taxable, however.] The gift must not be in the form of compensation or it becomes taxable as income. Pensions granted in consideration of past services are treated as additional compensation, not gifts, and must be included as income.

Soldiers' Bonus.

2. Soldiers' bonuses, and pensions to war veterans, retired emergency officers, and soldiers' widows paid by the federal government.

3. Damages recovered for personal injuries, annulment, alienation of affection, breach of promise to marry, personal slander, or libel.

4. Compensation for personal injury or sickness and health or accident benefits.

5. Insurance proceeds when paid directly to beneficiary or trust. Any interest on the principal amount, however, is taxable.

6. The return of the original investment under an annuity contract. The law treats as income only that portion of the annual payment which is equal to 3 per cent interest on the total premiums paid in under the contract. The balance after deducting this interest from the annuity is considered return of capital invested. When this capital has been paid entirely to the annuitant, all further payments are classed as income.

7. Unemployment compensation and old age pensions paid under state laws or the social security act.

Alimony.

8. Alimony payments or allowances under separation agreements. Money which a wife receives for household duties in her own home are not taxable.

9. Property received in exchange or thru a reorganization in which the new property is substantially an extension of an old investment still unsold. Any money or property received in addition to the continuation of the old investment is taxable income.

10. Board and lodging furnished by an employer for his own convenience.

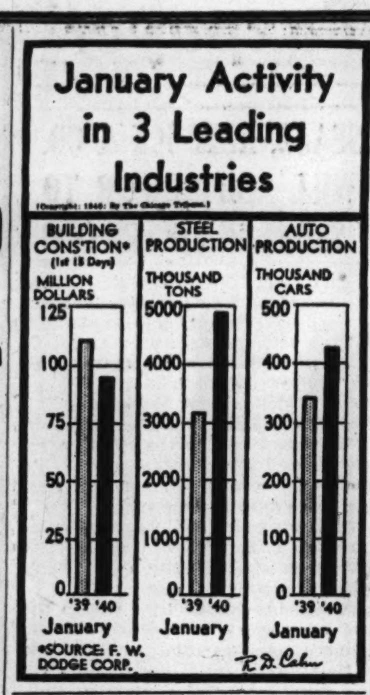
11. Compensation received from foreign sources by a citizen while away from the United States for more than 6 months in 1939.

12. Fire loss damages if used to replace property damaged.

[The fifth article will appear Thursday and will deal with deductions from gross income allowed by law.]

OIL STOCKS LOWER.

The bureau of mines reported that domestic and foreign crude petroleum stocks totaled 237,339,000 barrels at the close of the week ended Jan. 27. This was a decrease of 232,000 barrels from the previous week.



TRADE TRENDS HIGHLY MIXED IN LAST WEEK

obligations which would have been more than covered by rental revenues if more office space in the building were filled. It was reported only 71 per cent of the rentable space was occupied.

One of the brightest items in the last week's news concerned engineering construction awards in the week ended Feb. 1. They totaled $62,942,000, up more than $20,000,000 from the preceding week and slightly higher than a year earlier. However, January building permits in Chicago declined more than seasonally for the month to $868,399.

An increase in coal shipments was reflected in a contraseasonal rise in carloadings to 649,488 in the week ended Jan. 27. This was 10 per cent above a year ago, and slightly higher than in the preceding week.

Power Production Dips.

Power production in the week ended Jan. 27 registered a 0.2 per cent decline from the preceding week to 2,565,958,000 kilowatt hours, but held 11.9 per cent above 1939.

Also down was automobile production, estimated by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 101,240 units last week, against 106,400 in the preceding week and 74,410 a year ago. Output for January was estimated to have been the largest for the month in history, topping 465,000 units. But the large January output increased field stocks and will be reflected in lower February production schedules, it was reported.

In the steel industry heavy production in the final 1939 quarter and cold weather which restricted buying recently caused curtailment of production, Iron Age said. Output in the Chicago area last week fell to 81.8 per cent of theoretical capacity from 88.7 a month ago. A year earlier it was only 47.2 per cent. Above 60 per cent steel makes money, the trade says.

Profits Show Increase.

Altho output sagged last week, the booming production of late 1939 was reflected in larger profit reports by steel concerns. United States Steel corporation, No. 1 in size among steelmakers, reported the largest fourth quarter earnings since 1929.

Other reports on varied lines of business showed that Inland Steel company, Butler Brothers, United Fruit company, Safeway Stores, Inc., Illinois Bell Telephone company, and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. had larger earnings last year. Two farm implement makers, Deere & Co. and J. I. Case company, had smaller earnings in 1939. Railroads did better with class one carriers reporting net operating income for 1939 of $588,800,892, against $373,510,639 in 1938. Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the latest fiscal year established a new record.

The Chicago Association of Commerce reported that Chicago business activities in every major line except real estate transfers and the number of street car riders showed improvement last year. All Chicago urban transportation lines had increased passenger traffic in January.

Industry Index Slips.

According to the Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of industrial activity, heavy industry last week had slipped to the lowest point since early October. The composite index stood at 106.3, compared with 107.3 a week earlier and 89.1 a year ago. The index with its components follows:

STEEL MAKER'S 1939 BUSINESS YIELDS PROFIT

Youngstown Sheet Had Loss in 1938.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company yesterday reported 1939 net income was $5,004,484, equal to $2.49 a common share, after provision for preferred dividends. In 1938 the company had a net loss of $658,933.

The profit, however, did not equal earnings in 1936 and 1937, the best years since earnings began to decline in 1931. In 1936 net profit was $10,564,501, and in 1937 it was $12,190,649. Profit from operations was $14,904,537 after federal income taxes, but before provision for depletion of minerals and depreciation. The comparable 1938 figure was $9,883,394.

Cutler-Hammer, Inc., manufacturer of electrical control apparatus, reported 1939 net income of $814,700, or $1.23 a capital share, compared with a net loss of $307,438 in 1938.

Loan Firm Has Gain.

American Investment company of Illinois reported net income of $1,271,177, or $3 a common share, for the year ended Dec. 31. In the preceding year the company earned $820,706, or $1.99 a share. The company conducts a small loan business in New York and several midwestern states, including Illinois.

McWilliams Dredging company's net income for 1939 was estimated at about $79,000, or 41 cents a share. In 1938 the company had net income of $103,119, or 53 cents a share.

Transue & Williams Steel Forging corporation reported net income of $32,940 for 1939, equal to 24 cents a share. In 1938 the company reported net loss of $194,636.

HAMILTON HOTEL DEAL REPORTED NEAR AGREEMENT

Negotiations for purchase of the Hotel Hamilton, 20 South Dearborn street, from the heirs of former Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller of the United States Supreme court, are nearing completion, it was reported yesterday. The 16 story structure is being bought by an undisclosed group represented by Saul Nathan for approximately $100,000, subject to unpaid back taxes amounting to slightly more than $300,000.

Erected by the Hamilton club in 1913 at a cost of $850,000, the building became part of the Fuller estate in 1938 because of rent and tax defaults. The Fuller estate owned the land which had been leased to the hotel.

ROAD SHOW ADDS TO CATERPILLAR TRACTOR SALES

The Caterpillar Tractor company yesterday reported that its sales at the National Road show at the International amphitheater in Chicago topped $2,000,000 to set a new high since the company began to take part in the biennial event.

Charles Upham, director of the show, which is sponsored by the American Road Builders' association, reported total sales at the exhibits were above $10,000,000.

COTTON

Scattered selling of cotton futures by brokers who usually represent foreign traders and spot firms resulted in a slightly lower level of cotton prices yesterday. Trade was restricted by the usual Saturday holiday in Liverpool. New Orleans will be closed Monday for the Mardi Gras. Closing trades were 0.05 cent lower to 0.01 cent a pound higher.

There have been 825,000 bales of cotton withdrawn from the 1938 government loan since Aug. 1, it was reported by the CCC. This leaves about 3,300,000 bales still pledged for loans.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 0.06 cent lower, with New York, 10.81 cents; New Orleans, 10.55 cents; Houston, 10.40 cents, and Galveston at 10.37 cents a pound. Prices follow:

DU PONT DOESN'T SEEK EXPLOSIVES ORDERS ABROAD

Expands Production for United States.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—Lammot du Pont, president of the corporation formed in 1802 to make gunpowder, asserted today that E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. seek no new explosives business from the European war.

"Since 1936," he told company stockholders in his annual report, "efforts to sell military explosives in foreign countries have been entirely discontinued."

Production Is Larger.

"In recent months," he said, "as part of the general program of increased provision for the national defense, the company's production of military explosives for the United States government has been increased somewhat, altho resulting in no important expansion of the manufacturing capacity which remained after the drastic dismantlement and abandonment of plants of this character in 1919 following the world war.

"The company's services, in keeping with its policy over the years, will continue fully to be at the disposal of the United States government in carrying out any further measures of protection.

Risk Not Justified.

"With respect to orders from foreign governments, the company has no available plant facilities with which to execute such orders in any important volume. Volume production of military explosives for such purposes has not been, and is not now being, sought. The management feels it is not justified in risking the company's capital for such a purpose."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 3.—Only one section of Brazil seems to be drawing tangible and substantial profits from the war in Europe. Early predictions that the South American countries might not experience the trade boom they anticipated from the war appear borne out by the first five months of the conflict.

While Brazil's central states have seen their exports dropping in tonnage and value, the seaport state of Rio Grande do Sul has been sending large shipments of foodstuffs to Britain, France and European neutrals.

For the first time in its history the state has seen 6,000 canned hams loaded in one shipment for Great Britain at a price slightly under the one prevailing in other competitive markets. In addition, Britain also has purchased much fresh pork.

Brazilian business men believe the country stands a good chance of conquering the American hides market because of the high quality of hides shipped from here.

BONDS FLOUNDER WITHOUT TREND IN SLOW MARKET

New York, Feb. 3 (AP).—In the quietest Saturday since Jan. 13 the bond market today floundered without trend. Volume only was $2,720,000.

The foreign dollar division was a little livelier than usual with mixed results. Italy 7s and Japan 6½s rose fractions at 70½ and 82½, respectively, and Norway 4s and Rome 6½s were weak.

United States government obligations were quiet and steady, ranging between 9-32 higher and 3-32 lower.

In the corporate division there was a little flurry early when Utilities Power and Light 5s of '59 dropped more than 3 points on news of plans to sell Indianapolis Power and Light company, a subsidiary, but the issue closed at 91½, down 1⅝.

Savings and Loan Firm's Share Investments Rise

Ben F. Bohac, secretary treasurer of the Talman Federal Savings and Loan association, reported yesterday a net increase of $356,000 in share investment accounts in January, bringing the total for the association to $4,456,000.

CORN LOAN SEEN AS BEST CHANCE FOR CROP PROFIT

Returns from Selling or Feeding Small.

The middle western corn farmer today has three choices when he decides how to dispose of his corn. He can sell it at market, seal it under a government loan, or feed it to his hogs. None of these, under present conditions, promises an excessive profit, grain men and live stock traders said yesterday.

Corn is cheap and hogs are cheap. Returns from the sale of either promise to be about the same. The government loan of 57 cents a bushel, however, offers a slightly better return from sealing.

The trouble started in 1938 when hogs were high and corn was relatively cheap. The farmer could make more money by feeding hogs than by selling corn, so pig production started upward. Last year it reached 84,302,000 head, the largest on record.

Pork production climbed. Last year it is estimated to have topped the 1938 total of 7,564,000,000 pounds by a billion pounds. Prices are about the lowest in six years.

Consumption kept pace with increased pork output, however, and this winter it is believed to have been the largest on record, altho figures are not yet available.

the National Live Stock and Meat board, an organization sponsored by live stock producers, commission men, meat packers, and meat retailers. Thruout the country chain stores, department stores, and other retailers have featured pork products. The board hopes to build up support for a national campaign of paid advertising.

But the nation still has more pork than it can consume, despite the increase in consumer buying. And the farmer still has a difficult choice.

Large acquisitions of corn by the government has caused many farmers to believe they can earn more by sealing their corn for loans, grain men say.

Reduced by Expenses.

However, 3 or 4 cents must be deducted from the 57 loan for expenses. This brings the return on loan corn down close to the level of the return on corn sold in the market. No. 2 yellow in Chicago is now bringing about 57 cents a bushel, but this means a lower price on the farm.

Hogs, the farmer's third choice, are selling at an average price of slightly more than $5 a hundred pounds in Chicago, about the lowest in six years. The profit possibility in feeding corn to hogs is usually expressed by the corn-hog ratio, which is about 9 to 1 at present.

This means that the value of 9 bushels of No. 3 yellow corn at Chicago equals the average price per 100 pounds of hogs at Chicago. The current ratio is the poorest since the summer of 1937, when corn prices were high.

Ratio Takes Big Drop.

In general, the higher the ratio the more profitable it is to feed corn to hogs instead of sell it. If corn is cheap and hogs are expensive, the farmer makes more money by feeding his corn. If the reverse is true he makes more money by selling corn.

A year ago, when production of the record 1939 pig crop was beginning, the ratio was 15-6. The live stock trade and the department of agriculture warned farmers that the prospective 20 per cent increase in pig output would demoralize hog markets. But the farmer saw money in hogs, so he produced them.

Early in November the ratio had skidded to 13.7 between that time and Christmas the ratio took its sharpest drop in 30 years—and the profit went out of hogs to a large extent. By Christmas the ratio was 9-6.

HOGS HOLD AT LOW LEVEL

Hog prices on the Chicago market last week hovered only slightly above the lowest level in about six years. The week's average a. $5.25 was 5 cents above the preceding week, but only 10 cents above the winter's low week. The price was $7.65 a year ago and $8.20 two years ago.

Underweights finished the week 10 to 25 cents lower than the close of the preceding week, while pigs showed a loss of 50 to 60 cents. Other hogs closed 10 cents lower to 10 cents higher.

A severe break hit the market for cattle last week. Steers, yearlings, cows, and heifers fell 25 to 50 cents. Calves ruled weak to 50 cents lower. Stockers and feeders finished steady to 25 cents lower. The six day steer average at $9.25, off 20 cents, was lowest since the middle of December. The average a year ago was $10.45.

Lambs recovered from an earlier slump and finished steady to 15 cents higher. However, a large share of the supply sold at the earlier decline, so that the week's average of $9.10 showed a loss of 15 cents.

Canadian Rail's January Gross Income Increases

Canadian National Railways reported January gross income of $17,601,735, against $13,495,005 in January, 1939, a Dow-Jones dispatch said yesterday.

Randolph and Wabash Landmark to Be Replaced With "Taxpayer"

RISING TAXES ONE REASON FOR WRECKING IT

New Unit May Have Tunnel to Field's Store.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Rising taxes and old age are pushing another loop landmark into the hands of the wreckers. The old time five story Atlas block, at the northwest corner of Randolph and Wabash, built shortly after the great Chicago fire, is to be torn down. According to C. J. Donnelly, general agent of the properties of the Leander J. McCormick estate, owner of this corner, it was decided that wrecking would be the best solution to the tax problem.

In this instance, however, the owners will not improve the property. Instead, the corner has been leased to the Chicago Service Parking company, which will wreck the old building and erect a new two story taxpayer, to contain four levels for parking—basement, most of the first floor, all of the second floor, and the roof.

It will have foundations capable of carrying four more stories if business warrants, according to Thomas R. Shaver, structural engineer, who designed the building.

It may also have a tunnel connecting it with the Marshall Field & Co. store on the opposite side of Randolph street. This would be for the convenience of shoppers who park their cars in the new garage.

Headed by a Woman.

The Chicago Service Parking company, of which Joseph Berger is Chicago manager and attorney, is a subsidiary of Service Parking Grounds, Inc., of Detroit. This is a corporation operating open air and closed garage accommodations for about 21,000 cars in Detroit, Boston, Pittsburgh, Washington, Toledo, and Chicago.

It is operated by a woman—Mrs. Dorothy Turkel, daughter of the late Max Goldberg, who started in business 26 years ago and who, it is claimed, was this country's pioneer in the open air parking business. Mrs. Turkel, who is the wife of a well known Detroit physician, Dr. Henry Turkel, is a graduate attorney from the University of Michigan. She lives in Detroit.

Former Chicagoan Is Manager.

Altho Mrs. Turkel is president, John E. Forwey of Detroit, vice president and general manager, is the active operating executive. He is a former Chicagoan and was an industrial builder. He was at one time with the George Jackson company, which built the system of freight tunnels under downtown Chicago.

According to Berger, the chief executive of the Chicago subsidiary of the big parking station chain, the new two story taxpayer will cost about $200,000. Together with the present open air parking lot just north of the Atlas block [on land once occupied by a section of the Atlas block torn down a few years ago] the Chicago Service Parking company will have accommodations for about 425 cars at one time. The concern has five other Chicago parking stations.

Negotiating with Restaurant.

Berger said his company is negotiating with a large eastern restaurant concern, with units in Philadelphia, New York, Cleveland, and Detroit, to lease the first floor corner space in the new taxpayer. West of the Randolph street entrance to the garage space there will be two other shops. The balance of the building will be used for cars.

The lease between the McCormick estate and the Chicago Service Parking company is for 15 years on a minimum guarantee and percentage of profits basis. It has a renewal clause, so that it can be converted into a long term lease.

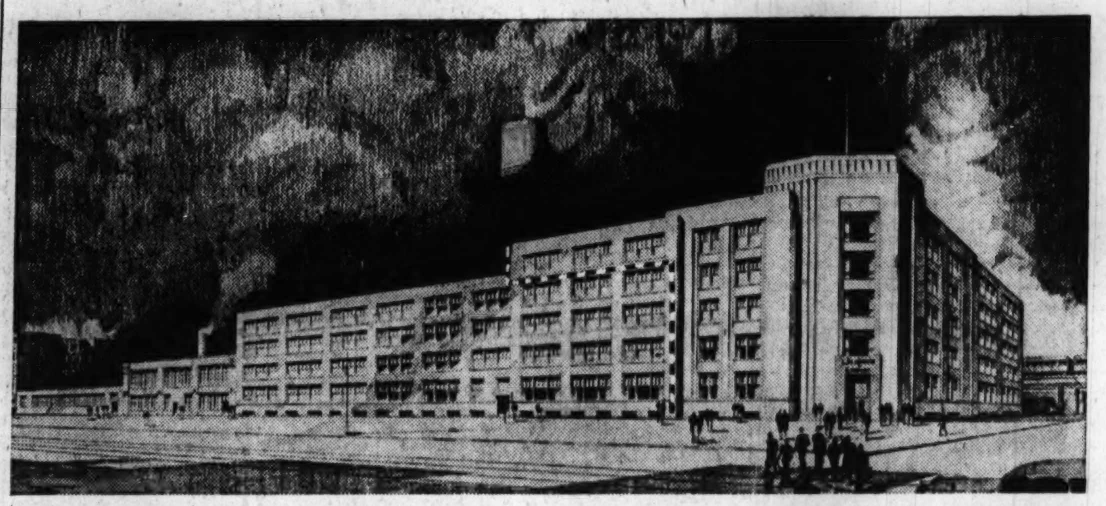
Tenants in the Atlas block have received notice to vacate by May 1, when wrecking will begin.

Thomas Maddock was attorney for the McCormick estate in the lease negotiations. Berger represented the parking concern.

SOUTH LA SALLE STREET LEASE.

The Pacific Mutual Life insurance company has leased space in the Utilities building, 327 South La Salle street, for the western and general offices of its railroad department.

Enlarge South Side Plant



A. Epstein, structural engineer, designed a five story addition (shown on the right in the above picture) to the plant of A. Brandwein & Co., 2349 South State street, mattress makers. A fifth story also will be added to the present four story plant. The five story unit will be at the northeast corner of State and 24th streets.

Taxpayer to Replace Atlas Block

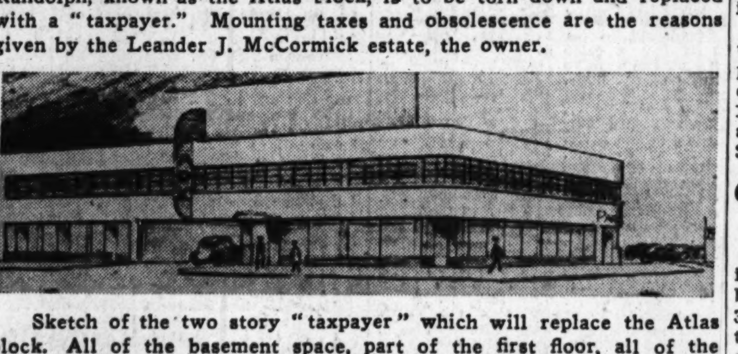
The five story building, at the northwest corner of Wabash and Randolph, known as the Atlas block, is to be torn down and replaced with a "taxpayer." Mounting taxes and obsolescence are the reasons given by the Leander J. McCormick estate, the owner.



Sketch of the two story "taxpayer" which will replace the Atlas block. All of the basement space, part of the first floor, all of the second floor, and the roof will be used by the Chicago Service Parking company. It will have foundations capable of carrying four more stories. It may be connected with the Marshall Field & Co. main store by a tunnel.

Interest Rate Trend Lower, Says Kaindl

Interest rates in the Chicago area gradually are becoming lower, according to a survey of the realty and mortgage field during 1939 completed yesterday by Cook County Recorder Edward J. Kaindl. Altho 5 per cent still is the prevailing rate, there were more mortgages carrying a 4½ per cent rate last year than during the preceding 12 months.

During 1939 there were 4,984 mortgages bearing 4½ per cent interest. They totaled $36,618,646. In 1938 there were only 1,913 mortgages at 4½ per cent, representing indebtedness of $17,596,654.

Five per cent mortgages topped all others. There were 10,275 negotiated at that rate, with a total value of $60,320,532.

"In spite of the downward trend interest rates influenced by the reduction of FHA loans to 4½ per cent, three townships— West, Northtown, and Southtown—have remained in the 6 per cent class," Kaindl said.

"In New Trier and Evanston the 4 per cent mortgages exceeded in number those asking the 6 per cent rate. There were 55 loans recorded in Cook county during 1939 in the 6½ per cent class and 82 at a 7 per cent rate."

In the Cook county mortgage field there were 35,134 new mortgages recorded during 1939. This exceeded the 1938 total of 30,272. The amount for 1939 represented a realty debt of $237,290,924, against a 1938 debt of $297,225,548. This means that altho there were 4,862 more mortgages filed last year than the year before, they totaled $59,934,624 less.

Church Order Buys Land in Park Ridge for $150,000

The Sisters of the Holy Family of Nazareth, a Roman Catholic order, yesterday bought an 11 acre tract in Park Ridge from the St. Vincent's Infant asylum for $150,000, according to revenue stamps on the deed. The two story building on the property will continue to be used as a convent. Daniel J. O'Connor was broker. The property fronts 698 feet on Center street [Touhy avenue], 724 feet on Washington street, and 939 feet on South Park avenue [Northwest highway].

Mattress Firm Expands; Plans $150,000 Unit

A. Brandwein & Co., mattress makers since 1902, yesterday announced plans to build a five story addition to their plant at 2349 South State street. A. Epstein, who designed the original plant, is structural engineer for the extension. It will cost $100,000, he said, plus $50,000 for equipment. The executive offices and display room will be on the first floor of the unit. A fifth floor also will be added to the south end of the four story section of the plant.

A. Brandwein.

A. Brandwein started in business with a capital of $300 and no employés. Today three sons, Harry J., Henry G., and Sidney L., are associated with him. The firm has 400 on its pay roll.

The business has grown steadily until today, with the addition, the plant will have a frontage of 300 feet on State street, and a floor area of 117,000 square feet. The entire plant, according to Brandwein, is valued at $500,000.

Quits Milwaukee Avenue for Loop After 38 Years

A. Diadul & Sons, Inc., surgical instruments company, which had been at 1562 Milwaukee avenue for 38 years, has leased space and moved to 119 North Wells street. The Eugene S. Pike Estate Land trust is lessor.

Realty Miscellany

The seventh annual north central conference of the United States Savings and Loan league will be held at the Palmer House next Friday and Saturday. Approximately 600 executives of thrift and home financing institutions from nine midwestern states are expected to attend. John F. Scott of St. Paul will preside. Other speakers include Morton Bodfish and Fermor S. Cannon.

Roy Wenzlick, president of Real Estate Analysts, Inc., of St. Louis, will be the speaker at a banquet of the Chicago Building congress on Feb. 13 at the Palmer House. According to Paul D. Angell, secretary of the congress, the meeting is designed to give a panoramic picture of the building industry in the Chicago area and to examine facts relating to construction in 1940.

One of Chicago's few industries owned and managed by a woman—the Red Head Brand company, makers of hunting suits and sporting equipment—is to have a new $175,000 plant. It will be built at the southeast corner of Belmont and Lowell avenues from plans by the Engineering Systems, Inc., of which L. G. Hallberg is president. Work is scheduled to start this week.

Mrs. Alma K. Anderson. [Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Alma K. Anderson, president and general manager, has operated the Red Head Brand company since the death of her husband, S. Theodore Anderson, ten years ago. Anderson organized the company in 1915. The concern will be 25 years old next May, Mrs. Anderson said.

Larger than Present Plant.

Mrs. Anderson declared the new plant will be about two and a half times as large as the present factory at 925 West Chicago avenue. The building will be 379 by 209 and will be one story except on the Belmont avenue frontage where there will be a two story section. The second story will contain offices and probably will be air conditioned, she said.

At present the concern employs about 250 workers. With the new plant the pay roll will eventually be expanded to about 500, Mrs. Anderson said.

To Be Ready in June.

According to the architects, the new building will contain 85,000 square feet of floor space. The company's present plant has 35,000 square feet. The new office unit will have 45,000 square feet of space, it was said.

The new plant will be completed in June, the architects said.

CONTRACTS LET FOR $100,000 MEYER MEMORIAL

Contracts have been let and work will start at once on a $100,000 two story building at 2821 Ellis avenue. It will be known as the Alfred C. Meyer memorial of the Michael Reese hospital. It will be built by friends of the late Alfred C. Meyer, former president of the hospital. Schmidt, Garden & Erikson are the architects.

The building will contain the hospital's physiotherapy department, a "Warm Springs" pool, and a shop for the manufacture of braces. It will have foundations for four additional stories, according to Harry S. Gottlieb, president of the hospital. Dr. Herman Smith is the hospital director.

New Furniture Firm Rents Space in South Michigan

The recently organized Wilson-Jump company has leased 16,500 square feet at 608 South Michigan avenue, from William McCormick Blair, and will open a retail furniture store early in February. Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers. Ralph C. Wilson is president and Herbert F. Jump secretary and treasurer of the Wilson-Jump company.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO. WILL ADD FLOOR TO STORE IN ENGLEWOOD

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday announced plans for enlarging their Englewood department store at 63d and Halsted streets. According to M. C. Penticoff, Chicago group manager of the company, a sixth story is to be added to the present five story building. This top story addition will add 10,000 square feet to the store's area. It will be used for storage and enable the company to convert present storage space into selling space.

The remodeling will begin at once, Penticoff said, and will result ultimately in the relocation of nearly every department in the store.

This is the second time within the last two weeks that Sears has announced plans for enlargement of one of its Chicago retail units. Bids are now being taken for a top story addition to the three story store at Irving Park road and Cicero avenue.

NINE FLAT BUILDING SOLD.

The nine flats at 4121 North Tripp avenue were sold by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, trustee, to Henry Maas for $22,000 cash, according to Raymond M. Hayes & Co., brokers.

BOY SCOUTS TO FETE 30TH YEAR

STALWART ROTC, A HUSKY YOUTH, COMES OF AGE

21 Years' Growth in City Recalled.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Chicago's Reserve Officers' Training corps will have reason to celebrate 21 years of growth and progress when it comes of age this month. The reason is that it has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools who headed the R. O. T. C. for 15 years and who now is R. O. T. C. administrator for the board of education.

Maj. Beals.

Because Maj. Beals has watched the local military unit grow from a gray uniformed, baby cadet corps in 1917-'18, he can tell the story of how it grew and why today it ranks as the largest and one of the best junior corps in the nation. In proof of its quality, Maj. Beals points to the fact that last spring army inspectors gave either an "excellent" or "honor" rating to 26 of the 27 city units, the best examination record the Chicago schools have ever had.

Has Growing Popularity.

"I believe it has expanded steadily from year to year because of its fundamental popularity with principals, teachers, and parents, as well as students," he says. "Students always enjoy being cogs in an active organization, and principals, teachers, and parents came to like it because they saw the obvious benefits it worked in the boys and the service it was giving the school and community."

Credit for its progress, he believes, must also be given to civic minded citizens like Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone company, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, whom Maj. Beals calls the "father of the Chicago R. O. T. C."

"What are its biggest benefits to a boy?" Maj. Beals says: "I would list them this way: [1] it gives him increased self-respect, [2] it increases his interest in personal appearance, [3] it develops self-confidence, [4] it develops interest in the welfare of others, [5] it gives him a living, breathing organization of which he is a part, and [6] it gives him a sense of his own importance as a member of the community.

When Maj. Beals came to the Chicago board of education in 1917, a makeshift "cadet corps" had been organized. Rifles were furnished by the government but gray uniforms had to be supplied by a citizen's uniform committee, of which Angus Hibbard was chairman. In January, 1919, however, owing to the efforts of Mr. Hibbard, Col. McCormick, and Maj. Beals, the board of education gave permission for a delegation to go to Washington and ask for a government operated R. O. T. C. for Chicago.

First Enrollment Drops.

A month later 14,000 Chicago high school boys were enrolled in the R. O. T. C. with uniforms, rifles, and regular army instructors supplied by the war department. The following year Maj. Beals was made professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago unit and supervisor of physical education in the schools.

The huge enrollment was short lived, however, for in 1919 the army was demobilized and comparatively few officers and noncoms were available as instructors. Chicago's authorized registration was slashed to 3,000 cadets. Since then it has been increased year by year as more students indicated their desire to be admitted.

Maj. Beals continued as head of the corps until 1932, when he was succeeded by Capt. Edmond C. Fleming, who retired a year later. The position was assigned to Lieut. Col. John D. Holtzendorff for a little more than two years.

Lauds Morrison Record.

In 1935 his place was taken by Col. William F. Morrison, currently heading the unit, whom Maj. Beals believes is most responsible for the exceptional progress of the corps during the last five years. Col Morrison had been transferred from duty as chief of staff of the artillery group of the 7th corps area in Iowa. He is a graduate of West Point and was an instructor there from 1906 to 1910.

In accounting for the steady growth of Chicago's R. O. T. C. in his book, "Associations of Choice," Angus Hibbard observes that "school authorities have continued to testify that the R. O. T. C. is the backbone of order and discipline in the Chicago high schools."

W. J. Bong Elected Head of Christian Brotherhood

Officers of the Men's Brotherhood of North Shore Christian church, Ainslee street and Magnolia avenue, were elected recently. They are W. J. Bong, president; George H. Nippert, vice president; Russell Lewis, treasurer, and Thomas Wren, secretary. Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of each month.

Friend to Man Builds Retreat at Roadside

"Let me live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man."—Sam Walter Foss.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders has such a house. He wanted it before he was a minister. He wanted it when he was an idealistic young man who loved the hills, farms, woods, and friends. He went to war and came back undisillusioned.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders.

Today the Rev. Mr. Sanders, whom everybody calls "Sandy," lives on a hill top in Palos woods. The speed-traveled Southwest highway at 127th street passes his door winding its way to St. Louis. A friendly sign stops those who are heartsore.

He gives his house a staid name. But that is only because he is compromising with the times and trying to attract young people who would shy away from a psychological clinic. He calls it the Community Center foundation. It is not a settlement, not a religious retreat, nor a civic caucus. It is 45 acres of farm, 15 acres of woods, and a lodge filled with kerosene lamplight, candles, fireplaces, and books. Right now snow covered trees and hills are its only decorations.

Book Changed His Life.

A year before the first great world war the Rev. Mr. Sanders, then young and indefinite, read a book. He had read many books before that, but this one changed his life. It was called "The Master of the Inn" and was written by Robert Herrick. It told of a doctor, physically ill, who built an inn where reclaimed men "found themselves by work, play, and fellowship."

Sandy laid down his book and went to war, but unlike those about him who began to think of lives in terms of hunting, he saw only a greater need for the leisure life, for time to read and plow and pray. He came back wanting to build his inn.

To build his inn, however, he needed to know the lay of the land. He went to the University of Illinois where he was graduated from the agricultural school. Before that he had studied medicine, but he still knew the limitations of his knowledge. He couldn't tell men how to reconstruct their lives by instructing them how to plant a field of hay or telling them the symptoms of angina pectoris. So he turned to theology at the University of Chicago.

Takes Up Psychology.

Even that was not enough. He took up psychology and sociology at Northwestern university and came away determined to find his Shangri-La. Assisted by Dr. William Bailey of Northwestern he made a survey of Chicagoland and found a little church in Worth which had 10 members, two of whom were inactive. That was in 1924. The Rev. Mr. Sanders took the church and gradually gathered around him an interdenominational parish of seven congregations.

Into the picture came an old man whose life had been spent with trees and hills, plowed fields and the books of Emerson, Thoreau, and Abbé Fabre. Most of the people in the Palos district knew him only as "the hermit," altho his name was Ernest G. Warner. Several had seen him on occasion put his arms around a tree and mumble to himself of "woodland friends." They thought him queer and avoided his farm, altho it adjoined the most beautiful section of the forest preserves.

It was in the plan of things that simple, nature loving Mr. Warner was to meet Paul Sanders, university trained medical man, scientific farmer, minister, psychologist, and humanitarian. Several years these two spent together, the old man dreaming dreams and the young man seeing visions, each certain of the peace gained by an ear atune to "God's deeper harmonies."

Resigns from Parish.

With a gift of 10 acres from the Warner property in 1928, the Rev. Mr. Sanders resigned from his parish and took the first steps towards the realization of his project. He incorporated the center as a nonprofit institution "to serve all mankind regardless of creed, socially, physically, mentally, and spiritually."

An old barn was turned into the lodge, Fellowship house, by a group of girls and boys who eagerly followed Sandy's footsteps.

"The foundation's ends," says Sandy, "could only be accomplished if it materialized thru the experience of the people."

First the lodge doors opened to persons from the immediate vicinity, then to those from Chicago, and finally to others from state after state until last year when more than 9,000 persons from 21 states and five foreign countries were served by the center.

The entire Warner property, valued at $60,000, had been turned over to the foundation upon the death of the old naturalist. There are now six buildings on the land, a girls' dormitory given by Adam Int-Hout of Homewood in memory of his wife, a poetess; a boys' dormitory donated by Dr. Pasquale de Carlo, head of Garibaldi institute; a mess hall built by boys from an old horse shed in Orland Park; a guest house erected of box car lumber; Fellowship house,

Testing Book Lore in Outdoor Life

Any celebration of founding of the Boy Scouts of America wouldn't be complete without a blazing campfire. These four Scouts trekked out to Camp Fort Dearborn at Higgins road and the Des Plaines river last week to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Scout movement in America. They piled tinder in the manner described by the Scout manual, struck pieces of flint together, and soon had a campfire hot enough for cooking. The boys, all members of Troop 806, are (left to right) Jack Farrell, 1742 Juneway terrace; Charles Buschick, 7635 North Bosworth avenue; Keith Melton, 1550 Juneway terrace, and George Weeman, 7450 Greenview avenue. FOUR COUPLES RECALL LONG AGO WEDDING DAYS

Pastor and Wife Have 62d Anniversary.

Two hundred and twelve years of married life were celebrated last week by four north side couples. One of the celebrations was of a 62d wedding anniversary and the other three were golden wedding observances.

The 62d anniversary was marked by the Rev. and Mrs. Karekin Hovagimian, 1619 Lawrence avenue, at a family gathering in their home. The Rev. Mr. Hovagimian, who has been a priest in the Armenian Apostolic church for 56 years, is pastor of the Mesrop Armenian church in Racine, Wis. He is 84 years old. Mrs. Hovagimian is 78 years old. They were married in Armenia and came to this country 20 years ago.

Family at Celebration.

The celebration was attended by the couple's two daughters, Rose, 1619 Lawrence avenue, and Mrs. Oscar Boshnakian, Detroit, and three sons, Hagdji, 3718 North Ashland avenue, and Harry and Hovagim, both of 1619 Lawrence avenue. The Hovagimians have six grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Rosenthal Sr. celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Monday at their home, 6100 North Paulina street. They have a son, Frederick Jr.; a daughter, Laura, and two grandchildren. Mr. Rosenthal is 74 years old and Mrs. Rosenthal is 70.

Have Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Levin, 6353 Wayne avenue, observed their 50th wedding anniversary last Sunday with a dinner at the Copeland hotel, 5009 Sheridan road. The Levins have three daughters, Mrs. Mollie Grossman, Mrs. Sarah Hoffberg, and Mrs. Estelle Cohen, and two sons, Dr. A. Louis Levin and Irving Levin. They have three grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Martin Clark, 3826 North Hermitage avenue, were married 50 years ago last Tuesday. They are the parents of four daughters, Mrs. M. R. Jordan, Mrs. C. S. Johnsen, Mrs. H. A. Johnson, and Mrs. Mildred Newman.

EVANSTON FUND DRIVE NEARING $148,000 GOAL

The Evanston Community Chest fund raising drive last week was within $3,400 of its $148,000 goal. The campaign has not yet been closed, altho workers in the drive have ceased their door-to-door vanvass.

Nelson L. Buck recently was elected 1940 president. Addision L. Gardner Jr. is the new vice president and Henry M. Huxley, former president, is second vice president. John E. Blunt was chosen third vice president. John R. Kimbark, secretary, and George H. Tomlinson, treasurer, were reëlected.

Seven directors at large were chosen for three year terms. They are John J. Louis, Mrs. Guy M. Pelton, Thomas Airth, J. F. Wanberg, Harry L. Wells, Thomas K. Desmond, and William O'Donoghue.

CHICAGO CATHEDRAL FORUM IS TO OFFER DANCE, CARD PARTY

The annual card party and dance sponsored by the Chicago Cathedral Open Forum will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake tomorrow evening starting at 8 o'clock. This event is staged annually to provide funds for the forum's series of lectures, which are offered on a monthly schedule thru the year. More than 1,000 members regularly attend the forum meetings, which are under the direction of the Rev. Edward V. Dailey.

Jack Russell.

The party at the Drake will feature the appearance of several of Chicago's radio and stage stars with the entertainment under the direction of Jack Russell, widely known orchestra leader. Among the stars who will appear are Fran Allison, June Meredith, Art Jarrett, Mitzi Green, Mary Brian, and Stepin Fetchit.

AFRICA MISSION WORKER TO TELL OF EXPERIENCES

Mrs. R. H. McCrackin will describe her missionary experiences among African women and children at a meeting of the Junior Mission guild of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston Tuesday. Her husband is a doctor in a hospital at Elat, West Africa.

Mrs. Clarence Stearns will conduct a devotional program. Mrs. J. A. Cook will play the piano. Nominations will be presented by a committee which includes Mrs. R. Leslie Jones, chairman; Mrs. Virgil Baurhyte, Mrs. Harold Algeo, Mrs. Leonard Wall, and Mrs. B. E. Moser.

Hostesses for a luncheon to follow the meeting are Mrs. Charles Macdonnell, Mrs. C. R. Sammis, Mrs. George H. Chamberlaine, Mrs. G. W. Garner-Smith, Mrs. Milton Harper, Mrs. F. N. Anderson, and Mrs. G. N. Bruce.

Phi Kappa Sigma Mothers Club Is to Give Benefit

The Mothers' club of Phi Kappa Sigma of Northwestern university will give a benefit card party at 8 o'clock Friday in the chapter house. Proceeds will go to a scholarship fund. The mothers will meet tomorrow in the chapter house for luncheon and sewing.

New Trier Sunday Evening Club Ends Season Tonight

The New Trier Sunday Evening club will close its season this evening with a lecture by Capt. John D. Craig, deep sea diver. The lecture, "Treasure Hunting in the Carribean," will be illustrated with colored moving pictures.

ASHLAND RATED MOST DANGEROUS OF CITY STREETS

39 of 46 Victims Were Pedestrians.

Chicago's most dangerous street from the standpoint of traffic deaths is Ashland avenue. Forty-six persons were killed on this thorofare last year. The toll was 42 in 1938. Western avenue, with a death toll of 36 persons, ranks as the second most dangerous street.

These facts came to light last week in the findings of an annual survey of traffic deaths issued by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Pedestrians are the majority of victims in the city's traffic accidents, the report shows. Of the 46 killed on Ashland avenue 39 were pedestrians, and 22 pedestrians were among the 36 fatalities on Western avenue.

Cautions the Pedestrian.

"We have attempted to show in this annual survey of traffic deaths in Chicago the appalling rate among pedestrians," Mr. Fleming said. "Without regard as to whether the motor vehicle driver or the pedestrian is to blame, the report should make Chicago residents more traffic safety conscious."

Streets running north and south were found to have more traffic fatalities than either east or west or diagonal streets. Streets covered in the survey are the most heavily traveled in the city.

North avenue led the east and west streets with 18 deaths. In 1938 North avenue and Roosevelt road tied for the east-west death toll lead, each having 17 deaths. Last year Roosevelt road showed a decrease of six fatalities. Irving Park road went up last year on the death chart with a total of 17 deaths as compared to 10 in 1938.

13 Die on Racine.

With a death score of three in 1938, Racine avenue climbed to a total of 13 last year. Seventy-ninth street had no deaths in 1938, but in 1939 ten persons were killed in traffic accidents. The death toll on Indiana avenue rose from five in 1938 to ten last year.

Streets whose last year's death toll dropped from the previous year include Archer avenue, with nine in 1939 as against 19 in 1938; Sheridan road, with one last year as against seven in 1938; Clark street, five as compared with 10 in 1938; Damen avenue, seven against eleven in 1938; Belmont avenue, three as against seven in 1938; Division street, two as against nine; Jackson boulevard, eight as against 13, and Washington boulevard, seven against 11. Warren boulevard's 1939 toll of 12 victims remained the same as the 1938 figure.

Women of Shawnee Club to Hear Bridge Lecture

A lecture on contract bridge by Mrs. Maxine Miner at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon will feature a "ladies' day" program at the Shawnee Country club.

ISABELLAN COUNCIL READY TO INSTALL NEW OFFICIAL STAFF

Miss Margaret Dasse of 5644 North Artesian avenue was reëlected grand lady of St. Hilary council, No. 35, Ladies of Isabella, and will be installed in office at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in St. Hilary auditorium, Bryn Mawr and California avenues.

Miss Margaret Dasse.

Other officers to be installed include Alice Klein, 5735 North Talman avenue; Mary Griffiths, 5727 North Washtenaw avenue; Helen Wolski, 5730 North Bernard street; Katherine Kerin, 5403 North Campbell avenue; Marcella Klawitter, 7334 North Oakley avenue; Betty Strenski, 5746 North Bernard street, and Nora Stroh, 5614 North Rockwell street.

Others will be Mercedes Morris, 5728 North Talman avenue; Elizabeth Dewald, 5740 North Talman avenue; Marie Wilson, 5736 North Talman avenue; Margaret Weber, 5642 North Rockwell street, and Myrtle Stock, 5906 North Fairfield avenue. Miss Irene C. Mulligan will conduct the installation.

GIRLS WILL VIE TO BE QUEEN AT MOTOR DISPLAY

As streamlined as the new motor cars to be displayed, pretty girls from the north side will compete for the titles of Miss Rogers Park, Miss Edgewater, Miss Ravenswood, Miss North Town and Miss Uptown, in connection with the 17th annual motor salon from Feb. 17 to 25.

The salon will be in the Edgewater Beach hotel. North side automobile dealers are sponsoring it. Curtis M. Betts, chairman of the show committee, said each day of the show would be dedicated to one of the five sections of the north side, and a "princess" chosen from five candidates from each neighborhood. Later a queen will be picked from the winners and will hold court the last two days of the show.

The honored five from each section will be determined from photographs submitted.

Louis Bromfield to Speak in Thorne Hall Thursday

Louis Bromfield, author of "The Green Bay Tree" and other widely read novels, will speak on "Writers Are Unlucky People" Thursday evening in Thorne hall of Northwestern university. A winner of the Pulitzer prize, his most recent novel is "The Rains Came," from which a motion picture currently shown was made.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Four years ago Mr. Rodell was confined to a Texas hospital with a dangerous illness. To pass the time he carved out of a block of wood the figure of an old man he had known in Sweden. Thus began a thriving business of wood carving. Today Mr. Rodell specializes in wood carvings of fish. At the boat show he is exhibiting a wooden aquarium of fish from the north woods and from Florida.

Mr. Rodell goes to Wisconsin each summer to catch game fish. These he keeps alive in a glass tank and at his leisure he studies them closely, observing their posturings, colors, and shapes. While he studies he "sketches" them with his penknife and wood. After he has finished carving, he throws the fish back into the lake. Mr. Rodell hopes to reproduce in wood every kind of animal and fish that abounds in the north woods region. He is a member of the Nutical Research and Model Society of Chicago.

Six students of Northwestern university have found a way to avoid taking final examinations in economics. They received an A or A- for the semester and consequently were exempt from taking examinations. They are Donald Olson, 2151 Touhy avenue; Harold Latin, 6727 North Maplewood avenue; Dorothy Bronson, 4219 North Leavitt street; Henry Ovson, 6101 Sheridan road; Sidney Waller, 7351 Bosworth avenue, and William Droham, 1436 Jonquil terrace.

THREE north siders are among the 53 artists exhibiting their works at the Swedish American Art association display being held at Mandel Brothers store. They are Gotthilf Ahlman, 1447 Carmen avenue; Gustaf Dalstrom, 2525 Orchard street, and Mary C. Peterson, 155 West Superior street.

G. H. Doscher, 2742 Hampton courtway, Evanston, has been appointed chairman of the men's squash committee of the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette.

Jeanette Parker of Highland Park has been selected to play the part of Maggie in Jane Austen's play, "Pride and Prejudice," to be presented March 1 and 2 by the senior class of Goucher college, Baltimore, Md.

Ten north siders are among the 30 Chicagoland residents who have been appointed to serve on the Alumni Foundation of the University of Chicago. The foundation is making preparations for participation in the 50th anniversary celebration of the university in 1941. Our Towners recently made members of the executive committee include George A. Bates, 1500 Lake Shore drive; Benjamin F. Bills, 222 East Chestnut street; George H. Coleman, 647 Arlington place; Paul H. Davis, Kenilworth; George H. Hartman, Highland Park; Julia Ricketts King, Winnetka; Howell W. Murray and Donald S. Trumbull, Highland Park; Alfred K. Eddy, Winnetka, and John Nuveen Jr., Kenilworth. Mr. Nuveen is chairman of the foundation and a trustee of the university.

The northern district stewardship service of the Methodist church will be held this evening for the Young Women's Foreign Missionary society at the Ravenswood Methodist church, Sunnyside and Hermitage avenues. A one act drama, "Such As I Have," will be presented. Included in the cast are Mrs. Marvin Dawson, Miss Elsie Winnerstrom, Miss Helen Howe, Miss Alvina Eckstein, and Adele Sturtz. Miss Mildred Miller in director of the play. Miss Helen Stewart, district stewardship secretary, will preside at the service.

Two performances of the Evanston Elks' annual minstrel show will be given tomorrow evening at the Northshore theater, Howard street near Clark. Proceeds will go to the club's charity and welfare fund. End men are Robert James Jr., J. Lincoln Gibson, Chester Nichols, Nishan Jorjorian, George Hebson and James Hoyden. Frank Wohlleber is general chairman and Philip Eichling interlocuter. More than 6,000 tickets were sold for last year's show, according to Fred A. Hertwig, publicity director.

UNITS ON NORTH SIDE TO ATTEND SPECIAL RITES

Good Deed in Fog Starts Movement.

Thirty years ago next Thursday a Chicago business man stood on the curb of a foggy London street. Anxiously he peered ahead, seeking an opening in the clouds of fog so that he could find his destination, a penciled address on a scrap of paper. For several minutes he stood there listening to traffic rushing by.

He felt a tug at his arm. Looking down he saw a young boy. The lad took his arm and guided him thru the stream of wagons and omnibuses to the other side. Then the boy led him to his destination a few blocks away. When the Chicagoan attempted to tip him the boy refused, saying:

"Thank you, sir, but I don't take money for my services. I am a Scout and am glad to be of service."

Convert to Cause.

That little London episode was what started the Boy Scouts of America. The man was William Boyce, a Chicago publisher. When he returned to America he brought with him a trunk full of pamphlets and booklets on the Scouting movement in England. He found other Americans who were interested in establishing it here.

Today there is an enrollment in America of about a million and a quarter boys and men in scouting, all of which was started because an English Boy Scout led an American business man across the street in a London fog.

On Thursday Chicago will begin a week of celebrating that incident. More than 10,000 north side and suburban Boy Scouts will observe Scout week in commemoration of the 30th anniversary of both the national Scout movement and the founding of the Chicago council.

Launch $100,000 Drive.

During Scout week the Chicago council will launch a campaign to raise $100,000 for the maintenance of its 11 summer camps and to pay for Scout leadership training. The program of the week will open with the Chicago council's annual dinner Thursday evening at the Palmer House. It will be attended by 1,000 friends of scouting in Chicago.

The $100,000 drive which is scheduled to end March 4 will be supervised by John F. Fennelly, member of the executive board of the council. He directed the fund-raising drive last year. F. H. Massmann, 6620 North Maplewood, is the north shore district chairman. Mark Kemper will be chairman of the district's part in the finance drive.

A few months after the founding of the national movement in February, 1910, the Chicago council was formed. Two of the original members of the egecutive board still are active. They are Gen. Le Roy T. Steward, now 80 years old, and Dr. H. W. Gentles, Scout surgeon.

Rewards for Leaders.

The finance drive will get under way Tuesday noon, Feb. 13, at a luncheon in the Chicago club. At the annual dinner to be held Thursday evening, tribute will be paid by United States District Attorney William J. Campbell to scouts who became 21 years old in 1939.

Seven men who have given "distinguished service to boyhood" will receive Silver Beaver awards at the dinner. One man, John J. Dahm, is a north sider. He resides at 5916 North Talman avenue. He is a member of the north shore district executive committee.

The speaker will be Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin.

Next Sunday north side churches will hold services and programs dedicated to Boy Scouts.

Programs Are Listed.

Ebenezer Lutheran church, 1650 Foster avenue, at 7:45 o'clock Sunday evening.

St. Ignatius church, 6559 Glenwood avenue, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Ravenswood Methodist church, 1724 Sunnyside avenue, at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

Rogers Park Lutheran church, 1701 Morse avenue, at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

Bethany Evangelical church, 4242 North Paulina street, 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

Temple Emanuel, 701 Buckingham place, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Diversey Parkway Evangelical church, 925 Diversey parkway, Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock.

Berry Memorial church, 4754 North Leavitt street, this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Will Aid Camp Fund.

Part of the money to be raised in the finance drive will go to buy new cabins, lamps and other equipment at the council's 11 camps, located outside Chicago. Last year 3,100 boys spent summer vacations at the camps. The council sponsored 170,000 boy days of outing, including week-end hikes, day-long trips outside of the city.

The council awarded 1,823 certificates last year in 141 courses in scouting. In the area there are 6,311 volunteer Scout leaders, almost as many as the city has policemen, according to Stanley R. Miller, assistant Scout executive.

FOOLHARDY WALKERS.

When will pedestrians, especially those trying to cross Sheridan road, quit their suicidal attempts to cross against the lights during rush hour traffic? They either have a mediocre IQ rating or don't care how long they live. On these murky evenings, when the muck from the drive covers headlights and windshields, the driver has a job watching the cars ahead of him. He can't estimate what the person standing in the middle of the street is going to do, and he can't stop on a dime because of the slime on the pavement. But if he kills a pedestrian he faces not only his own remorse, but the possibility of damage suits, loss of time and money, or even criminal proceedings. I hope the woman who missed death by the hem of her skirt last night reads this.

P. W.

PROBLEM SOLVED.

As principal of Senn High school I wish to thank you for the appearance of the pictures of prominent members of our graduating class.

I had been requested to send in four names and did so. Among the four names I included the young lady, Miss Marian Taylor, who was first on the graduation list. Immediately after I was informed that the second girl on the list also ranked first as she had tied the average which indicated first place. At that moment I found myself in a predicament and I suggested to your office the acceptance of the five. There was doubt as to whether it could be done but I noticed that you succeeded and because of the young people I am very grateful.

With my very best wishes to you,

DAVID M. DAVIDSON.

FOR SINGLE MOVIES.

Outside of children who should be at home in bed anyway, is there any one who really likes to sit thru a double motion picture at night? Or at any time? Occasionally there is a movie I want to see. I wait until it comes to my neighborhood movie house and, filled with pleasant anticipations, I pay my 35 cents at the window. But there are never two movies I want to see. Often by the time I've sat thru part of the one I didn't want to see I get up and leave in disgust, missing the desired movie entirely. Why doesn't some neighborhood movie house have the courage to show only single pictures, and so advertise? I have an idea people would come some distance to patronize it.

MRS. LEON J.

NO. SIDE P.-T. A. UNITS WILL NOTE FOUNDERS' DAY

Special Programs Are to Be Presented.

Among the many north side Parent-Teacher associations which will celebrate Founders' day with special programs during the coming week is Graeme Stewart association. Members will meet at 1:15 o'clock in the school auditorium to hear a talk by Dr. Robert N. McMurray on the subject, "Behavior Problems in Children."

Founders' day will be observed by Le Moyne unit at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A play, "The Schoolroom of 25 Years Ago and Today," will be given by mothers and pupils of the third grade. Mrs. William Hefferan of the board of education will speak on "Founders' Day."

A Founders' day program will be given at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday by the newly organized J. C. Coonley association. A program of music will be presented by "Viola and Her Ladies of Song" under the direction of Mrs. Albert E. Repp.

Amundsen High school unit will meet Thursday afternoon to hear a talk by Mrs. Arthur Williams, state chairman of International Relations, on the subject, "Building the World of Tomorrow."

Mrs. Florence Dove and Mrs. Herbert E. Racine will present a play, "Mrs. Black Learns About the P.-T. A.," at the Founders' day meeting of Trumbull unit at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

"Polly, Put the Kettle On," a play directed by Mrs. J. J. Reames, will be given by Girl Scout troop, No. 270, at the meeting of Armstrong association at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at Indian Boundary fieldhouse.

Highland Park association will give a fashion show and card party at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Dessert will be served preceding the show. Proceeds will benefit the student aid fund.

A card party sponsored by Budlong unit will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at River Park fieldhouse.

Dr. C. S. Bacon Known for Tuberculosis Study.

Dr. Charles S. Bacon, chief of staff at Booth Memorial hospital, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Tuesday night in the hospital, 5040 North Pulaski road, in recognition of his 16 years of service as head of the institution. Maj. Esther Johnson, hospital superintendent, and a committee from the Salvation Army women's social service department is planning the dinner.

Lieut. Col. Julia Thomas, women's social service secretary in the central states territory, will introduce speakers who will pay tribute to Dr. Bacon and his work. The hospital, which is maintained by the social service department, cares for about 300 unwed mothers and their babies annually.

6,690 Given Care.

Since 1924, the hospital has cared for 6,690 women and infants. The building also provides living quarters for both mothers and children because the Army requires that each patient remain at the hospital at least six months after her baby is born.

Dr. Bacon and his staff of nine physicians contribute their time and services and are on call at all hours. The chief notes with pride that no member of his original staff has resigned, except when two members were called out of the city. Otherwise the changes have been additions only.

Since the turn of the century, Dr. Bacon has been identified with the city's medical progress. A graduate of Beloit college and Northwestern university, he began to practice medicine in 1884. During the '90s he spent several years studying in Germany and Austria.

From 1903 to 1926 he was head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology in the University of Illinois and a co-founder of the old University hospital. With Dr. Joseph B. DeLee and Dr. Frank Carey, he was for many years a medical director of the old Lying-In hospital and one of the amphitheaters in the new hospital bears his name. His service at the university is commemorated in a lectureship established by popular subscription about 10 years ago.

With Dr. Theodore B. Sachs, Dr. Bacon worked on the city's first efforts to prevent and control tuberculosis. He is the only surviving consultant of the original staff of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium founded in 1910.

Will Be 84 in July.

Dr. Bacon will celebrate his 84th birthday next July. He and his wife now reside at 2333 Cleveland avenue. Other members of the family who will attend the dinner are Mrs. Bacon, a son, Ernst Bacon, dean of music at Converse college, Spartanburg, S. C., and a daughter, Miss Madi Bacon, director of music at Roycemore school in Evanston. A third son, Charles Jr., is professor of geology in the Texas Agriculture and Mechanics college, College Station, Tex.

Guests will include the staff physicians and their wives, the hospital nurses, headed by Miss Helen Schnur; Col. William H. Barrett, chief secretary for the Army in the central states territory; Mr. and Mrs. William S. Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Clark. Mrs. Monroe is president and Mrs. Clark vice president of the Army's women's division.

Glencoe to Have Annual Town Meeting on Feb. 12

The annual town meeting called by the Glencoe Caucus will be Monday evening, Feb. 12, in the Central School auditorium. A nominating committee will present its slate, its platform, and party name for ratification. Reports from committees and boards will be made. The village again will revive the custom of the town crier, who will announce the meeting during the day alternately from both railway stations.

BRITISH WOMAN WILL TALK ON ART OF READING

Making Her Home in U. S. During War.

Mrs. Leon J. Willien, program chairman of the University guild of Evanston, which is sponsoring a lecture by Elizabeth Drew tomorrow, wrote Mrs. Drew to ask if she would answer questions following her talk. She received a reply which read in part:

"As to speaking about the present situation in England, I am delighted to answer any questions in an informal way, making it quite clear that I have no inside information of any sort and can speak only of my own limited knowledge.

"But it will not be interesting. The conditions in England are not interesting; only sad. Frankly we do not much like the desire for 'truths' about the war and the disappointment because it is not spectacular, only paralyzing to everything constructive."

Mrs. Drew will speak on "The Art of Reading" at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon in Fisk hall. After the lecture a reception and tea will be held in Harris hall. Mrs. Edward H. Hatton, president of the guild, and Mrs. Willien will be in the receiving line with Mrs. Drew.

Junior School Friends.

Other Evanston and north shore club women will be busy this week preparing for a Valentine party to be given Friday afternoon as a major benefit activity of the Evanston Friends of the Chicago Junior school, at Elgin.

The party will be held in 22 homes in Evanston and elsewhere. Arrangements, which necessitate valiant arithmetical efforts, are being made by Mrs. George Simpson of Winnetka. Mrs. Charles H. Warner Jr., of Evanston, is president.

After a 1 o'clock luncheon in each home, contract, auction, Chinese checkers and other games will be played. Evanston homes where the party will take place are those of Mrs. Leigh W. Bowles, 430 Barton avenue; Mrs. G. H. Cross, 821 Ridge avenue; Mrs. William C. Evans, 230 Main street; Mrs. J. Frank Grimes, 2747 Eastwood avenue; Mrs. A. U. Harper, 3030 Thayer street; Mrs. Charles C. Jarchow, 2430 Lincolnwood drive.

Others to Entertain.

In Chicago Mrs. William Eytel, 2000 Lincoln Park West, and Mrs. Edward Railton, 431 Oakdale avenue, will entertain groups for the benefit of the Junior school. In Wilmette Mrs. M. A. Blessing, 1424 Maple avenue, Mrs. Will B. Davis, 433 Maple avenue; Mrs. Philip T. Greene, 914 Forest avenue, and Mrs. Walter A. Hanson, 2812 Blackhawk road, will open their homes for the party.

In Winnetka Mrs. George H. Simpson, 62 Warwick avenue, will be a hostess, and in Glencoe, Mrs. William A. Osgood, 424 Washington avenue. Mrs. William Mueller, 99 Robsart road, Kenilworth, will receive one contingent of guests in her home, and Mrs. Thomas Hunter, Butterfield road, will take the responsibility for Libertyville's share of the entertainment.

Evanston Catholic Club.

"The War: Why It Came and What It Means" will be the topic of Dr. Paul Kiniery, professor of history of Loyola university, when he talks to the Evanston Catholic Woman's club at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the club house, 1560 Oak avenue. Husbands of the members will be guests.

Mrs. Allen Dimmick, 1621 Oak avenue, is chairman of the meeting.

Reverse Their Roles

Employes of the Wrigley Building restaurant reversed their roles Saturday evening, Jan. 27. They became patrons of the restaurant instead of cashiers, waiters, busboys, and cooks, for it was their third annual buffet ball. The event is held each year and no one but the employes is permitted to attend, not even the best customers. Betty McConville, 61 East Cedar street, is shown dancing with Angelo Charkas, 7134 Yates avenue. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Sandy Stretches Hand to Welcome All.

Weary Find Peace.

Numerous strangers, men and women, confused in mind and fatigued in body, have lifted the old brass knocker on Fellowship house and entered to live there for years. There have been doctors from the University of Chicago, social workers, school teachers, and others who have earned their keep and found peace by working the farm, cooking meals, and acting as instructors or hostesses.

Each summer a folk school is conducted at the center for 10 selected girls and 10 selected boys between the ages of 16 and 21, and for children from 7 to 14. They come from all walks of life. The older group works on the farm or in the camp for three hours in the mornings and in the afternoons is taught handicrafts, nature lore, geological surveying, leadership, folk dancing, and is helped to formulate a natural philosophy of life.

In preparation for the future, scholarships from various colleges are obtained for those who would continue their education, and jobs are found for others.

Learn About Nature.

In addition to crafts taught by Mrs. Sanders, a University of Wisconsin graduate, and a group of master artisans, the children acquire a knowledge of nature. They know what it is to sick potato bugs off the plants, to see a sow give birth to pigs, to ride a horse, to milk a cow, and to build a dam in the creek. They learn the thrill of having a wild rabbit eat trustingly from their hands. They understand where their food comes from and the labor that is necessary to obtain it.

Winter finds the center the perfect place for hayrack rides and bob sledding, tobogganing, skating, hiking, and treasure hunt parties, all of which climax before the crackling log fire in the lodge.

Sandy's house by the side of the road will have many open doors because, as he has learned, there are many who would enter.

CATHOLIC CLUB TO HAVE NURSERY BENEFIT PARTY

Edgewater Women Plan Event on Feb. 16.

Members of the Edgewater Catholic Woman's club will visit the infants and children of De Paul day nursery and settlement, 2141 North Halsted street, when they meet in the auditor ium there for a luncheon and card party Friday, Feb. 16.

Mrs. W. T. Johnston. [Paul Stone Raymor.]

The club's principal philanthropic work is in connection with the nursery. Last year it contributed more than $180. For almost 25 years the Edgewater club has centered its philanthropic activities in the nursery.

Mrs. W. T. Johnston of 2540 Morse avenue, the club's philanthropy chairman, is planning the luncheon. Mrs. Kenneth Hobbs is president.

Brownson Circle.

Guests and members will hear Miss Helen Benner, mezzo soprano and composer, in a musical program, assisted by Miss Beatrice Mazer, violinist, tomorrow at a meeting in the Rogers Park Woman's club, 7079 North Ashland avenue. Mrs. John J. Quinn, chairman of music, is in charge.

North Town Women.

Members of the philanthropy department of the North Town Woman's club will sew on bags, bibs, and dresses for crippled children in Cook County hospital when they meet at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in Indian Boundary fieldhouse, 2500 Lunt avenue.

Rogers Park Woman's Club.

Sterling North, book critic, will talk at 2 o'clock Tuesday. A skit will be presented at 10:30 o'clock in the morning by Mrs. H. M. Daughtrey. In the cast will be Mrs. Bertil Broms, Mrs. Miles D. Catton, Mrs. H. D. Felton, Mrs. James C. French, Mrs. William F. Keller, Mrs. Harvey J. Lloyd, and Mrs. Glenn E. Moore.

Lourdes Woman's Club.

The art and literature and ways and means committees of Our Lady of Lourdes Woman's club will give a luncheon and card party at noon Tuesday in the Ravenswood Masonic temple, Wilson avenue and Paulina street.

Neighborhood Club Seniors.

The Woman's Neighborhood club of Rogers Park will give a Valentine card party for members and their families at 8 o'clock Friday evening at 2500 Lunt avenue.

Glenola Club.

The Glenola club of Loyola center will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday, Feb. 13, to hear Miss Henriette Mertz, young patent attorney, describe her experiences at the Lima trade conference.

Argyle Park Club.

Mrs. Frank J. Link will read a paper on "Lima, City of Kings," at a meeting of the Argyle Park Portia club Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Walter E. Lynch, 5244 North Kenmore avenue. Mrs. Adolph Bohn will discuss "Glories of a Glorious Past," continuing Mrs. Link's discussion of Peru.

North Shore Art Guild.

The monthly meeting will be today, with a breakfast at 1:15 o'clock. Tunis Ponsen, landscape painter, will speak.

Bride

GUILD THEATER TO GIVE FINAL 4 IN PLAY SERIES

'Night Must Fall' Will Be the Offering.

The final four of a series of 12 performances of "Night Must Fall" will be given Thursday thru Sunday evening by the Evanston Guild theater at 616 Church street in the suburb.

The park district's central drama group will present its second loop production Tuesday evening at the Goodman theater. The play will be "Alison's House," a Pulitzer prize winner written by Susan Glaspell. The rôles will be filled by winners of the park district's talent contests held in 48 fieldhouse "little theaters." One north sider, Dorothy Patrick, 631 Sheridan road, is a member of the cast.

JOYCE KILMER LEAGUE IS TO GREET MOTHERS

Annual Party Is Set for Tuesday Evening.

The Joyce Kilmer league will entertain the mothers of members at an annual party in the Rogers Park Women's club Tuesday evening. Mrs. James J. O'Connor is to be hostess.

Mrs. James J. O'Connor. [Marshall Field Photo.]

The club has been devoting one night a year to mothers for a long time, and likes to do it when it isn't Mothers' day for the nation at large. This year some of the oldest of the mothers, Mrs. James Burns, 77, of 1724 Farwell avenue, mother of Ann, and others, may not be able to come to the party.

Even Mrs. Mary Gallagher, 75, mother of Gertrude and Alice, of 1844 Farwell avenue, usually one of the sprightliest of guests, may yield to age and stay home. She's not sure.

Mrs. Edward Niesen, 67 years old, mother of Mrs. Adelaide O'Connor, 1742 Olive avenue, and Mrs. John Schmitt, 68, mother of Olive, 6914 North Wolcott avenue, will be there.

Still Are "the Girls."

"I remember when the club was organized," said Mrs. [Joseph] O'Connor. "There were 24 of us, all Rogers Park girls. We still call each other 'the girls,' but it's 21 years ago now. That was right after the death of Joyce Kilmer, the poet.

Other mothers of founders who are expected to attend include Mrs. J. H. Daly, mother of Ruth, 1713 Touhy avenue; Mrs. M. E. Smith, mother of Mrs. Honor Luce, 1954 Farwell avenue; Mrs. Sarah C. Ure, mother of Mrs. Ruth Maloney, 1750 Birchwood avenue, and Mrs. Maurice J. Callahan, mother of the president, Mrs. Dorothy Maher, 6435 Artesian avenue.

Among the members who joined within a few years, Mrs. Marie Schuler, 1615 Greenleaf avenue, will have as her guest her mother, Mrs. A. A. Flick, and Misses Irene and Ethel Kannon, 1840 Farwell avenue, will entertain their mother, Mrs. Theodore Kannon.

Ravenswood Seniors.

Mrs. Tracey W. Blachley will review "Moment in Pekin," by Lin Yutang, before the Ravenswood Woman's club at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Jane Nelson, who won first place among women singers in the Chicagoland Music festival last summer, will sing.

The club's drama division, led by Mrs. Donald B. Ward, will give a one act farce.

North End Woman's Club.

Parliamentary law and current events will be the fare for the club at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Mrs. Gertrude C. Lieber will lead the discussion.

Woman's Club, People's Church.

An illustrated lecture, "The Mediterranean to the Baltic," will be given by Muriel C. Leppard at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in Channing hall, 941 Lawrence avenue. Husbands and friends will be guests. Mrs. James Stoker will introduce the speaker.

Edgemere Woman's Club.

Directors and chairmen will meet with the president, Mrs. Jesse G. Waters, at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Lakeview Woman's Club.

The education department will give a program for the club at the Granada hotel, 525 Arlington place, Tuesday. Mrs. Blanche P. Brown is chairman.

Le Cenacle.

Members will give a comedy at 3 o'clock Saturday in the Webster hotel. The cast includes Miss Sophie Fishkin, Mrs. A. E. Furkert, Mrs. E. J. Heiss, Mrs. S. M. Schall, Mrs. Harold Schmetzer, and Mrs. William Zellweger.

Sweden's Role in Europe's War Is Topic Before Club Women

Politics and culture will claim the attention of north shore clubwomen this week, with some philanthropy thrown in for good measure and a modicum of entertainment and fun.

Highland Park Woman's Club.

Wilfred Laurier Husband will lecture on "Can Sweden Stay Out?" showing colored motion pictures as she talks, before the Highland Park Woman's club after luncheon Tuesday. Helen Hay will appear in a costume sketch of the Gibson girl era. Presiding at tea tables will be Mrs. Charles F. Baker, Mrs. E. W. Eriksen, Mrs. John O'Connell, and Mrs. Karl E. Wagner.

Evanston Woman's Club.

Mrs. Harris Frazier will discuss Pierre Van Paassen's "Days of Our Years" and Mrs. Horace Dawson will review Isabella Maud Rittenhouse's "Maud" at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning when the Woman's Club of Evanston meets. At 2 o'clock Mrs. Orno B. Roberts will present Dr. W. C. Danforth, chief of the department of obstetrics and gynecology at the Evanston hospital. He will have as his topic "Fight Cancer with Knowledge."

At 2 o'clock Friday Mrs. Frank L. Gunderson will present Mrs. Charles W. Scott, executive secretary of the Needlework guild of the Art institute, who will speak on "Increased Interest of American Women in Needlework." Mrs. Herbert Schultz will be tea chairman. Mrs. D. R. Donlen and Mrs. E. C. McGill will assist. Mrs. W. K. Hunter and Mrs. H. P. Dutton will serve.

Evanston Auxiliary.

A Valentine's day luncheon meeting of the young woman's auxiliary of the Woman's Club of Evanston will be tomorrow, with Mrs. William Droegemueller, Mrs. W. Scott McDowell, and Mrs. Harold Chason in charge. Mrs. G. M. Conklin, Mrs. C. H. Goelzer, Mrs. Neil B. Ingels, Mrs. C. M. Nison, and Mrs. Richard Oldberg will serve. Nominations and elections will follow the luncheon.

Glencoe Library Club.

"Our Latin American Neighbors" will be discussed by Mrs. Dorothy Fuldheim before the Woman's Library Club of Glencoe at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Mrs. Glenn C. Thompson will introduce her. Hostesses will be Mrs. W. S. Crozier, Mrs. L. E. H. Bellows, Mrs. John F. Adamson, Mrs. Walter C. Hughes, Mrs. Emmett L. Kearney, and Mrs. John A. Armstrong.

Wilmette Catholic Club.

Kathryn Kirschberg will read "The White Steed," by Paul Vincent Carroll, at 1:30 o'clock Friday for members of the Woman's Catholic Club of Wilmette, at the Woman's club, 601 10th street. Mrs. Fred M. Clarke will introduce her.

Neighbors of Kenilworth.

Mrs. Kenneth McAfee will review "Moment in Peking," by Lin Yutang, at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the home of Mrs. B. R. Prall, 558 Ridge road.

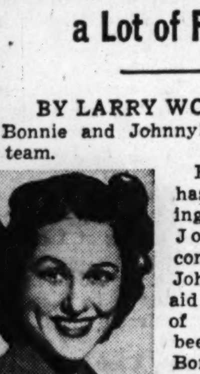
BONNIE IS HAPPY TO GO ON SINGING O'S BY MILLIONS

Singer's Philosophy: Have a Lot of Fun.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bonnie and Johnny! Now there's a team.



Bonnie Baker.

Bonnie Baker has been making America, "O, Johnny, O!" conscious. And Johnny, with the aid of an army of "O's" has been making Bonnie Baker a celebrity.

"I've sung the song a million times, I bet," Dimpled Bonnie exclaims. "And there doesn't seem to be any let up."

And for every time she's sung it, she has turned out from 9 to 21 "O's" depending on the arrangement. To arrive at these millions of "O's" you must recall that she sings the song several times nightly in the Empire Room of the Palmer House. And does it almost nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And Saturday nights on the Hit Parade broadcast. Then there are guest appearances on the radio.

Mililons of Bonnie's "O's."

Besides, more than half a million of "O, Johnny" records have been sold. And in each of these there is a minimum of 21 "O's." All over the country jitterbugs are pushing nickels into groan boxes just as fast as they can to hear those unending melting "O's" pour forth. Almost 350,000 copies of sheet music have been sold. So when you add to Bonnie's "O's" those of a myriad imitators you get a figure comparable to the national debt.

Today fame and fortune are Wee Bonnie's. She takes it all calmly. She's unlike a lot of celebrities. She can't understand her popularity, for one thing. Everything just happened, she says. No credit belongs to her. All of that should go to Orrin Tucker, her boss, she says.

"I owe everything that's happened to Orrin," she says. "He taught me all I know about showmanship; showed me how to use my voice to best advantage. Coached me in every song I've sung. The whole 'O, Johnny' idea was his."

It all started when they were playing an engagement at the Palmer House last year. The floor show had an old fashioned setting. Tucker wanted a song of earlier days for Bonnie to sing in it. One day he started humming a tune he had heard as a kid in Wheaton. It was "O, Johnny" which Abe Olman, a Chicagoan, wrote back in the war year of 1917. That was 23 years ago.

Records Started It Rolling.

Tucker had a time finding a copy of "O, Johnny." Finally he located one in a small shop. The song went over well at the Palmer House. But it wasn't until about six months ago when they recorded it that it started clicking in a big way.

"We got the surprise of our lives," says Bonnie. "The piece caught on and hung like fly paper. And you know the rest."

How does Bonnie explain the craze? She doesn't. Maybe it's because the tune is new to the younger generation. But no, that wouldn't keep it going so long. The little girl way she does it? Or possibly the nursery rhyme effect? [Even two year olds like it, you know.] Bonnie is besieged by mammas and papas everynight who tell her how their kids go for it.

Cute Is Word for Bonnie.

"It's so cute," exclaims Bonnie. "Mothers and fathers come in and have a good time, while maybe the kids are listening at home on the radio. The youngsters hear me at home, but mamma and papa see me in person. To even up matters, they take home a menu on which I've written a little note for the kids."

Cute is the word for Bonnie's interpretation of the song, too. Whether the song made her or she made the song is a matter of speculation. But there is no doubt that people like the combination. Night after night it's a sellout. When she was ill recently for a few nights the customers set up a terrific clamor for her.

A little about Bonnie's career: While attending Mount De Sales academy in Macon, Ga., she sang for school parties. A local orchestra leader saw and signed her. When Tucker first met Bonnie in St. Louis four years ago he recognized possibilities in her pert voice. So he engaged her and she has been with him ever since.

Explains Her Philosophy.

Bonnie was born Evelyn Nelson at Orange, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Leroy Jones travels with her. Bonnie is five feet tall, wears size four shoes; has dark brown eyes; doesn't weigh quite a hundred.

Busy as she is, she has a lot of fun. She enjoys her work a lot. She isn't thinking much about pictures, tho some tentative offers have been made.

"It might be nice to make a movie," she says, "but I like what I'm doing now. I think it makes people unhappy to be too ambitious."

She says she doesn't miss parties and boy friends much.

"I don't have time for such things," she says, "because of my work. Besides I have Toby to take up my leisure time."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Lincoln club of Jackson, Mich., on Thursday, Feb. 15. His address will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Col. McCormick's subject will be "The Attempt to Communize America."

Jackson, Mich., is regarded as a birthplace of the Republican party. Since this is a presidential election year the Lincoln club's meeting is of especial significance. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Allegan County building.

ARTHUR S. HENNING BACK ON W-G-N WITH 'CAPITAL COMMENT'

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has started his sixth annual series of Capital Comment programs on W-G-N. He is heard from 7 to 7:15 p. m. Sundays.

Arthur S. Henning.

Mr. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899; was sent to Washington in 1909 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Mr. Henning is an authority on national politics, having covered 18 national conventions of the two major parties beginning with those of 1904.

STORM BULL TO PLAY ON W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Young Pianist to Offer Grieg Concerto.

Storm Bull, 26 year old Chicago born pianist, will be the guest star on the Pageant of Melody, to be conducted by Henry Weber from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Bull, whose grandfathers were nephews of Ole Bull, famous Norwegian violinist, and first cousins of Edvard Grieg, Norwegian composer, will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Attilio Bagglore, operatic tenor, the octet, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Mr. Weber will be featured in the program with Mr. Bull. Bagglore will sing "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti," from Verdi's "La Traviata," and will join the octet in "O Promise Me," by Reginald De Koven, and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Charles Marshall.

The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture" by Felix Mendelssohn and "Sipapu," by Henry Hadley.

Made His Debut at 15.

Storm Bull made his debut at the age of 15 in Oslo, Norway. He has appeared in a series of concerts abroad, followed by engagements in the United States and Canada, both as soloist with orchestra and in recital.

The Concert Revue, directed by Mr. Weber, usually heard at 9:30 p. m., will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday this week only because of program changes. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will be heard with the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Miss Witwer to Sing.

"O Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," by Serge Rachmaninoff, will be sung by Miss Witwer, with Michael Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Mr. Weber playing the piano.

Other numbers will include "Abu Hassan Overture," by Von Weber; "Prelude to Act I" and "Oriental Dance," from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite," and a string arrangement of Warlock's "Serenade."

Simone Simon is going to try to project her Gallic charm over the radio today. She hasn't appeared before the microphone often. It's true her name was much on the air a season or two back—the comedians just couldn't resist cracks about it.

But when she makes her bow over W-G-N and the Mutual network this afternoon it will be only her third appearance on the air—and her first from Chicago. Mlle. Simon will be the star in today's "Fifth Row Center" program which each Sunday presents a top-notcher in the entertainment world. She will play the lead in "Model Princess," a comedy-drama by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Promises an Earful.

As every moviegoer knows and customers at the Erlanger theater are finding out, Mlle. Simon is an eyeful. She is appearing there in "Three After Three," a musical comedy with tunes by Hoagy Carmichael. And Simone is determined that radio listeners shall have an earful, too!

While she has had limited experience on the air, Mlle. Simon will draw inspiration from the rôle she is to portray: a photographer's model who takes the part of a foreign princess, falling in love with an American — with ensuing complications. For at pictorial performing Simone is good—extra good. Her little-girl cuteness, her soft beguilements, her French flirtaceousness all register well on the eye. Since television is not yet here, listeners will have to get along without that.

But she has a fetching voice, too. An intriguing accent and a saucy, pert personality which should be well absorbed and purveyed by the microphone.

Her Outside Interests.

Rehearsals in New York for "Three After Three" have kept her so busy, she said the other day between matinée and evening performances, that she hasn't had time for any recreation.

When she has leisure time, she said, she likes nothing better than to play the piano—and perhaps sing a little. She does a little warbling in "Three After Three." She doesn't go for sports much. The extent of her exercises at present, she said, is writing an occasional letter! She loves picture making and expects sometime to go back to Hollywood.

"In Three After Three" she is costarred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green. They, too, are to be presented in special W-G-N and Mutual broadcasts. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will provide the musical portion of today's broadcast. Blair Walliser will be the director.

Santa Claus and radio's "Little Orphan Annie" get more letters every year from young children thruout the United States than do any other personalities, according to a survey made last week. Santa ranks first, with little red-headed Annie a close second.

The adventures of Annie are heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 5:45 to 6 p. m. The program is aired over W-G-N and 83 other stations, the largest network hook-up for a daytime script program.

An average of close to one million children have joined the club which Orphan Annie sponsors every year for the last seven years. In addition, Annie receives literally tens of thousands of letters from her youthful admirers every year.

Mutual System Revises Texas Stations' Lineup

Six leading radio stations in Texas, covering over 50 per cent of radio homes in the state, have affiliated with the Mutual network on a revised basis. Each of these stations is independently allied with Mutual. Heretofore they were connected thru the facilities of the Texas State Network.

The stations are: WRR, Dallas; KFJZ, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KABC, San Antonio; KNOW, Austin; WACO, Waco. Service will be continued to six other Texas stations: KRBC, Abilene; KBST, Big Spring; KGKL, San Angelo; KRRV, Sherman; KTEM, Temple; KCMC, Texarkana.

Sailing Fan

Alice Hill of W-G-N's "Painted Dreams" is starting in early preparing for next summer's boating. She is pictured breaking ice off the hull of a boat to be exhibited at the National Boat and Sports show at Navy pier this week. Alice also is featured in "Backstage Wife" at NBC.

SORORITY PARTY PROCEEDS TO AID MOUNTAIN FOLK

Alpha O. Alumnæ Give Benefit Saturday.

Alpha Omicron Pi sorority is beginning its 10th year of a unique activity, the support of the social service branch of the Frontier Nursing service, deep in the heart of the Kentucky mountains.

Mrs. John Powers.

To contribute to this national philanthropic work of the sorority the North Shore alumnæ of Alpha Omicron Pi will hold a Monte Carlo party and dance Saturday evening in their chapter house, 626 Emerson street, Evanston. Mrs. John Powers, 6232 North Hoyne avenue, is active in the committee arranging the party.

Nurses Face Hardships.

The sorority's 10,000 members throughout the country contribute $3,000 annually to the Frontier Nursing service, a philanthropic organization whose nurse-midwives penetrate the loneliest region where distances between cabins is formidable. They travel on horseback, fording swollen streams, scaling icy slopes, carrying sick infants for miles to their one hospital, riding in the night with all haste to reach a mother in childbirth.

The sorority's dollars buy glasses and crutches for mountain families who usually do not see $100 in cash thruout the year. In these regions crutches are a luxury to little boys to cannot get around without them, a luxury they could never afford if some outside help were not forthcoming.

Medical supplies and education also are provided by the Frontier Nursing service through the A. O. P. social service gift. Besides the fixed annual contribution, alumnæ of the sorority make new clothing, layettes, overalls, and dolls for the mountain folk, and collect used garments to augment the new ones.

Pioneers in Service.

They thus help care for 12,000 Kentucky residents. Moreover, the Frontier Nursing service has pioneered in this type of medical and social aid, so that the area has become a proving ground for rural medicine-social service work, according to Mrs. W. C. Drummond, 610 Hinman avenue, Evanston. Former national president of A. O. P., she has made several visits to the area, accompanying nurses on their rounds on horseback. She has seen visitors from China, Spain, and the United States Indian service come to the Kentucky hills to observe the technique of the F. N. S.

When the North Shore alumnæ exceeds its quota toward the national philanthropic fund, the excess goes toward a special fund started last year. Named the Mary Dee Drummond special educational fund, in tribute to Mrs. Drummond, it will be used to give high school education to selected mountain children.

Mrs. P. W. Wolf of 2108 Fargo avenue has charge of the Monte Carlo party for members, their escorts, and guests. She is being aided by Mrs. Powers, Mrs. Carl Groth, Mrs. F. E. Godfrey, Mrs. Nicholas Harrison, Mrs. Kenneth Ford, Miss Margaret Goble, Mrs. J. J. Krueger, Mrs. J. H. Lapperro, Mrs. W. K. Tell, Mrs. Virlon Rice, Miss Rosemary Steuber, Miss La Vern Giles, Mrs. R. C. Suhr, and Miss Dorothy Robins.

Alpha Chi Omega.

The six Chicago and North Shore groups of Alpha Alpha chapter of Alpha Chi Omega will meet at a tea from 2:30 to 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the chapter house on Northwestern university campus. They will have as guests members of the Alpha Phi Alpha alumnæ chapter of Oak Park, the Du Page County Alumnæ club, the Gamma chapter from Northwestern, and the Mothers' club.

Natalie Purcell Weber of Evanston, known to north shore amateur theater groups, will give an interpretation of Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara." Mrs. Harry C. Daley of Evanston is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Ernest A. Potter of Evanston, Mrs. C. B. Gwynn Jr. of Bannockburn, Mrs. Laurence Dibble of Mount Prospect, and Miss Enid Walden of Chicago.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

North Side Hadassah.

The North side district of Hadassah, women's Zionist organization, will meet at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Harry Berkman will speak. Mrs. Edward B. Diamondstone is president.

Medal Winners at Waukegan

Ten of the 329 medals presented by The Chicago Tribune to outstanding cadets in 69 universities, colleges, high schools, and military academies in the midwest this semester went to the Waukegan Township High school R. O. T. C. unit recently. The boys who were selected by their instructors for their distinguished records are (back row, left to right), Corp. Harold Pillifant, Staff Sergeant Donald Woodard, Second Lieutenant John Van Sickle, and Maj. Thomas Tinsley, and (front row) Cadets Jerry Knox, Albert Jorn, Robert Klema, Eugene Bleck, and Bob Weismantel. Sergt. Robert Tornquist, who also was given a medal, is not in the picture. LENTEN VOCABULARY.

Lent: Anglo Saxon word for spring. Old English, Lencten; French, Carême; Italian, Quaresima; Spanish, Cuaresma. [These refer to the 40 days.] Greek, likewise 40, or Tessaracost—like Pentecost, 50 days after Easter—in earlier days, nowadays its Nesteia, the fast. Latin, Quadragesima. German, Lenz. Lent first mentioned in Christian history in fifth canon of council of Nicea, 325 A. D. under name of Tessaracost.

Shrove Tuesday. Day before Ash Wednesday. Hearing confession before Lent. To shrive is to hear a confession. Also called Mardi Gras—French for Fat Tuesday—when meat can be eaten without restraint, or Carni Vale [carnivals get their name here], "Goodbye Meat!"

Ash Wednesday. Also called Quadragesima by Latins. First day of lent or 40 week days until Easter. Sundays, being "little Easters," are not days "of" Lent but "in" it. Ashes refer to traditional symbol of sorrow for sin. These generally come from burned palms of previous Palm Sunday.

Passion Sunday. Fifth Sunday in Lent. Penumbra of Holy Week when vicarious trial and sufferings of Christ are foreshadowed.

Palm Sunday. Sixth Sunday in Lent. Ushers in Holy week which closes with Easter E'ven at noon on Holy Saturday.

Good Friday. The day of the death of Christ on the cross.

MORNING ROOM RETURNS TODAY IN MODERN NOOK

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The "morning room" of half a century ago is now definitely with us again; so much so that in homes without number it almost rates as "standard equipment."

Today, however, instead of belonging to very large and impressive homes, and being quite an impressive feature itself, it has taken on a delightful informality, and is found in kitchens that are equally informal and simple.

There is a handsome kitchen in a new home in Glenview which has just such a "morning room." This room, built into the kitchen proper, could be called a "breakfast booth," since it is composed of table and benches, and the back of one bench makes possible an additional working surface in the kitchen at right angles to the sink.

A very gay little breakfast booth it is, too, brought alive by the yellow painted walls and blue painted ceiling. And a very important spot in the home.

Has Venetian Blinds.

Both a kitchen and a "morning room" should be bathed in light where this is possible. With the market abounding in so many fascinating materials for walls and ceiling and floors, it is important to keep in mind that the colors on those walls and ceilings will have an effect on how much light you get in the rooms. For ceilings and walls can intensify light or absorb it. Careful tests have been made of different shades and what they will do for a room.

How Colors Reflect.

White, of course, reflects more of the total available color light than any other color. It reflects some 80 per cent of all the light that touches it! Cream and light ivory come next, reflecting some 71 per cent. Then there's apricot beige, reflecting 66 per cent; lemon yellow, 65 per cent; deep ivory, 59 per cent; light buff, 56 per cent; peach and salmon, 53 per cent, and pale green, 51 per cent.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 5.

Why not plan to plant nut trees in the yard for beauty and fruit? There are many suburban yards that have room for several; even one is an asset. The pignut is not large and the foliage is clean and handsome. The shagbark hickory will stand a lot of abuse and the shaggy bark is distinct. The black walnut, butternut, and the hybrid pecans and chestnuts are worth a place in any yard. But give them good care at all times.

Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Frequently grass does poorly under trees and it is desirable to use other plants. Among these are the myrtle of vinca minor and the ajuga reptans rubra [purpleleaf bugle]. The myrtle is almost evergreen and spreads rapidly. The ajuga is excellent as an edging plant and may be clipped into form.

Wednesday, Feb. 7.

It soon will be time to begin sowing the seed of some annuals for early planting. The seed may be ordered now and sowing begun in March. Petunias, phlox, verbena, flowering tobacco, cosmos, heliotrope, torenia, early asters, scarlet sage, and others are all started early. But remember that it is a waste of seeds to sow the seed thickly.

Thursday, Feb. 8.

Don't forget the birds. Hang suet on the branches of trees and scatter chick feed where birds can reach it. Build a shelter for them out of evergreen boughs, cornstalks, or the materials that are at hand. Birds consume an endless amount of insects, but in times of stress they must be aided. Work over and paint bird houses now while outdoor activities are halted.

Friday, Feb. 9.

Potted bulbous plants are now on the market. Give flowering pot plants plenty of water and, if they are bulbous, keep them growing until the leaves turn yellow; then place in the basement, withholding water. Tulips and hyacinths can be planted in the garden next fall. Do not throw narcissi plants away, but cure the bulbs and plant out in the fall.

Saturday, Feb. 10.

Have you ever noticed the size of the pots the florist uses? They seem small to the amateur, for he tends to use large pots, sometimes much larger than the plants require. Try to keep the plants in as small pots as possible, for an excess of soil and too much water may prevent the roots from getting the air they need and a saturated condition may be very injurious.

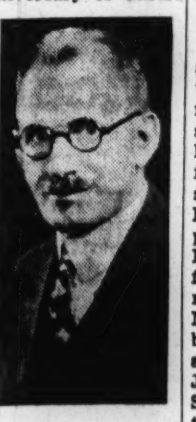
Christ Church and Snyders Will Celebrate Anniversary

Of all the families who will celebrate the 40th anniversary of Christ church [Presbyterian], 2000 Orchard street, Thursday evening in the church, probably none will be more numerous or more joyous than that of Howard E. Snyder.



Howard E. Snyder.

Mr. Snyder was the first clerk of session, the only clerk they've ever had, and still is clerk of session, as the committee in charge is known. He is 71 years old. He has six children and 18 grandchildren, nine of whom are still in Sunday school at Christ church.

Two of his sons-in-law, Elmer Engquist and Wilbur H. Brel, are elders, and another, Raymond J. Klooster, is a trustee.

Recalls Mission Days.

Mr. Snyder remembers Christ church in the year before it was a church, when it was the Howe Street mission, located on Howe between Willow and Center [now Armitage avenue] streets.

"I was 12 years old when I first started going to the Howe street mission," he said. "Fullerton avenue was the city limit then, and beyond there was only sand dunes and woods. The mission was in a frame building 50x100 feet. I remember the swinging doors, and I remember the first Sunday in November, 1887, when we marched out of them, 300 strong, to Orchard and Center and our new building. It was called Christ chapel. Thirteen years later it organized as a church."

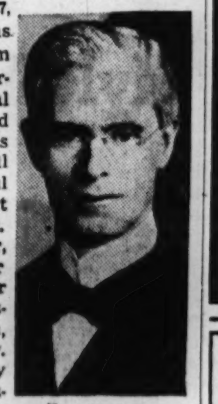
Mr. Snyder lives at 5336 Glenwood avenue. He retired several years ago after being with Marshall Field & Co. for 50 years in the traffic department.

Eighteen of its 183 charter members still attend Christ church. Most of them will be at the celebration, and former pastors and members will be there.

Charter Trustee Attends.

Henry Frost, 85 years old, a charter trustee of the church, still attends every Sunday. He resides with his daughter, Mrs. Lucille Goetzelmann of 3820 Lakewood avenue. Max E. Engelhard of 4515 North Richmond street, a charter member, is now an active elder, and his wife still is active in women's work.

The Rev. David Creighton of Sheldon, Ill., who became minister of the chapel in 1897, the year he was graduated from the old McCormick Theological seminary, and later the church's first pastor, will speak. Dr. Paul H. Fuller, present pastor; the Rev. H. Ray Berger, former pastor now with Crerar Memorial Presbyterian church, and the Rev. John Timothy Stone, former pastor of Fourth Presbyterian church, also will talk.



Rev. David Creighton.

The mission was organized by the Second Presbyterian church in 1843, at Kinzie and Wells streets. Later the Fourth Presbyterian church sponsored it, and Mr. Snyder remembers when a busload of teachers, drawn by horses, used to travel from the Fourth to the mission every Sunday, rain or shine.

Edward G. Gedelman, 3121 Eastwood avenue, an original elder, now is an elder in the Buena Memorial church, but will return for the festivities. So will Arnold J. Lethen, an original elder and first superintendent of the Sabbath school. He now lives at 724 Central street, Evanston.

SPIRITUAL CALL OF LENT WILL ECHO IN LOOP

Daily Rites Scheduled in Theaters.

Chicago's loop as well as the hundreds of churches of the city will rise to the spiritual call of Lent which begins in penitential ashes on Wednesday. The Erlanger and Harris theaters will open their doors each Lenten noon to worshipers, and the Grand Opera house, with its year round noonday services, will emphasize Lent's message.

Dr. Martin Anderson.

Thousands of Catholic executives and workers in the loop will go to noonday masses at Holy Name cathedral and other inner city churches. At the Harris theater the pioneer noonday service under Episcopal Church club auspices will open on Wednesday with Bishop Henry Wise Hobson of Cincinnati as the preacher. As at the Lutheran services at the Garrick, the meeting will begin at 12:10 p. m. and close at 12:30. The Lutheran services will be broadcast over station WIND.

Will Preach Wednesday.

Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran synod's eastern district, will be the Erlanger Ash Wednesday preacher. He will be succeeded on Thursday by the Rev. Theodore E. Matson, regional secretary of the home missions society of the Augustana synod, and on Friday by Dr. Fred W. Otterbein of North Austin United Lutheran church. There will be no Erlanger or Harris services on Saturdays.

On successive weeks during Lent the Episcopal Church club will present the following preachers: The Rev. Donald H. Wattley, of New Orleans, La.; the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of New York; the Very Rev. Roland W. Philbrook of Davenport, Ia.; the Very Rev. Austin Pardue of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese will be the holy week preacher as in previous years.

The Lutheran committee has obtained representative preachers from various synods for the successive weeks. Dr. T. F. Gullixson, Minneapolis, Minn., of the Norwegian synod, will be the preacher for the week of Feb. 12. The Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Cleveland, O., of the Missouri synod, will preach during the week of Feb. 23.

Other Preachers Listed.

Other weeks, successively, will feature the Rev. Franklin C. Fry, Akron, O., of the United Lutheran church; the Rev. Edgar Carlson of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn.; the Rev. Joseph Knutson, Lake Mills, Minn., Norwegian synod, and the Rev. Walter Schutte, Sewickley, Pa., of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. Andrew Gih, Chinese evangelist, will be the principal Ash Wednesday preacher at the Grand Opera house, where services are conducted by the Christian Business Men's committee. Dr. Dan Gilbert, California religious author, will also speak. Grand Opera house services continue from 12 noon until 1 o'clock, but are divided in two parts, with a separate speaker for each.

Noonday masses will be offered at the following Catholic churches near the loop: Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets; Church of the Assumption, Illinois and Orleans streets; Old St. Mary's, South Wabash avenue and 9th street, and St. Patrick's, Adams and Desplaines streets.

New York's Trinity Pastor to Talk in Orchestra Hall

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, New York City, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be, "Hopes That Have Root." During the absence of Clifford W. Barnes, president, trustees of the club will conduct the meetings. Edward Hall Taylor and Edward K. Welles will officiate tonight. The Girls' Glee club of North Central college, Naperville, directed by Miss Mary Cook, will sing at the 7 o'clock meeting.

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO ADDRESS CARROLL FORUM NEXT SUNDAY

Archduke Felix of Austria will address the Charles Carroll forum next Sunday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. The Rev. James A. Magner, founder and chairman, will preside. Discussing "The Reconstruction of central Europe," the archduke will outline the plan of a democratic Danubian federation as the best plan for the solution of the cultural, economic, and political problems of the Balkan states. Archduke Felix was born in Vienna in 1916, attended the University of Louvain, Belgium, and ended his military training at Wiener Neustadt, the equivalent of West Point. He fled from Austria after the late Chancellor Schuschnigg announced the postponement of the plebiscite, and is the first of the Hapsburg family to visit the United States.

Archduke Felix.

CELEBRATE 30TH YEAR OF SCOUTING

STALWART ROTC, A HUSKY YOUTH, COMES OF AGE

21 Years' Growth in City Recalled.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Chicago's Reserve Officers' Training corps will have reason to celebrate 21 years of growth and progress when it comes of age this month. The reason is that it has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools who headed the R. O. T. C. for 15 years and who now is R. O. T. C. administrator for the board of education.

Maj. Beals. [U. & U. photo.]

Because Maj. Beals has watched the local military unit grow from a gray uniformed, baby cadet corps in 1917-'18, he can tell the story of how it grew and why today it ranks as the largest and one of the best junior corps in the nation. In proof of its quality, Maj. Beals points to the fact that last spring army inspectors gave either an "excellent" or "honor" rating to 26 of the 27 city units, the best examination record the Chicago schools have ever had.

Has Growing Popularity.

"I believe it has expanded steadily from year to year because of its fundamental popularity with principals, teachers, and parents, as well as students," he says. "Students always enjoy being cogs in an active organization, and principals, teachers, and parents came to like it because they saw the obvious benefits it worked in the boys and the service it was giving the school and community."

Credit for its progress, he believes, must also be given to civic minded citizens like Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone company, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, whom Maj. Beals calls the "father of the Chicago R. O. T. C."

"What are its biggest benefits to a boy?" Maj. Beals says: "I would list them this way: [1] it gives him increased self-respect, [2] it increases his interest in personal appearance, [3] it develops self-confidence, [4] it develops interest in the welfare of others, [5] it gives him a living, breathing organization of which he is a part, and [6] it gives him a sense of his own importance as a member of the community.

When Maj. Beals came to the Chicago board of education in 1917, a makeshift "cadet corps" had been organized. Rifles were furnished by the government but gray uniforms had to be supplied by a citizen's uniform committee, of which Angus Hibbard was chairman. In January, 1919, however, owing to the efforts of Mr. Hibbard, Col. McCormick, and Maj. Beals, the board of education gave permission for a delegation to go to Washington and ask for a government operated R. O. T. C. for Chicago.

First Enrollment Drops.

A month later 14,000 Chicago high school boys were enrolled in the R. O. T. C. with uniforms, rifles, and regular army instructors supplied by the war department. The following year Maj. Beals was made professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago unit and supervisor of physical education in the schools.

The huge enrollment was short lived, however, for in 1919 the army was demobilized and comparatively few officers and noncoms were available as instructors. Chicago's authorized registration was slashed to 3,000 cadets. Since then it has been increased year by year as more students indicated their desire to be admitted.

Maj. Beals continued as head of the corps until 1932, when he was succeeded by Capt. Edmond C. Fleming, who retired a year later. The position was assigned to Lieut. Col. John D. Holtzendorff for a little more than two years.

Lauds Morrison Record.

In 1935 his place was taken by Col. William F. Morrison, currently heading the unit, whom Maj. Beals believes is most responsible for the exceptional progress of the corps during the last five years. Col Morrison had been transferred from duty as chief of staff of the artillery group of the 7th corps area in Iowa. He is a graduate of West Point and was an instructor there from 1906 to 1910.

In accounting for the steady growth of Chicago's R. O. T. C. in his book, "Associations of Choice," Angus Hibbard observes that "school authorities have continued to testify that the R. O. T. C. is the backbone of order and discipline in the Chicago high schools."

Amateur Poets to Convene in Loop Thursday Night

The northwest side chapter of the Poets' Practice club will hold open house for amateur poets and take applications for memberships at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Lyon & Healy building, Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard. Miss Huldah Schaublin will read some of her poems.

Friend to Man Builds Retreat at Roadside

"Let me live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man."—Sam Walter Foss.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders has such a house. He wanted it before he was a minister. He wanted it when he was an idealistic young man who loved the hills, farms, woods, and friends. He went to war and came back undisillusioned.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders.

Today the Rev. Mr. Sanders, whom everybody calls "Sandy," lives on a hill top in Palos woods. The speed-traveled Southwest highway at 127th street passes his door winding its way to St. Louis. A friendly sign stops those who are heartsore.

He gives his house a staid name. But that is only because he is compromising with the times and trying to attract young people who would shy away from a psychological clinic. He calls it the Community Center foundation. It is not a settlement, not a religious retreat, nor a civic caucus. It is 45 acres of farm, 15 acres of woods, and a lodge filled with kerosene lamplight, candles, fireplaces, and books. Right now snow covered trees and hills are its only decorations.

Book Changed His Life.

A year before the first great world war the Rev. Mr. Sanders, then young and indefinite, read a book. He had read many books before that, but this one changed his life. It was called "The Master of the Inn" and was written by Robert Herrick. It told of a doctor, physically ill, who built an inn where reclaimed men "found themselves by work, play, and fellowship."

Sandy laid down his book and went to war, but unlike those about him who began to think of lives in terms of hunting, he saw only a greater need for the leisure life, for time to read and plow and pray. He came back wanting to build his inn.

To build his inn, however, he needed to know the lay of the land. He went to the University of Illinois where he was graduated from the agricultural school. Before that he had studied medicine, but he still knew the limitations of his knowledge. He couldn't tell men how to reconstruct their lives by instructing them how to plant a field of hay or telling them the symptoms of angina pectoris. So he turned to theology at the University of Chicago.

Takes Up Psychology.

Even that was not enough. He took up psychology and sociology at Northwestern university and came away determined to find his Shangri-La. Assisted by Dr. William Bailey of Northwestern he made a survey of Chicagoland and found a little church in Worth which had 10 members, two of whom were inactive. That was in 1924. The Rev. Mr. Sanders took the church and gradually gathered around him an interdenominational parish of seven congregations.

Into the picture came an old man whose life had been spent with trees and hills, plowed fields and the books of Emerson, Thoreau, and Abbé Fabre. Most of the people in the Palos district knew him only as "the hermit," altho his name was Ernest G. Warner. Several had seen him on occasion put his arms around a tree and mumble to himself of "woodland friends." They thought him queer and avoided his farm, altho it adjoined the most beautiful section of the forest preserves.

It was in the plan of things that simple, nature loving Mr. Warner was to meet Paul Sanders, university trained medical man, scientific farmer, minister, psychologist, and humanitarian. Several years these two spent together, the old man dreaming dreams and the young man seeing visions, each certain of the peace gained by an ear atune to "God's deeper harmonies."

Resigns from Parish.

With a gift of 10 acres from the Warner property in 1928, the Rev. Mr. Sanders resigned from his parish and took the first steps towards the realization of his project. He incorporated the center as a nonprofit institution "to serve all mankind regardless of creed, socially, physically, mentally, and spiritually."

An old barn was turned into the lodge, Fellowship house, by a group of girls and boys who eagerly followed Sandy's footsteps.

"The foundation's ends," says Sandy, "could only be accomplished if it materialized thru the experience of the people."

First the lodge doors opened to persons from the immediate vicinity, then to those from Chicago, and finally to others from state after state until last year when more than 9,000 persons from 21 states and five foreign countries were served by the center.

The entire Warner property, valued at $60,000, had been turned over to the foundation upon the death of the old naturalist. There are now six buildings on the land, a girls' dormitory given by Adam Int-Hout of Homewood in memory of his wife, a poetess; a boys' dormitory donated by Dr. Pasquale de Carlo, head of Garibaldi institute; a mess hall built by boys from an old horse shed in Orland Park; a guest house erected of box car lumber; Fellowship house, and the old brick Warner farmhouse which serves as a school.

Chefs of the Mulligan Stew

Too many cooks might spoil broth but not Mulligan stew. No less than four Boy Scouts are needed to prepare the favorite dish of campers over an open fire when the snow is falling. It takes teamwork—the kind of co-operative spirit that the Scout movement has fostered among American boys since it was founded 30 years ago this week. To commemorate that anniversary these four northwest side Scouts (left to right), Michael Livorsi, John Hennes, Robert Bennett, and Charles Doering, will join with more than 1,250,000 others in the country to attend special church services next Sunday, hold powwows, entertain parents at open meetings, go camping, do good turns, and in other ways celebrate National Boy Scout week beginning next Thursday.

ASHLAND RATED MOST DANGEROUS OF CITY STREETS

39 of 46 Victims Were Pedestrians.

Chicago's most dangerous street from the standpoint of traffic deaths is Ashland avenue. Forty-six persons were killed on this thorofare last year. The toll was 42 in 1938. Western avenue, with a death toll of 36 persons, ranks as the second most dangerous street.

These facts came to light last week in the findings of an annual survey of traffic deaths issued by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Pedestrians are the majority of victims in the city's traffic accidents, the report shows. Of the 46 killed on Ashland avenue 39 were pedestrians, and 22 pedestrians were among the 36 fatalities on Western avenue.

Cautions the Pedestrian.

"We have attempted to show in this annual survey of traffic deaths in Chicago the appalling rate among pedestrians," Mr. Fleming said. "Without regard as to whether the motor vehicle driver or the pedestrian is to blame, the report should make Chicago residents more traffic safety conscious."

Streets running north and south were found to have more traffic fatalities than either east or west or diagonal streets. Streets covered in the survey are the most heavily traveled in the city.

North avenue led the east and west streets with 18 deaths. In 1938 North avenue and Roosevelt road tied for the east-west death toll lead, each having 17 deaths. Last year Roosevelt road showed a decrease of six fatalities. Irving Park road went up last year on the death chart with a total of 17 deaths as compared to 10 in 1938.

13 Die on Racine.

With a death score of three in 1938, Racine avenue climbed to a total of 13 last year. Seventy-ninth street had no deaths in 1938, but in 1939 ten persons were killed in traffic accidents. The death toll on Indiana avenue rose from five in 1938 to ten last year.

Streets whose last year's death toll dropped from the previous year include Archer avenue, with nine in 1939 as against 19 in 1938; Sheridan road, with one last year as against seven in 1938; Clark street, five as compared with 10 in 1938; Damen avenue, seven against eleven in 1938; Belmont avenue, three as against seven in 1938; Division street, two as against nine; Jackson boulevard, eight as against 13, and Washington boulevard, seven against 11. Warren boulevard's 1939 toll of 12 victims remained the same as the 1938 figure.

Kiwanians to Hear Talk on Lincoln's Assassination

Dr. Otto Eisenschiml, author of the book "Why Was Lincoln Murdered?" will speak before the Kiwanis club of Logan Square Tuesday noon at 2529 North Kedzie boulevard. The subject of his talk will be "The Drama of Lincoln's Assassination."

POLISH PHARMACIST ASSOCIATION TO HAVE PARTY TOMORROW

Tomorrow night will be ladies' night for the Polish American Pharmacists' association. To celebrate the event the pharmacists will hold a dinner dance in the Wonderland ball room, 2940 Milwaukee avenue. Edward R. Derengowski, 841 North Kolin avenue, is chairman of the committee, and is aided by Henry E. Kunka, Stanley Bartecki, Philip Feleman, and Stephen Mickol. John Wisniewski is president of the association. Favors will be given to all the women.

SUBURB CHURCH TO REDECORATE ITS SANCTUARY

Almost unanimously the congregation of St. John's Evangelical church in Arlington Heights voted at the recent annual business meeting to redecorate and refurnish the church sanctuary for Easter. The Rev. R. J. Kalwitz, pastor, estimates that the work will cost between $1,200 and $1,500. Part of this sum was set aside in last year's budget.

The congregation is accumulating a building fund, started in 1927, in order to erect a new church. In the meantime, smaller redecorating projects will be carried out. The Rev. Mr. Kalwitz is chairman of a decorating committee composed of Dick Friedrichs Jr., Barnie Runge and Walter Duenn.

Furniture will be selected by a committee composed of Herbert Hammerl, chairman, assisted by Herbert Becker and William Bleile.

New officers installed at the meeting include John Bencic of Mount Prospect, president; Miss Virginia Deering, Mount Prospect, recording secretary; Mr. Hammerl, financial secretary; Mr. Runge, treasurer; Mr. Bleile, deacon; Mr. Duenn, trustee; Willard Landmeier, delegate to all conferences; Mr. Friedrichs Jr., Mount Prospect; Charles Vogel, finance committeeman, and the Rev. Mr. Kalwitz, treasurer of benevolences.

Council officers who retained their positions are Richard Runge of Mount Prospect and Mr. Becker, deacons, and William Fredericks, trustee. Emil F. Baumgarten retired from the presidency, Frank Runge, former treasurer, was made chairman of the cemetery fund, and William Deering of Mount Prospect retired as deacon and Charles Pingel as trustee.

Card Party Tomorrow.

The Mothers' committee of St. Angela's Girl Scout troop will hold a card party tomorrow evening in the St. Angela parish hall, Potomac and Massasoit avenue. Mrs. Ray St. Aubin, 1357 North Waller avenue, is chairman.

17 TO RECEIVE DE PAUL DEGREES TUESDAY NIGHT

Loyola to Graduate 3 Northwest Siders.

Seventeen northwest side students are among the candidates for degrees from De Paul university to be presented at the midyear convocation exercises at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in St. Vincent's church, Webster and Sheffield avenues. Three others will receive degrees from Loyola university at the 11 o'clock exercises Tuesday morning in St. Ignatius auditorium, 1320 Loyola avenue.

The Rev. Francis Xavier McCabe, a member of the Vincentian Mission band and a former president of De Paul, will address the De Paul graduates on "The World of Today." The Very Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president, will confer the degrees. During his presidency, Father McCabe organized the first summer school in 1911 and started co-education for women in Catholic colleges in the middle west.

Candidates for Degrees.

Northwest side candidates include Bernice Theresa Powroznik, 2659 North Parkside avenue, master of arts in education; Sister Mary Regina Mix, S.S.N.D., 5803 Strong street, master of arts in history; John M. Klem, 5018 North Troy street, master of education, and Gertrude E. Johnson, 3256 Pierce avenue, and Margaret M. Johnson, 3501 Belden avenue, bachelor of science in education.

Rites at Loyola.

At Loyola the Rev. Edward F. Maher, dean of men and chairman of the athletic board, will deliver the invocation and the Rev. Jerome V. Jacobsen, history professor, will be the commencement speaker. The Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, president, will confer 58 degrees and 3 diplomas.

Edward Churchill, 1008 North California avenue, will receive a bachelor of science in education and Sister Mary Angela, 1515 North Oakley avenue, and Mrs. Bernice Wingfield, 1715 North McVicker avenue, masters of arts.

Plainsmen Club to Hold Valentine Dance Saturday

The Plainsmen Athletic club will hold its fourth annual Valentine dance next Saturday night in the ballroom of the Northwest Lions club, 4306 North avenue. The dance committee consists of John Springer, Edward Hess, Hans Helfritch, Phalls McMaster, and Frank Mulkerin. New officers are Homer Anderson, president; Thomas Best, vice president, and Stephen Wagner, secretary.

PARK RIDGE C. OF C. NAMES N. R. M'GREW EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Newton R. McGrew last week was appointed executive secretary of the Park Ridge Chamber of Commerce. He succeeds Claude E. Merrill who has held the office since 1934. Mr. McGrew attended Northwestern university for two years; then transferred to Knox college where he was graduated last February. Since his graduation he has been employed as a teller in the Citizens State bank, Park Ridge. He is now the manager of the Park Ridge Credit bureau. Son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. McGrew of Des Plaines, he resides with his wife at 6486 Newark avenue, Norwood Park.

CHRIST CHURCH AGAIN TO OFFER LENTEN MUSIC

This season brings the 10th anniversary of the twilight Lenten devotions and sacred recitals which are presented at Christ Lutheran church, Richmond street and McLean avenue. For a decade the church Music guild has endeavored to deliver the message of the cross thru sacred music, especially Lutheran music, at these Sunday afternoon vesper services.

The scheduling of recital groups and speakers is delegated to the church council, assisted by the music director, Reinhold Arkebauer, and the pastor, the Rev. Walter G. Dippold. Dr. H. T. Rink is chairman of the council. The guild, of which Paul Schiewe is chairman and Miss Clara Sieg is secretary treasurer, has been supported in its work by the congregation and friends.

More than 750 patrons of the recitals have registered with the Twilight committee and requested information on all programs.

Dr. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri synod, for the seventh consecutive year will open the anniversary series at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon. The recital will be presented by the church's Euphonia choir, directed by Mr. Arkebauer.

The children's chorus of Tabor Evangelical Lutheran church, directed by J. G. Rieck, and the Rev. A. M. Rehwinkel, professor of Concordia seminary in St. Louis, will be featured on the Feb. 18 program.

The third twilight hour, Feb. 25, will present the Chicago Bach singers, directed by Mme. Elsa Harthan Ahrend, who will sing the choral numbers of Bach's "B Minor Mass."

Singers and speaker for the last service on March 3 will come from Milwaukee. Gerhard Schroth directs the Walther League chorus of 74 singers who will give the recital and the Rev. C. H. Harman, a Milwaukee pastor, will preach.

Author to Lecture.

The Rev. Kirby Page, author of books on economic, social and religious questions, will lecture Tuesday night at North Park college, Foster and Kedzie avenues.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

THE congregation of St. Adrew's Lutheran church, Park Ridge, last Sunday gave a testimonial dinner for the Rev. A. H. Semmann on the fifth anniversary of his pastorate in the suburb. A gift was presented to the minister by Edward Miller as the representative of the societies of the church.

The Rev. A. H. Semmann.

In the five years since he came from Waterloo, Ia., the Rev. Mr. Semmann has not only built up his own church, but he has also been active in the affairs of the Missouri synod. He is chairman of Illinois district of the synod and former chairman of the Lutheran publicity bureau of greater Chicago. He is also the superintendent of the Chinatown mission of Chicago.

During the world war he was chaplain for the Lutheran church in Washington, D. C. Later he was for 16 years the secretary of the Iowa district of the Lutheran church and a member of the board of directors.

Admitted to the inner ranks of the scholastically élite last week were five young men and women from Our Town who are studying at North Park Junior college. They were elected to Phi Theta Kappa, national honorary fraternity for junior colleges corresponding to Phi Beta Kappa in senior schools. Those named were Thomas P. Conforti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Conforti, 5415 North Sawyer avenue; Phyllis K. Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crawford, 3655 North Avers avenue; Eleanor Hassmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hassmann, 5342 North Spaulding avenue; Wallace Koehler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Koehler, 4005 Wellington avenue, and Lorraine Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Miller, 4019 North Major avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pinkos, 1351 North Ridgeway avenue, entertained their children recently at a party celebrating their 35th wedding anniversary. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pinkos, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Guz, Miss Stella and Bruno J. Pinkos. Two grandchildren, Roman and Edward Guz, were also present.

OUR TOWN will supply six of the 11 players who will appear in the production of "Alison's House," Susan Glaspell's Pulitzer prize winning drama, Tuesday night in the Goodman theater. They won places in the cast by their excellent showings in the Chicago park district's 48 little theaters. The play will be presented under the auspices of the Central group of park district players. Those who have parts are Florence Leites, 3317 Sunnyside avenue; Melvin Shaw, 4838 Belle Plaine avenue; Edward Sesterhenn, 5547 Wilson avenue; Rae E. Mellor, 5425 North Harlem avenue; Hattie A. Lukas, 5349 Lawrence avenue, and Betty Ann Prock, 6207 Diversey avenue.

THREE north side couples celebrated their wedding anniversaries recently. Last Sunday friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. John Hendry, 3835 North Hamlin avenue, congratulated them at a reception in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Earle Rappaport, 3827 North Avers avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Hendry were born in Canada, but they have lived in Chicago since their marriage. Mr. Hendry has been a member of the Independence Improvement club for 25 years and is now the recording secretary. They have two sons, John and Lloyd, and another daughter, Mrs. Margaret Keller.

The seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Criola and more than 200 friends and neighbors attended a golden wedding reception for them recently in Rainbow hall, 333 North avenue. Mrs. Criola is 65 years old and Mr. Criola is 69. They reside at 5306 Bloomingdale avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Simon will hold open house for their friends and relatives today in their home at 4829 Medill avenue. They have been residents of the Cragin community for more than 40 years. Mr. Simon is a retired surface lines motorman who drove a horse on the first car he piloted. They have two sons, Raymond and Fred, and a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Edstron.

Here is the story of how Ellen Seplak won a scholarship at the University of Chicago. Last spring she sang with the Schurz High school solo chorus at a meeting of the Central Rotary club. At the speakers' table was Dean C. F. Huth of the university. He was so impressed with her coloratura soprano voice and warm smile that he remarked: "That is the type of girl, provided her scholarship is right, we would like to encourage to attend the University of Chicago. I would like to do something for her in the way of a scholarship." Her principal, Albert G. Bauersfeld, reminded him of his tentative promise when she graduated two weeks ago, and his reply last week came in the form of a scholarship award. The story has become Mr. Bauersfeld's favorite illustration of his favorite slogan—"It pays to smile."

Latest name on the membership rolls of the Bensenville Lions club is that of Wesley A. Johnson, a teacher in the high school.

23,844 Boys to Take Active Part.

Boy Scouts of the Chicago council, 23,844 of them, will begin this week the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of the movement in the United States.

First of the special events planned will be a council dinner in the Palmer House Thursday night. During the remainder of Scout week, which ends Feb. 14, the 204 troops, Cub packs, Sea Scout ships, and explorer patrols in the northwest district have planned parents' night, special church services, camping trips, and open meetings. On Feb. 12 and 13 scout leaders will open their annual finance drive to raise $100,000 for the support of the scouting program.

The fact that Chicago will be scout conscious next week is due to the efforts of a Chicagoan, William Boyce, who was the father of scouting in the United States. He conceived the idea in 1909 while he was trying to find his way thru a London fog.

Does a Good Deed.

An English boy, seeing that he was bewildered, approached and offered to guide him to his destination. When they arrived Mr. Boyce attempted to pay him for his courteous assistance, but the boy refused.

"Thank you, sir, but I don't take pay for my services," he said. "I am a scout and am glad to be of service. Good night, sir."

Impressed by the boy's reply Mr. Boyce investigated the British Boy Scout association, became enthusiastic about it, and determined to found a similar organization in this country. A year later, on Feb. 8, 1910, the movement was launched officially. The Chicago council was organized in November of that year. The national enrollment now numbers more than 1,250,000 boys and men.

Two of the men who helped to organize the Chicago council are still living and active as members of the executive board. They are Gen. LeRoy T. Steward and Dr. H. W. Gentles. Both are expected to be present at the dinner Thursday.

Dr. Frank to Talk.

Principal speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Glenn Frank, editor of Rural Progress magazine. He will be introduced by Barrett Wendell, dinner chairman and toastmaster.

Other speakers will be R. Douglas Stuart, president of the council; James H. Douglas Jr., chairman of the executive board; W. Arthur McKinney, scout executive; United States District Attorney William J. Campbell, and Rabbi Louis Mann.

Chairman James B. Forgan will present the nominating committee's report for council officers in 1940; Morton J. Bodfish, advancement chairman, will introduce 125 uniformed scouts who have won the Eagle rank in 1939, and Philip P. Sachs, a member of the executive board, will give Silver Beaver awards for leadership to seven men. Among them will be William G. Rowney, 3109 North Drake avenue, northwest district commissioner.

Assistants are Named.

John F. Fennelly, general chairman of the finance campaign, has appointed W. E. Lunt finance chairman of the northwest district and Alex Kaplan assistant chairman. Their workers will open the drive Feb. 12 and continue until March 4.

The scout movement is supported by income from its endowment fund, by a $50,000 gift from the Community fund, and by contributions collected during the finance drive. Most of the money is used in expanding the camping program. Administration of the council is largely done by volunteer workers. Only 23 men receive salaries for their services.

There are 11 camps operated by the Chicago council. Seven are at Owasippe, Mich., three are in the Cook county forest preserves, and there is one in the Dunes near Gary. Last year more than 4,000 boys attended these camps.

Part of the fund raised is used in training leaders in the 141 courses offered by the council. Last year 1,823 training certificates were issued to men who passed tests in some phases of scout leadership. The advancement program, rallies, jamborees, and community good turns are also supported by the general fund.

Services in Churches.

Among the special events planned during Scout week on the northwest side will be the services held in the churches. Most of them are dedicating next Sunday to the scouts.

Among them are the Irving Park Baptist, Wicker Park Lutheran, Logan Square Baptist, Episcopal Church of the Advent, St. Paul's Congregational, St. Viator Catholic, Avondale Methodist, Albany Park Methodist, Nebo Lutheran, Portage Park Presbyterian, Kedzie Avenue Methodist, Grace Evangelical Lutheran, St. Timothy Lutheran, Kimball Avenue United Evangelical, Kelvyn Park Presbyterian, Grace Lutheran church.

St. Andrew's Lutheran church and hold their services on Feb. 18. Gale- First English Lutheran church will wood Congregational church will honor the scouts today, and Congregation B'nai Sholom on Friday night at 8:30 o'clock.

WANTS BUS LINE TO SCHOOL.

It has been five months since our children began to go to the new Taft High school and as yet nothing has been done about creating a permanent system of transportation to the school. It wasn't so bad for the children last fall. They could walk the few blocks from the Northwest highway bus line or ride bicycles and be exposed to nothing more hazardous than a railroad grade crossing and a few dangerous street intersections.

We could be patient about that because we understand that it takes time to extend the bus service. But five months certainly was enough. We should have had the service before cold weather set in and added slush, slippery pavements, and below zero temperatures to the hazards students were already exposed to.

Because of the extreme cold my children missed more than a week of classes which they could have attended had there been any safe way to get them there. How silly it must seem to strangers to put up a $1,000,000 school and then leave it inaccessible! It seems silly to me, too, and I hope to see the condition corrected soon. TAXPAYER.

FEED THE BIRDS!

Birds never had a chance in our neighborhood before this winter. Most of us live in flat buildings and the tiny open spaces between them after the first of November are just drab brown and white patches.

This year it is different. A few of my neighbors and I decided to create a sanctuary right here in the city and the results have been gratifying. Of course, most of the birds we attracted have been common ones—sparrows, starlings, and pigeons. Nevertheless it is a source of real satisfaction to us to watch them pick up the grain we scatter and peck at the lumps of suet we tie to the trees.

And once in a while we are rewarded with something better. During the recent cold weather we entertained two blue jays, a cardinal, and a robin. The greatest attraction seemed to be the pans of warm water that we set out for them to drink. We have enjoyed our visitors so much that we are hopeful that people in other neighborhoods will try attracting them. There is still plenty of time this winter. W. L. EMERSON.

INTRODUCING A FAN.

As long as we can remember we have been constant readers of your daily and Sunday newspapers. Your cartoons, comics, and interpretation of the news make for fascinating reading. It is always well laid out and very easy on the eyes. Your Metropolitan section has often brought us into contact with friends whom we had almost given up hope of seeing again. Some few months ago we placed in your daily want ads an item relating to travel. We are glad to relate we received 29 answers.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Dr. Charles S. Bacon, chief of staff at Booth Memorial hospital, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Tuesday night in the hospital, 5040 North Pulaski road, in recognition of his 16 years of service as head of the institution. Maj. Esther Johnson, hospital superintendent, and a committee from the Salvation Army women's social service department is planning the dinner.

Lieut. Col. Julia Thomas, women's social service secretary in the central states territory, will introduce speakers who will pay tribute to Dr. Bacon and his work. The hospital, which is maintained by the social service department, cares for about 300 unwed mothers and their babies annually.

6,690 Given Care.

Since 1924, the hospital has cared for 6,690 women and infants. The building also provides living quarters for both mothers and children because the Army requires that each patient remain at the hospital at least six months after her baby is born.

Dr. Bacon and his staff of nine physicians contribute their time and services and are on call at all hours. The chief notes with pride that no member of his original staff has resigned, except when two members were called out of the city. Otherwise the changes have been additions only.

Since the turn of the century, Dr. Bacon has been identified with the city's medical progress. A graduate of Beloit college and Northwestern university, he began to practice medicine in 1884. During the '90s he spent several years studying in Germany and Austria.

From 1903 to 1926 he was head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology in the University of Illinois and a co-founder of the old University hospital. With Dr. Joseph B. DeLee and Dr. Frank Carey, he was for many years a medical director of the old Lying-In hospital and one of the amphitheaters in the new hospital bears his name. His service at the university is commemorated in a lectureship established by popular subscription about 10 years ago.

With Dr. Theodore B. Sachs, Dr. Bacon worked on the city's first efforts to prevent and control tuberculosis. He is the only surviving consultant of the original staff of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium founded in 1910.

Will Be 84 in July.

Dr. Bacon will celebrate his 84th birthday next July. He and his wife now reside at 2333 Cleveland avenue. Other members of the family who will attend the dinner are Mrs. Bacon, a son, Ernst Bacon, dean of music at Converse college, Spartanburg, S. C., and a daughter, Miss Madi Bacon, director of music at Roycemore school in Evanston. A third son, Charles Jr., is professor of geology in the Texas Agriculture and Mechanics college, College Station, Tex.

Guests will include the staff physicians and their wives, the hospital nurses, headed by Miss Helen Schnur; Col. William H. Barrett, chief secretary for the Army in the central states territory; Mr. and Mrs. William S. Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Clark. Mrs. Monroe is president and Mrs. Clark vice president of the Army's women's division.

READY TO PLAN ART EXHIBITION BY POLISH CLUB

Final plans for the Polish Arts club exhibit, scheduled for March 3 to 16, will be made at a meeting tomorrow in the home of Mrs. Stephanie Kwiatkowska, 3451 Hirsch street, chairman of the plastic art section. Entry blanks must be filled out and sent to Mrs. Kwiatkowska, accompanied by dues for 1940 from members, and a registration fee of a dollar from nonmembers.

Out of town artists are limited to two entries, local artists to four. The jury, which will judge the entries on Feb. 27, will not consider copies or works previously shown in exhibitions on the northwest side. Mrs. Frank G. Logan is offering an award for the best water color and other cash and purchase prizes will be distributed.

Anthony Milewicz, 2030 Lemoyne avenue, chairman of the club's music section, has announced that applications for the annual contest and debut recital must be filed by March 1. Preliminaries will be held on or after March 15.

Plan Organ Concert Today in First Lutheran Church

A second organ dedication concert will be given at 8 o'clock this evening in the First Lutheran church, 3600 Fullerton avenue. The program will be presented by Trae Ehnborn, harpist; Mabel Heilman, violinist; Edgar Lundberg, organist; Virginia Anderson, vocal soloist, and the senior choir directed by Mr. Lundberg.

Phony Folks Are Funny

YOUTH CHORUS HOBBY EXHIBIT TO BE BENEFIT

Proceeds to Purchase Robes for Singers.

The hobbies of nearly 100 persons will be on display next Thursday and Friday night in Nebo Lutheran church, Menard avenue and Dakin street. The show will be held under the aspices of the Nebo Youth chorus and profits will be used to purchase robes for the choir of 40 youthful voices.

Exhibits will be classified in two groups—those that are entered by children under 12 years and those entered by adults. Judges will award first, second, and third place ribbons to the winners in each group. Hobbyists will be present both evenings to give informative talks about their displays.

Among the more unusual exhibits will be a menagerie collected by Glen Kratt. He will show live guinea pigs, rabbits, white rats, parrots, parakeets, Australian finches, snakes, turtles, frogs, and fish.

Will Show Needlework.

Miss Hannah Thorsson will display a collection of native Swedish needlework. A postcard collection containing 1,200 cards from 30 countries and the 48 states and dating back to 1800 will be exhibited by Miss Gertrude Pettersen.

For 15 years Reuben Larson has been getting the same automobile license number, 60-501, and he will have all of them at the show. Miss Evelyn Thorsson has traveled widely and has made a practice of collecting salt and pepper shakers from interesting localities both in this and other countries. She will have 125 pairs on display.

Lois Garbulsky, Shirley Larson, and Winifred Thime, dolls; Ralph Klotz and Carl Olson, clay modeling; George Struckmeier and Charles Juister, cartoons; LeRoy Begman, model shipbuilding; Dorothy Bjork, woodcarving and needlepoint; Martha Jacobson, quilts and silver spoons; Richard Mueller, drawing.

Other Hobbies Listed.

Frieda Buetow, music manuscripts; Agnes Malmberg, candlesticks; Javanna Peterson, church bulletins; Naomi Johnson, china dogs; Hannah Jacobson, angel figurines; Mrs. Bertha Jacobson, bottles; Raymond Kratt, radio broadcasting scripts, and Robert Olson and Edward Juister, memorial plaques.

Several persons have entered displays from more than one hobby. Most ardent hobbyist is Robert Krueger, who is preparing six exhibits.

Merry Helen Pillsbury, 3232 North Oketo avenue, will be the guest of Phalls McMaster, 3321 North Ozanam avenue, at the Plainsmen's St. Valentine dance next Saturday night in the Lions ballroom, 4306 North avenue. Mr. McMaster is chairman of the dance committee.

NORTHWEST SIDE HAS FOUR MORE WARD CONTESTS

Pociask Enters Lists for Post in 26th.

Four new ward committee contests, two of them Republican and two Democratic, came to light on the northwest side last week. The G. O. P. tussles sprang up in the 28th and 35th wards, while the Democratic fights developed in the 26th and 36th.

In the 26th, Anton A. Pociask, an undertaker, entered the fight against Sanitary District Trustee Joseph T. Baran, who has been acting Democratic committeeman for a year, in place of former Ald. Frank E. Konkowski, who is under sentence for conspiracy in connection with the sale of police jobs.

Pociask was a candidate for alderman last year, forcing the present alderman, Alexander J. Sobota, into a runoff. It was predicted that Sobota would support Baran's candidacy.

In the 28th ward Raymond T. Saxon, driver of an ice cream delivery truck, is challenging Republican Committeeman Joseph A. Porcaro. In the 35th Attorney Alexander J. Ross has entered the lists against his former law associate, G. O. P. Committeeman Frank Peska.

In the 36th ward Michael R. Barrett, insurance man, became the first candidate to oppose former Ald. George W. Robinson, the Democratic county organization's choice as successor to Robinson's father-in-law, Committeeman Harry Kohl, who is ill.

The Air Scouts, a senior Girl Scout troop, will sponsor their fourth annual Heart Hop on Saturday night in Kelvyn Park fieldhouse, Wrightwood and Kostner avenues. Margaret Johnstone, president, and Dorothy Ahlers, program chairman, are in charge of arrangements for the dance. Miss Mildred Lindstrand pilots the troop of girls who are interested in aeronautics.

ROUGH WELCOME FAILS TO DISMAY NEWLYWED PAIR

60 Years Later They Tell of Arrival in City.

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

Early in February, 1880, Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Syvertsen left Oslo, Norway, on a honeymoon trip to the United States. Like most young married couples, they hoped their honeymoon would last as long as they might live, and it is.

Last week as they were preparing to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary both agreed that they were glad they had not ended their bridal tour by going back to Norway. They will entertain their friends and relatives at an open house next Thursday afternoon and evening in their home at 2213 North Lowell avenue.

"This country and this city have given us every happiness we could hope to find," Mrs. Syvertsen said. "I'm sure we couldn't have been so happy anywhere else in the world."

Meet an Early Racketeer.

"The idea of making ours a permanent honeymoon here was also a good one," Mr. Syvertsen added. "Even now I sit at the window and watch for my wife to come home when she has gone shopping or to some club meeting. She accuses me of sulking when she's late and maybe I do a little." Mrs. Syvertsen smiled at this.

There was only once they ever considered returning—the first day they spent in Chicago. They had come here to visit an uncle of Mrs. Syvertsen and had registered in a near north side hotel which catered to immigrants. When they were ready to leave the next morning to go to the relative's home the manager refused to release their baggage.

"He thought we were ignorant and he knew we had some money, so he wanted to keep us there until our bill was larger," Mr. Syvertsen said. "But I had been a clerk in the American consul's office at Oslo and I knew my rights. When I threatened to call a policeman he called a baggage man immediately and let us go.

Another Problem Solved.

"A few minutes later the baggage man asked directions from a man loafing at the corner and after he had told us the way he demanded a large sum of money. When I refused to pay he began to draw a gun. I thought he intended to rob us, so I hit him and knocked him backwards into a ditch six feet deep. We left him there and continued on to our uncle's home.

"At that time we would have been glad to go home. Within a few days, however, we changed our minds about Chicago and decided to stay. I liked it because there was plenty of work to do and the wages were high."

"I liked it because I could do as I pleased," Mrs. Syvertsen declared. "At home it was unheard of for a woman to work outside her home even to the extent of washing her own windows or sweeping her walks. We couldn't even carry our packages home from the markets. Here I found a job in a tailor's shop, did my own shopping, and worked around the outside of my house as much as I wished. It was like being released from jail."

Two Baseball Fans.

Mr. and Mrs. Syvertsen have been residents of the northwest side since they came to Chicago and at their present address for 30 years. Now that Mr. Syvertsen is retired they spend a great deal of time listening to radio broadcasts of the baseball games. Both are Cub fans.

"He thinks his team should never lose," Mrs. Syvertsen said, and her husband nodded agreement to that. "But I think that they have to lose once in a while and I can forgive them when they do. They won't be losing many this year, tho, if they can come up with a good shortstop and a couple of good hard hitting fielders."

Mr. Syvertsen is 82 years old and Mrs. Syvertsen is 81. They have three sons, Hjalmar, Le Roy, and Harold, and four daughters, Mrs. Carrie Swendsen, Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mrs. Walter Schlitz, and Mrs. Ruth Thoring. There are 20 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Athletic Club Auxiliary to Dine on Corned Beef &

Members of the Logan Square Athletic club auxiliary will attend a corn beef and cabbage dinner at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the clubrooms at 2635 North Kedzie avenue. Winners in the pinochle tournament held last year will be announced. Mrs. Pearl Jensen, first vice president, and Mrs. Olympia Wolf, second vice president, are in charge of the scores. Decorations and table arrangements are being handled by Mrs. Marie Poggensee, social chairman, assisted by Mrs. Mae Bredberg and Mrs. Elizabeth Voekel. Mrs. Margaret Gillie is auxiliary president.

Sixty Years Together

Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Syvertsen will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary next Thursday afternoon and evening with an open house for their friends and relatives at their home, 2213 North Lowell avenue. They came to Chicago on their honeymoon in March, 1880, and liked it so well that they never returned. At the time of their golden wedding anniversary 10 years ago they were remarried in St. Timothy's Lutheran church by the Rev. Oliver G. Fjeldstad. They have been members of the church almost since its establishment.

PLAY BY CHOIRS OF CHURCH WILL HELP HOSPITAL

Proceeds from a second performance of "Crocodile Island" this evening in Bethel auditorium, Springfield avenue and Hirsch street, will benefit the Walther Memorial hospital. The hospital alumnæ are sponsoring the play, which will be presented by the senior and junior choirs of Grace church, Parker and Laramie avenues, under the direction of Walter Borchardt.

Will Sponsor Dance.

St. Mathias parish, 4926 North Claremont avenue, will sponsor a bazar tonight and tomorrow night, and a dance and card party Tuesday night. William DeWald is chairman.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

LENTEN VOCABULARY.

Lent: Anglo Saxon word for spring. Old English, Lencten; French, Carême; Italian, Quaresima; Spanish, Cuaresma. [These refer to the 40 days.] Greek, likewise 40, or Tessaracost—like Pentecost, 50 days after Easter—in earlier days, nowadays its Nesteia, the fast. Latin, Quadragesima. German, Lenz. Lent first mentioned in Christian history in fifth canon of council of Nicea, 325 A. D. under name of Tessaracost.

Shrove Tuesday. Day before Ash Wednesday. Hearing confession before Lent. To shrive is to hear a confession. Also called Mardi Gras—French for Fat Tuesday—when meat can be eaten without restraint, or Carni Vale [carnivals get their name here], "Goodbye Meat!"

Ash Wednesday. Also called Quadragesima by Latins. First day of lent or 40 week days until Easter. Sundays, being "little Easters," are not days "of" Lent but "in" it. Ashes refer to traditional symbol of sorrow for sin. These generally come from burned palms of previous Palm Sunday.

Fast. Comes from Anglo Saxon Faestan, meaning, to observe [i. e., to observe abstinence from meat]. Defined by Catholic authorities as being a day in which only one full meal is allowed. Fast and abstinence is defined by Catholic authority as a day in which one full meal is allowed but forbids meat or meat broth.

Lætare Sunday, Rejoicing Sunday. The fourth Sunday in Lent. Also, Mid Lent, Refreshment Sunday, and Micarêm. In some parts of England it's Homing Sunday or Mothering Sunday when schoolboys and apprentices come home to visit.

Passion Sunday. Fifth Sunday in Lent. Penumbra of Holy Week when vicarious trial and sufferings of Christ are foreshadowed.

Palm Sunday. Sixth Sunday in Lent. Ushers in Holy week which closes with Easter E'ven at noon on Holy Saturday.

Good Friday. The day of the death of Christ on the cross.

The Avondale Methodist church will honor three members of its Boy Scout troop next Sunday morning. Two of the boys won American Legion service awards. These are Jack Allen and Robert Karis. The third, Art Keller, has been elected mayor of the Avondale Public school.

ROYAL NEIGHBOR CAMPS INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Bensenville and Barrington camps of the Royal Neighbors of America will hold February meetings under the direction of new officers. Mrs. Hattie Breutner of Elmhurst will preside as oracle at the Friday meeting of Wide Awake camp in Franzen's hall, Bensenville.

As a charter member, Mrs. Breutner has served the group for 29 years and held almost every other station. Mrs. Martha Dunteman installed Mrs. Breutner and the other 1940 officers at the last meeting. The group includes Mrs. Laura Garry, vice oracle; Mrs. Mildred Spanley, retiring oracle, who will serve in an honorary capacity as past oracle for two years; Mrs. Esther Waldron, chancellor, and Mrs. Hulda Brown, recorder.

Other New Officers.

Others are Mrs. Millie Geils, receiver; Mrs. Margaret Franzen, marshal; Mrs. Irene Staicar, assistant marshal; Mrs. Laura Rands, inner sentinel; Mrs. Peggy Marberg, outer sentinel; Carlton Brown, manager for a three year term; Mrs. Rose Lange, musician; Mrs. Anna Lemke, color bearer; Mrs. Amanda Busch, staff captain; Mrs. Lulu Franzen, faith; Mrs. Clara Volberding, courage; Mrs. Lorraine Sparks, modesty; Mrs. Evelyn Gobat, unselfishness, and Mrs. Lauretta Rogers, endurance.

Barrington camp will have a Valentine costume party after the next meeting on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13 in Schroeder's hall in Barrington. Mrs. Ida May Schmidt, installed as oracle by Mrs. Carrie Krieger of Logan Square camp, supervising deputy, will conduct the 8 o'clock meeting. The audit committee will be in charge of refreshments for the party.

More on Barrington Staff.

Other new officers are Mrs. Stella Strobach, past oracle; Mrs. Mary Nicolai, vice oracle; Mrs. Lillie Walgren, chancellor; Mrs. Rosetta Carr, recorder; Mrs. Minnie Grom, receiver; Mrs. Edna Hager, marshal; Mrs. Tillie Geddis, assistant marshal; Mrs. Johanna Gerdau, inner sentinel; Mrs. Carolena Dreyer, outer sentinel; Mrs. Lydia E. Miller, manager.

Mrs. Ethel Steward, musician; Mrs. Augusta Brandt, faith; Mrs. Florence Becker, courage; Mrs. Edith Rieke, modesty; Mrs. Dorothy Wendt, unselfishness; Mrs. Theresa Gargano, endurance, and Mrs. Bertha Meller, flagbearer. During the last six months, the camp has taken in 19 new members. At the installation, Mrs. Carr received a service pin from the supreme camp for serving as recorder for 10 consecutive years.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bonnie and Johnny! Now there's a team.

Bonnie Baker.

Bonnie Baker has been making America, "O, Johnny, O!" conscious. And Johnny, with the aid of an army of "O's" has been making Bonnie Baker a celebrity.

"I've sung the song a million times, I bet," Dimpled Bonnie exclaims. "And there doesn't seem to be any let up."

And for every time she's sung it, she has turned out from 9 to 21 "O's" depending on the arrangement. To arrive at these millions of "O's" you must recall that she sings the song several times nightly in the Empire Room of the Palmer House. And does it almost nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And Saturday nights on the Hit Parade broadcast. Then there are guest appearances on the radio.

Millions of Bonnie's "O's."

Besides, more than half a million of "O, Johnny" records have been sold. And in each of these there is a minimum of 21 "O's." All over the country jitterbugs are pushing nickels into groan boxes just as fast as they can to hear those unending melting "O's" pour forth. Almost 350,000 copies of sheet music have been sold. So when you add to Bonnie's "O's" those of a myriad imitators you get a figure comparable to the national debt.

Today fame and fortune are Wee Bonnie's. She takes it all calmly. She's unlike a lot of celebrities. She can't understand her popularity, for one thing. Everything just happened, she says. No credit belongs to her. All of that should go to Orrin Tucker, her boss, she says.

"I owe everything that's happened to Orrin," she says. "He taught me all I know about showmanship; showed me how to use my voice to best advantage. Coached me in every song I've sung. The whole 'O, Johnny' idea was his."

It all started when they were playing an engagement at the Palmer House last year. The floor show had an old fashioned setting. Tucker wanted a song of earlier days for Bonnie to sing in it. One day he started humming a tune he had heard as a kid in Wheaton. It was "O, Johnny" which Abe Olman, a Chicagoan, wrote back in the war year of 1917. That was 23 years ago.

Records Started It Rolling.

Tucker had a time finding a copy of "O, Johnny." Finally he located one in a small shop. The song went over well at the Palmer House. But it wasn't until about six months ago when they recorded it that it started clicking in a big way.

"We got the surprise of our lives," says Bonnie. "The piece caught on and hung like fly paper. And you know the rest."

How does Bonnie explain the craze? She doesn't. Maybe it's because the tune is new to the younger generation. But no, that wouldn't keep it going so long. The little girl way she does it? Or possibly the nursery rhyme effect? [Even two year olds like it, you know.] Bonnie is besieged by mammas and papas everynight who tell her how their kids go for it.

Cute Is Word for Bonnie.

"It's so cute," exclaims Bonnie. "Mothers and fathers come in and have a good time, while maybe the kids are listening at home on the radio. The youngsters hear me at home, but mamma and papa see me in person. To even up matters, they take home a menu on which I've written a little note for the kids."

Cute is the word for Bonnie's interpretation of the song, too. Whether the song made her or she made the song is a matter of speculation. But there is no doubt that people like the combination. Night after night it's a sellout. When she was ill recently for a few nights the customers set up a terrific clamor for her.

A little about Bonnie's career: While attending Mount De Sales academy in Macon, Ga., she sang for school parties. A local orchestra leader saw and signed her. When Tucker first met Bonnie in St. Louis four years ago he recognized possibilities in her pert voice. So he engaged her and she has been with him ever since.

Explains Her Philosophy.

Bonnie was born Evelyn Nelson at Orange, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Leroy Jones travels with her. Bonnie is five feet tall, wears size four shoes; has dark brown eyes; doesn't weigh quite a hundred.

Busy as she is, she has a lot of fun. She enjoys her work a lot. She isn't thinking much about pictures, tho some tentative offers have been made.

"It might be nice to make a movie," she says, "but I like what I'm doing now. I think it makes people unhappy to be too ambitious."

She says she doesn't miss parties and boy friends much.

"I don't have time for such things," she says, "because of my work. Besides I have Toby to take up my leisure time."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Lincoln club of Jackson, Mich., on Thursday, Feb. 15. His address will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Col. McCormick's subject will be "The Attempt to Communize America."

Jackson, Mich., is regarded as a birthplace of the Republican party. Since this is a presidential election year the Lincoln club's meeting is of especial significance. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Allegan County building.

Santa Claus and radio's "Little Orphan Annie" get more letters every year from young children thruout the United States than do any other personalities, according to a survey made last week. Santa ranks first, with little red-headed Annie a close second.

The adventures of Annie are heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 5:45 to 6 p. m. The program is aired over W-G-N and 83 other stations, the largest network hook-up for a daytime script program.

An average of close to one million children have joined the club which Orphan Annie sponsors every year for the last seven years. In addition, Annie receives literally tens of thousands of letters from her youthful admirers every year.

Vic Smith.

He plays the part of the head of the Carter family on "The Carters of Elm Street." The show is aired on W-G-N and 83 other Mutual stations daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 11:45 a. m. to noon.

"I consider it one of the more fortunate incidents in my acting career that I have the rôle of Mr. Carter," Smith said. "It isn't very often that one is able to get a rôle that is so full of realism and life—and above all, the joy of living that it isn't like acting at all. It seems that I could almost step in front of the microphone and then live the part.

Simone Simon is going to try to project her Gallic charm over the radio today. She hasn't appeared before the microphone often. It's true her name was much on the air a season or two back—the comedians just couldn't resist cracks about it.

But when she makes her bow over W-G-N and the Mutual network this afternoon it will be only her third appearance on the air—and her first from Chicago. Mlle. Simon will be the star in today's "Fifth Row Center" program which each Sunday presents a top-notcher in the entertainment world. She will play the lead in "Model Princess," a comedy-drama by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Promises an Earful.

As every moviegoer knows and customers at the Erlanger theater are finding out, Mlle. Simon is an eyeful. She is appearing there in "Three After Three," a musical comedy with tunes by Hoagy Carmichael. And Simone is determined that radio listeners shall have an earful, too!

While she has had limited experience on the air, Mlle. Simon will draw inspiration from the rôle she is to portray: a photographer's model who takes the part of a foreign princess, falling in love with an American—with ensuing complications. For at pictorial performing Simone is good—extra good. Her little-girl cuteness, her soft beguilements, her French flirtaceousness all register well on the eye. Since television is not yet here, listeners will have to get along without that.

But she has a fetching voice, too. An intriguing accent and a saucy, pert personality which should be well absorbed and purveyed by the microphone.

Her Outside Interests.

Rehearsals in New York for "Three After Three" have kept her so busy, she said the other day between matinée and evening performances, that she hasn't had time for any recreation.

When she has leisure time, she said, she likes nothing better than to play the piano—and perhaps sing a little. She does a little warbling in "Three After Three." She doesn't go for sports much. The extent of her exercises at present, she said, is writing an occasional letter! She loves picture making and expects sometime to go back to Hollywood.

"In Three After Three" she is costarred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green. They, too, are to be presented in special W-G-N and Mutual broadcasts. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will provide the musical portion of today's broadcast. Blair Walliser will be the director.

KERN MEDLEY TO BE FEATURED BY NORTHERNERS

The Northerners will present a musical program featuring the compositions of such great names as Handel, Rimsky-Korsakov, Oscar Strauss, and Jerome Kern, from 9:30 to 10 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N.

Bernice Rickman, soprano, will sing for her solo, Rimsky-Korsakov's "Hymn to the Sun." The octet will do Handel's "Hallelujah, Amen," and "The Tune of Open Country," and "Chloe."

The entire Northerners cast will join in singing selections from Kern's show, "Good Morning, Dearie," including "Blue Danube Blues," "Way Down Town," "Easy Pickins," and "Ka-lu-a."

Mutual System Revises Texas Stations' Lineup

Six leading radio stations in Texas, covering over 50 per cent of radio homes in the state, have affiliated with the Mutual network on a revised basis. Each of these stations is independently allied with Mutual. Heretofore they were connected thru the facilities of the Texas State Network.

The stations are: WRR, Dallas; KFJZ, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KABC, San Antonio; KNOW, Austin; WACO, Waco. Service will be continued to six other Texas stations: KRBC, Abilene; KBST, Big Spring; KGKL, San Angelo; KRRV, Sherman; KTEM, Temple; KCMC, Texarkana.

STORM BULL TO PLAY ON W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Young Pianist Will Offer Grieg Concerto.

Storm Bull, 26 year old Chicago born pianist, will be the guest star on the Pageant of Melody, to be conducted by Henry Weber from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Bull, whose grandfathers were nephews of Ole Bull, famous Norwegian violinist, and first cousins of Edvard Grieg, Norwegian composer, will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, the octet, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Mr. Weber will be featured in the program with Mr. Bull. Baggiore will sing "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti," from Verdi's "La Traviata," and will join the octet in "O Promise Me," by Reginald De Koven, and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Charles Marshall.

The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture" by Felix Mendelssohn and "Sipapu," by Henry Hadley.

Made His Debut at 15.

Storm Bull made his debut at the age of 15 in Oslo, Norway. He has appeared in a series of concerts abroad, followed by engagements in the United States and Canada, both as soloist with orchestra and in recital.

The Concert Revue, directed by Mr. Weber, usually heard at 9:30 p. m., will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday this week only because of program changes. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will be heard with the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Miss Witwer to Sing.

"O Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," by Serge Rachmaninoff, will be sung by Miss Witwer, with Michael Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Mr. Weber playing the piano.

Other numbers will include "Abu Hassan Overture," by Von Weber; "Prelude to Act I" and "Oriental Dance," from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite," and a string arrangement of Warlock's "Serenade."

LENT, LINCOLN TO BE MIDDAY SERVICE TOPICS

The opening of the Lenten season will be the topic of W-G-N Midday Service program on Feb. 5, 6, and 7, while on Feb. 8 and 9 the time will be devoted to the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

The program, under the direction of Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday from the studios of W-G-N at 12:35 p. m. Speakers for the week will be:

Monday—The Rev. Carl Rembold, Trinity United Lutheran church.

Wednesday—The Rev. Father John McCarthy, St. Andrew Catholic church.

Thursday—Prof. Charles T. Holman, University of Chicago.

Whistler to Be Featured on Steelmakers Program

Dick Weatherson, a whistler, and Grace Boffo, will be the guest employée headliners on W-G-N and Mutual's "Musical Steelmakers" program from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today.

Regular members of the troupe—Regina Colbert, the Steele Sisters, Ardenne White, the Old Timer, Dorothy Ann Crowe, will be heard in such numbers as "O, Johnny," "I Concentrate on You," "The Rosary," and "Bluebirds in the Moonlight."

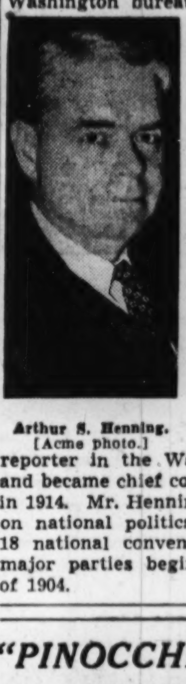
Battling Siki Story on the Inside of Sports

How a colorful ring figure, Battling Siki, light heavyweight, tossed away a chance to make a $1,000,000 because his wife berated him before the big fight, will be recalled on "The Inside of Sports" program over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 6:45 p. m., Tuesday.

Scandinavian Position, Subject of N. U. Program

Trygve Hoff, Norwegian economist, and Franklin D. Scott, professor of history, will discuss the position of Scandinavia in the Russo-Finnish conflict on the Northwestern university reviewing stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m., today.

ARTHUR S. HENNING BACK ON W-G-N WITH 'CAPITAL COMMENT'



Arthur S. Henning.

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has started his sixth annual series of Capital Comment programs on W-G-N. He is heard from 7 to 7:15 p. m. Sundays.

Mr. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899; was sent to Washington in 1909 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Mr. Henning is an authority on national politics, having covered 18 national conventions of the two major parties beginning with those of 1904.

"PINOCCHIO" HITS TO BE AIRED BY HAROLD STOKES

Score to Be Featured on Wednesday.

"Your Sunday Date," directed by Harold Stokes, will present popular dance music, with the singing of Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, from 8 to 8:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Darn That Dream," from the musical comedy, "Swingin' the Dream," and will join the chorus in "To You, Sweetheart Aloha." Salerno will sing for his solo, "At the Balalaika."

Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "All Dressed Up Spic and Spanish," from "Too Many Girls;" "Wham!" "Here Comes the Night," and "Soon."

The musical score from "Pinocchio" will be featured in "Romance in Rhythm" directed by Mr. Stokes, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Curt Massey, Edna O'Dell, and the Four Shades of Blue will be the vocalists.

The numbers from Walt Disney's new picture will include "Three Cheers for Anything," "Give a Little Whistle," "Turn on the Old Music Box," "When You Wish Upon a Star," and "I've Got No Strings." Miss O'Dell will sing "Does Your Heart Beat for Me." Massey will do "The Singing Hills."

FREDERICK THE GREAT SUBJECT OF BROADCAST

Episodes from the life of Frederick the Great will be presented on the program, "Meditation and Melody," broadcast by De Paul university in coöperation with the University Broadcasting council, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The W-G-N concert orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will play two compositions of the Prussian ruler, Flute Concerto No. 3, and the First Movement of Symphony No. 3.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

FOUNDERS' DAY CELEBRATION ON P.-T. A. CALENDAR

Varied Programs Listed by Northwest Units.

At its annual February meeting, every P.-T. A. familiarizes its members with the founding of the National Congress of Mothers, now called the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. The parent organization of 27,000 units with more than two and a half million members was started by Mrs. Theodore Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Hearst at a meeting in Washington, D. C., on Feb. 17, 1897. Since this is leap year, units have one more day in which to plan a celebration of their 43d national birthday.

In addition to observing the national date, Young P.-T. A. will celebrate its 10th anniversary at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the auditorium, 1400 North Waller avenue. All charter members are urged to attend.

Mrs. Leah Hamper, historian, will read the early history of the P.-T. A. and a candlelighting ceremony will commemorate Founders' day. A duet will be sung by Mrs. Anne Balderson and Mrs. Helen Wick.

Smyser P.-T. A.—Members having February birthdays will be guests for the Founders' day program at 1:15 o'clock Wednesday, with Mrs. E. G. Jolly presiding. The nominating committee will be elected at the business session. For the program, slides from the visual education department of the Illinois Congress of "Equalizing Education in Illinois" will be shown by Mrs. D. W. Parker, historian, and Mrs. W. C. Godin will play the piano.

Roosevelt P.-T. A.—Mrs. Frank Damm, state treasurer, will address members and friends at the Founders' day meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in room 117. Mrs. Fred Daum arranged the program which will include community singing, a welcome speech by Mrs. William Nelson, president, and musical selections by the instrumental ensemble directed by Capt. R. A. Seabury.

Moos P.-T. A.—Members will sponsor a card party at 8 o'clock Thursday night in Dost's hall, 1700 North Washtenaw avenue.

Lovett P.-T. A.—Members will observe Founders' day at a 1 o'clock meeting Friday. The program will include community singing, numbers by the departmental grades, greetings from Miss Helen Cox, principal, orchestra selections by the Children's Festival orchestra from Lovett and Young schools, and a message from Mrs. Katherine Wolf.

Lloyd P.-T. A.—A class demonstration on Lincoln's birthday and a speech by Mrs. Frank Damm, state treasurer, will make up the program for the Founders' day meeting at 1 o'clock Friday.

Linne P.-T. A.—The association will observe Founders' day with a candlelighting ceremony and a playlet by Mrs. Lillian Lasse, historian, and a group of mothers on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, board of education member, will speak on "Responsibility of Home and School for the Welfare of the Child."

LaFayette P.-T. A.—Founders' day will be celebrated Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Clarence Lineberger, district superintendent, will talk on "responsibility and Education—Our Problems."

Hanson Park P.-T. A.—Mrs. Andrew Morong, program chairman, has arranged a Founders' day program for the 1 o'clock meeting Wednesday in the assembly.

Goethe P.-T. A.—Mrs. Herbert Behr, first vice president of the North Side council, will address the members on Founders' day Thursday. The association is sponsoring a benefit show at the Congress theater on Friday.

Foreman P.-T. A.—A candlelighting service will be the highlight of the Founders' day meeting at 1:30 o'clock Thursday in the Civics room. After a business session, Mrs. Arthur Robitschek, president, will introduce the speaker, Mrs. F. E. Robert, director of District 23.

Ebinger P.-T. A.—The homemaking group will meet at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday in the home of the chairman, Mrs. Robert Keay, 6718 Oconto avenue.

Dever P.-T. A.—Mrs. R. R. Gonzales, drama chairman, has planned the Founders' day program for 1:15 o'clock Thursday in the auditorium.

Barry P.-T. A.—Guest day will be combined with Founders' day at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday. Participating in the candlelighting ceremony will be Miss Josephine Liska, principal; Mrs. Elmer Keller, president; and Mrs. John Obermaier, vice president. Two other birthdays, the 6th of the unit and the 2d of the Mothers' chorus, will also be observed. Mrs. F. E. Robert, district director, will be guest speaker and Ann Nyberg Spooner will play the violin. A playlet entitled "Mrs. Black Learns About the P.-T. A." will be presented by Mrs. L. D. Sparks, Mrs. Robert Rehm, and the chorus.

Avondale P.-T. A.—The board will meet at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow to plan for the Founders' day program. Mrs. Fred A. Marcotte will preside. Miss Ruth Evans conducts the children's elocution class which meets at 3 o'clock every Tuesday in Room 26.

Hunting for Good Fits

Monday, Feb. 5.

Why not plan to plant nut trees in the yard for beauty and fruit? There are many suburban yards that have room for several; even one is an asset. The pignut is not large and the foliage is clean and handsome. The shagbark hickory will stand a lot of abuse and the shaggy bark is distinct. The black walnut, butternut, and the hybrid pecans and chestnuts are worth a place in any yard. But give them good care at all times.

Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Frequently grass does poorly under trees and it is desirable to use other plants. Among these are the myrtle of vinca minor and the ajuga reptans rubra [purpleleaf bugle]. The myrtle is almost evergreen and spreads rapidly. The ajuga is excellent as an edging plant and may be clipped into form. It is also a good rockery plant, but must be kept in bounds or it will take possession of the place.

Wednesday, Feb. 7.

It soon will be time to begin sowing the seed of some annuals for early planting. The seed may be ordered now and sowing begun in March. Petunias, phlox, verbena, flowering tobacco, cosmos, heliotrope, torenia, early asters, scarlet sage, and others are all started early. But remember that it is a waste of seeds to sow the seed thickly. Very fine seeds need not be covered with soil, but merely pressed into it. Large seeds should be sown in rows and covered to about three times their width.

Thursday, Feb. 8.

Don't forget the birds. Hang suet on the branches of trees and scatter chick feed where birds can reach it. Build a shelter for them out of evergreen boughs, cornstalks, or the materials that are at hand. Birds consume an endless amount of insects, but in times of stress they must be aided.

Friday, Feb. 9.

Potted bulbous plants are now on the market. Give flowering pot plants plenty of water and, if they are bulbous, keep them growing until the leaves turn yellow; then place in the basement, withholding water. Tulips and hyacinths can be planted in the garden next fall. Do not throw narcissi plants away, but cure the bulbs and plant out in the fall.

Saturday, Feb. 10.

Have you ever noticed the size of the pots the florist uses? They seem small to the amateur, for he tends to use large pots, sometimes much larger than the plants require. Try to keep the plants in as small pots as possible,

MORNING ROOM RETURNS TODAY IN MODERN NOOK

Feature of Home Built in Glenview.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The "morning room" of half a century ago is now definitely with us again; so much so that in homes without number it almost rates as "standard equipment."

Today, however, instead of belonging to very large and impressive homes, and being quite an impressive feature itself, it has taken on a delightful informality, and is found in kitchens that are equally informal and simple.

There is a handsome kitchen in a new home in Glenview which has just such a "morning room." This room, built into the kitchen proper, could be called a "breakfast booth," since it is composed of table and benches, and the back of one bench makes possible an additional working surface in the kitchen at right angles to the sink.

A very gay little breakfast booth it is, too, brought alive by the yellow painted walls and blue painted ceiling. And a very important spot in the home.

Has Venetian Blinds.

Both a kitchen and a "morning room" should be bathed in light where this is possible. With the market abounding in so many fascinating materials for walls and ceiling and floors, it is important to keep in mind that the colors on those walls and ceilings will have an effect on how much light you get in the rooms. For ceilings and walls can intensify light or absorb it. Careful tests have been made of different shades and what they will do for a room.

How Colors Reflect.

White, of course, reflects more of the total available color light than any other color. It reflects some 80 per cent of all the light that touches it! Cream and light ivory come next, reflecting some 71 per cent. Then there's apricot beige, reflecting 66 per cent; lemon yellow, 65 per cent; deep ivory, 59 per cent; light buff, 56 per cent; peach and salmon, 53 per cent, and pale green, 51 per cent.

Another point to which attention is being given in kitchen treatment is the muffling of kitchen noises by ceiling finishes. There are ceiling "tiles" which can be applied to new or old ceilings. In reality, these tiles are squares of acoustic material. This material is made up of millions of tiny air cells, and these cells contribute to a porosity in the material which blots up noise as a blotter soaks up ink.

By this treatment you can decrease those kitchen sounds which travel, on the slightest encouragement, to other parts of the house. Likewise, you can cut down noises you hear in the kitchen yourself; the clatter of dishes and silver and pots and pans.

ROAMING CHURCH IS CELEBRATING 70TH BIRTHDAY

Trinity Lutherans Have Had Four Locations.

In biblical times, when people migrated with their flocks, they took their churches with them. That the same thing can happen now is indicated by the history of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, Laramie avenue and Hirsch street. It is celebrating its 70th anniversary this week and during that time it has been situated at four different locations.

The Rev. Carl Rembold.

Originally the congregation was a unit of St. Peter's Evangelical church at Cortez street and Oakley boulevard. On Easter Sunday, 1870, however, the little group of 50 families separated from the parent church. Under the leadership of the Rev. John Bond they found temporary quarters in the home of Henry Gudehus on Ashland avenue near Chicago avenue.

Members Move Away.

Within a year they purchased a site in the center of the German colony on Ada street near Chicago avenue. The church flourished there for many years, the membership increasing until at one time there were 800 confirmed members. After the turn of the century, however, the German families on the near northwest side began to move westward to the outskirts of the city.

Attendance dwindled until only 50 or 60 members were left in 1923. That was the year when the Rev. Carl Rembold assumed the pastorate. He consulted with the leaders of the congregation and they decided that if the people wouldn't come back to the church the church should go to the people.

The following year they sold the old site and purchased the present location. While the new church was being built services were held in a rented chapel in the neighborhood where most of their people lived.

Second Unit Built.

The church and parsonage was dedicated in February, 1925. In 1936 a second unit of the building was completed to make room for the growing congregation. It is all paid for now and plans are being made to complete the church plant within the next few years.

The present membership of the church is 650 confirmed members and 450 children in the Sunday school. To care for the increased attendance three services are held each Sunday morning, beginning with a German service at 9 o'clock. Young people meet for the junior church service at 9:45 and the main service begins at 11 o'clock.

This morning the services will be dedicated to anniversary themes. The Rev. Mr. Rembold will speak at the first and Dr. Emmanuel Poppen, president of the American Lutheran church, will be guest speaker at the other two. The senior choir will sing at the main service and the junior choir at the junior service. Mrs. Rembold directs both.

Hold Banquet Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night there will be a fellowship banquet in the Central Plaza hotel. The principal speaker will be Dr. William G. Sodt, stewardship secretary of the American Lutheran church.

ALEPH ZADIK ALEPH CHAPTER IS TO GIVE A VALENTINE DANCE

Haym Salomon chapter, Aleph Zadik Aleph, will hold its annual Valentine dance next Sunday night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Hamilton, 18 South Dearborn street. Maurice J. Lazarus, president, said preparations had been made for an attendance of 500 persons.

The chapter meets each Sunday afternoon in B'nai Sholom temple, 3245 Ainslie street.

SPIRITUAL CALL OF LENT WILL ECHO IN LOOP

Daily Rites Scheduled in Theaters.

Chicago's loop as well as the hundreds of churches of the city will rise to the spiritual call of Lent which begins in penitential ashes on Wednesday. The Erlanger and Harris theaters will open their doors each Lenten noon to worshipers, and the Grand Opera house, with its year round noonday services, will emphasize Lent's message.

Dr. Martin Anderson.

Thousands of Catholic executives and workers in the loop will go to noonday masses at Holy Name cathedral and other inner city churches. At the Harris theater the pioneer noonday service under Episcopal Church club auspices will open on Wednesday with Bishop Henry Wise Hobson of Cincinnati as the preacher. As at the Lutheran services at the Garrick, the meeting will begin at 12:10 p. m. and close at 12:30. The Lutheran services will be broadcast over station WIND.

Will Preach Wednesday.

Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran synod's eastern district, will be the Erlanger Ash Wednesday preacher. He will be succeeded on Thursday by the Rev. Theodore E. Matson, regional secretary of the home missions society of the Augustana synod, and on Friday by Dr. Fred W. Otterbein of North Austin United Lutheran church. There will be no Erlanger or Harris services on Saturdays.

On successive weeks during Lent the Episcopal Church club will present the following preachers: The Rev. Donald H. Wattley, of New Orleans, La.; the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of New York; the Very Rev. Roland W. Philbrook of Davenport, Ia.; the Very Rev. Austin Pardue of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese will be the holy week preacher as in previous years.

The Lutheran committee has obtained representative preachers from various synods for the successive weeks. Dr. T. F. Gullixson, Minneapolis, Minn., of the Norwegian synod, will be the preacher for the week of Feb. 12. The Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Cleveland, O., of the Missouri synod, will preach during the week of Feb. 23.

Other Preachers Listed.

Other weeks, successively, will feature the Rev. Franklin C. Fry, Akron, O., of the United Lutheran church; the Rev. Edgar Carlson of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn.; the Rev. Joseph Knutson, Lake Mills, Minn., Norwegian synod, and the Rev. Walter Schutte, Sewickley, Pa., of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. Andrew Gih, Chinese evangelist, will be the principal Ash Wednesday preacher at the Grand Opera house, where services are conducted by the Christian Business Men's committee. Dr. Dan Gilbert, California religious author, will also speak. Grand Opera house services continue from 12 noon until 1 o'clock, but are divided in two parts, with a separate speaker for each.

Noonday masses will be offered at the following Catholic churches near the loop: Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets; Church of the Assumption, Illinois and Orleans streets; Old St. Mary's, South Wabash avenue and 9th street, and St. Patrick's, Adams and Desplaines streets.

New York's Trinity Pastor to Talk in Orchestra Hall

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, New York City, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be, "Hopes That Have Root." During the absence of Clifford W. Barnes, president, trustees of the club will conduct the meetings. Edward Hall Taylor and Edward K. Welles will officiate tonight. The Girls' Glee club of North Central college, Naperville, directed by Miss Mary Cook, will sing at the 7 o'clock meeting.

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO ADDRESS CARROLL FORUM NEXT SUNDAY

Archduke Felix of Austria will address the Charles Carroll forum next Sunday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. The Rev. James A. Magner, founder and chairman, will preside. Discussing "The Reconstruction of central Europe," the archduke will outline the plan of a democratic Danubian federation as the best plan for the solution of the cultural, economic, and political problems of the Balkan states. Archduke Felix was born in Vienna in 1916, attended the University of Louvain, Belgium, and ended his military training at Wiener Neustadt, the equivalent of West Point. He fled from Austria after the late Chancellor Schuschnigg announced the postponement of the plebiscite, and is the first of the Hapsburg family to visit the United States.

SCOUTS TO NOTE 30TH BIRTHDAY

STALWART ROTC, A HUSKY YOUTH, COMES OF AGE

21 Years' Growth in City Recalled.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Chicago's Reserve Officers' Training corps will have reason to celebrate 21 years of growth and progress when it comes of age this month. The reason is that it has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools who headed the R.O.T.C. for 15 years and who now is R.O.T.C. administrator for the board of education.

Maj. Beals. [U. & U. photo.]

Because Maj. Beals has watched the local military unit grow from a gray uniformed, baby cadet corps in 1917-'18, he can tell the story of how it grew and why today it ranks as the largest and one of the best junior corps in the nation. In proof of its quality, Maj. Beals points to the fact that last spring army inspectors gave either an "excellent" or "honor" rating to 26 of the 27 city units, the best examination record the Chicago schools have ever had.

Has Growing Popularity.

"I believe it has expanded steadily from year to year because of its fundamental popularity with principals, teachers, and parents, as well as students," he says. "Students always enjoy being cogs in an active organization, and principals, teachers, and parents came to like it because they saw the obvious benefits it worked in the boys and the service it was giving the school and community."

Credit for its progress, he believes, must also be given to civic minded citizens like Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone company, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, whom Maj. Beals calls the "father of the Chicago R.O.T.C."

"What are its biggest benefits to a boy?" Maj. Beals says: "I would list them this way: [1] it gives him increased self-respect, [2] it increases his interest in personal appearance, [3] it develops self-confidence, [4] it develops interest in the welfare of others, [5] it gives him a living, breathing organization of which he is a part, and [6] it gives him a sense of his own importance as a member of the community.

When Maj. Beals came to the Chicago board of education in 1917, a makeshift "cadet corps" had been organized. Rifles were furnished by the government but gray uniforms had to be supplied by a citizen's uniform committee, of which Angus Hibbard was chairman. In January, 1919, however, owing to the efforts of Mr. Hibbard, Col. McCormick, and Maj. Beals, the board of education gave permission for a delegation to go to Washington and ask for a government operated R.O.T.C. for Chicago.

First Enrollment Drops.

A month later 14,000 Chicago high school boys were enrolled in the R.O.T.C. with uniforms, rifles, and regular army instructors supplied by the war department. The following year Maj. Beals was made professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago unit and supervisor of physical education in the schools.

The huge enrollment was short lived, however, for in 1919 the army was demobilized and comparatively few officers and noncoms were available as instructors. Chicago's authorized registration was slashed to 3,000 cadets. Since then it has been increased year by year as more students indicated their desire to be admitted.

Maj. Beals continued as head of the corps until 1932, when he was succeeded by Capt. Edmond C. Fleming, who retired a year later. The position was assigned to Lieut. Col. John D. Holtzendorff for a little more than two years.

Lauds Morrison Record.

In 1935 his place was taken by Col. William F. Morrison, currently heading the unit, whom Maj. Beals believes is most responsible for the exceptional progress of the corps during the last five years. Col Morrison had been transferred from duty as chief of staff of the artillery group of the 7th corps area in Iowa. He is a graduate of West Point and was an instructor there from 1906 to 1910.

In accounting for the steady growth of Chicago's R.O.T.C. in his book, "Associations of Choice," Angus Hibbard observes that "school authorities have continued to testify that the R. O. T. C. is the backbone of order and discipline in the Chicago high schools."

How to Tell Fish Story Part of Anglers' School

A rendezvous for disciples of Izaak Walton was established recently at Columbus park by Erwin Weiner, recreation supervisor. Fishermen will meet Thursday evenings when there will be free instruction in the art of fly-tying, plug, lure and rod construction. Short talks on "How to Tell a Fish Story Convincingly" also are included in the weekly program.

Friend to Man Builds Retreat at Roadside

"Let me live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man."—Sam Walter Foss.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders has such a house. He wanted it before he was a minister. He wanted it when he was an idealistic young man who loved the hills, farms, woods, and friends. He went to war and came back undisillusioned.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders.

Today the Rev. Mr. Sanders, whom everybody calls "Sandy," lives on a hill top in Palos woods. The speed-traveled Southwest highway at 127th street passes his door winding its way to St. Louis. A friendly sign stops those who are heartsore.

He gives his house a staid name. But that is only because he is compromising with the times and trying to attract young people who would shy away from a psychological clinic. He calls it the Community Center foundation. It is not a settlement, not a religious retreat, nor a civic caucus. It is 45 acres of farm, 15 acres of woods, and a lodge filled with kerosene lamplight, candles, fireplaces, and books. Right now snow covered trees and hills are its only decorations.

Book Changed His Life.

A year before the first great world war the Rev. Mr. Sanders, then young and indefinite, read a book. He had read many books before that, but this one changed his life. It was called "The Master of the Inn" and was written by Robert Herrick. It told of a doctor, physically ill, who built an inn where reclaimed men "found themselves by work, play, and fellowship."

Sandy laid down his book and went to war, but unlike those about him who began to think of lives in terms of hunting, he saw only a greater need for the leisure life, for time to read and plow and pray. He came back wanting to build his inn.

To build his inn, however, he needed to know the lay of the land. He went to the University of Illinois where he was graduated from the agricultural school. Before that he had studied medicine, but he still knew the limitations of his knowledge. He couldn't tell men how to reconstruct their lives by instructing them how to plant a field of hay or telling them the symptoms of angina pectoris. So he turned to theology at the University of Chicago.

Takes Up Psychology.

Even that was not enough. He took up psychology and sociology at Northwestern university and came away determined to find his Shangri-La. Assisted by Dr. William Bailey of Northwestern he made a survey of Chicagoland and found a little church in Worth which had 10 members, two of whom were inactive. That was in 1924. The Rev. Mr. Sanders took the church and gradually gathered around him an interdenominational parish of seven congregations.

Into the picture came an old man whose life had been spent with trees and hills, plowed fields and the books of Emerson, Thoreau, and Abbé Fabre. Most of the people in the Palos district knew him only as "the hermit," altho his name was Ernest G. Warner. Several had seen him on occasion put his arms around a tree and mumble to himself of "woodland friends." They thought him queer and avoided his farm, altho it adjoined the most beautiful section of the forest preserves.

It was in the plan of things that simple, nature loving Mr. Warner was to meet Paul Sanders, university trained medical man, scientific farmer, minister, psychologist, and humanitarian. Several years these two spent together, the old man dreaming dreams and the young man seeing visions, each certain of the peace gained by an ear atune to "God's deeper harmonies."

Resigns from Parish.

With a gift of 10 acres from the Warner property in 1928, the Rev. Mr. Sanders resigned from his parish and took the first steps towards the realization of his project. He incorporated the center as a nonprofit institution "to serve all mankind regardless of creed, socially, physically, mentally, and spiritually."

An old barn was turned into the lodge, Fellowship house, by a group of girls and boys who eagerly followed Sandy's footsteps.

"The foundation's ends," says Sandy, "could only be accomplished if it materialized thru the experience of the people."

First the lodge doors opened to persons from the immediate vicinity, then to those from Chicago, and finally to others from state after state until last year when more than 9,000 persons from 21 states and five foreign countries were served by the center.

The entire Warner property, valued at $60,000, had been turned over to the foundation upon the death of the old naturalist. There are now six buildings on the land, a girls' dormitory given by Adam Int-Hout of Homewood in memory of his wife, a poetess; a boys' dormitory donated by Dr. Pasquale de Carlo, head of Garibaldi institute; a mess hall built by boys from an old horse shed in Orland Park; a guest house erected of box car lumber; Fellowship house,

Time Out for Lunch on Scout Hike

Here are members of the tan shirt troops in America tough enough to take the snow and the zero weather. But these troops have no trenches and in their oath they swear "to help other people at all times." In their twelve point law are the words friendly, courteous, reverent, and kind. They are Boy Scouts of America, a part of the young army of a million and a quarter that will celebrate its 30th anniversary Thursday. A special Boy Scout week will continue thru Thursday, Feb. 15, while troops, packs, and Sea Scout ships hold special meetings and services. Stopping for a hot drink on a warmup hike for the week's festivities are members of Troop 244, sponsored by Our Lady of Sorrows church. Fred Barney, scoutmaster, is pouring for (left to right) Phillip McLaughlin, Eugene Gartland, John Weber, and John O'Connor.

NEW VOLUNTEER LEADERS CHOSEN AT AUSTIN "Y"

P. A. Aepinus Installed Board Chairman.

New volunteer leaders have been selected to help Austin youth become healthy, happy and wise in their leisure hours. P. A. Aepinus was installed last week as chairman of the Austin Y. M. C. A. board of directors, succeeding Gustave G. Heurlin, who has served for five years. Mr. Heurlin became vice chairman and Walter R. McDowell was made recording secretary.

Mr. Aepinus was a member of the board last year and of the Boys' Work committee. He served as vice chairman of the 1939 annual finance campaign and has been connected with the organization since 1936. He is also a member of the Austin Club of Business Men. During the world war he was a lieutenant in the infantry.

Others on Committee.

Other members of the executive committee are Martin Rapp, Ross Lake, F. L. Bradfute, E. E. Kretschmer, F. T. Moloney, H. E. Burton, and R. W. Olmstead. Mr. Olmstead will head the personnel and lay leadership committee, assisted by Dr. W. G. Wicklund, D. I. Jarrett, E. E. Kretscher, and A. J. Knopf.

Mr. Kretschmer will head the budget and finance committee, assisted by Mr. Bradfute, Lester Castle, J. E. Fuller, Mr. Heurlin, Mr. Moloney, and L. H. Peterson. E. B. Boston will head the World Fellowship committee.

Chairmen of the major program committees are as follows: Martin W. Rapp, men's activities; Mrs. H. E. Foster, Women and Girl activities; Mr. Lake, Boys' work, and Mr. Moloney, residence and house. Working with Mr. Rapp will be Marvin Tench, A. J. Bensch, E. J. Boyles, Thomas B. Brown, Wilson Donaldson, George Hepburn, John Loughren, Earl Roach, Charles Stotz, J. B. Wilson, and H. E. Burton.

Aid Mrs. Foster.

Members of the women and girls' committee working with Mrs. Foster are Miss Vivian Brousseau, Mrs. Monroe Birkeland, Bette Hansen, Mrs. Hilmer Hansen, Mrs. Fred Knoch, Mrs. Hugh Maplesden, Miss Hazel McCormick, and Miss Roberta Moore.

ASHLAND RATED MOST DANGEROUS OF CITY STREETS

39 of 46 Victims Were Pedestrians.

Chicago's most dangerous street from the standpoint of traffic deaths is Ashland avenue. Forty-six persons were killed on this thorofare last year. The toll was 42 in 1938. Western avenue, with a death toll of 36 persons, ranks as the second most dangerous street.

These facts came to light last week in the findings of an annual survey of traffic deaths issued by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Pedestrians are the majority of victims in the city's traffic accidents, the report shows. Of the 46 killed on Ashland avenue 39 were pedestrians, and 22 pedestrians were among the 36 fatalities on Western avenue.

Cautions the Pedestrian.

"We have attempted to show in this annual survey of traffic deaths in Chicago the appalling rate among pedestrians," Mr. Fleming said. "Without regard as to whether the motor vehicle driver or the pedestrian is to blame, the report should make Chicago residents more traffic safety conscious."

Streets running north and south were found to have more traffic fatalities than either east or west or diagonal streets. Streets covered in the survey are the most heavily traveled in the city.

North avenue led the east and west streets with 18 deaths. In 1938 North avenue and Roosevelt road tied for the east-west death toll lead, each having 17 deaths. Last year Roosevelt road showed a decrease of six fatalities. Irving Park road went up last year on the death chart with a total of 17 deaths as compared to 10 in 1938.

13 Die on Racine.

With a death score of three in 1938, Racine avenue climbed to a total of 13 last year. Seventy-ninth street had no deaths in 1938, but in 1939 ten persons were killed in traffic accidents. The death toll on Indiana avenue rose from five in 1938 to ten last year.

Streets whose last year's death toll dropped from the previous year include Archer avenue, with nine in 1939 as against 19 in 1938; Sheridan road, with one last year as against seven in 1938; Clark street, five as compared with 10 in 1938; Damen avenue, seven against eleven in 1938; Belmont avenue, three as against seven in 1938; Division street, two as against nine; Jackson boulevard, eight as against 13, and Washington boulevard, seven against 11. Warren boulevard's 1939 toll of 12 victims remained the same as the 1938 figure.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

ON his way home from Whittier school recently, Richard David, a first grader, started to cross Damen avenue. It was snowing hard. Richard held up his woolly mitten to shield his eyes from the blustery wind and hurried on directly into the path of a street car. Stanley Burmeister, 12 year old member of the Whittier school safety patrol, ran out and pulled the little fellow to safety. The Chicago Motor club has named Stanley the hero of the recent wintry weather in Cook county and presented him with the distinguished service award. Stanley's home is at 2057 Cullerton avenue.

SUNDAY school pupils who have perfect attendance records will be given recognition this afternoon in the Salvation Army's Chicago Temple corps, 1512 West Madison street, and tomorrow evening in the Midwest corps, 2459 West Monroe street. Fern, Bernard, and Shirley Cannon, 853 North St. Louis avenue, have perfect attendance records for the last eight years. June Christian, 2526 Jackson boulevard, has a perfect record for nine years.

THERE are four medals pinned to the uniform of Edward J. Kristufek, 1824 Blue Island avenue, R. O. T. C. cadet, who graduated in the mid-year class from Harrison High school. In 1938 he won the Fort Sheridan R. O. T. C. medal as the outstanding first year all-round cadet. The same year he won a TRIBUNE medal for military merit and in 1939 he won the rifle marksmanship medal from the war department for the highest marksmanship at school. The same year he won the reserve officers medal for military merit. Edward departed for Los Angeles last week to attend the Aero Technical institute where he will take a mechanical engineering and designing course.

23,844 YOUTHS IN CHICAGO AREA JOIN IN FESTIVAL

Leaders to Assemble Thursday Night.

Today there are one and a quarter million Boy Scouts in the United States. There are 23,844 Scouts in the Chicago area and on the west side alone there are 3,021 boys wearing the familiar tan uniform. A total of 6,311 men from all jobs and all ages, a group almost as large as the entire Chicago police force, donate their time as volunteer Scout leaders. But until 30 years ago, there was not one Boy Scout in America.

Beginning Thursday, for a week west side Scouts will celebrate with other boys thruout the country the 30th anniversary of the movement in the United States. The 136 troops, packs, and scout ships in the area will have a birthday celebration, a citizenship day, a reverence day, brotherhood, dedication, service, and fun days some time within the anniversary week.

Sermons on Scouting.

Protestant ministers and Catholic priests will dedicate sermons to boyhood next Sunday and rabbis will talk of the ideals of scouting during Friday night service. From coast to coast more than a million voices will repeat the oath—"To do my duty to God and my country, to help other people at all times, to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

The movement that gained so rapidly in 30 years was started because of a good deed. It was in 1909 when a Chicago publisher, William Boyce, was stranded in a London fog. Thru the misty blackness a young boy appeared, touched Mr. Boyce on the arm and asked if he could be of assistance. When the Chicago man was escorted to his destination he offered the boy a tip. "Thank you, sir," said the little fellow, "I don't take pay for my services. I am a Scout."

Mr. Boyce detained the lad and learned from him the meaning of that sentence, "I am a Scout." He learned that Robert Baden-Powell encouraged the scouting program which he started in 1907 with an experimental camp in Brownsea Island. He learned, too, that he could take home pamphlets describing the movement to help start scouting in America. On Feb. 8, 1910, the organization was incorporated. In November of that year troops were organized in Chicago.

Dinner Thursday Night.

During this national Boy Scout week the 29th annual Chicago council dinner will be held for 1,000 friends of scouting at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Barrett Wendell, dinner chairman, will be toastmaster. The guest speaker will be Dr. Glenn Frank, editor of Rural Progress magazine and former president of the University of Wisconsin.

Council officers for 1940 will be announced by James B. Forgan, chairman of the nominating committee, and silver Beaver awards will be given as tribute to outstanding volunteer men in scouting by Philip P. Sachs, a member of the executive board. Rabbi Louis Mann of Sinai temple, 4622 South Park way, will deliver the invocation.

R. Douglas Stuart, vice president of a cereal manufacturing company and president of the Chicago council, will make the welcoming address. Leon Sach, a member of Troop 300 which meets in Garfield park, the only blind troop in the country, will play his accordion.

Seek $100,000 Fund.

The best side leader who will receive a silver Beaver award is Francis D. Scully, 5940 Iowa street, a member of the west side executive committee. In 1929 he organized Troop 328 and in 1932 organized Sea Scout Ship 5329. He is a member of the Chicago council executive board, vice chairman of the west side executive committee and district representative on the council's executive board.

Beginning with Scout week the Chicago council will start its $100,000 finance drive under the direction of John F. Fennelly, who directed the drive last year. Each district in the city will be headed by a finance chairman who will zone his communities and appoint zone chairmen.

T. H. Golightly is district chairman of the west side. John F. Butler, 12 South Pulaski road, is finance chairman. Communities in this district include Austin, Cicero, Douglas park, Garfield park, Lawndale, Stanford park, and Union park. Stanley R. Miller, assistant Scout executive, is general campaign director.

The $100,000 which is expected to be raised by March will be used for the extension of the camping program, for the training courses for volunteers, the Scout advancement program, and all types of indoor and outdoor activities.

Open House by Ship.

One of the most extensive programs will be held the last day of Scout week, Feb. 14, by the Sea Scout ship Jolly Roger, 41 North Central avenue. The Scout ship is sponsored by B'nai Israel of Austin.

The Jolly Roger boys have won the competition in seamanship every year since it was organized. At the AMAZED HOUSEWIFE.

I agree with Mrs. J. T. that the club woman of today is a fortunate person. Modern gadgets have removed the drudgery from housekeeping so that a woman can take advantage of cultural things. I was amazed, however, to hear a woman whining about her difficulties. She said her aim in life was to give her maid a five day week and it was just a very hard job to get things done in that time. This woman has an apartment, a husband and no children. She is employed, but how on earth would the work in her place take a maid that long with the modern ironers, vacuum cleaners and gadgets that relieve Mrs. J. T. from drudgery? MRS. H. W.

LOCH LOMOND IN SUBURB.

Somehow when I think of Sir Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake," a poem of descriptive splendor, I think of Glen Ellyn. Here is a lovely town with the blue of Loch Lomond in its center and low sweeping hills with bungalows nestled in neighborly fashion near to each other. The people are as kindly as Ellen, who was Scott's Lady of the Lake, and the girls are as pretty. I never have a feeling of relaxation and peace as I do when I visit the lovely suburb of Glen Ellyn. JOHN K.

THOSE GRADUATE PICTURES.

What reasons of compulsion are there for 800 expectant June grads of Proviso High school, Maywood, to have their year-book portraits done at a specified studio? Because of special class rates? Then it is not only special, but is special supercollossal rates. They're being mugged to the tune of $8.50 per dozen, 4x6 inch, which could be had elsewhere for half that amount.

Am I insinuating? No! I'm trying to say in no uncertain terms that some one is fleecing the parents of these pupils to the sweet sum of $3,000. In these times of economic hardships it is all parents can do to meet the normal demands of a high school youngster.

Yeah! I wanna make something of this! Come on, school board, a quick answer and a good one. Shelve your diplomatic ambiguosities and talk our kind of honest language. UNCLE JOE.

Downers Grove Staff Also Installed.

H. W. Petersen, president of the Electric institute, recently was installed president of the Hinsdale Chamber of Commerce, succeeding S. E. Karlson, who served as head of the business organization during the last two years.

H. W. Petersen.

Other new officers of the chamber are Roy E. Steben, first vice president; J. K. Blackman, second vice president; Earl Bither, secretary-treasurer; F. A. Swett and Louis Simonini, greeters, and John W. Earl and Richard Schweidler, directors.

Want Parking Law Enforced.

The chamber voted to request village authorities to enforce the two hour parking ordinance in the business district, and A. H. Morris, chairman of the community affairs committee, was delegated to present the matter to the village board.

Members of the chamber also plan to ask the Burlington railroad to cut the speed of trains thru Hinsdale to at least 60 miles an hour.

President Petersen said he planned to add safety and public relations committees to those already in existence.

Downers Grove Installation.

William Garner recently was installed president of the Retail Merchants' association in Downers Grove at a dinner meeting held in the parlors of St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church. Irma Wolf was installed vice president, and Stanley Thompson was installed secretary-treasurer of the group, which has for its purpose the furthering of community interests.

William T. Garner.

Mr. Garner has been manager for Sears-Roebuck & Co., in Downers Grove for the last three years. Previously, he held a similar position in Chicago Heights. He formerly was secretary for the business men's group. L. J. Longwell is the retiring president.

Columbus Park ChoirGroup Is Seeking More Members

Memberships, particularly in the male section, are being invited by the Columbus Park Æolian choir. Announcement is made that no enrollment fee is required and that rehearsals are held each Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock in the park fieldhouse, Central avenue and Congress street. Registrations are being accepted by Stephen T. Pepich, conductor of the choir, and Erwin Weiner, park supervisor of recreation.

Give Dance Tonight.

A birthday dance in celebration of the 20th anniversary of the founding of Phi Delta Sigma Social and Dramatic club of Our Lady of Holy Mount parish will be held this evening in the parish social center, Cicero.

ROAMING CHURCH IS CELEBRATING 70TH BIRTHDAY

Trinity Lutherans Have Had Four Locations.

In biblical times, when people migrated with their flocks, they took their churches with them. That the same thing can happen now is indicated by the history of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, Laramie avenue and Hirsch street. It is celebrating its 70th anniversary this week and during that time it has been situated at four different locations.

The Rev. Carl Rembold.

Originally the congregation was a unit of St. Peter's Evangelical church at Cortez street and Oakley boulevard. On Easter Sunday, 1870, however, the little group of 50 families separated from the parent church. Under the leadership of the Rev. John Bond they found temporary quarters in the home of Henry Gudehus on Ashland avenue near Chicago avenue.

Members Move Away.

Within a year they purchased a site in the center of the German colony on Ada street near Chicago avenue. The church flourished there for many years, the membership increasing until at one time there were 800 confirmed members. After the turn of the century, however, the German families on the near northwest side began to move westward to the outskirts of the city.

Attendance dwindled until only 50 or 60 members were left in 1923. That was the year when the Rev. Carl Rembold assumed the pastorate. He consulted with the leaders of the congregation and they decided that if the people wouldn't come back to the church the church should go to the people.

The following year they sold the old site and purchased the present location. While the new church was being built services were held in a rented chapel in the neighborhood where most of their people lived.

Second Unit Built.

The church and parsonage was dedicated in February, 1925. In 1936 a second unit of the building was completed to make room for the growing congregation. It is all paid for now and plans are being made to complete the church plant within the next few years.

The present membership of the church is 650 confirmed members and 450 children in the Sunday school. To care for the increased attendance three services are held each Sunday morning, beginning with a German service at 9 o'clock. Young people meet for the junior church service at 9:45 and the main service begins at 11 o'clock.

This morning the services will be dedicated to anniversary themes. The Rev. Mr. Rembold will speak at the first and Dr. Emmanuel Poppen, president of the American Lutheran church, will be guest speaker at the other two. The senior choir will sing at the main service and the junior choir at the junior service. Mrs. Rembold directs both.

Hold Banquet Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night there will be a fellowship banquet in the Central Plaza hotel. The principal speaker will be Dr. William G. Sodt, stewardship secretary of the American Lutheran church.

Those who have arranged the program are Jack Seitz, chairman; George Probandt, Walter Kolb, and Henry Loef. The anniversary committee consists of representatives of each of the church organizations. They are:

George W. Reinke, church council; Frank Sickinger, Brotherhood; Mrs. Laura Wishnewski, Dorcas society; Mrs. Clara Brown, Missionary society; George Reinke, senior league; Miss Dorothy Brechner, junior league; Mrs. Virginia Guenther, Sunday school; Edward Wiedemann, choir, and Jack Mueller, "I Will" club.

WEST SUBURBAN CHORAL UNION TO OFFER CONCERT

The 14 suburban choirs, with a total of 400 voices, which make up the West Suburban Choral union will give a concert at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest. The union is directed by Arnold F. Eilers of La Grange.

Robert Reuter, director of the Chicago Lutheran Oratorio society, and organist at St. John's Lutheran church, Forest Park, will assist with the concert. Proceeds will be added to the centennial thank-offering of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

The Hinsdale trio, Miss Clara and Miss Gertrude Werfelmann and Miss Mildred Bode, first place winners in the 1939 talent quest at Kansas City, Mo., will sing.

Oak Park Engagement

The engagement of Miss Annabelle Charters to Robert Arthur McGrath was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Charters, 343 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Mr. McGrath, a graduate of Notre Dame university, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. McGrath, 725 South East avenue, Oak Park. Miss Charters was graduated from Rosary college with the class of '38. Her fiance is now studying law in the graduate school of the Catholic university, Washington, D. C. [Toloff Photo.]

COOKING EXPERT SAYS SMILE IS PART OF RECIPE

Mrs. Nena Badenoch of Oak Park is a gracious woman with many friends. She is quiet and hospitable, yet there is one thing that saddens her. Friends are afraid to invite her to dinner.

Mrs. Nena Badenoch. [Sue Page Photo.]

That's because she is such a good cook. Mrs. Badenoch says they should not be afraid because she knows what planning, hard work, and care go into the preparation of a meal. Besides being a housewife and the mother of three children, she has become so expert at cooking that when she tastes a dish she can name its principal ingredients. She is co-author with Mrs. Anna J. Peterson of Elgin on their latest venture, the book "Delectable Dinners," published a month ago.

Work of Eight Years.

The menus listed in the book are built around 143 cuts of meat and fish. Recipes accompany the items on the menus. The co-authors worked for eight years on the plans and the Badenoch and Johnson families have eaten all of the dinners. It was listed as one of the best books for 1939, and covers menu planning, carving, and kinds of service.

The friendship between the two housewives who excelled in cooking started 16 years ago when Mrs. Badenoch worked with Mrs. Johnson as household consultants for a public service company. When Mrs. Badenoch moved to Boston eight years ago they continued to compare recipes and plan the book by mail. This is the second cookbook they have published and, in addition, Mrs. Badenoch has written two books for children.

Mrs. Peterson excelled in home economics for 40 years. She once was a friend and pupil of Fannie Farmer and took lessons from her in the Boston Cooking school. She says "You can taste the difference in a stew that's made with a smile, for bad cooks are the women who hate it."

Digestion and Disposition.

In an era when most women are seeking horizons beyond the kitchen, Mrs. Badenoch and Mrs. Peterson stayed in theirs and made cooking a profession, hobby, and avocation all rolled into one. They say "four or five hours after you've eaten food that's what you are. If the vegetables have been sodden and indigestible, a man's disposition begins to match them after that length of time."

"Styles in cooking and planning recipes," says Mr. Badenoch, "are like styles in clothes. Newer than permanent waves and cutout toes in shoes are avocada pears and broccoli. A few years ago there wouldn't be 146 different dinners. Better roads, faster transportation, and better refrigeration have changed our menus. Produce from all parts of the country is available to women in Maine or in Utah."

Mr. Badenoch is one man who never says, "Gosh, pork chops again." He has to be very careful. If he says, "This is good, I like it," he never sees that dish again. His wife has hundreds more to try on him before they are ready to become published recipes.

Church Philathea Class Sponsors Lecture Tuesday

Philathea class of the Austin Baptist church will sponsor a lecture by Dr. Trevor Dillon on "The Viking Lands and Russia's Red Menace" at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Thomas Memorial hall of the church. The music program will be by Shirley Ann Colles, marimba player; Elizabeth Ann Marquart, piano accompanist, and Mrs. Wilbur McGirr, piano soloist. Mrs. Edythe Shepard and Mrs. A. P. Vignola are chairmen of arrangements.

SEES EDUCATION AS ADVENTURE FOR YOUTH TODAY

New Principal at Austin Makes Learning Fun.

The boy who crept unwillingly to school several generations ago would be pleased to meet Hobart H. Sommers, who was appointed principal of Austin High school last month. Mr. Sommers says: "School should be fun for the principal, the teachers, and the 'kids'."

Hobart H. Sommers.

He could be a lawyer, a physician, or a successful business man. He is young and handsome. He believes in the individuality of every child and finds school mastering a fascinating game. He sees no reason why any subject should be "dry" or why a boy should get bored and fall asleep in the back seat. He thinks if the "dead languages" can't be made lively and interesting they shouldn't be taught. School lessons to Mr. Sommers ought to be lessons in living.

Starts Evening College.

It was Mr. Sommers who started the Chicago evening colleges. Five years ago, when he was head of evening school work at Austin, he conducted a survey among his students. He discovered that 60 per cent of those enrolled were high school graduates. Why not, he thought, make the courses of college level and thus was born three free public junior colleges in the evening which serve the south, west, and north sections of the city. The west side is served by Austin, the south by Englewood, and the north by Schurz where the high schools are converted into colleges when the sun sets.

That is a part of Mr. Sommers' philosophy of education. "The school should adjust itself to the needs of the community," he says. "It should be a service station for taxpayers. The courses, the activities program, should be what the student needs and wants. We don't put students thru the wringer of standardized education any more."

Mr. Sommers is a Chicagoan, born, reared, and educated on the west side. He went to the Marquette elementary school, was graduated from Lane Technical High school, and the Chicago Normal college, and then war came. He enlisted and was stationed in Pensacola, Fla., a part of the Naval Aviation corps.

Continues to Study.

When the war was over he took the teachers' examinations and was immediately assigned to the woodworking department at Lane. He holds a bachelor of philosophy degree from the University of Chicago, a master of education from Loyola university, and also attended Columbia university. In 1935 he was named principal of the Austin Evening High school and later became dean of Austin's Evening Junior college, which this year reached the enrollment figure of 1,800 students.

He also holds a master's degree in music, was the first instrumental music supervisor for Chicago schools and teachers at Northwestern university's music school during the summers. He directed school concerts during the Century of Progress exhibition and has been in charge of school music contests.

As to his new position at Austin High school, Mr. Sommers says, "It is my ambition to keep this school in the excellent condition which Wilbur Wright left it when he retired. There is nothing lacking in our program or our equipment."

MRS. RUTH ROHDE TO ADDRESS 19TH CENTURY CLUB

Former Envoy to Speak Tomorrow Afternoon.

Hailing her as "the first woman diplomat," the 19th Century Woman's club of Oak Park will welcome to its meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, the first woman representative in congress and the first woman minister to a foreign country. Mrs. Rohde was procured as lecturer for this meeting by the club's program chairman, Mrs. Charles R. Boynton, herself an author and dramatic artist.

Mrs. Charles R. Boynton. [Toloff Photo.]

The quality of the 19th Century club programs is made possible by the work of Mrs. Boynton who has a knowledge of the lecture platform from both sides of the footlights. Mrs. Rohde will speak on "This Democracy of Ours" and will be introduced by the club president, Mrs. Arthur M. Houser Jr.

"The Art of Illustrating" will be discussed by Miss Helen Frazee, former illustrator of a children's magazine, at the 11 o'clock meeting tomorrow morning of the 19th Century club. At present Miss Frazee is associated with Miss Mary Hipple, decorator.

19th Century Associates.

An open house masquerade will be held at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening by the 19th Century Associates of Oak Park. Club members are requested to attend the party dressed to represent the title of a book. There will be a program of old fashioned square dances and games.

Austin Woman's Club.

Carlton Smith, magazine editor, will speak at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon before the Austin Woman's club meeting in the Austin Masonic temple. His topic will be "What's Wrong with Europe," a subject he has studied during 10 years abroad. He recently returned from a 16,000 mile air trip around South America.

The literary round table will meet at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Austin branch library when Mrs. George Reiter will review Nora Waln's book "Reaching for the Stars." Mrs. John J. Phee will review "Maud" by Richard Lee Strout.

The Iris Garden circle will hear a lecture on "Better Roses" by Frank C. Isel at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning in the home of Mrs. Arthur C. Thorrud, 5718 West Ohio street. Past presidents of the club will present a program Monday afternoon, Feb. 12, sponsored by the department of American citizenship and public welfare of which Mrs. Milford D. Burrows is chairman.

Downers Grove Women.

A newly organized group in the Downers Grove Woman's club, the drama committee of which Mrs. W. R. Behrel is chairman, will have charge of the program at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Congregational church. After dessert and coffee, members will meet in the auditorium at 2 o'clock for the play "Mrs. Harper's Bazar." Mrs. Hayes Patterson, a member of the Downers Grove High school faculty, is in charge of the production.

Members of the cast are Mrs. A. H. VanValen, Mrs. C. B. Owen, Mrs. R. E. Bateman, Mrs. William M. Jayne, Mrs. Lawrence Longwell, Mrs. P. E. Peterman, Mrs. E. F. Gengelbach, and Mrs. H. H. Kern. Miss Maude Ralston will play violin solos accompanied by Donald Drew. Hostesses will be Mrs. J. E. Capps, Mrs. Charles Dyer, Mrs. George Hoffert, and Mrs. R. W. Wheeler.

YOUNG SCHOOL P.-T. A. TO NOTE FOUNDERS' DAY

Charter Members Will Be Special Guests.

The 10th anniversary of the founding of Ella Flagg Young Parent-Teacher association will be celebrated at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium, 1400 North Waller avenue. Charter members will be special guests and will participate in a candlelighting ceremony.

The early history of the unit will be read by Mrs. Leah Hamper, historian, and Mrs. Anne Balderson and Mrs. Helen Wick will sing a duet. After the meeting there will be a bake sale and refreshments.

Officers are Mrs. T. R. Ernest, president; Mrs. G. H. Welk and Mrs. F. W. Williamson, vice presidents; Mrs. A. R. Callow, recording secretary; Mrs. A. T. Borge, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. G. Gilson, treasurer, and Mrs. Leah Hamper, auditor.

Two birthdays will be celebrated at a meeting of the Roswell B. Mason unit at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school assembly hall. The program will mark the unit's 16th birthday and also the 43d anniversary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The history of the last year will be read by Mrs. Joseph Pilny, historian. Also at this meeting a nominating committee will be elected and the revision of by-laws voted on. At the end of the meeting, the two birthday cakes will be cut and the slices sold for the benefit of a scholarship fund.

A picture in memory of Mrs. Lillian Chrastka, a member who died last year, will be dedicated at a meeting of the Farragut High school P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the social room. Members of the Chrastka family and the unit's past presidents will be guests. Members will present a Founders' day skit.

Howe P.-T. A. recently completed a fund drive to purchase white raincoats and caps for the patrol boys of the school. The campaign was directed by Mrs. F. L. Jinkins, who reports that enough money was collected to purchase 22 coats and caps.

The Chicago Operetta company will present selections from "The Mikado" and "Vagabond King" at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, Feb. 16, in the Nash school auditorium, 4837 West Erie street. Proceeds from the performance will be used by the Nash P.-T. A. to promote student aid work.

Proceeds of the dance will be added to the maintenance fund of the Fox River sanitarium at Batavia.

URBAN LEAGUE TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY

Skit Is Major Feature of Conference.

"How Not to Be Bored by a Board Meeting" is the title of a skit which will be presented at the 23d annual meeting of the Chicago Urban league at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening in the main dining room of the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Kay McLaughlin wrote the sketch which will supplant the usual address. Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi of Temple Sholom and a vice president of the league, will preside, and chairmen of committees will participate.

These are George D. Kells, finance; William P. Harrison, civics; Miss Sara Southall, industrial and research; Miss Amelia Sears, social welfare; Dr. Charles M. Thompson, youth; Dr. Duncan H. Browne, church coöperation; Howard G. Mayer, publicity; A. Lincoln Wisler, interracial goodwill; Mrs. Hugo Law, woman's division, and Mrs. U. G. Dailey, community centers.

Youths to Sing.

The Exclusive Sharps and Flats, a group of young singers sponsored by the Urban league, will provide musical numbers. Earl B. Dickerson, president of the league, will end the skit with a short formal address in which the policies and programs for 1940 and 1941 will be discussed.

George D. Kells, chairman of the finance committee, and Bertram G. Cahn, treasurer, have issued an appeal to all 1939 contributors to renew their memberships for 1940 before March 31 so that officers can determine the amount of income from this course, in order to plan for obtaining additional necessary funds.

Membership Increased.

The league ended the year with its finances in excellent condition and with a greatly increased membership, Mr. Dickerson said. It is an organization of both colored and white persons working to develop better relations between the two races.

Aiding Dance

Miss Rhya Kaplan, 3652 West Douglas boulevard, is a member of the arrangements committee for the fifth annual dance which will be held this evening in the gold room of the Congress hotel by the Forides club. The Forides meet at the Jewish Peoples institute and are affiliated with the youth division of the American Jewish congress. Harvey G. Marks is general chairman of the dance committee.

CADETS TO DRILL IN CITY TITLE MEET MARCH 30

Dates for judging two interschool R. O. T. C. contests were announced last week by Maj. William B. Weston, adjutant for local R. O. T. C. headquarters. Scores fired for the city and corps area rifle competition, which began last month, must be submitted by Feb. 15, he said, and the annual drill contest will be held this year on March 30 in the 132d Infantry armory. Each school's score in the rifle matches, will be entered both in the public school contest and the 6th corps area competition. Schurz High school is defending champion in the former contest. Tilden Technical High school has won the Chicago drill contest four times in the last five years.

8 CLOSED STATE BANKS DUE TO REPAY $246,000

Berwyn State Is in Lead with $27,300.

Some 25,700 depositors of eight closed state banks on the west side and in western suburbs may divide another $246,000 in new refunds during the next few weeks.

This was indicated by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett with his release of quarterly statements showing the condition of some of the defunct institutions at the close of last year. These statements are taken from reports made by receivers for the 132 closed state banks in Cook county. Charles H. Albers is general receiver for all but two of these banks.

The banks and the percentage and approximate total each is expected to repay as soon as possible are:

Final for Baker State.

Baker State, 11 per cent [final or $16,700; Berwyn State, 5 per cent or $27,300; Berwyn Trust and Savings, 5 per cent [final] or $6,200; Brookfield State, 5 per cent [final] or $8,000; Congress Park State bank, 18 per cent [final] or $5,000; Forest Park Trust and Savings, 5 per cent or $63,000; Lyons State, 4 per cent [final] or $10,000, and Reliance Bank and Trust company, 5 per cent or $110,000.

Four west side banks made $110,700 new repayments in the December quarter: Adams State, $20,000; Ashland State, $25,000 [final]; Central Oak Park State, $3,700 [final]; Columbia State, $62,000; Maywood State, $46,000, and Melrose Park State, $32,500.

Adams State—Total receipts, $619,948. Paid on prior claims, $200,400. Paid depositors, $67,308 or 17 per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,130; legal, $19,755; clerical, $43,062; interest, $22,660; advanced to protect assets, $153,104, with $146,686 refunded. Cash, $7,624, none of it available for the debt to depositors.

Ashland State—Total receipts, $364,879. Paid on prior claims, $114,410. Paid depositors, $75,553 or 27 per cent. Costs: receivers, $5,108; legal, $14,205; clerical, $39,813; interest, $681; advanced to protect assets, $115,107, with $114,966 refunded. Cash, none. The repayment made last quarter was the final one.

Baker State—Total receipts, $222,940. Paid on prior claims, $46,407. Paid depositors, $45,245 or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $3,402; legal, $7,707; clerical, $26,350; interest, $1,986; advanced to protect assets, $42,824, with $42,136 refunded. Cash, $19,693. The contemplated distribution will be the last one inasmuch as the bank's remaining assets have been sold.

Berwyn State—Total receipts, $456,806. Paid on prior claims, $144,252. Paid depositors, $136,616 or 25 per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,110; legal, $24,983; clerical, $35,112; interest, $597; advanced to protect assets, $75,489, with $75,091 refunded. Cash, $33,645. About 30 to 35 per cent will be the limit.

Berwyn Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $168,149. Paid on prior claims, $52,962. Paid depositors, $37,274 or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $331; legal, $4,826; clerical, $29,300; interest, $2,407; advanced to protect assets, $36,802, with $28,746 refunded. Cash, $4,183. The next payment will probably be the last.

Brookfield State—Total receipts, $187,736. Paid on prior claims, $56,582. Paid depositors, $32,228 or 20 per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,264; legal, $5,211; clerical, $28,009; interest, $303; advanced to protect assets, $49,693, with $47,228 refunded. Cash, $11,444. The bank's assets have been disposed of and the next disbursement will be the final one.

Central Oak Park State—Total receipts, $132,834. Paid on prior claims, $30,596. Paid depositors, $65,430 or 61½ per cent. Costs: receivers, $5,025; legal, $5,955; clerical, $17,825; interest, $951; advanced to protect assets, $6,911, with $6,666 refunded. Cash, $138. Last quarter's payment was the final one.

Cicero Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $477,485. Paid on prior claims, $84,096. Paid depositors, $170,563 or 25 per cent. Costs: receivers, $10,091; legal, $40,697; clerical, $56,150; interest, $48; advanced to protect assets, $97,145, with $63,123 refunded. Cash, $18,691. It still appears the payout may reach 35 per cent.

Citizens State Bank of Melrose Park—Total receipts, $337,012. Paid on prior claims, $115,005. Paid depositors, $27,017, or 5 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $9,662; legal, $22,873; clerical, $39,496; interest, $1,817; advanced to protect assets, $108,840, with $92,028 refunded. Cash, $18,300. The present percentage may eventually be duplicated.

Columbia State Savings — Total receipts, $1,048,420. Paid on prior claims, $124,219. Paid depositors, $528,240, or 42½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $16,607; legal, $30,189; clerical, $88,124; interest, $1,016; advanced to protect assets, $193,706, with $169,085 refunded. Cash, $29,261. Estimates indicate the possibility of another 5 per cent or a little more.

Commerce Trust and Savings — Total receipts, $809,796. Paid on prior claims, $232,884. Paid depositors, $448,339, or 78 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $10,338; legal, $38,050; clerical, $36,177; interest, $1,442; advanced to protect assets, $26,476, with $19,110 refunded. Cash, $6,587. The bank's remaining assets have been sold and the next refund will in all likelihood wind up the repayments.

Congress Park State—Total receipts, $90,819. Paid on prior claims, $11,898. Paid depositors, $12,472, or 45 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $1,237; legal, $2,858; clerical, $10,213; interest, $296; advanced to protect assets, $19,572, with $19,295 refunded. Cash, $5,512. The next payment will be the last.

Crawford State Savings — Total receipts, $1,019,557. Paid on prior claims, $339,553. Paid depositors, $240,560, or 25 per cent. Similar figures for the remaining west side and west suburban banks will be available for publication soon.

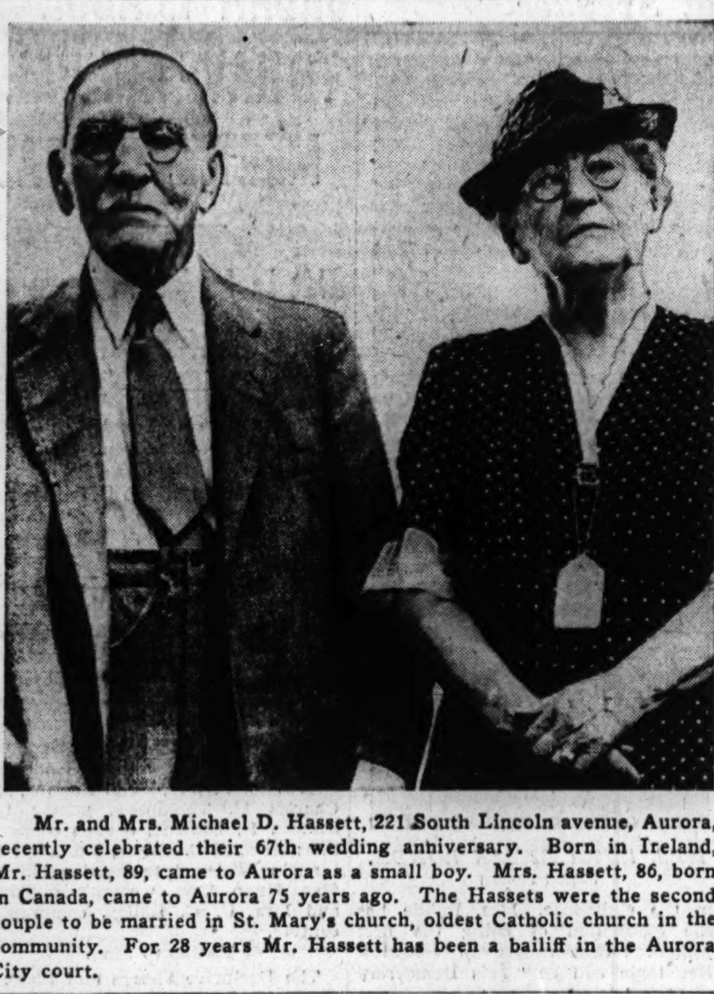
Wed 67 Years



Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. Hassett, 221 South Lincoln avenue, Aurora, recently celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary. Born in Ireland, Mr. Hassett, 89, came to Aurora as a small boy. Mrs. Hassett, 86, born in Canada, came to Aurora 75 years ago. The Hassets were the second couple to be married in St. Mary's church, oldest Catholic church in the community. For 28 years Mr. Hassett has been a bailiff in the Aurora City court.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 5.

Why not plan to plant nut trees in the yard for beauty and fruit? There are many suburban yards that have room for several; even one is an asset. The pignut is not large and the foliage is clean and handsome. The shagbark hickory will stand a lot of abuse and the shaggy bark is distinct. The black walnut, butternut, and the hybrid pecans and chestnuts are worth a place in any yard. But give them good care at all times. When planning the shrubbery plantations, do not make the mistake of having them too close together; plant dwarf kinds 2½ to 4 feet apart and the larger varieties 4 to 6 feet. Just a little pruning of shrubs each year is preferable to severe pruning at long intervals, for the object is to encourage new wood to grow that produces the flowers.

Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Frequently grass does poorly under trees and it is desirable to use other plants. Among these are the myrtle of vinca minor and the ajuga reptans rubra [purpleleaf bugle]. The myrtle is almost evergreen and spreads rapidly. The ajuga is excellent as an edging plant and may be clipped into form. It is also a good rockery plant, but must be kept in bounds or it will take possession of the place. Plants under trees should be given fertilizer in early spring and plenty of water during periods of drouth. A good, low, spreading plant to grow in the narrow strip between the house and driveway is the goutweed [ægopodium podograria]. It does well in any soil, is a fine ground cover beneath trees or on waste ground.

Wednesday, Feb. 7.

It soon will be time to begin sowing the seed of some annuals for early planting. The seed may be ordered now and sowing begun in March. Petunias, phlox, verbena, flowering tobacco, cosmos, heliotrope, torenia, early asters, scarlet sage, and others are all started early. But remember that it is a waste of seeds to sow the seed thickly. Very fine seeds need not be covered with soil, but merely pressed into it. Large seeds should be sown in rows and covered to about three times their width.

Thursday, Feb. 8.

Don't forget the birds. Hang suet on the branches of trees and scatter chick feed where birds can reach it. Build a shelter for them out of evergreen boughs, cornstalks, or the materials that are at hand. Birds consume an endless amount of insects, but in times of stress they must be aided. Work over and paint bird houses now while outdoor activities are halted.

Friday, Feb. 9.

Potted bulbous plants are now on the market. Give flowering pot plants plenty of water and, if they are bulbous, keep them growing until the leaves turn yellow; then place in the basement, withholding water. Tulips and hyacinths can be planted in the garden next fall. Do not throw narcissi plants away, but cure the bulbs and plant out in the fall.

Saturday, Feb. 10.

Have you ever noticed the size of the pots the florist uses? They seem small to the amateur, for he tends to use large pots, sometimes much larger than the plants require. Try to keep the plants in as small pots as possible, for an excess of soil and too much water may prevent the roots from getting the air they need and a saturated condition may be very injurious.

MORNING ROOM RETURNS TODAY IN MODERN NOOK

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The "morning room" of half a century ago is now definitely with us again; so much so that in homes without number it almost rates as "standard equipment."

Today, however, instead of belonging to very large and impressive homes, and being quite an impressive feature itself, it has taken on a delightful informality, and is found in kitchens that are equally informal and simple.

There is a handsome kitchen in a new home in Glenview which has just such a "morning room." This room, built into the kitchen proper, could be called a "breakfast booth," since it is composed of table and benches, and the back of one bench makes possible an additional working surface in the kitchen at right angles to the sink.

A very gay little breakfast booth it is, too, brought alive by the yellow painted walls and blue painted ceiling. And a very important spot in the home.

Has Venetian Blinds.

Both a kitchen and a "morning room" should be bathed in light where this is possible. With the market abounding in so many fascinating materials for walls and ceiling and floors, it is important to keep in mind that the colors on those walls and ceilings will have an effect on how much light you get in the rooms. For ceilings and walls can intensify light or absorb it. Careful tests have been made of different shades and what they will do for a room.

How Colors Reflect.

White, of course, reflects more of the total available color light than any other color. It reflects some 80 per cent of all the light that touches it! Cream and light ivory come next, reflecting some 71 per cent. Then there's apricot beige, reflecting 66 per cent; lemon yellow, 65 per cent; deep ivory, 59 per cent; light buff, 56 per cent; peach and salmon, 53 per cent, and pale green, 51 per cent.

Another point to which attention is being given in kitchen treatment is the muffling of kitchen noises by ceiling finishes. There are ceiling "tiles" which can be applied to new or old ceilings. In reality, these tiles are squares of acoustic material. This material is made up of millions of tiny air cells, and these cells contribute to a porosity in the material which blots up noise as a blotter soaks up ink.

By this treatment you can decrease those kitchen sounds which travel, on the slightest encouragement, to other parts of the house. Likewise, you can cut down noises you hear in the kitchen yourself; the clatter of dishes and silver and pots and pans.

Home to Be in Georgia

Mrs. Robert V. Kent was Miss Joyce Higgins before her recent marriage in Ascension church, Oak Park. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Higgins, 805 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Kent's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Kent, 1112 Lathrop avenue, River Forest. After a wedding breakfast in the Oak Park Arms hotel Mr. and Mrs. Kent departed for Miami Beach, Fla. They will make their home in Augusta, Ga.

LENTEN VOCABULARY.

Lent: Anglo Saxon word for spring. Old English, Lencten; French, Carême; Italian, Quaresima; Spanish, Cuaresma. [These refer to the 40 days.] Greek, likewise 40, or Tessaracost—like Pentecost, 50 days after Easter—in earlier days, nowadays its Nesteia, the fast. Latin, Quadragesima. German, Lenz. Lent first mentioned in Christian history in fifth canon of council of Nicea, 325 A. D. under name of Tessaracost.

Shrove Tuesday. Day before Ash Wednesday. Hearing confession before Lent. To shrive is to hear a confession. Also called Mardi Gras—French for Fat Tuesday—when meat can be eaten without restraint, or Carni Vale [carnivals get their name here], "Goodbye Meat!"

Ash Wednesday. Also called Quadragesima by Latins. First day of lent or 40 week days until Easter. Sundays, being "little Easters," are not days "of" Lent but "in" it. Ashes refer to traditional symbol of sorrow for sin. These generally come from burned palms of previous Palm Sunday.

Fast. Comes from Anglo Saxon Faestan, meaning, to observe [i. e., to observe abstinence from meat]. Defined by Catholic authorities as being a day in which only one full meal is allowed. Fast and abstinence is defined by Catholic authority as a day in which one full meal is allowed but forbids meat or meat broth.

Passion Sunday. Fifth Sunday in Lent. Penumbra of Holy Week when vicarious trial and sufferings of Christ are foreshadowed.

Palm Sunday. Sixth Sunday in Lent. Ushers in Holy week which closes with Easter E'ven at noon on Holy Saturday.

Good Friday. The day of the death of Christ on the cross.

Singer's Philosophy: Have a Lot of Fun.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bonnie and Johnny! Now there's a team.

Bonnie Baker has been making America, "O, Johnny, O!" conscious. And Johnny, with the aid of an army of "O's" has been making Bonnie Baker a celebrity.

"I've sung the song a million times, I bet," Dimpled Bonnie exclaims. "And there doesn't seem to be any let up."

And for every time she's sung it, she has turned out from 9 to 21 "O's" depending on the arrangement. To arrive at these millions of "O's" you must recall that she sings the song several times nightly in the Empire Room of the Palmer House. And does it almost nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And Saturday nights on the Hit Parade broadcast. Then there are guest appearances on the radio.

Mililons of Bonnie's "O's."

Besides, more than half a million of "O, Johnny" records have been sold. And in each of these there is a minimum of 21 "O's." All over the country jitterbugs are pushing nickels into groan boxes just as fast as they can to hear those unending melting "O's" pour forth. Almost 350,000 copies of sheet music have been sold. So when you add to Bonnie's "O's" those of a myriad imitators you get a figure comparable to the national debt.

Today fame and fortune are Wee Bonnie's. She takes it all calmly. She's unlike a lot of celebrities. She can't understand her popularity, for one thing. Everything just happened, she says. No credit belongs to her. All of that should go to Orrin Tucker, her boss, she says.

"I owe everything that's happened to Orrin," she says. "He taught me all I know about showmanship; showed me how to use my voice to best advantage. Coached me in every song I've sung. The whole 'O, Johnny' idea was his."

It all started when they were playing an engagement at the Palmer House last year. The floor show had an old fashioned setting. Tucker wanted a song of earlier days for Bonnie to sing in it. One day he started humming a tune he had heard as a kid in Wheaton. It was "O, Johnny" which Abe Olman, a Chicagoan, wrote back in the war year of 1917. That was 23 years ago.

Records Started It Rolling.

Tucker had a time finding a copy of "O, Johnny." Finally he located one in a small shop. The song went over well at the Palmer House. But it wasn't until about six months ago when they recorded it that it started clicking in a big way.

"We got the surprise of our lives," says Bonnie. "The piece caught on and hung like fly paper. And you know the rest."

How does Bonnie explain the craze? She doesn't. Maybe it's because the tune is new to the younger generation. But no, that wouldn't keep it going so long. The little girl way she does it? Or possibly the nursery rhyme effect? [Even two year olds like it, you know.] Bonnie is besieged by mammas and papas everynight who tell her how their kids go for it.

Cute Is Word for Bonnie.

"It's so cute," exclaims Bonnie. "Mothers and fathers come in and have a good time, while maybe the kids are listening at home on the radio. The youngsters hear me at home, but mamma and papa see me in person. To even up matters, they take home a menu on which I've written a little note for the kids."

Cute is the word for Bonnie's interpretation of the song, too. Whether the song made her or she made the song is a matter of speculation. But there is no doubt that people like the combination. Night after night it's a sellout. When she was ill recently for a few nights the customers set up a terrific clamor for her.

A little about Bonnie's career: While attending Mount De Sales academy in Macon, Ga., she sang for school parties. A local orchestra leader saw and signed her. When Tucker first met Bonnie in St. Louis four years ago he recognized possibilities in her pert voice. So he engaged her and she has been with him ever since.

Explains Her Philosophy.

Bonnie was born Evelyn Nelson at Orange, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Leroy Jones travels with her. Bonnie is five feet tall, wears size four shoes; has dark brown eyes; doesn't weigh quite a hundred.

Busy as she is, she has a lot of fun. She enjoys her work a lot. She isn't thinking much about pictures, tho some tentative offers have been made.

"It might be nice to make a movie," she says, "but I like what I'm doing now. I think it makes people unhappy to be too ambitious."

She says she doesn't miss parties and boy friends much.

"I don't have time for such things," she says, "because of my work. Besides I have Toby to take up my leisure time."

Toby is a 9 month old fox terrier.

Scandinavian Position, Subject of N. U. Program

Trygve Hoff, Norwegian economist, and Franklin D. Scott, professor of history, will discuss the position of Scandinavia in the Russo-Finnish conflict on the Northwestern university reviewing stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m., today.

Simone Simon is going to try to project her Gallic charm over the radio today. She hasn't appeared before the microphone often. It's true her name was much on the air a season or two back—the comedians just couldn't resist cracks about it.

But when she makes her bow over W-G-N and the Mutual network this afternoon it will be only her third appearance on the air—and her first from Chicago. Mlle. Simon will be the star in today's "Fifth Row Center" program which each Sunday presents a top-notcher in the entertainment world. She will play the lead in "Model Princess," a comedy-drama by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Promises an Earful.

As every moviegoer knows and customers at the Erlanger theater are finding out, Mlle. Simon is an eyeful. She is appearing there in "Three After Three," a musical comedy with tunes by Hoagy Carmichael. And Simone is determined that radio listeners shall have an earful, too!

While she has had limited experience on the air, Mlle. Simon will draw inspiration from the rôle she is to portray: a photographer's model who takes the part of a foreign princess, falling in love with an American—with ensuing complications. For at pictorial performing Simone is good—extra good. Her little-girl cuteness, her soft beguilements, her French flirtaceousness all register well on the eye. Since television is not yet here, listeners will have to get along without that.

But she has a fetching voice, too. An intriguing accent and a saucy, pert personality which should be well absorbed and purveyed by the microphone.

Her Outside Interests.

Rehearsals in New York for "Three After Three" have kept her so busy, she said the other day between matinée and evening performances, that she hasn't had time for any recreation.

When she has leisure time, she said, she likes nothing better than to play the piano—and perhaps sing a little. She does a little warbling in "Three After Three." She doesn't go for sports much. The extent of her exercises at present, she said, is writing an occasional letter! She loves picture making and expects sometime to go back to Hollywood.

"In Three After Three" she is costarred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green. They, too, are to be presented in special W-G-N and Mutual broadcasts. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will provide the musical portion of today's broadcast. Blair Walliser will be the director. "Fifth Row Center" is one of W-G-N's innovations in bringing to listeners the best in all fields of entertainment. L. W.

Whistler to Be Featured on Steelmakers Program

Dick Weatherson, a whistler, and Grace Boffo, will be the guest employée headliners on W-G-N and Mutual's "Musical Steelmakers" program from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today.

Regular members of the troupe—Regina Colbert, the Steele Sisters, Ardenne White, the Old Timer, Dorothy Ann Crowe, will be heard in such numbers as "O, Johnny," "I Concentrate on You," "The Rosary," and "Bluebirds in the Moonlight."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Lincoln club of Jackson, Mich., on Thursday, Feb. 15. His address will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Col. McCormick's subject will be "The Attempt to Communize America."

Jackson, Mich., is regarded as a birthplace of the Republican party. Since this is a presidential election year the Lincoln club's meeting is of especial significance. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Allegan County building.

Sailing Fan

Alice Hill of W-G-N's "Painted Dreams" is starting in early preparing for next summer's boating. She is pictured breaking ice off the hull of a boat to be exhibited at the National Boat and Sports show at Navy pier this week. Alice also is featured in "Backstage Wife" at NBC.

A MILLION KIDS JOIN FAN CLUB OF ORPHAN ANNIE

Santa Claus and radio's "Little Orphan Annie" get more letters every year from young children thruout the United States than do any other personalities, according to a survey made last week. Santa ranks first, with little red-headed Annie a close second.

The adventures of Annie are heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 5:45 to 6 p. m. The program is aired over W-G-N and 83 other stations, the largest network hook-up for a daytime script program.

An average of close to one million children have joined the club which Orphan Annie sponsors every year for the last seven years. In addition, Annie receives literally tens of thousands of letters from her youthful admirers every year.

FREDERICK THE GREAT SUBJECT OF BROADCAST

Episodes from the life of Frederick the Great will be presented on the program, "Meditation and Melody," broadcast by De Paul university in coöperation with the University Broadcasting council, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The W-G-N concert orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will play two compositions of the Prussian ruler, Flute Concerto No. 3, and the First Movement of Symphony No. 3.

Lucille Lawrence to Be Featured in Music Hall

Lucille Lawrence, harpist, will be soloist with a strong symphony conducted by Erno Rapee on the Radio City Music Hall on the Air concert, at 11 a. m. over WENR. Miss Lawrence will play "Giga" by Corelli and two works by Carlos Salzedo, "Chanson Dans la Nuit" and "Behind the Barracks." The orchestra will play four pieces from the Bach-Woodhouse Suite in D Major, "Two Aquarelles," by Delius, and "Verklaerte Nacht," by Schoenberg. Jan Peerce, tenor, also will be heard.

STORM BULL TO PLAY ON W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Young Pianist Will Offer Grieg Concerto.

Storm Bull, 26 year old Chicago born pianist, will be the guest star on the Pageant of Melody, to be conducted by Henry Weber from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Bull, whose grandfathers were nephews of Ole Bull, famous Norwegian violinist, and first cousins of Edvard Grieg, Norwegian composer, will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, the octet, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Mr. Weber will be featured in the program with Mr. Bull. Baggiore will sing "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti," from Verdi's "La Traviata," and will join the octet in "O Promise Me," by Reginald De Koven, and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Charles Marshall.

The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture" by Felix Mendelssohn and "Sipapu," by Henry Hadley.

Made His Debut at 15.

Storm Bull made his debut at the age of 15 in Oslo, Norway. He has appeared in a series of concerts abroad, followed by engagements in the United States and Canada, both as soloist with orchestra and in recital.

The Concert Revue, directed by Mr. Weber, usually heard at 9:30 p. m., will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday this week only because of program changes. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will be heard with the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Miss Witwer to Sing.

"O Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," by Serge Rachmaninoff, will be sung by Miss Witwer, with Michael Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Mr. Weber playing the piano.

Other numbers will include "Abu Hassan Overture," by Von Weber; "Prelude to Act I" and "Oriental Dance," from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite," and a string arrangement of Warlock's "Serenade."

Vic Smith.

He plays the part of the head of the Carter family on "The Carters of Elm Street." The show is aired on W-G-N and 83 other Mutual stations daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 11:45 a. m. to noon.

"I consider it one of the more fortunate incidents in my acting career that I have the rôle of Mr. Carter," Smith said. "It isn't very often that one is able to get a rôle that is so full of realism and life—and above all, the joy of living that it isn't like acting at all. It seems that I could almost step in front of the microphone and then live the part.

ARTHUR S. HENNING BACK ON W-G-N WITH 'CAPITAL COMMENT'

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has started his sixth annual series of Capital Comment programs on W-G-N. He is heard from 7 to 7:15 p. m. Sundays.

Mr. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899; was sent to Washington in 1909 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Mr. Henning is an authority on national politics, having covered 18 national conventions of the two major parties beginning with those of 1904.

"PINOCCHIO" HITS TO BE AIRED BY HAROLD STOKES

Score to Be Featured on Wednesday.

"Your Sunday Date," directed by Harold Stokes, will present popular dance music, with the singing of Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, from 8 to 8:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Darn That Dream," from the musical comedy, "Swingin' the Dream," and will join the chorus in "To You, Sweetheart Aloha." Salerno will sing for his solo, "At the Balalaika."

Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "All Dressed Up Spic and Spanish," from "Too Many Girls;" "Wham!" "Here Comes the Night," and "Soon."

The musical score from "Pinnocchio" will be featured in "Romance in Rhythm" directed by Mr. Stokes, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Curt Massey, Edna O'Dell, and the Four Shades of Blue will be the vocalists.

The numbers from Walt Disney's new picture will include "Three Cheers for Anything," "Give a Little Whistle," "Turn on the Old Music Box," "When You Wish Upon a Star," and "I've Got No Strings." Miss O'Dell will sing "Does Your Heart Beat for Me." Massey will do "The Singing Hills."

LENT, LINCOLN TO BE MIDDAY SERVICE TOPICS

The opening of the Lenten season will be the topic of W-G-N Midday Service program on Feb. 5, 6, and 7, while on Feb. 8 and 9 the time will be devoted to the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

The program, under the direction of Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday from the studios of W-G-N at 12:35 p. m. Speakers for the week will be:

Monday—The Rev. Carl Rembold, Trinity United Lutheran church.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

GIVES UP 'PRO' BASEBALL TO AID WEST SIDE BOYS

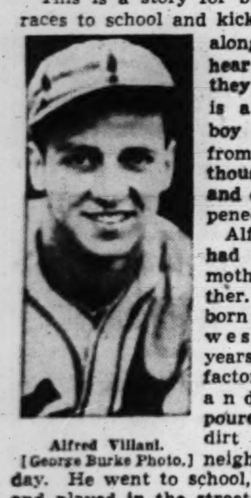
This is a story for boys who run races to school and kick empty cans along the alley to hear the noise they make. It is a story of a boy no different from hundreds of thousands of boys and of what happened to him.



Alfred Villani.

Alfred Villani had brothers, a mother, and a father. He was born on the near west side 23 years ago, where factory whistles and smoke poured noise and dirt into the neighborhood all day. He went to school, came home and played in the streets and alleys until supper time. After supper he'd run out the door when the famaliar call came under his window, "Comin' out, Al?"

Al was a skinny boy. He had heart trouble until he was 12 years old and then the family physician pronounced him cured. He was too skinny to play on the teams at Crane High school. Some boys put up a basket on a post in the alley and he practiced there.

Fights in Plenty.

They would play baseball, too, on an empty lot but the boys would argue about the rules. The only way the arguments were settled were with fists. Then a black eye would distinguish the fellow proven wrong from the fellow who was right.

One day a boy from the Off the Street club at 1534 Van Buren street, watched them playing basketball in the alley and asked why they didn't come over to the boys' club for practice. Then Al Villani, at 16 years of age, was introduced to a strange place. Here was a big gymnasium all free. The fellows could play ball any time of the day. They made up teams so the thin boys were matched against thin boys. There were leagues made up of teams of all sizes and ages.

No one got into a fight because when there were arguments the boys took it to the athletic director. He had either seen the play or he listened to both sides of the question and gave a decision. Al Villani and a friend, Quentin Vallentin, went to the club almost every day.

Becomes Fine Player.

Finally young Villani was a fine player and with the help of Jerry Salters, athletic coach, organized a baseball school. His muscles were more developed and his appetite grew with the size of his legs and arms. He was so amazed at the difference this clubhouse could make in a boy's life that he volunteered his time and taught the little boys the fine points of the game and sportsmanship.

When Villani and his brothers, sisters, and their mother lost the support of the father, the boy had to put thoughts of school out of his head and think of job hunting. He went to a sandlot to play a last game.

It was a day in 1936 that he was playing with the Chicago Blues as an outfielder. When the game was over Jack Sheehan, a former major leaguer then scouting for talent, called him over and talked to him of professional ball. Since that day he has supported himself and his mother by playing professional in minor leagues.

Then Went to Canada.

Immediately he was signed up with the South Atlantic league and went to a ball farm in Macon, Ga. After that he went to Ottawa, Canada, and played for two years on the Ottawa Senators teams in the Canadian American league.

When the present European war broke out the manager suggested he become a free agent because the league might be cancel. So Villani has come back to the Off the Street club to teach his admiring followers something of baseball in the minor leagues.

He can tell them about playing with Ken Heintbleman, the Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher, when they were on the Jeannette, Pa., team. He signed up with that team between his Georgia and Canadian playing.

Held Other Positions.

He can tell them how he played semi-pro ball with Ken Silvestri, the White Sox catcher. He also worked out for a short time with the St. Louis Cardinals. He has played with Jack Bolling, Philadelphia's first baseman; Phil Masi, catcher for the Boston Bees, and Orville Grove, pitcher for the White Sox.

His manager in Ottawa was Wally Schang, who was catcher for the New York Yankees in the early 1900's.

This story isn't over yet. Al Villani's ambition is still the major leagues. But he is inspiration just now for hundreds of eager boys, and that's a job.

"You see, what a fellow does depends on who his hero is," says Villani, who once saved pictures of ballplayers that he got in breakfast food boxes.

SUBURBAN ART LEAGUE TO OPEN EXHIBIT TODAY

Respects will be paid to modern art today at the Austin, Oak Park and River Forest Art league, 720 Chicago avenue, Oak Park, during a program which will continue from 3 o'clock this afternoon thru the evening. An afternoon reception will mark the opening of the black and white show which will continue thru the month. At 6:30 o'clock there will be a buffet supper for members and their guests, and at 8 o'clock Mrs. Yvonne L. D. Pryor will speak on modern art. Mrs. Pryor is a member of the board of the Art institute.

No Hardship in This

Practicing on musical instruments is not considered a chore by these members of the freshmen drum and bugle corps in the St. Mel High school R. O. T. C., the only freshman corps in the city high schools. Maybe that's why the organization always gives a good performance at public exhibitions. The cadets are (left to right) Private John Marinelli, Corporal Jack Harmon, and Privates Robert Zullo and John Jarecki.

Sandy Stretches Hand to Welcome All.

Weary Find Peace.

Numerous strangers, men and women, confused in mind and fatigued in body, have lifted the old brass knocker on Fellowship house and entered to live there for years. There have been doctors from the University of Chicago, social workers, school teachers, and others who have earned their keep and found peace by working the farm, cooking meals, and acting as instructors or hostesses.

Each summer a folk school is conducted at the center for 10 selected girls and 10 selected boys between the ages of 16 and 21, and for children from 7 to 14. They come from all walks of life. The older group works on the farm or in the camp for three hours in the mornings and in the afternoons is taught handicrafts, nature lore, geological surveying, leadership, folk dancing, and is helped to formulate a natural philosophy of life.

In preparation for the future, scholarships from various colleges are obtained for those who would continue their education, and jobs are found for others.

Learn About Nature.

In addition to crafts taught by Mrs. Sanders, a University of Wisconsin graduate, and a group of master artisans, the children acquire a knowledge of nature. They know what it is to sick potato bugs off the plants, to see a sow give birth to pigs, to ride a horse, to milk a cow, and to build a dam in the creek. They learn the thrill of having a wild rabbit eat trustingly from their hands. They understand where their food comes from and the labor that is necessary to obtain it.

Winter finds the center the perfect place for hayrack rides and bob sledding, tobogganing, skating, hiking, and treasure hunt parties, all of which climax before the crackling log fire in the lodge.

"Any one may use our winter recreational facilities," says the director.

All Are Welcomed.

Jews, Protestants, Catholics, and agnostics gather around the log fire each Tuesday and Thursday evening for discussion groups. Married couples see their problems soften in the lamplight on Monday evenings.

Sometime in the future a small wayside Gothic chapel will stand beneath the trees on a hilltop overlooking the highway as a memorial to the lovable old man who helped make the foundation possible, Ernest G. Warner. A number of small shops will center around an ambitious craft project. A huge barn will be built to house all stock, feed, and machinery and an early American type of inn will be built as a comfortable shelter.

Sandy's house by the side of the road will have many open doors because, as he has learned, there are many who would enter.

NEW MINISTER IS CHOSEN FOR MAYWOOD PULPIT

The Rev. John S. Ekstrom of Ligonier, Ind., recently was selected by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church of Maywood to fill the pulpit which has been vacant since the retirement of the Rev. Robert C. Young last September.

When it became known in June that the Rev. Mr. Young was to retire, the congregation appointed a committee of nine, representing the various department of the church to investigate available men and to bring in their recommendations. Appointed to the committee were Mrs. Chester Walcher, Miss Olive Lewis, Tasso Morgan, H. V. Main, J. Elbert Dittus, Roy Johnson, J. E. Meyer, A. E. Jones, and C. C. Taggart.

The committee investigated the record and work of nearly 50 men from all parts of the country before asking the Rev. Mr. Ekstrom to preach before the Maywood congregation.

The Rev. Mr. Ekstrom was graduated from Rockford High school, received his B. A. degree from Beloit college in 1931, and then completed his work at the Presbyterian Theological seminary in Chicago in 1934.

The Rev. Mr. Ekstrom served the Monon, Ind., church from 1934 to August, 1936. For the last three and a half years his work has been in Ligonier, Ind. The Rev. and Mrs. Ekstrom and daughter, Christie, expect to move to Maywood by the middle of February.

Will Be Hostess

Mrs. John Van Wakeman (above), who will open her home at 135 North Waller avenue to the Tuesday club at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Herbert Brown and Mrs. Norman Reitzel will serve with Mrs. Van Wakeman as hostesses for the social hour.

ST. MEL CADET RIFLEMEN WIN OVER WAUKEGAN

Member of Losers' Team Has High Score.

St. Mel High school's first and second teams defeated two teams from Waukegan Township High school recently in R. O. T. C. rifle matches. St. Mel won over Waukegan's No. 1 five man team, 1,692 to 1,635, and triumphed over the No. 2 team, 1,500 to 1,482.

Other St. Mel cadets competing were Peter Sweers and Robert O'Malley on the first team, and George DeVos, John Servedio, and Robert Georgen on the second team. Other Waukegan cadets competing were Eugene Maurer, Richard Salisbury, William Francke, and Paul Mennier on the first team, and Albert Zaborski, Leonard Mutau, Joseph Moreno, Matthew Canbear, and Charles Zellings on the second team.

John Nowak recently was elected president of the St. Mel Rifle club. Other officers are Frank O'Donnell, vice president; Peter Sweers, executive secretary; John Shea, secretary, and George DeVos, treasurer.

Y. W. C. A. SEEKS WAYS TO EXTEND ITS SERVICES

An educational survey to find how the Chicago Young Women's Christian association can best extend its services will be made in the west area by four women leaders appointed recently by Miss Lilace Reid Barnes, Y. W. C. A. president. Three months will be required for the survey. Clubs and other organizations in the area will be visited to see what activities most appeal to girls.

The women to conduct the survey in the west area are Mrs. Arthur Raymond, Oak Park; Mrs. Philip R. Clarke, Hinsdale; Mrs. Frank T. Darrow, Riverside, and Mrs. Mildred Jorgensen, Berwyn. After the survey is completed the association plans to extend its services thru the suburban area.

Mrs. Thomas D. Heed is chairman of the educational program and Mrs. Royal S. Van De Woestyne is vice chairman in charge of the survey.

St. Edmund Altar, Rosary Society to Play Bridge

A bridge luncheon will be held by the Altar and Rosary society of St. Edmund parish, Oak Park, at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium. Mrs. Frank J. Downs will be co-chairman with Mrs. Charles F. Peffer.

TEMPLE JUDEA TO HEAR TALK ON 'LEARNING'

Sisterhood Prepares to Meet Tomorrow.

"Why stop learning?" will be asked by Mrs. B. A. McGee of the Adult Educational council when she addresses the Temple Judea sisterhood at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the temple, 1227 Independence boulevard. Mrs. A. A. Weiner is president and Mrs. Jacob Kernis is program chairman.

Mrs. Weiner will preside at a dinner meeting of the temple at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the banquet hall under the direction of the sisterhood. The annual bazaar of the temple will be held Saturday and next Sunday with Benjamin Levitan and Mrs. G. G. Garfield as chairmen. In addition to merchandise booths there will be a baked goods sale and a cafeteria.

A cooking demonstration will be featured at an educational program to be held by the sisterhood at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Feb. 21. It will be directed by Mary Martensen and Mrs. B. B. Shapiro is coöperating with Mrs. Weiner on arrangements.

There will be card games in addition to dancing. Mrs. Sarah Pilka is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Clara Eckerling. Mrs. Dorothy Zeff is president of the organization. Rabbi Louis J. Lehrfield is spiritual leader of the center.

Rabbi Israel H. Weisfeld of the West Suburban Jewish center, Oak Park, will be guest speaker at a meeting of Sisterhood B'nai Israel of Austin at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the synagogue, 5433 Jackson boulevard. His topic will be "What Price Democracy?" Mrs. Frank P. Burman is president of the sisterhood.

A youth service will be conducted by the Washington Boulevard Temple alumni Friday evening in the temple, Washington boulevard and Karlov avenue. The guest speaker will be Rabbi Selwyn D. Ruslander of Cincinnati, executive director of the National Federation of Temple Youth.

Dr. A. L. Sachar, national director of B'nai B'rith, historian and author, will speak Wednesday evening, Feb. 14, on the Washington Boulevard Lecture forum. He will speak in place of Vicki Baum, who canceled her lecture tour because of illness. His topic will be "Sufferance Is the Badge."

Plans for the 12th annual dance and card party scheduled for Sunday evening, Feb. 18, will be made at a meeting of the Garfield Community center at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Midwest Athletic club. The dance will be held in the Sherman hotel. Mrs. David Olshan is chairman, assisted by Harry L. Weinstein, Joseph Rosenberg, Mrs. A. H. Pollack, and Mrs. H. L. Snyder. The center sponsors the Harris Michel Dick Hebrew school located at 3909 Congress street.

A membership party will be held at 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Midwest Athletic club by the Garfield Park auxiliary of B'nai B'rith. The program will include a buffet luncheon, mah-jongg, and cards. Mrs. David Aron is president of the auxiliary.

The sixth annual Bowery night will be held Saturday by Young Israel of Chicago in Democratic hall, 3242 West Roosevelt road. Members of the committee for the music, the fortune telling, games, and refreshments are Morris Shore, chairman; Miss Esther Schwartz, Leon Upin, and Sam Pinsker.

Golden Jubilee

Fifty guests and relatives attended a reception recently in celebration of the golden anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farrell, who reside in the little white cottage they moved into when they returned from their honeymoon in 1890. It is located at 1111 North Massasoit avenue.

BALLET DANCER, PAINTER AT 70, SHE AIDS FINNS

Signe Palmblad Founds Stocking Fund.

Mrs. Signe Palmblad will be 70 years old in March. She is a painter and a ballet dancer at an age when many women have even forgotten how to knit. Now she's helping the folks in Finland with their war.

Mrs. Signe Palmblad.

Finland is close to the boundaries and the hearts of the Swedish people. Once, before Russia wrested it away in 1809, it was a part of Sweden. With Russian armies again swooping into the land, the sympathetic heart of a white haired woman in Austin was touched. She clipped from newspapers pictures of Finnish children with their bare feet in the snow and she worried about them. Then all alone in her tiny frame cottage at 1119 North Mayfield avenue, she founded the Finnish Children's Stocking fund.

Fund Reaches $351.

Already there is $351.25 in the fund. Mrs. Palmblad, Swedish-American painter and prize winner who took her first art lesson when she was almost 50 years old, has donated one of her most valued paintings to the cause. The painting is being shown in Scandinavian churches in the Chicago area. The church organization donating the most to the fund when the drive is over will receive the painting, which is valued at $250.

The money will be turned over to the Scandinavian Alliance Red Cross of Finland organized with the assistance of Prof. Elmer A. Forsberg, Finnish consul and instructor at the Chicago Art institute. Mrs. Palmblad is donating the painting in Prof. Forsberg's name, for if it weren't for this art teacher there would be no paintings by Signe Palmblad.

Twenty years ago Mrs. Palmblad was an unknown homemaker, the wife of Carl Palmblad, linguist and an editor of a technical magazine. In her leisure time she made designs of Swedish peasant figures for oilcloth coffee cloths. When she heard of a Swedish exhibit at the Coliseum, she submitted her handiwork.

Sees Latent Talent.

Prof. Forsberg saw them and invited Mrs. Palmblad to come to the Art institute. "I think you could learn to be a painter," he said.

That statement led to four years of study at the Art institute and a year more in Europe while her husband, who died four years ago, told her: "It's ridiculous, you're too old to learn to paint."

Recently Mrs. Palmblad invited a number of Scandinavian ministers and their wives to her quaint art studio on Mayfield avenue to talk over plans for the fund raising. Donations have come already from the Bethel Baptist church, the Swedish Baptist church of Hinsdale, and the Central Avenue Baptist church.

Finland's elderly helper has resided in Chicago since 1896.

Jubilee Year

The New Year brought a golden wedding anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Holstein, who celebrated their wedding date recently with an open house in their home, 165 North Pine avenue. Both Mr. and Mrs. Holstein were born in Budapest and came to the United States more than 50 years ago. They have been residents of Chicago for more than 30 years. The Holsteins have four sons and daughters, eleven grandchilren, and three great-grandchildren.

SEARS-ROEBUCK FOUNDING TO BE TOLD IN REVIEW

Story Is on Program of Historical Society.

Alvah Roebuck, who answered a want ad for a watchmaker in 1887 which led to a meeting with a man named Richard Sears and the founding of a great mail order business, will be principal speaker at a program to be presented by the West Side Historical society at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Midwest Athletic club, Madison street at Hamlin avenue.

Alvah Roebuck.

In addition, members of the society's high school chapters will give a pageant portraying the story of Chicago's development from its muddy street days thru to 1935. Steinmetz, Harrison, Tuley, and Kelly High schools are represented in the cast. Bernice Gasiorek, an alumnus of Harrison High school, is chairman of the high school chapters. Meetings are held in the story hour room of the Henry E. Legler branch of the Chicago Public library.

Participating students are Isabelle Wiktor, Emily Gasior, Annette Jacobson, Charlotte Bien, Joan Moore, Anne Sandrick, Anne Furer, Cecilia Rogers, Shirley Lehrfield, Robert Robb. James Fitzsimmons, Edward Bagdonas, Steve Baluk, Chester Matevich, and Irene Wiktor.

Mr. Roebuck, the speaker for the annual meeting, is writing a history of the mail order company. It was on April 1, 1887, that an ad appeared in a Chicago newspaper—"Watchmaker wanted who can furnish tools. State age, experience, and salary required. Address T39." A young man, 23 years old, employed in a small jewelry store in Hammond, Ind., answered the ad and two days later received a reply from Richard Sears.

In 1897 Mr. Roebuck sold his interests in the company. He rejoined the organization in February, 1933, and is now in the public relations and publicity department.

SPIRITUAL CALL OF LENT WILL ECHO IN LOOP

Daily Rites Scheduled in Theaters.

Chicago's loop as well as the hundreds of churches of the city will rise to the spiritual call of Lent which begins in penitential ashes on Wednesday. The Erlanger and Harris theaters will open their doors each Lenten noon to worshipers, and the Grand Opera house, with its year round noonday services, will emphasize Lent's message.

Dr. Martin Anderson.

Thousands of Catholic executives and workers in the loop will go to noonday masses at Holy Name cathedral and other inner city churches. At the Harris theater the pioneer noonday service under Episcopal Church club auspices will open on Wednesday with Bishop Henry Wise Hobson of Cincinnati as the preacher. As at the Lutheran services at the Garrick, the meeting will begin at 12:10 p. m. and close at 12:30. The Lutheran services will be broadcast over station WIND.

Will Preach Wednesday.

Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran synod's eastern district, will be the Erlanger Ash Wednesday preacher. He will be succeeded on Thursday by the Rev. Theodore E. Matson, regional secretary of the home missions society of the Augustana synod, and on Friday by Dr. Fred W. Otterbein of North Austin United Lutheran church. There will be no Erlanger or Harris services on Saturdays.

On successive weeks during Lent the Episçopal Church club will present the following preachers: The Rev. Donald H. Wattley, of New Orleans, La.; the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of New York; the Very Rev. Roland W. Philbrook of Davenport, Ia.; the Very Rev. Austin Pardue of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese will be the holy week preacher as in previous years.

The Lutheran committee has obtained representative preachers from various synods for the successive weeks. Dr. T. F. Gullixson, Minneapolis, Minn., of the Norwegian synod, will be the preacher for the week of Feb. 12. The Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Cleveland, O., of the Missouri synod, will preach during the week of Feb. 23.

Other Preachers Listed.

Other weeks, successively, will feature the Rev. Franklin C. Fry, Akron, O., of the United Lutheran church; the Rev. Edgar Carlson of Gustavus Adolphus college, St, Peter, Minn.; the Rev. Joseph Knutson, Lake Mills, Minn., Norwegian synod, and the Rev. Walter Schutte, Sewickley, Pa., of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. Andrew Gih, Chinese evangelist, will be the principal Ash Wednesday preacher at the Grand Opera house, where services are conducted by the Christian Business Men's committee. Dr. Dan Gilbert, California religious author, will also speak. Grand Opera house services continue from 12 noon until 1 o'clock, but are divided in two parts, with a separate speaker for each.

Noonday masses will be offered at the following Catholic churches near the loop: Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets; Church of the Assumption, Illinois and Orleans streets; Old St. Mary's, South Wabash avenue and 9th street, and St. Patrick's, Adams and Desplaines streets.

New York's Trinity Pastor to Talk in Orchestra Hall

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, New York City, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be, "Hopes That Have Root." During the absence of Clifford W. Barnes, president, trustees of the club will conduct the meetings. Edward Hall Taylor and Edward K. Welles will officiate tonight. The Girls' Glee club of North Central college, Naperville, directed by Miss Mary Cook, will sing at the 7 o'clock meeting.

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO ADDRESS CARROLL FORUM NEXT SUNDAY

Archduke Felix of Austria will address the Charles Carroll forum next Sunday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. The Rev. James A. Magner, founder and chairman, will preside. Discussing "The Reconstruction of central Europe," the archduke will outline the plan of a democratic Danubian federation as the best plan for the solution of the cultural, economic, and political problems of the Balkan states. Archduke Felix was born in Vienna in 1916, attended the University of Louvain, Belgium, and ended his military training at Wiener Neustadt, the equivalent of West Point. He fled from Austria after the late Chancellor Schuschnigg announced the postponement of the plebiscite, and is the first of the Hapsburg family to visit the United States.

Archduke Felix.

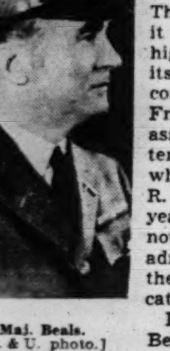
OBSERVE 30TH YEAR OF BOY SCOUTS

STALWART ROTC, A HUSKY YOUTH, COMES OF AGE

21 Years' Growth in City Recalled.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Chicago's Reserve Officers' Training corps will have reason to celebrate 21 years of growth and progress when it comes of age this month. The reason is that it has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools who headed the R. O. T. C. for 15 years and who now is R. O. T. C. administrator for the board of education.



Maj. Beals. [U. & U. photo.]

Because Maj. Beals has watched the local military unit grow from a gray uniformed, baby cadet corps in 1917-'18, he can tell the story of how it grew and why today it ranks as the largest and one of the best junior corps in the nation. In proof of its quality, Maj. Beals points to the fact that last spring army inspectors gave either an "excellent" or "honor" rating to 26 of the 27 city units, the best examination record the Chicago schools have ever had.

Has Growing Popularity.

"I believe it has expanded steadily from year to year because of its fundamental popularity with principals, teachers, and parents, as well as students," he says. "Students always enjoy being cogs in an active organization, and principals, teachers, and parents came to like it because they saw the obvious benefits it worked in the boys and the service it was giving the school and community."

Credit for its progress, he believes, must also be given to civic minded citizens like Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone company, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, whom Maj. Beals calls the "father of the Chicago R. O. T. C."

"What are its biggest benefits to a boy?" Maj. Beals says: "I would list them this way: [1] it gives him increased self-respect, [2] it increases his interest in personal appearance, [3] it develops self-confidence, [4] it develops interest in the welfare of others, [5] it gives him a living, breathing organization of which he is a part, and [6] it gives him a sense of his own importance as a member of the community.

When Maj. Beals came to the Chicago board of education in 1917, a makeshift "cadet corps" had been organized. Rifles were furnished by the government but gray uniforms had to be supplied by a citizen's uniform committee, of which Angus Hibbard was chairman. In January, 1919, however, owing to the efforts of Mr. Hibbard, Col. McCormick, and Maj. Beals, the board of education gave permission for a delegation to go to Washington and ask for a government operated R. O. T. C. for Chicago.

First Enrollment Drops.

A month later 14,000 Chicago high school boys were enrolled in the R. O. T. C. with uniforms, rifles, and regular army instructors supplied by the war department. The following year Maj. Beals was made professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago unit and supervisor of physical education in the schools.

The huge enrollment was short lived, however, for in 1919 the army was demobilized and comparatively few officers and noncoms were available as instructors. Chicago's authorized registration was slashed to 3,000 cadets. Since then it has been increased year by year as more students indicated their desire to be admitted.

Maj. Beals continued as head of the corps until 1932, when he was succeeded by Capt. Edmond C. Fleming, who retired a year later. The position was assigned to Lieut. Col. John D. Holtzendorff for a little more than two years.

Lauds Morrison Record.

In 1935 his place was taken by Col. William F. Morrison, currently heading the unit, whom Maj. Beals believes is most responsible for the exceptional progress of the corps during the last five years. Col Morrison had been transferred from duty as chief of staff of the artillery group of the 7th corps area in Iowa. He is a graduate of West Point and was an instructor there from 1906 to 1910.

In accounting for the steady growth of Chicago's R. O. T. C. in his book, "Associations of Choice," Angus Hibbard observes that "school authorities have continued to testify that the R. O. T. C. is the backbone of order and discipline in the Chicago high schools."

Clearing Business Men Install Official Staff

The Clearing Business Men's association recently installed officers for 1940. They are William R. Wooters, president; S. B. Coomer, first vice president; Marco Gilich, second vice president; Clifford Acres, third vice president; Isaac O. Goldstine, secretary; Dr. George E. Boardman, treasurer; George Siwicki, Sebastian Stadler, and George Sanders, directors.

Friend to Man Builds Retreat at Roadside

"Let me live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man."—Sam Walter Foss.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders has such a house. He wanted it before he was a minister. He wanted it when he was an idealistic young man who loved the hills, farms, woods, and friends. He went to war and came back undisillusioned.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders.

Today the Rev. Mr. Sanders, whom everybody calls "Sandy," lives on a hill top in Palos woods. The speed-traveled Southwest highway at 127th street passes his door winding its way to St. Louis. A friendly sign stops those who are heartsore.

He gives his house a staid name. But that is only because he is compromising with the times and trying to attract young people who would shy away from a psychological clinic. He calls it the Community Center foundation. It is not a settlement, not a religious retreat, nor a civic caucus. It is 45 acres of farm, 15 acres of woods, and a lodge filled with kerosene lamplight, candles, fireplaces, and books. Right now snow covered trees and hills are its only decorations.

Book Changed His Life.

A year before the first great world war the Rev. Mr. Sanders, then young and indefinite, read a book. He had read many books before that, but this one changed his life. It was called "The Master of the Inn" and was written by Robert Herrick. It told of a doctor, physically ill, who built an inn where reclaimed men "found themselves by work, play, and fellowship."

Sandy laid down his book and went to war, but unlike those about him who began to think of lives in terms of hunting, he saw only a greater need for the leisure life, for time to read and plow and pray. He came back wanting to build his inn.

To build his inn, however, he needed to know the lay of the land. He went to the University of Illinois where he was graduated from the agricultural school. Before that he had studied medicine, but he still knew the limitations of his knowledge. He couldn't tell men how to reconstruct their lives by instructing them how to plant a field of hay or telling them the symptoms of angina pectoris. So he turned to theology at the University of Chicago.

Takes Up Psychology.

Even that was not enough. He took up psychology and sociology at Northwestern university and came away determined to find his Shangri-La. Assisted by Dr. William Bailey of Northwestern he made a survey of Chicagoland and found a little church in Worth which had 10 members, two of whom were inactive. That was in 1924. The Rev. Mr. Sanders took the church and gradually gathered around him an interdenominational parish of seven congregations.

Into the picture came an old man whose life had been spent with trees and hills, plowed fields and the books of Emerson, Thoreau, and Abbé Fabre. Most of the people in the Palos district knew him only as "the hermit," altho his name was Ernest G. Warner. Several had seen him on occasion put his arms around a tree and mumble to himself of "woodland friends." They thought him queer and avoided his farm, altho it adjoined the most beautiful section of the forest preserves.

It was in the plan of things that simple, nature loving Mr. Warner was to meet Paul Sanders, university trained medical man, scientific farmer, minister, psychologist, and humanitarian. Several years these two spent together, the old man dreaming dreams and the young man seeing visions, each certain of the peace gained by an ear atune to "God's deeper harmonies."

Resigns from Parish.

With a gift of 10 acres from the Warner property in 1928, the Rev. Mr. Sanders resigned from his parish and took the first steps towards the realization of his project. He incorporated the center as a nonprofit institution "to serve all mankind regardless of creed, socially, physically, mentally, and spiritually."

An old barn was turned into the lodge, Fellowship house, by a group of girls and boys who eagerly followed Sandy's footsteps.

"The foundation's ends," says Sandy, "could only be accomplished if it materialized thru the experience of the people."

First the lodge doors opened to persons from the immediate vicinity, then to those from Chicago, and finally to others from state after state until last year when more than 9,000 persons from 21 states and five foreign countries were served by the center.

The entire Warner property, valued at $60,000, had been turned over to the foundation upon the death of the old naturalist. There are now six buildings on the land, a girls' dormitory given by Adam Int-Hout of Homewood in memory of his wife, a poetess; a boys' dormitory donated by Dr. Pasquale de Carlo, head of Garibaldi institute; a mess hall built by boys from an old horse shed in Orland Park; a guest house erected of box car lumber; Fellowship house,

Advance Guard for Scouts' Visit to Camp

Scouting means open hearths and hearts, beans, and bravery, camping and cleanliness, outdoors and obedience, reveille and reverence, comrades and courtesy. Leave it to the American boy to put vitality into virtues. It is 30 years now that these words and their meaning became part of the American Boy Scout's vocabulary and life. Beginning this Thursday the 30th anniversary of the movement will be celebrated with a National Boy Scout week. Troops in the Ridge district will hold their annual court of recognition Friday evening in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Several troops will visit Camp Kiwanis in Palos woods, one of the camps maintained by the Chicago council. One will be No. 686, and preparing the lodge for the visit of the other troopers are (left to right) Bob Southern, Eugene Gadbaw, Tom Beard, Bob Hinman Jr., and William Mason. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

ASHLAND RATED MOST DANGEROUS OF CITY STREETS

39 of 46 Victims Were Pedestrians.

Chicago's most dangerous street from the standpoint of traffic deaths is Ashland avenue. Forty-six persons were killed on this thorofare last year. The toll was 42 in 1938. Western avenue, with a death toll of 36 persons, ranks as the second most dangerous street.

These facts came to light last week in the findings of an annual survey of traffic deaths issued by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Pedestrians are the majority of victims in the city's traffic accidents, the report shows. Of the 46 killed on Ashland avenue 39 were pedestrians, and 22 pedestrians were among the 36 fatalities on Western avenue.

Cautions the Pedestrian.

"We have attempted to show in this annual survey of traffic deaths in Chicago the appalling rate among pedestrians," Mr. Fleming said. "Without regard as to whether the motor vehicle driver or the pedestrian is to blame, the report should make Chicago residents more traffic safety conscious."

Streets running north and south were found to have more traffic fatalities than either east or west or diagonal streets. Streets covered in the survey are the most heavily traveled in the city.

North avenue led the east and west streets with 18 deaths. In 1938 North avenue and Roosevelt road tied for the east-west death toll lead, each having 17 deaths. Last year Roosevelt road showed a decrease of six fatalities. Irving Park road went up last year on the death chart with a total of 17 deaths as compared to 10 in 1938.

13 Die on Racine.

With a death score of three in 1938, Racine avenue climbed to a total of 13 last year. Seventy-ninth street had no deaths in 1938, but in 1939 ten persons were killed in traffic accidents. The death toll on Indiana avenue rose from five in 1938 to ten last year.

Streets whose last year's death toll dropped from the previous year include Archer avenue, with nine in 1939 as against 19 in 1938; Sheridan road, with one last year as against seven in 1938; Clark street, five as compared with 10 in 1938; Damen avenue, seven against eleven in 1938; Belmont avenue, three as against seven in 1938; Division street, two as against nine; Jackson boulevard, eight as against 13, and Washington boulevard, seven against 11. Warren boulevard's 1939 toll of 12 victims remained the same as the 1938 figure.

PIANIST AND SOPRANO JOIN IN FLOSSMOOR RECITAL TUESDAY

Albert J. Pugner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE staff will give his second annual Shrove Tuesday piano recital under auspices of St. John's Women's auxiliary, Flossmoor, this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Law, at Flossmoor. He will be assisted by the young Chicago soprano, Virginia Parker.

Miss Virginia Parker.

Among Miss Parker's numbers will be "Air of Asteria," by Gluck, and Tschaikowsky's "None but the Lonely Heart." Both young artists have been praised by many critics. Pugner's difficult program includes works of Chopin, Arditti, Bachelet, and MacDowell.

TWO NEW WARD COMMITTEEMAN FIGHTS DEVELOP

Two new fights for ward committeemanships on the south side developed last week. More are virtually certain to materialize by the first filing date next Friday.

One of the new contests affects Richard Frohlich, chief deputy clerk of the Municipal court, who is Democratic committeeman of the 15th, and who had told friends he would seek reëlection. His challenger is Stan Lee Kapustka, railroad employé, who is appealing to the voters to smash machine rule.

The other, on the Republican side, is in the 13th ward, where William R. Morrison, who is in the dental supply business, is out after the G. O. P. committeemanship now held by George O. Lehr, a candidate for reëlection. Morrison has been active in politics for 20 years, mainly as a precinct captain.

Kiwanis to Hear Rescued Athenia Passenger Tuesday

Mrs. Percy B. Dolling, Salvation Army officer, who was a passenger on the ill fated steamer Athenia, will tell of her rescue from the sinking vessel at a meeting of the Englewood Kiwanis club Tuesday afternoon in the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 65th street and Union avenue. Mrs. Dolling was returning from England on the Athenia, where she visited her mother, when the war began. Also on the program Tuesday will be Dr. M. Phillip Cannon, publicity chairman of the club, who will read Edwin Markham's "Lincoln, the Man of the People."

URBAN LEAGUE TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY

Skit Is Major Feature of Conference.

"How Not to Be Bored by a Board Meeting" is the title of a skit which will be presented at the 23d annual meeting of the Chicago Urban league at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening in the main dining room of the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Kay McLaughlin wrote the sketch which will supplant the usual address. Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi of Temple Sholom and a vice president of the league, will preside, and chairmen of committees will participate.

These are George D. Kells, finance; William P. Harrison, civics; Miss Sara Southall, industrial and research; Miss Amelia Sears, social welfare; Dr. Charles M. Thompson, youth; Dr. Duncan H. Browne, church coöperation; Howard G. Mayer, publicity; A. Lincoln Wisler, interracial goodwill; Mrs. Hugo Law, woman's division, and Mrs. U. G. Dailey, community centers.

Youths to Sing.

The Exclusive Sharps and Flats, a group of young singers sponsored by the Urban league, will provide musical numbers. Earl B. Dickerson, president of the league, will end the skit with a short formal address in which the policies and programs for 1940 and 1941 will be discussed.

George D. Kells, chairman of the finance committee, and Bertram G. Cahn, treasurer, have issued an appeal to all 1939 contributors to renew their memberships for 1940 before March 31 so that officers can determine the amount of income from this course, in order to plan for obtaining additional necessary funds.

Membership Increased.

The league ended the year with its finances in excellent condition and with a greatly increased membership, Mr. Dickerson said. It is an organization of both colored and white persons working to develop better relations between the two races.

ST. RITA PLAYERS ARE TO PRESENT COMEDY DRAMAS

"Sound Your Horn" and "Alice Blue Gown," two comedy dramas, will be staged by the St. Rita players this evening and tomorrow night in the school auditorium, 62d street and Washtenaw avenue.

In the cast of "Sound Your Horn," a three act play, will be Miss Annamae Burns, Miss Agnes Tighe, Miss Mary Condon, Miss Rita Dunne, Miss Betty Curran, Miss Rose Mary Bray, Edward Greene, John Burns, William Burke, and Edward Elliott.

"Alice Blue Gown," in one act will be presented by Miss Margaret Sheridan, Miss Virginia McKenna, Miss Jeanne Mack, Miss Rita McMahon, Miss Donna McMahon, Miss Gladys Galehouse, Miss Doris Charn, and Miss Marguerite Connors. Walter Martini of the Goodman theater is directing both productions.

BLUE ISLAND I. O. O. F. AND REBEKAH LODGE INDUCT NEW LEADERS

Public installation of officers was held recently by Harmonize lodge and Blue Island Rebekah lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in Masonic hall, Blue Island. Paul Sopko and Elaine Sopko were inducted as noble grands.

Still, others were Elwood Rickert and Alice Proper, inside guardians; Edward Kennu and Marion Holdefer, outside guardians; Julius Griff, Marybelle Shipman, Victor Tally, and Mary Atkinson, assistant noble grands; Robert Breckenridge, Grace Soucek, Robert Shields, and Frances Boff, assistant vice grands; Wallace Sundquist and Ila Tally Jr., past noble grands; William Ingle and Ellen Raines, chaplains; William Shipman and Lillian Sundquist, musicians, and Charles Maybaum and Thomas Maybaum, scene supporters.

CHURCH TO PAY 2 PER CENT ON MEMBERS' LOANS

Morgan Park Methodist church announced a plan last week for retiring the $35,000 church debt thru which it will borrow from its members at 2 per cent interest on a 10 year loan.

The plan, announced by Herbert F. McDougal, publicity chairman, is expected to effect a savings in interest that will enable the church, utilizing other income also, to retire the full obligation in the 10 year period.

A lending member may elect to have his loan repaid in a lump sum at the end of the period or may collect it in instalments as funds accumulate.

Church Groups Will Hold 'Old Heidelberg Night'

The Holy Name society and St. Rose's sodality of Sacred Heart church will hold their annual "Old Heidelberg" night tomorrow evening in the parish auditorium, 70th and Aberdeen streets. The committee in charge is made up of Frank Werr, Peter Goerres, Andrew D. Laire, James Conaghan, John J. Driscoll, and P. J. McEvoy, president of the Holy Name society. The Rev. E. A. Golla is spiritual director of the society.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

VACATIONING in Florida, Joseph Meegan, director of Davis Square park, wrote Our Town a huge fish story last week. But he sent along a picture to prove it. In the Silver Sailfish Derby off the coast near West Palm Beach, he pulled in this specimen, 7 feet 4 inches long. Mr. Meegan is executive secretary of the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council also.

Others may receive their diplomas with unconcern, but for little Helen Simko, graduation day marked an exciting achievement. Altho she was absent for months because of an affliction, her record was among the highest of the outgoing class of the Morrill school for crippled children at 6011 Rockwell street. She is now confined to the convalescent home at 5120 South Park way. She has been hospitalized for four years, after a fall in which her ankle was injured.

Last Monday Robert M. Casey, 7247 Paxton avenue, appropriately received 80 cards of good wishes in Sarasota, Fla., where he passes his winters. He was 80 years old. A retired city employé born in Chicago, he has four sons, four daughters, and 17 grandchildren.

A SENIOR who ended his high school career with distinction is James J. Burke, 5730 Maryland avenue. Named as one of the outstanding graduates from Tilden Technical High school, he was awarded the scholarship by the high school for study at Armour institute. President of the Arx and Arts club and a member of the National Honor society, James was selected also as master draftsman in his class. This is the only scholarship given by Tilden to Armour.

Last Sept. 13 John Brown sank while swimming in Lake Michigan off 39th street. After he was removed from the water, William P. Connors, 6407 Kimbark avenue, park district patrolman, tried artificial respiration for 10 minutes before natural breathing was restored. For his deed of life saving, Robert J. Dunham, president if the park district, recently awarded Patrolman Connors the President's medal of the National Safety council.

MASS at 10:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's of Perpetual Help church will begin the golden wedding celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mazur, 1055 West 34th place, old settlers of Bridgeport for 53 years. In the afternoon a reception will be held in Syrena's, 4270 Archer avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raphael, 6317 Blackstone avenue, will welcome their friends and relatives next Sunday with an open house in observance of their 57th wedding anniversary. Both were born and reared in Chicago and witnessed the great fire.

Former residents of Chicago Heights, Mr. and Mrs. William Plagge marked their 50th anniversary Thursday in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Reuben Klott, Galesburg. They have lived in the vicinity of Beecher and Chicago Heights most of their lives. They have two sons, two daughters, and six grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Burhorn recently as they celebrated their silver anniversary in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Fries, 7251 Crandon avenue, with an open house. They have lived in Chicago 20 years and have one son.

A reception today in Ukelis hall, 3436 Lituanica avenue, will serve as a silver anniversary party for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Knaber, 3348 South Morgan street. They have two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hanrahan, 5631 Christiana avenue, celebrated their 24th anniversary at the house warming party given to surprise Mrs. Hanrahan. They have five sons and daughters.

12 Additional Graduates Listed by Morgan Park

24,844 YOUTHS WILL TAKE PART IN CELEBRATION

Leaders to Convene Thursday Night.

Lights will burn in fieldhouses, churches, and clubhouses this week and next in celebration of a movement which began in the fog of a London night. It is the 30th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Daniel S. Wentworth.

One and a quarter million boys thruout the nation will celebrate the anniversary beginning Thursday and continuing until Feb. 14. In the Chicago area 24,844 boys will be taking part in parents' nights, open houses, park exhibits, theater and window displays. They will be under the direction of 6,311 men from all jobs and all ages, a group almost as large as the entire Chicago police force, who act as volunteer Scout leaders.

Some time during the week 187 units on the southwest side, composed of 4,662 boys, will have a birthday celebration, a citizenship day, a reverence day, brotherhood and decication services, and fun days, according to an announcement by A. J. Clauter, 9730 Damen avenue, district chairman.

Special Church Services.

Churches will dedicate next Sunday to the Scouts. Service clubs in the neighborhoods will give special recognition to the movement at their meetings. Among them will be the Armour Plant Executives' club, which will hold a special Scout night Tuesday, Feb. 13, in the stockyards.

It was a Chicago business man, William Boyce, a publisher, who was the organizer of the Scout movement in America. Stranded in a London fog in 1909 Mr. Boyce had an experience which gave him the idea. He had been standing helpless in the rain, a piece of paper in one hand and an umbrella in the other. Peering into the black sheets of fog and rain, he did not dare to venture into the streets until a small hand lightly touched his arm.

A British voice asked if he needed assistance. Thankfully Mr. Boyce shoved the paper into the boy's hand and told him his destination. Having been skilfuly towed thru the streets, he attempted to tip his little guide. The boy refused courteously and explained proudly that he was a "scout."

Learns Scout Teachings.

The boy would have escaped into the streets, but Mr. Boyce hastened to question him about the Scout movement. He found that it had been organized by Robert Baden-Powell and that it taught a boy self-reliance, resourcefulness, and methods for a clean, healthy, and interesting life. He learned, too, that he could take home pamphlets describing the movement to help Scouting in America.

So Scouting began in America on Feb. 8, 1910, and troops were organized in Chicago in November of that year. The Chicago council will mark its 29th annual dinner, in conjunction with the anniversary, Thursday evening in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. One thousand friends of Scouting will be present. Glenn Frank, editor of Rural Progress magazine and former president of the University of Wisconsin, will be the guest speaker, and Barrett Wendell, dinner chairman, will be toastmaster.

Council officers for 1940 will be announced by the nominating committee chairman, James B. Forgan, and presentations of Silver Beaver awards, given as tribute to outstanding volunteer men in Scouting, will be made by Philip P. Sachs, a member of the executive board.

Award to Wentworth.

One of the awards will be given to Daniel S. Wentworth, 6724 Union avenue, a member of the southwest district executive committee, who has been active in the Englewood community and city in behalf of the movement. It is partially thru Mr. Wentworth's efforts that Camp Kiwanis in Palos woods, one of the Chicago council camps, was established.

Rabbi Louis Mann of Sinai temple will give the invocation at the dinner, and R. Douglas Stuart, vice president of the Quaker Oats company, who is president of the Chicago council, will make the welcoming address. Reports of the council's activities will be read by James H. Douglas Jr., chairman of the executive board, and W. Arthur McKinney, council Scout executive.

Starts $100,000 Drive.

The dinner will mark the opening gun of the council's $100,000 finance campaign under the direction of John

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

THANKFUL FOR LIGHTS.

It was about time the city installed traffic stop-and-go lights at Archer avenue and Throop street. This was a very dangerous corner for school children as St. Barbara's parochial school is only a half block away. Before the lights were erected the children had to wait for hours, it would seem, for trucks to go by. W. C. L.

EXHIBIT POSTPONED.

The Beverly Hills Philatelic society wishes to correct an item it sent to THE TRIBUNE regarding a stamp exhibition to be held this week-end. Unfortunate circumstances have forced postponement of the exhibition indefinitely.

PETER KIERSCHER, Secretary.

LIKED POLO STORY.

OBSERVE 30TH YEAR OF SCOUT WORK IN AMERICA

24,844 Boys to Share in Celebration.

F. Fennely, who directed the drive last year. The fund is expected to be raised by March and will be used for the extension of the camping program, for the training courses for volunteers, Scout advancement program, and all types of indoor and outdoor activities. Sidney Wanzer, dairy company president, will head the drive committee for the southwest district.

One of the events during Scout week will be the Ridge community court of recognition Friday in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The meeting will open with the presentation of the colors by the Ridge troops under the leadership of Gerald Blake, troop 607. Robert Paulsen, troop 687, will act as leader for the opening ceremony and an address of welcome will be delivered by H. A. Williamson, chairman of the Ridge community.

Charles G. Mills, former chairman of the Ridge community, will award certificates to troops having an "A" standing after which Carle Handel, southwest district executive, will lead community singing. Recognition of Star Scouts will be made by Otto Schenk, chairman of the southwest district advancement committee, and Fred C. Rathje, vice chairman of the district, will perform the same ceremony for the Life Scouts.

Eagle Scout Awards.

Eagle badges will be awarded by K. T. Wood, district commissioner. The principal speaker of the evening will be Mr. Clauter, district chairman. The closing ceremony will be in charge of troop 622, of which Frank Benjamin is the leader.

Twenty-four churches thruout the entire southwest side have planned special Boy Scout services in celebration of the anniversary. Two will be held today by St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at 7:30 o'clock this evening and the Englewood Presbyterian at 7:45 o'clock.

Service will be held next Sunday at Grace Lutheran church, 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; Annunciation Episcopal, 11 a. m.; St. Matthew Lutheran, 10:30 a. m.; Brainerd Community, 11 a. m.; People's Liberal, 10:45 a. m.; Christ Methodist, 10:45 a. m.; Thoburn Methodist, 11 a. m.; Trinity Methodist, 11 a. m.; Calvary Methodist, 11 a. m.; Englewood Methodist, 7:45 p. m.; Morgan Park Congregational, 11 a. m.; Reorganized Church of Christ of L. D. S., 8 p. m.; St. Paul's Union, 11 a. m.; St. Christina, 8 a. m.; St. Symphorosa, 9 a. m.; St. Elizabeth Episcopal, 11 a. m.; Morgan Park Baptist, 11 a. m.; St. Mary's, 10 a. m., and St. Pancratius, 7:30 p. m.

A special service for Scouts will be held Feb. 25 by the Ogden Park Methodist church, and two observances will be conducted during the week by the Englewood Unity organization and the community church.

Parents to Meet.

The Woodlawn Parents' club will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the library of the Woodlawn Boys' club, 6344 Harper avenue.

2 CLOSED STATE BANKS DUE TO REPAY $52,000

About 8,000 Depositors to Be Benefited.

About 8,000 depositors of two of the closed state banks on the southwest side are expected to share in the distribution of another $52,000 during the next few weeks, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett said last week.

He made this prediction when he released new statements showing the condition of the 132 defunct institutions as of last Dec. 31. The statements are based in the main on information furnished by Charles H. Albers, general receiver for all but two of the banks.

The forthcoming payments are expected from the Brainerd State bank, whose 3,000 depositors will soon divide approximately $11,000, and the Halsted Street State bank, which is contemplating a new disbursement of $41,000 to its 5,000 depositors. The Brainerd bank's payment will be the final one.

Four southwestern banks made new repayments during the December quarter. The four and the amounts each returned are:

Central Manufacturing District bank, 5 per cent, or about $120,000; Citizens Trust and Savings bank, 1.7 [final], or about $20,000; Industrial State bank, 10 per cent, or about $18,000, and Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings bank, 5.25 per cent, or about $2,500.

Here are summaries of the figures for the first group of southwestern banks, with the receivers' estimates of what the depositors may still expect.

Auburn Park Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $676,558. Paid on prior claims, $162,980. Paid depositors, $251,726 or 47½ per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,156; legal, $22,240; clerical, $47,586; interest, $350; advanced to protect assets, $163,812, with $159,463 refunded. Cash, $21,704. The percentage may ultimately rise to 55 per cent.

Bank of Harvey—Total receipts, $958,035. Paid on prior claims, $244,101. Paid depositors, $533,024 or 85 per cent. Costs: receivers, $7,156; legal, $24,194; clerical, $54,034; interest, $4,217; advanced to protect assets, $76,206, with $72,441 refunded. Cash, $15,100. The present payout may rise another 5 or 10 per cent.

Brainerd State—Total receipts, $203,462. Paid on prior claims, $52,110. Paid depositors, $82,306 or 38½ per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,221; legal, $8,791; clerical, $26,536; interest, $217; advanced to protect assets, $17,349, with $13,340 refunded. Cash, $8,431. The next distribution will perhaps be the final one.

Brighton Park State—Total receipts, $567,335. Paid on prior claims, $235,865. Paid depositors, $141,038 or 40 per cent. Costs: receivers, $5,414; legal, $29,560; clerical, $38,997; interest, $10,075; advanced to protect assets, $89,190, with $76,038 refunded. Cash, $17,194. There may be another 10 per cent for the depositors.

Central Manufacturing District—Total receipts, $4,458,600. Paid on prior claims, $1,696,747. Paid depositors, $1,127,588 or 45 per cent. Costs: receivers, $11,678; legal, $83,387; clerical, $210,664; interest, $11,302; advanced to protect assets, $885,665, with $768,023 refunded. Cash, $143,079. The percentage may go to about 60 per cent, it is estimated.

Citizens Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $1,019,741. Paid on prior claims, $477,836. Paid depositors, $310,743 or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $19,139; legal, $35,288; clerical, $93,771; interest, $1,554; advanced to protect assets, $51,247, with $47,032 refunded. Cash, $30,159, all of it earmarked for purposes other than discharging the debt to depositors, who can expect nothing more.

Commercial Bank of Chicago Heights—Total receipts, $715,396. Paid on prior claims, $162,430. Paid depositors, $363,073 or 80 per cent. Costs: receivers, $8,375; legal, $17,975; clerical, $52,232; interest, $84; advanced to protect assets, $90,828, with $90,033 refunded. Cash, $20,395. Indications are the percentage may rise another 5 or 10 per cent.

Commonwealth Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $554,980. Paid on prior claims, $382,923. Paid depositors, $19,859 or 5 per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,464; legal, $17,403; clerical, $46,435; interest, $29,083; advanced to protect assets, $28,510, with $24,619 refunded. Cash, $553. The percentage previously paid may be duplicated.

Depositors State—Total receipts, $3,126,447. Paid on prior claims, $886,317. Paid depositors, $709,462, of 33.5 per cent. Costs: receivers, $9,845; legal, $72,901; clerical, $132,075; interest, $38,116; advanced to protect assets, $903,531, with $768,701 refunded. Cash, $109,661. There may be another 5 or 10 per cent for the depositors.

Halsted Street State—Total receipts, $1,603,100. Paid on prior claims, $358,238. Paid depositors, $452,356, or 55 per cent. Costs: receivers, $918; legal, $25,649; clerical, $72,502; interest, $20,614; advanced to protect assets, $200,836, with $189,512 refunded. Cash, $49,658. The payout may rise to 65 per cent.

Homewood State—Total receipts, $320,011. Paid on prior claims, $75,700. Paid depositors, $82,599, or 40 per cent. Costs: receivers, $2,732; legal, $15,082; clerical, $27,687; interest, $4,821; advanced to protect assets, $58,692, with $51,580 refunded. Cash, $4,041. The payout is expected to go to 55 or 60 per cent.

Industrial State—Total receipts, $247,647. Paid on prior claims, $85,455. Paid depositors, $88,117, or 45 per cent. Costs: receivers, $7,654; legal, $5,048; clerical, $40,347; interest, none; advanced to protect assets, $10,885, with $11,837 refunded. Cash, $10,139. There may be 5 per cent more or better.

Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings—Total receipts, $45,419. Paid on prior claims, $11,639. Paid depositors, $17,856, or 38.25 per cent. Costs: receivers, $1,154; legal, $4,439; clerical, $9,744; interest, $168; advanced to protect assets, $416, with $416 refunded. Cash, none. The December quarter distribution was the final one.

Ridge State—Total receipts, $1,693,339. Paid on prior claims, $53,327. Paid depositors, $37,032, or 20 per cent. Costs: receivers, $2,841; legal, $8,736; clerical, $25,421; interest, $187; advanced to protect assets, $26,816, with $18,947 refunded. Cash, $7,141. The next distribution of 5 to 10 per cent will be final, it was indicated.

Similar figures for the other southwestern banks will be published in these columns at an early date.

FRIEND TO MAN BUILDS RETREAT AT SIDE OF ROAD

Sandy's Hand Stretched to Welcome All.

Weary Find Peace.

Numerous strangers, men and women, confused in mind and fatigued in body, have lifted the old brass knocker on Fellowship house and entered to live there for years. There have been doctors from the University of Chicago, social workers, school teachers, and others who have earned their keep and found peace by working the farm, cooking meals, and acting as instructors or hostesses.

Each summer a folk school is conducted at the center for 10 selected girls and 10 selected boys between the ages of 16 and 21, and for children from 7 to 14. They come from all walks of life. The older group works on the farm or in the camp for three hours in the mornings and in the afternoons is taught handicrafts, nature lore, geological surveying, leadership, folk dancing, and is helped to formulate a natural philosophy of life.

In preparation for the future, scholarships from various colleges are obtained for those who would continue their education, and jobs are found for others.

Learn About Nature.

In addition to crafts taught by Mrs. Sanders, a University of Wisconsin graduate, and a group of master artisans, the children acquire a knowledge of nature. They know what it is to sick potato bugs off the plants, to see a sow give birth to pigs, to ride a horse, to milk a cow, and to build a dam in the creek. They learn the thrill of having a wild rabbit eat trustingly from their hands. They understand where their food comes from and the labor that is necessary to obtain it.

Winter finds the center the perfect place for hayrack rides and bob sledding, tobogganing, skating, hiking, and treasure hunt parties, all of which climax before the crackling log fire in the lodge.

"Any one may use our winter recreational facilities," says the director.

Educators and churchmen have begun to recognize the uniqueness of the foundation. Fifty to 60 churches use it annually for retreats. Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, brings his prize pupils out for week-ends. The Rev. Peter J. Geraghty, pastor of the Sag Catholic church, contributes to the center and calls Sandy a "good Irishman."

All Are Welcomed.

Jews, Protestants, Catholics, and agnostics gather around the log fire each Tuesday and Thursday evening for discussion groups. Married couples see their problems soften in the lamplight on Monday evenings.

Sometime in the future a small wayside Gothic chapel will stand beneath the trees on a hilltop overlooking the highway as a memorial to the lovable old man who helped make the foundation possible, Ernest G. Warner. A number of small shops will center around an ambitious craft project. A huge barn will be built to house all stock, feed, and machinery and an early American type of inn will be built as a comfortable shelter.

Sandy's house by the side of the road will have many open doors because, as he has learned, there are many who would enter.

Rabbi to Speak.

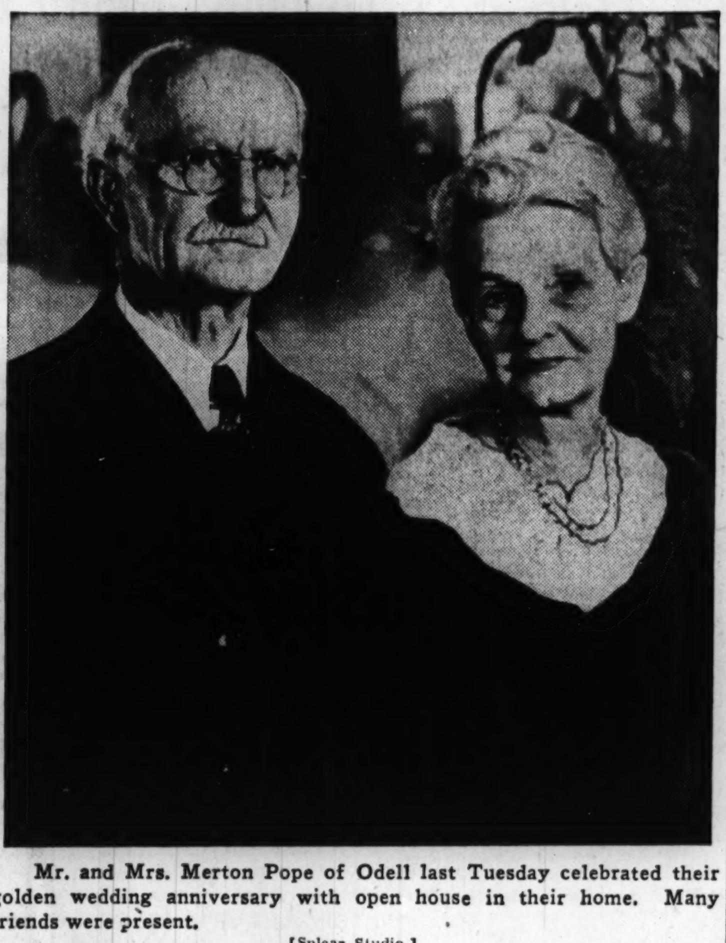
Their Golden Day



Mr. and Mrs. Merton Pope of Odell last Tuesday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with open house in their home. Many friends were present. [Splear Studio.]

YELLOWED NEWS ITEM TELLS OF FAMILY'S START

Odell, Ill., Couple Wed Fifty Years Ago.

Fifty years ago, in a little newspaper in Odell, there was a story which ran, "Merton E. Pope and Ida L. Abbaduska were married Thursday, Jan. 30, in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Abbaduska, by the Rev. Alexander Warner, pastor of the First Congregational church. The groom's sister, Miss Ada Pope, was bridesmaid and Will Abbaduska, brother of the bride, was best man. There were 65 guests present.

"The bride wore a cinnamon brown silk faile gown, made with a full plaited skirt, tight basque and simple sleeves. She carried a bouquet of hyacinths, ferns, and lily-of-the-valley. The groom wore the conventional black with white brocaded satin tie. The bridal party entered the spacious parlors, beautifully decorated thruout with festoons of evergreens and cut flowers, to the strains of Lohengrin's 'Wedding March' played by the bride's sister, Lily, and took their places under a canopy of roses.

"Mr. and Mrs. Pope will set up housekeeping in a little house 150 feet away from where the bride was born 20 years ago."

Family Well Known.

It was a simple little newspaper item which has grown yellow between the pages of the Pope family Bible these many years, but it is a story which marks the beginning of one of the well known families in the lower southwest section of Chicagoland. The Popes, despite the dignity of their years, are affectionately termed by everyone as "Mert" and "Bogie."

Over the counter of his hardware store, which he has owned for the last 20 years, Mert will talk dogs, trees and hunting to all who will listen, and there are many. A breeder of fine dogs, he has entered many in the Chicago annual dog shows. Bogie is famous for her poinsettias and is a past president of the local garden club. She boasts timidly that perhaps she has a knack with flowers because she is "one-sixteenth Indian blood."

Proud of Flowers.

Mert is proud of her floral accomplishments and will point out the rare double blossoms to any interested visitor. Forty-nine years ago her husband prepared the ground for her garden when he built a fine, new home in the same block as their first cottage. By that time, he had become the very married man, home owner, church leader, and civic minded citizen. He has been on the church board now for 50 years, and has been a member of the town board for 15. He was also a director of the school board.

The Popes speak highly of the Odell public school system. All of the family, themselves, their two daughters, Dr. Gertrude I. Pope of Chicago, and Mrs. C. C. Neilsen of Odell, and their two grand daughters were graduated from the village school.

At their recent open house, held in celebration of the golden wedding anniversary, the Popes received many guests. They talked of 50 years in terms of days and friends. The Popes are folks.

Planning Dance

Miss Katherine Swisher, 7213 Lowe avenue, president of Phi Zeta sorority at Morgan Park Junior college, will be in charge of arrangements for the annual Valentine dance of the sorority Friday evening in the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Y. W. C. A. AIMING TO TAKE SURVEY OF ITS FIELD

Two southwest side women were appointed to chairmanships in the metropolitan educational survey of the Chicago Young Women's Christian association, according to an announcement made last week by Miss Lilace Reid Barnes, president of the Y. W. C. A.

They are Mrs. John R. Johnston, 11231 Hermosa street, who will have charge of the Morgan Park and Beverly districts, and Mrs. Jerry Peck, 2514 West 55th street, whose area will be the stockyards district. Mrs. Peck is a member of the west side branch Y. W. C. A. stockyards industrial committee.

The survey will last for three months and will consist of visits by members of the association staff to clubs and other organizations in an effort to determine how the Y. W. C. A. can best serve each community and extend its services. Last year more than 33,000 girls in the city took part in the association activities.

TOWN OF LAKE C. OF C. ELECTS OFFICIAL STAFF

The Town of Lake Chamber of Commerce recently elected new officers with Jack Finn, manager of the People's Gas Light and Coke company store in the district, being reelected president. Other officers are Harry Wispe, first vice president; Dr. P. O. Peemueller, second vice president; Sol Iglow, third vice president; Frank Covert, treasurer; Alfred E. Vlcek, secretary; A. B. Mazurk, advocate; Frank Dwyer, Frank Stern, Al Mayfield, Meyer Nitzkin, Edward Ronkowski, Charles Mrazek, L. L. Hoffman, and A. A. Spiegel, directors.

RECALLS 25 YEAR GROWTH OF COOK COUNTY SCHOOLS

Staff Will Fete District Leader Tuesday.

A quarter of a century as assistant superintendent of Cook county schools is the record of Miss Catherine M. McClaughry, Palos Park. It is a record so outstanding that members of the staff of Noble J. Puffer, Cook county superintendent of schools, and her relatives and friends will hold a testimonial dinner for Miss McClaughry in celebration of her 25th anniversary with the department Tuesday evening at the Morrison hotel.

Miss Catherine M. McClaughry.

Thruout these 25 years Miss McClaughry has had charge of the same district. The horse and buggy which she drove was a familiar sight on the roads of southwestern Cook county as she covered her territory between Lyons and the Will county line. As the county changed from a rural area into urban communities and her duties increased twofold the district gradually was shortened by the superintendent.

Sees Schools Grow.

During that time she has seen her own one room school at Palos, which she taught after graduation from the old Cook County Normal school, grow into a five room school rated as one of the "superior schools of Illinois." She has witnessed small town schools develop into larger village schools, and has followed the breaking up of farms into subdivisions. She has watched and adapted herself to the great changes which have come in educational procedures during postwar years.

From her early days in Cook County Normal school Miss McClaughry has been interested in progressive educational methods. At Normal she was under the principalship of Col. Francis Parker, who then was putting into practice the new educational philosophy of John Dewey. She followed its principle of "learn to do by doing" in her own school at Palos. Her work attracted the attention of Edward J. Tobin, Cook county superintendent of schools, who was at that time launching his achievement project program, an extracurricular activity schedule which had for its foundation the philosophy of Dewey.

Helps Youth in Hobbies.

Mr. Tobin invited Miss McClaughry to join his staff in 1915, and she immediately began the achievement work in the district. It meant helping girls with cooking, sewing, and canning, and encouraging boys to plant gardens, raise pets, and develop "blooded stock."

"During the last 20 years," she says, "we have seen tremendous changes in education. The uses of tests and measurements after the war, the rapid development of progressive educational methods, the stress laid on the child as an individual, the uses of audiovisual aids, the great increase in reading with the extended library facilities and the installation of modern equipment in the classrooms—all have been major contributions to the schools. Now I believe we shall retain what is good of the fundamentals and correlate them with the best of our modern thought."

CALVARY METHODIST BROTHERHOOD NAMES OFFICERS AT DINNER

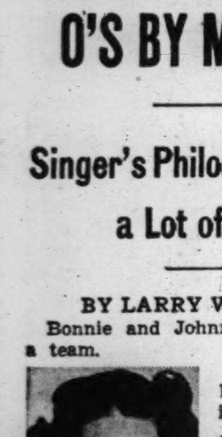
Singer's Philosophy: Have a Lot of Fun.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bonnie and Johnny! Now there's a team.



Bonnie Baker.
[Seymour Photo.]

Bonnie Baker has been making America, "O, Johnny, O!" conscious. And Johnny, with the aid of an army of "O's" has been making Bonnie Baker a celebrity.

"I've sung the song a million times, I bet," Dimpled Bonnie exclaims. "And there doesn't seem to be any let up."

And for every time she's sung it, she has turned out from 9 to 21 "O's" depending on the arrangement. To arrive at these millions of "O's" you must recall that she sings the song several times nightly in the Empire Room of the Palmer House. And does it almost nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And Saturday nights on the Hit Parade broadcast. Then there are guest appearances on the radio.

Mililons of Bonnie's "O's."

Besides, more than half a million of "O, Johnny" records have been sold. And in each of these there is a minimum of 21 "O's." All over the country jitterbugs are pushing nickels into groan boxes just as fast as they can to hear those unending melting "O's" pour forth. Almost 350,000 copies of sheet music have been sold. So when you add to Bonnie's "O's" those of a myriad imitators you get a figure comparable to the national debt.

Today fame and fortune are Wee Bonnie's. She takes it all calmly. She's unlike a lot of celebrities. She can't understand her popularity, for one thing. Everything just happened, she says. No credit belongs to her. All of that should go to Orrin Tucker, her boss, she says.

"I owe everything that's happened to Orrin," she says. "He taught me all I know about showmanship; showed me how to use my voice to best advantage. Coached me in every song I've sung. The whole 'O, Johnny' idea was his."

It all started when they were playing an engagement at the Palmer House last year. The floor show had an old fashioned setting. Tucker wanted a song of earlier days for Bonnie to sing in it. One day he started humming a tune he had heard as a kid in Wheaton. It was "O, Johnny" which Abe Olman, a Chicagoan, wrote back in the war year of 1917. That was 23 years ago.

Records Started It Rolling.

Tucker had a time finding a copy of "O, Johnny." Finally he located one in a small shop. The song went over well at the Palmer House. But it wasn't until about six months ago when they recorded it that it started clicking in a big way.

"We got the surprise of our lives," says Bonnie. "The piece caught on and hung like fly paper. And you know the rest."

How does Bonnie explain the craze? She doesn't. Maybe it's because the tune is new to the younger generation. But no, that wouldn't keep it going so long. The little girl way she does it? Or possibly the nursery rhyme effect? [Even two year olds like it, you know.] Bonnie is besieged by mammas and papas every night who tell her how their kids go for it.

Cute Is Word for Bonnie.

"It's so cute," exclaims Bonnie. "Mothers and fathers come in and have a good time, while maybe the kids are listening at home on the radio. The youngsters hear me at home, but mamma and papa see me in person. To even up matters, they take home a menu on which I've written a little note for the kids."

Cute is the word for Bonnie's interpretation of the song, too. Whether the song made her or she made the song is a matter of speculation. But there is no doubt that people like the combination. Night after night it's a sellout. When she was ill recently for a few nights the customers set up a terrific clamor for her.

A little about Bonnie's career: While attending Mount De Sales academy in Macon, Ga., she sang for school parties. A local orchestra leader saw and signed her. When Tucker first met Bonnie in St. Louis four years ago he recognized possibilities in her pert voice. So he engaged her and she has been with him ever since.

Explains Her Philosophy.

Bonnie was born Evelyn Nelson at Orange, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Leroy Jones travels with her. Bonnie is five feet tall, wears size four shoes; has dark brown eyes; doesn't weigh quite a hundred.

Her philosophy is simple. "Don't let anything interfere with having fun."

Busy as she is, she has a lot of fun. She enjoys her work a lot. She isn't thinking much about pictures, tho some tentative offers have been made.

"It might be nice to make a movie," she says, "but I like what I'm doing now. I think it makes people unhappy to be too ambitious."

She says she doesn't miss parties and boy friends much.

"I don't have time for such things," she says, "because of my work. Besides I have Toby to take up my leisure time."

Toby is a 9 month old fox terrier.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Lincoln club of Jackson, Mich., on Thursday, Feb. 15. His address will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Col. McCormick's subject will be "The Attempt to Communize America."

Jackson, Mich., is regarded as a birthplace of the Republican party. Since this is a presidential election year the Lincoln club's meeting is of especial significance. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Allegan County building.

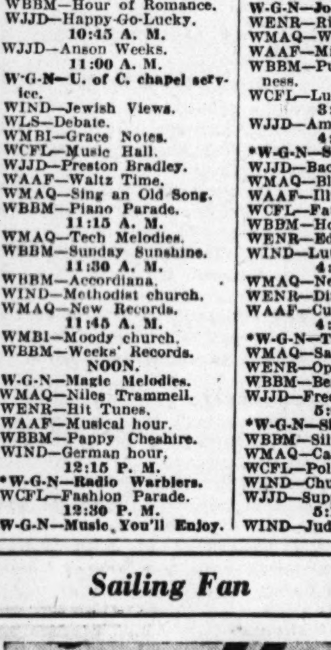
Sailing Fan



Alice Hill of W-G-N's "Painted Dreams" is starting in early preparing for next summer's boating. She is pictured breaking ice off the hull of a boat to be exhibited at the National Boat and Sports show at Navy pier this week. Alice also is featured in "Backstage Wife" at NBC.

FREDERICK THE GREAT SUBJECT OF BROADCAST

Episodes from the life of Frederick the Great will be presented on the program, "Meditation and Melody," broadcast by De Paul university in coöperation with the University Broadcasting council, from 2 to 2:30 p. m. today, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The W-G-N concert orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, will play two compositions of the Prussian ruler, Flute Concerto No. 3, and the First Movement of Symphony No. 3.

A MILLION KIDS JOIN FAN CLUB OF ORPHAN ANNIE

Santa Claus and radio's "Little Orphan Annie" get more letters every year from young children thruout the United States than do any other personalities, according to a survey made last week. Santa ranks first, with little red-headed Annie a close second.

The adventures of Annie are heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 5:45 to 6 p. m. The program is aired over W-G-N and 83 other stations, the largest network hook-up for a daytime script program.

An average of close to one million children have joined the club which Orphan Annie sponsors every year for the last seven years. In addition, Annie receives literally tens of thousands of letters from her youthful admirers every year.

Whistler to Be Featured on Steelmakers Program

Dick Weatherson, a whistler, and Grace Boffo, will be the guest employée headliners on W-G-N and Mutual's "Musical Steelmakers" program from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today.

Regular members of the troupe—Regina Colbert, the Steele Sisters, Ardenne White, the Old Timer, Dorothy Ann Crowe, will be heard in such numbers as "O, Johnny," "I Concentrate on You," "The Rosary," and "Bluebirds in the Moonlight."

[ADVERTISMENT]

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Simone Simon is going to try to project her Gallic charm over the radio today. She hasn't appeared before the microphone often. It's true her name was much on the air a season or two back—the comedians just couldn't resist cracks about it.

But when she makes her bow over W-G-N and the Mutual network this afternoon it will be only her third appearance on the air—and her first from Chicago. Mlle. Simon will be the star in today's "Fifth Row Center" program which each Sunday presents a top-notcher in the entertainment world. She will play the lead in "Model Princess," a comedy-drama by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Promises an Earful.

As every moviegoer knows and customers at the Erlanger theater are finding out, Mlle. Simon is an eyeful. She is appearing there in "Three After Three," a musical comedy with tunes by Hoagy Carmichael. And Simone is determined that radio listeners shall have an earful, too!

While she has had limited experience on the air, Mlle. Simon will draw inspiration from the rôle she is to portray: a photographer's model who takes the part of a foreign princess, falling in love with an American—with ensuing complications. For at pictorial performing Simone is good—extra good. Her little-girl cuteness, her soft beguilements, her French flirtaceousness all register well on the eye. Since television is not yet here, listeners will have to get along without that.

But she has a fetching voice, too. An intriguing accent and a saucy, pert personality which should be well absorbed and purveyed by the microphone.

Her Outside Interests.

Rehearsals in New York for "Three After Three" have kept her so busy, she said the other day between matinée and evening performances, that she hasn't had time for any recreation.

When she has leisure time, she said, she likes nothing better than to play the piano—and perhaps sing a little. She does a little warbling in "Three After Three." She doesn't go for sports much. The extent of her exercises at present, she said, is writing an occasional letter! She loves picture making and expects sometime to go back to Hollywood.

"In Three After Three" she is co-starred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green. They, too, are to be presented in special W-G-N and Mutual broadcasts. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will provide the musical portion of today's broadcast. Biair Walliser will be the director.

Vic Smith.

He plays the part of the head of the Carter family on "The Carters of Elm Street." The show is aired on W-G-N and 83 other Mutual stations daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 11:45 a. m. to noon.

"I consider it one of the more fortunate incidents in my acting career that I have the rôle of Mr. Carter," Smith said. "It isn't very often that one is able to get a rôle that is so full of realism and life—and above all, the joy of living that it isn't like acting at all. It seems that I could almost step in front of the microphone and then live the part.

STORM BULL TO PLAY ON W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Young Pianist Will Offer Grieg Concerto.

Storm Bull, 26 year old Chicago born pianist, will be the guest star on the Pageant of Melody, to be conducted by Henry Weber from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Bull, whose grandfathers were nephews of Ole Bull, famous Norwegian violinist, and first cousins of Edvard Grieg, Norwegian composer, will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, the octet, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Mr. Weber will be featured in the program with Mr. Bull. Baggiore will sing "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti," from Verdi's "La Traviata," and will join the octet in "O Promise Me," by Reginald De Koven, and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Charles Marshall.

The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture" by Felix Mendelssohn and "Sipapu," by Henry Hadley.

Made His Debut at 15.

Storm Bull made his debut at the age of 15 in Oslo, Norway. He has appeared in a series of concerts abroad, followed by engagements in the United States and Canada, both as soloist with orchestra and in recital.

The Concert Revue, directed by Mr. Weber, usually heard at 9:30 p. m., will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday this week only because of program changes. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will be heard with the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Miss Witwer to Sing.

For her solo Miss Witwer will sing the love song, "Ich Liebe Dich," by Edvard Grieg, and "Bolero," by Georges Bizet.

"O Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," by Serge Rachmaninoff, will be sung by Miss Witwer, with Michael Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Mr. Weber playing the piano.

Other numbers will include "Abu Hassan Overture," by Von Weber; "Prelude to Act I" and "Oriental Dance," from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite," and a string arrangement of Warlock's "Serenade."

LENT, LINCOLN TO BE MIDDAY SERVICE TOPICS

The opening of the Lenten season will be the topic of W-G-N Midday Service program on Feb. 5, 6, and 7, while on Feb. 8 and 9 the time will be devoted to the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

The program, under the direction of Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday from the studios of W-G-N at 12:35 p. m. Speakers for the week will be:

Monday—The Rev. Carl Rembold, Trinity United Lutheran church.

Wednesday—The Rev. Father John McCarthy, St. Andrew Catholic church.

Thursday—Prof. Charles T. Holman, University of Chicago.

Battling Siki Story on the Inside of Sports

How a colorful ring figure, Battling Siki, light heavyweight, tossed away a chance to make a $1,000,000 because his wife berated him before the big fight, will be recalled on "The Inside of Sports" program over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 6:45 p. m., Tuesday.

ARTHUR S. HENNING BACK ON W-G-N WITH 'CAPITAL COMMENT'

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has started his sixth annual series of Capital Comment programs on W-G-N. He is heard from 7 to 7:15 p. m. Sundays.

Arthur S. Henning.

Mr. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899; was sent to Washington in 1909 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Mr. Henning is an authority on national politics, having covered 18 national conventions of the two major parties beginning with those of 1904.

"PINOCCHIO" HITS TO BE AIRED BY HAROLD STOKES

Score to Be Featured on Wednesday.

"Your Sunday Date," directed by Harold Stokes, will present popular dance music, with the singing of Edna O'Dell, Lawrence Salerno, and the Four Shades of Blue, from 8 to 8:30 p. m. today on W-G-N.

Miss O'Dell will sing "Darn That Dream," from the musical comedy, "Swingin' the Dream," and will join the chorus in "To You, Sweetheart Aloha." Salerno will sing for his solo, "At the Balalaika."

Numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "All Dressed Up Spic and Spanish," from "Too Many Girls;" "Wham!" "Here Comes the Night," and "Soon."

The musical score from "Pinnocchio" will be featured in "Romance in Rhythm" directed by Mr. Stokes, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Curt Massey, Edna O'Dell, and the Four Shades of Blue will be the vocalists.

The numbers from Walt Disney's new picture will include "Three Cheers for Anything," "Give a Little Whistle," "Turn on the Old Music Box," "When You Wish Upon a Star," and "I've Got No Strings." Miss O'Dell will sing "Does Your Heart Beat for Me." Massey will do "The Singing Hills."

Lucille Lawrence to Be Featured in Music Hall

Lucille Lawrence, harpist, will be soloist with a strong symphony conducted by Erno Rapee on the Radio City Music Hall on the Air concert, at 11 a. m. over WENR. Miss Lawrence will play "Giga" by Corelli and two works by Carlos Salzedo, "Chanson Dans la Nuit" and "Behind the Barracks." The orchestra will play four pieces from the Bach-Woodhouse Suite in D Major, "Two Aquarelles," by Delius, and "Verklaerte Nacht," by Schoenberg. Jan Peerce, tenor, also will be heard.

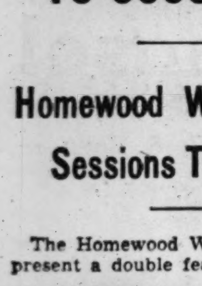
HEALTH, GARDENS AND PUBLICITY TO OCCUPY CLUB

Homewood Women Plan Sessions Tomorrow.

The Homewood Woman's club will present a double feature program to good advantage tomorrow afternoon in the village hall thru its health and press and publicity departments.



Mrs. Carl A. Menzel.

Mrs. Carl A. Menzel, press and publicity chairman, will introduce Miss Betty Browning, woman's club editor of THE TRIBUNE, in a talk on "The Importance of the Press to the Success of a Club." After an open discussion of the subject, Miss Amber Ellis, school nurse of Thornton Township High school, will speak on "Student Health." Hostesses will be Mrs. Lloyd Hemingway and Mrs. Devereaux Haigh.

During the morning session the garden department will hear a talk on "Soils, Lawns, and Weeds," by Mrs. E. G. Klingler, member of the Chicago Heights park board. Mrs. J. H. Bretz will be in charge of the program.

Harvey Woman's Club.

"Training for Citizenship in a Republic" will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Eston V. Tubbs, principal of Morgan Park High school, at a meeting of the American citizenship department Wednesday afternoon in the First Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Georgia Mynard, chairman, will present Dr. Tubbs.

Music will be furnished by Laurel R. Barnett, clarinetist, and George Patterson Jr., pianist. Mrs. H. L. Simpson, district American citizenship chairman, will be a guest. Miss Mynard and her committee will act as hostesses.

Orland Park Woman's Club.

The club will hold a business meeting at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school auditorium, Orland Park, after which a program will be offered for the public. Mrs. Samuel S. Leavitt, American citizenship chairman, and Mrs. Nora Felten, Indian welfare chairman, will be in charge.

A demonstration will be staged by the Girl and Boy Scout troops of the village and Girl Scout merits will be awarded by Mrs. David Krueger, captain. An American flag, recently purchased by the club, will be dedicated.

Guests will include Mrs. H. L. Simpson, district American citizenship chairman; Mrs. C. J. Aldrich, state chairman of Indian welfare, and members of the American Legion post and auxiliary and the Parent-Teacher association of Orland Park.

Palos Heights Woman's Club.

Mrs. Maude Troutman will be chairman of a fashion show Tuesday evening in the community schoolhouse. Models will be six members of the club, Mrs. Winifred Johnson, Mrs. Myrtle Vollmer, Mrs. Bertha Glaves, Mrs. Margaret Wood, Mrs. Ernamae Jansen, and Mrs. Eleanor Ayres.

Mrs. Dorothy Rowley and Mrs. Dorothy Barta will have charge of decorations. Mrs. Jeanette Rydell, music chairman, has planned a musical program in conjunction with the show. Hostesses will include Mrs. Alice Stephenson, Mrs. Mary Curtis, Mrs. Barta, Mrs. Mary Counts, and Mrs. Ann Courtwright.

Guests will include members of the Markham and Columbus Manor Women's clubs. Mrs. Hattie Saum is president of the club.

Grace Church Forum.

State Representative Charles J. Jenkins [3d] will speak on "Greed" for the men's Sunday community forum at 5 o'clock this afternoon in Grace Presbyterian church, 3600 Vincennes avenue.

Married 60 Years

MR. AND MRS. JOHN COZZI.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cozzi, 7013 Damen avenue, last Sunday celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary with a party in their home for their three sons and three daughters, 21 grand children, and three great-grandchildren. Married in Naples, Italy, the Cozzi's came to Chicago during the first year of their marriage and settled in the neighborhood of Polk and Clark streets. Later they moved and have now resided in the community for 47 years. Mr. Cozzi, 85, worked for many years as a building laborer and for 20 years prior to 1925 owned and operated farms at 74th street and Ashland avenue, and 103d street near Western avenue. His wife is 80 years old.

LEGION TO HAVE TWO VALENTINE FETES SATURDAY

Clown to Perform for Fort Dearborn Party.

John Tripp, famous as a circus entertainer for more than 30 years, will introduce his clown act for the Fort Dearborn party, which will follow the leap year motif also.

Proceeds from the cabaret party and dance of the Woodlawn organizations, which meet in their hall at 6308 Woodlawn avenue, will be added to the service fund for needy veterans and their families.

The 3d district American Legion auxiliary, composed of 18 units, will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at Mark White park, 29th and Halsted streets. Frank Huhges unit, headed by Mrs. Mollie Wolff, 3448 Union avenue, will be the hostess organization. Mrs. Evelyn La Chapelle, 1445 East 71st place, director, will preside.

All disabled veterans of the south and southwest sides have been invited to attend the meeting of Southtown chapter, Disabled Veterans of the World War, at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday night at 7936 Cottage Grove avenue.

Englewood Legion post last week presented patriotism awards to 18 south side students, representing nine elementary schools. Faculty members selected the individual boy and girl winners on the basis of good sportsmanship and scholastic achievement.

Walter Lumpp will report the completion of arrangements for a drum and bugle corps at the meeting of Glendale Legion post Tuesday night in its new headquarters, 5249 South Kedzie avenue. Alphonsus Boyle and Raymond Keeler will instruct the corps.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

LENTEN VOCABULARY.

Lent: Anglo Saxon word for spring. Old English, Lencten; French, Carême; Italian, Quaresima; Spanish, Cuaresma. [These refer to the 40 days.] Greek, likewise 40, or Tessaracost—like Pentecost, 50 days after Easter—in earlier days, nowadays its Nesteia, the fast. Latin, Quadragesima. German, Lenz. Lent first mentioned in Christian history in fifth canon of council of Nicea, 325 A. D. under name of Tessaracost.

Shrove Tuesday. Day before Ash Wednesday. Hearing confession before Lent. To shrive is to hear a confession. Also called Mardi Gras—Fat Tuesday—when meat can be eaten without restraint, or Carni Vale [carnivals get their name here], "Goodby Meat!"

Ash Wednesday. Also called Quadragesima by Latins. First day of lent or 40 week days until Easter. Sundays, being "little Easters," are not days "of" Lent but "in" it. Ashes refer to traditional symbol of sorrow for sin. These generally come from burned palms of previous Palm Sunday.

Fast. Comes from Anglo Saxon Faestan, meaning, to observe [i. e., to observe abstinence from meat]. Defined by Catholic authorities as being a day in which only one full meal is allowed. Fast and abstinence is defined by Catholic authority as a day in which one full meal is allowed but forbids meat or meat broth.

Lætare Sunday, Rejoicing Sunday. The fourth Sunday in Lent. Also, Mid Lent, Refreshment Sunday. In some parts of England, it's Homing Sunday or Mothering Sunday when schoolboys and apprentices come home to visit.

Passion Sunday. Fifth Sunday in Lent. Penumbra of Holy Week when vicarious trial and sufferings of Christ are foreshadowed.

Palm Sunday. Sixth Sunday in Lent. Ushers in Holy week which closes with Easter E'ven at noon on Holy Saturday.

Good Friday. The day of the death of Christ on the cross.

Alfred M. Landon, former Republican presidential candidate, and Mrs. Landon will be chief guests of the first meeting of the Laymen's council of the Chicago Church federation Friday noon in the Morrison hotel. Two thousand business men have been invited to join the council, which will be affiliated with the National Protestant Laymen's commission of the International Council of Religious Education.

The Avondale Methodist church will honor three members of its Boy Scout troop next Sunday morning. Two of the boys won American Legion service awards. These are Jack Allen and Robert Karis. The third, Art Keller, has been elected mayor of the Avondale Public school.

Judge John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of the Municipal court, last week told graduates of the old Brown Public school that in all his years as chief justice no active Boy Scout had ever been arraigned in the Municipal Boys' court. The same, he said, is true of boys who are actively related to church organizations.

"Two-thirds of our nominal communicants are only marginal churchmen. Doubtless many of these are what would be called good people—moved by generous impulses, feeling at times a faint mystical hankering after a higher life and are greatly frightened when sickness or death threatens them. But scratch their beliefs and what do you find? The faith of the church? No. You find instead a pathetic farrago of sentimentality, skepticism, and superstition." [Bishop George Craig Stewart's charge to his Episcopal convention, St. Peter's church, 621 Belmont avenue.]

Author to Give Lecture for Teachers at Harvey

"The Price of Democracy Is Going Up" is the title of a talk by Eric Eisner, author of the motion picture script, "Ecstasy," which starred Hedy Lamarr, at a teachers' institute Friday afternoon in the Thornton Township High school in Harvey.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 5.

Why not plan to plant nut trees in the yard for beauty and fruit? There are many suburban yards that have room for several; even one is an asset. The pignut is not large and the foliage is clean and handsome. The shagbark hickory will stand a lot of abuse and the shaggy bark is distinct. The black walnut, butternut, and the hybrid pecans and chestnuts are worth a place in any yard. But give them good care at all times.

Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Frequently grass does poorly under trees and it is desirable to use other plants. Among these are the myrtle of vinca minor and the ajuga reptans rubra [purpleleaf bugle]. The myrtle is almost evergreen and spreads rapidly. The ajuga is excellent as an edging plant and may be clipped into form. It is also a good rockery plant, but must be kept in bounds or it will take possession of the place. Plants under trees should be given fertilizer in early spring and plenty of water during periods of drouth. A good, low, spreading plant to grow in the narrow strip between the house and driveway is the goutweed [ægopodium podograria]. It does well in any soil, is a fine ground cover beneath trees or on waste ground.

Wednesday, Feb. 7.

It soon will be time to begin sowing the seed of some annuals for early planting. The seed may be ordered now and sowing begun in March. Petunias, phlox, verbena, flowering tobacco, cosmos, heliotrope, torenia, early asters, scarlet sage, and others are all started early. But remember that it is a waste of seeds to sow the seed thickly. Very fine seeds need not be covered with soil, but merely pressed into it. Large seeds should be sown in rows and covered to about three times their width.

Thursday, Feb. 8.

Don't forget the birds. Hang suet on the branches of trees and scatter chick feed where birds can reach it. Build a shelter for them out of evergreen boughs, cornstalks, or the materials that are at hand. Birds consume an endless amount of insects, but in times of stress they must be aided. Work over and paint bird houses now while outdoor activities are halted. The moisture in rooms may be increased by placing a watertight tray on top of a table or window ledge, putting sand and pebbles in it, and partially filling with water.

Friday, Feb. 9.

Potted bulbous plants are now on the market. Give flowering pot plants plenty of water and, if they are bulbous, keep them growing until the leaves turn yellow; then place in the basement, withholding water. Tulips and hyacinths can be planted in the garden next fall. Do not throw narcissi plants away, but cure the bulbs and plant out in the fall. Paper white narcissus cannot be flowered again and it is tender. Flowering azaleas also are offered; these should be given water and when out of flower kept in as cool a spot as possible.

Saturday, Feb. 10.

Have you ever noticed the size of the pots the florist uses? They seem small to the amateur, for he tends to use large pots, sometimes much larger than the plants require. Try to keep the plants in as small pots as possible, for an excess of soil and too much water may prevent the roots from getting the air they need and a saturated condition may be very injurious.

MORNING ROOM RETURNS TODAY IN MODERN NOOK

Feature of Home Built in Glenview.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The "morning room" of half a century ago is now definitely with us again; so much so that in homes without number it almost rates as "standard equipment."

Today, however, instead of belonging to very large and impressive homes, and being quite an impressive feature itself, it has taken on a delightful informality, and is found in kitchens that are equally informal and simple.

There is a handsome kitchen in a new home in Glenview which has just such a "morning room." This room, built into the kitchen proper, could be called a "breakfast booth," since it is composed of table and benches, and the back of one bench makes possible an additional working surface in the kitchen at right angles to the sink.

A very gay little breakfast booth it is, too, brought alive by the yellow painted walls and blue painted ceiling. And a very important spot in the home. For the family doesn't live that doesn't get a lift forward on the right foot in the early morning when the day is started in such a corner.

Pantry Can Be Converted.

Possibilities for acquiring such a breakfast corner are almost as numerous as the wealth of materials with which it can be finished. There are so many plans to work from and so many finishes.

Such a room can be a part of the kitchen proper, perhaps even set right down in it, and only a few steps away from the sink and range, cupboards and refrigerator. Or again it may be merely an extension of some cabinet top center, or a breakfast booth, built into the kitchen.

If large modernization is in order, it may be that an oversized pantry can do a right about face and emerge as a morning room, all on its own. Or if one owns an over large kitchen it can be divide dby a low, attractive partition, and a breakfast nook have some space entirely to itself.

With the walls you can do what you like. The new paints are beautiful, and paint and plaster are an inexpensive finish. You can style your floor and be as gay as you please, and dress up your windows to suit your taste.

Has Venetian Blinds.

Both a kitchen and a "morning room" should be bathed in light where this is possible. With the market abounding in so many fascinating materials for walls and ceiling and floors, it is important to keep in mind that the colors on those walls and ceilings will have an effect on how much light you get in the rooms. For ceilings and walls can intensify light or absorb it. Careful tests have been made of different shades and what they will do for a room.

How Colors Reflect.

White, of course, reflects more of the total available color light than any other color. It reflects some 80 per cent of all the light that touches it! Cream and light ivory come next, reflecting some 71 per cent. Then there's apricot beige, reflecting 66 per cent; lemon yellow, 65 per cent; deep ivory, 59 per cent; light buff, 56 per cent; peach and salmon, 53 per cent, and pale green, 51 per cent.

Another point to which attention is being given in kitchen treatment is the muffling of kitchen noises by ceiling finishes. There are ceiling "tiles" which can be applied to new or old ceilings. In reality, these tiles are squares of acoustic material. This material is made up of millions of tiny air cells, and these cells contribute to a porosity in the material which blots up noise as a blotter soaks up ink.

By this treatment you can decrease those kitchen sounds which travel, on the slightest encouragement, to other parts of the house. Likewise, you can cut down noises you hear in the kitchen yourself; the clatter of dishes and silver and pots and pans.

Enroll for R. O. T. C.

SPIRITUAL CALL OF LENT WILL ECHO IN LOOP

Daily Rites Scheduled in Theaters.

Chicago's loop as well as the hundreds of churches of the city will rise to the spiritual call of Lent which begins in penitential ashes on Wednesday. The Erlanger and Harris theaters will open their doors each Lenten noon to worshipers, and the Grand Opera house, with its year round noonday services, will emphasize Lent's message.

Dr. Martin Anderson.

Thousands of Catholic executives and workers in the loop will go to noonday masses at Holy Name cathedral and other inner city churches. At the Harris theater the pioneer noonday service under Episcopal Church club auspices will open on Wednesday with Bishop Henry Wise Hobson of Cincinnati as the preacher. As at the Lutheran services at the Garrick, the meeting will begin at 12:10 p. m. and close at 12:30. The Lutheran services will be broadcast over station WIND.

Will Preach Wednesday.

Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran synod's eastern district, will be the Erlanger Ash Wednesday preacher. He will be succeeded on Thursday by the Rev. Theodore E. Matson, regional secretary of the home missions society of the Augustana synod, and on Friday by Dr. Fred W. Otterbein of North Austin United Lutheran church. There will be no Erlanger or Harris services on Saturdays.

On successive weeks during Lent the Episcopal Church club will present the following preachers: The Rev. Donald H. Wattley, of New Orleans, La.; the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of New York; the Very Rev. Roland W. Philbrook of Davenport, Ia.; the Very Rev. Austin Pardue of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese will be the holy week preacher as in previous years.

The Lutheran committee has obtained representative preachers from various synods for the successive weeks. Dr. T. F. Gullixson, Minneapolis, Minn., of the Norwegian synod, will be the preacher for the week of Feb. 12. The Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Cleveland, O., of the Missouri synod, will preach during the week of Feb. 23.

Other Preachers Listed.

Other weeks, successively, will feature the Rev. Franklin C. Fry, Akron, O., of the United Lutheran church; the Rev. Edgar Carlson of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn.; the Rev. Joseph Knutson, Lake Mills, Minn., Norwegian synod, and the Rev. Walter Schutte, Sewickley, Pa., of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. Andrew Gih, Chinese evangelist, will be the principal Ash Wednesday preacher at the Grand Opera house, where services are conducted by the Christian Business Men's committee. Dr. Dan Gilbert, California religious author, will also speak. Grand Opera house services continue from 12 noon until 1 o'clock, but are divided in two parts, with a separate speaker for each.

Noonday masses will be offered at the following Catholic churches near the loop: Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets; Church of the Assumption, Illinois and Orleans streets; Old St. Mary's, South Wabash avenue and 9th street, and St. Patrick's, Adams and Desplaines streets.

New York's Trinity Pastor to Talk in Orchestra Hall

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, New York City, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be, "Hopes That Have Root." During the absence of Clifford W. Barnes, president, trustees of the club will conduct the meetings. Edward Hall Taylor and Edward K. Welles will officiate tonight. The Girls' Glee club of North Central college, Naperville, directed by Miss Mary Cook, will sing at the 7 o'clock meeting.

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO ADDRESS CARROLL FORUM NEXT SUNDAY

Archduke Felix of Austria will address the Charles Carroll forum next Sunday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. The Rev. James A. Magner, founder and chairman, will preside. Discussing "The Reconstruction of central Europe," the archduke will outline the plan of a democratic Danubian federation as the best plan for the solution of the cultural, economic, and political problems of the Balkan states. Archduke Felix was born in Vienna in 1916, attended the University of Louvain, Belgium, and ended his military training at Wiener Neustadt, the equivalent of West Point. He fled from Austria after the late Chancellor Schuschnigg announced the postponement of the plebiscite, and is the first of the Hapsburg family to visit the United States.

CELEBRATE 30TH YEAR OF BOY SCOUTS

STALWART ROTC, A HUSKY YOUTH, COMES OF AGE

21 Years' Growth in City Recalled.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Chicago's Reserve Officers' Training corps will have reason to celebrate 21 years of growth and progress when it comes of age this month. The reason is that it has reached the highest peak in its history, according to Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools who headed the R. O. T. C. for 15 years and who now is R. O. T. C. administrator for the board of education.

Maj. Beals. [U. & U. photo.]

Because Maj. Beals has watched the local military unit grow from a gray uniformed, baby cadet corps in 1917-'18, he can tell the story of how it grew and why today it ranks as the largest and one of the best junior corps in the nation. In proof of its quality, Maj. Beals points to the fact that last spring army inspectors gave either an "excellent" or "honor" rating to 26 of the 27 city units, the best examination record the Chicago schools have ever had.

Has Growing Popularity.

"I believe it has expanded steadily from year to year because of its fundamental popularity with principals, teachers, and parents, as well as students," he says. "Students always enjoy being cogs in an active organization, and principals, teachers, and parents came to like it because they saw the obvious benefits it worked in the boys and the service it was giving the school and community."

Credit for its progress, he believes, must also be given to civic minded citizens like Angus Hibbard, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone company, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, whom Maj. Beals calls the "father of the Chicago R. O. T. C."

"What are its biggest benefits to a boy?" Maj. Beals says: "I would list them this way: [1] it gives him increased self-respect, [2] it increases his interest in personal appearance, [3] it develops self-confidence, [4] it develops interest in the welfare of others, [5] it gives him a living, breathing organization of which he is a part, and [6] it gives him a sense of his own importance as a member of the community.

When Maj. Beals came to the Chicago board of education in 1917, a makeshift "cadet corps" had been organized. Rifles were furnished by the government but gray uniforms had to be supplied by a citizen's uniform committee, of which Angus Hibbard was chairman. In January, 1919, however, owing to the efforts of Mr. Hibbard, Col. McCormick, and Maj. Beals, the board of education gave permission for a delegation to go to Washington and ask for a government operated R. O. T. C. for Chicago.

First Enrollment Drops.

A month later 14,000 Chicago high school boys were enrolled in the R. O. T. C. with uniforms, rifles, and regular army instructors supplied by the war department. The following year Maj. Beals was made professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago unit and supervisor of physical education in the schools.

The huge enrollment was short lived, however, for in 1919 the army was demobilized and comparatively few officers and noncoms were available as instructors. Chicago's authorized registration was slashed to 3,000 cadets. Since then it has been increased year by year as more students indicated their desire to be admitted.

Maj. Beals continued as head of the corps until 1932, when he was succeeded by Capt. Edmond C. Fleming, who retired a year later. The position was assigned to Lieut. Col. John D. Holtzendorff for a little more than two years.

Lauds Morrison Record.

In 1935 his place was taken by Col. William F. Morrison, currently heading the unit, whom Maj. Beals believes is most responsible for the exceptional progress of the corps during the last five years. Col Morrison had been transferred from duty as chief of staff of the artillery group of the 7th corps area in Iowa. He is a graduate of West Point and was an instructor there from 1906 to 1910.

In accounting for the steady growth of Chicago's R. O. T. C. in his book, "Associations of Choice," Angus Hibbard observes that "school authorities have continued to testify that the R. O. T. C. is the backbone of order and discipline in the Chicago high schools."

Medical Society Auxiliary to Be Hostess Tomorrow

Representatives of women's clubs in the district will be the guests of the woman's auxiliary of the South Chicago branch of the Chicago Medical society at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the South Shore Hospital Nurses' home, 80th street and Crandon avenue. Dr. Herbert Rattner, dermatologist, will speak on "Care of the Skin and Use of Cosmetics" for this public relations day program.

Friend to Man Builds Retreat at Roadside

"Let me live in a house by the side of a road and be a friend to man."—Sam Walter Foss.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders has such a house. He wanted it before he was a minister. He wanted it when he was an idealistic young man who loved the hills, farms, woods, and friends. He went to war and came back undisillusioned.

The Rev. Paul T. Sanders.

Today the Rev. Mr. Sanders, whom everybody calls "Sandy," lives on a hill top in Palos woods. The speed-traveled Southwest highway at 127th street passes his door winding its way to St. Louis. A friendly sign stops those who are heartsore.

He gives his house a staid name. But that is only because he is compromising with the times and trying to attract young people who would shy away from a psychological clinic. He calls it the Community Center foundation. It is not a settlement, not a religious retreat, nor a civic caucus. It is 45 acres of farm, 15 acres of woods, and a lodge filled with kerosene lamplight, candles, fireplaces, and books. Right now snow covered trees and hills are its only decorations.

Book Changed His Life.

A year before the first great world war the Rev. Mr. Sanders, then young and indefinite, read a book. He had read many books before that, but this one changed his life. It was called "The Master of the Inn" and was written by Robert Herrick. It told of a doctor, physically ill, who built an inn where reclaimed men "found themselves by work, play, and fellowship."

Sandy laid down his book and went to war, but unlike those about him who began to think of lives in terms of hunting, he saw only a greater need for the leisure life, for time to read and plow and pray. He came back wanting to build his inn.

To build his inn, however, he needed to know the lay of the land. He went to the University of Illinois where he was graduated from the agricultural school. Before that he had studied medicine, but he still knew the limitations of his knowledge. He couldn't tell men how to reconstruct their lives by instructing them how to plant a field of hay or telling them the symptoms of angina pectoris. So he turned to theology at the University of Chicago.

Takes Up Psychology.

Even that was not enough. He took up psychology and sociology at Northwestern university and came away determined to find his Shangri-La. Assisted by Dr. William Bailey of Northwestern he made a survey of Chicagoland and found a little church in Worth which had 10 members, two of whom were inactive. That was in 1924. The Rev. Mr. Sanders took the church and gradually gathered around him an interdenominational parish of seven congregations.

Into the picture came an old man whose life had been spent with trees and hills, plowed fields and the books of Emerson, Thoreau, and Abbé Fabre. Most of the people in the Palos district knew him only as "the hermit," altho his name was Ernest G. Warner. Several had seen him on occasion put his arms around a tree and mumble to himself of "woodland friends." They thought him queer and avoided his farm, altho it adjoined the most beautiful section of the forest preserves.

It was in the plan of things that simple, nature loving Mr. Warner was to meet Paul Sanders, university trained medical man, scientific farmer, minister, psychologist, and humanitarian. Several years these two spent together, the old man dreaming dreams and the young man seeing visions, each certain of the peace gained by an ear atune to "God's deeper harmonies."

Resigns from Parish.

With a gift of 10 acres from the Warner property in 1928, the Rev. Mr. Sanders resigned from his parish and took the first steps towards the realization of his project. He incorporated the center as a nonprofit institution "to serve all mankind regardless of creed, socially, physically, mentally, and spiritually."

An old barn was turned into the lodge, Fellowship house, by a group of girls and boys who eagerly followed Sandy's footsteps.

"The foundation's ends," says Sandy, "could only be accomplished if it materialized thru the experience of the people."

First the lodge doors opened to persons from the immediate vicinity, then to those from Chicago, and finally to others from state after state until last year when more than 9,000 persons from 21 states and five foreign countries were served by the center.

The entire Warner property, valued at $60,000, had been turned over to the foundation upon the death of the old naturalist. There are now six buildings on the land, a girls' dormitory given by Adam Int-Hout of Homewood in memory of his wife, a poetess; a boys' dormitory donated by Dr. Pasquale de Carlo, head of Garibaldi institute; a mess hall built by boys from an old horse shed in Orland Park; a guest house erected of box car lumber; Fellowship house,

Three Braves in Celebration

To the thump of the Indian tomtom, Braves White Eagle and Wise Owl enact the legend of old Chief Owasippe in all his glory of early America. His story is part of the program, "A Dad's Eye View of Scouting," which members of Boy Scout Troop 764 will present over radio station WAAF from 4:30 to 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon as part of the 30th anniversary celebration of the founding of the scouting movement. The three braves—left to right, Edwin Sloan, 501 East 88th place; William Bonshire, 9440 Champlain avenue, and Robert Kane, 646 East 92d street— are members of the troop's Order of the Thunderbird, in which Indian dances, songs, costuming, and impersonation are studied. Lynn G. Thompson, 8812 Bishop street, the scoutmaster, wrote and directed the program. George Ryan, south shore district executive of the Boy Scouts, will present a message on the broadcast. The troop meets in the Vincent Methodist church, 91st place and Langley avenue.

URBAN LEAGUE TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING FRIDAY

Skit Is Major Feature of Conference.

"How Not to Be Bored by a Board Meeting" is the title of a skit which will be presented at the 23d annual meeting of the Chicago Urban league at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening in the main dining room of the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Kay McLaughlin wrote the sketch which will supplant the usual address. Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi of Temple Sholom and a vice president of the league, will preside, and chairmen of committees will participate.

These are George D. Kells, finance; William P. Harrison, civics; Miss Sara Southall, industrial and research; Miss Amelia Sears, social welfare; Dr. Charles M. Thompson, youth; Dr. Duncan H. Browne, church coöperation; Howard G. Mayer, publicity; A. Lincoln Wisler, interracial goodwill; Mrs. Hugo Law, woman's division, and Mrs. U. G. Dailey, community centers.

Youths to Sing.

The Exclusive Sharps and Flats, a group of young singers sponsored by the Urban league, will provide musical numbers. Earl B. Dickerson, president of the league, will end the skit with a short formal address in which the policies and programs for 1940 and 1941 will be discussed.

George D. Kells, chairman of the finance committee, and Bertram G. Cahn, treasurer, have issued an appeal to all 1939 contributors to renew their memberships for 1940 before March 31 so that officers can determine the amount of income from this course, in order to plan for obtaining additional necessary funds.

Membership Increased.

The league ended the year with its finances in excellent condition and with a greatly increased membership, Mr. Dickerson said. It is an organization of both colored and white persons working to develop better relations between the two races.

KENWOOD TRADE GROUP HAS NEW COMMITTEES

Maj. Franklin C. Browne, newly elected president of the Kenwood Business Men's association, appointed standing committees for the year last week. The chairmen are William K. Armitage, elementary and new high school; Frank D. Ayers, transportation and new union station; Nathan L. Blackman, police, lighting, and public service; David K. Cochrane, property owners; Montie Conklin, stockyards promotional; Msgr. William Foley, Burnham park and lake front; Courtney R. Gleason, building rehabilitation; Hugh B. Haines, halls and speakers; James E. Kidwell, entertainment and decorations; Clinton C. Lane, athletics; Edward C. Skinner, public relations; Mrs. Ella M. Stahl, Drexel boulevard, and Mrs. Gertrude Stiff, public library. David Welling was named stockyards promotional committee vice chairman.

FOUR MU OMEGA BETA CHAPTERS TO CONVENE AT DINNER TUESDAY

Seventy-five members are expected to attend the first informal dinner of Mu Omega Beta fraternity Tuesday evening in the Italian Village, 71 West Monroe street. The fraternity, which is composed of four active chapters in local junior colleges, recently organized a grand council. Officers of the council will be installed at the dinner. They are Dr. E. C. Sahlstrom, 9225 Wood street, president; William Karry, 5810 Bryn Mawr, vice president; Ted Kantorowicz, 1635 West Blackhawk street, secretary; Peter Ronin, 18 North Long, treasurer; Ralph Budelmann, 1640 North Albany avenue, sergeant at arms, and John Worcester, 5544 West Van Buren, chaplain. Russ Rudolph, 5359 School street, is chairman of the installation banquet.

SOUTH PARK WAY Y.W.C.A. SPONSORS EDUCATION MEET

The industrial committee of the South Park way Y. W. C. A., 4559 South Park way, will sponsor a four week seminar on workers' education on Monday evenings, beginning tomorrow. Arthur McDowell, member of the workers' education council, will be the leader for the first session.

William Jones, director of adult education in Olivet Christian center, 3101 South Park way, will conduct the seminar, assisted by Harry Maurer, former Chicago supervisor of workers' education; Jesse Ogden, director of workers' education at Hull House, and Mrs. Marguerite Gilmore, director of workers' service projects for the state.

Covering the history, philosophy, and need of workers' education and methods and techniques, the seminar is designed especially for social workers, teachers, ministers, union and nonunion members. Miss Verneta Hill heads the subcommittee in charge, aided by Mrs. Laura Webster and Miss Ida Simons.

Ald. Olin Chosen to Lead South Side Swedish Club

Ald. Roy E. Olin [8th] was elected president of the South Side Swedish club at its recent meeting. Other new officers are Ben Larson, first vice president; Elmer L. Nelson, second vice president; Conrad V. Bovik, secretary; Martin E. Barquist, treasurer, and Nels H. Olson, Theodore R. Herlin, E. G. Grundstrom, and Rudolph Johnson, directors.

START CAMPAIGN EARLY TO NOTE U. OF C. JUBILEE

15 South Area Residents Named to Aid.

As one of the initial steps in the preparation of the 50th anniversary celebration of the University of Chicago in 1941 the Alumni Foundation last week appointed 15 south and southwest side residents to two subcommittees of the Chicago committee.

John Nuveen Jr., trustee of the university and chairman of the foundation, announced the appointments to the executive committee, and Herbert P. Zimmerman, also a trustee of the university and chairman of the publicity committee, named four of the same group to his committee.

In Executive Group.

Those placed in the executive group are:

Arthur A. Baer, 9001 Damen avenue; Frank P. Breckinridge, 4940 East End avenue; Dan H. Brown, 5639 University avenue; Grace A. Coulter, 5307 Hyde Park boulevard; Barbara Cook Dunbar, 10031 Longwood drive; Harold J. Gordon, 1242 Madison Park; Harry H. Hagey Jr., 9702 Vanderpoel avenue.

Paul G. Hoffman, South Bend, Ind.; Ethel Kawin, 5600 Blackstone avenue; Allan M. Marin, 1660 Hyde Park boulevard; Robert T. McKinlay, 807 East 54th street; Neil F. Sammons, 1130 East 46th street; Frank L. Sulzberger, 1015 Hyde Park boulevard; Clifton M. Utley, 5827 Blackstone avenue, and William D. Watson, 2205 East 70th place.

The four named to the publicity committee are Mr. Breckinridge, Mr. Marin, Mr. Utley, and Mr. Watson.

Plan Alumni Gift.

An alumni gift to be presented at the anniversary celebration is the first objective of the foundation. It will be used in offsetting the continued decline in the rate of return on endowment. This decline was described by President Robert M. Hutchins in his recent annual report as "the most important educational event of the last year."

Tho the endowment has increased slightly since 1929, the rate of return has decreased 40 per cent. Not being a state institution, the university receives no support from taxes.

With active committees in 350 cities of the nation now, the alumni foundation was organized to bring old graduates into closer association with the university. There are about 46,000 living graduates.

Bryn Mawr Young Mothers Sponsor Bridge Tomorrow

The Bryn Mawr Young Mothers' club will give its annual benefit bridge party at 1 o'clock tomorrow in the dining room of the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue. Mrs. E. J. Gilligan is the chairman of the social committee, assisted by Mrs. A. J. Unrau, Mrs. W. A. R. Leys, Mrs. A. P. Williams, Mrs. R. F. Hayes, Mrs. C. E. Dillon, Mrs. C. A. Fitzmaurice, Mrs. W. H. Cain, and Mrs. C. E. Stebbins.

LUTHERAN PRE-LENT RALLY SERVICE SET FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Anticipating the Lutheran midday lent services in the loop, there will be a rally service this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the University of Chicago chapel. The speaker will be Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church of New York City. Dr. Scherer was graduated from the Lutheran Theological seminary in Philadelphia, Pa., and was called in 1916 to his first pastorate at Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Paul Scherer.

The music at the rally service will be the Augustana college choir, Rock Island, Prof. Henry Veld directing, and Moreland Lutheran church choir, Lotus and Huron streets, the Rev. Joseph C. Simonson, pastor, with Edward A. Nelson conducting. The organist will be Philip B. McDermott of North Austin Lutheran church.

The loop services begin on Ash Wednesday, in the Erlanger theater, sponsored by an inter-Lutheran committee.

AQUINAS SCHOOL MOTHERS' CLUB TO HAVE PARTY

Mothers of sophomores will entertain the Aquinas Dominican High school Mothers' club at 2 o'clock Thursday in the school auditorium, 72d street and Clyde avenue. Bridge will provide the chief entertainment. Mrs. R. J. Grant, 7728 Merrill avenue, will be the chairman of the day, assisted by Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mrs. J. E. McGuiggan, Mrs. J. J. Childers, Mrs. P. J. McAllister, Mrs. Peter P. McGuire, Mrs. E. T. McBreen, Mrs. Stewart Lindley, Mrs. L. T. Shorley, Mrs. L. J. Austin, Mrs. George Hoefner, Mrs. B. J. Flanagan, and Mrs. William J. Cleary.

ANNUAL REUNION AT ST. PATRICK'S TOMORROW NIGHT

St. Patrick's parish will have its seventh annual homecoming at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the South Chicago Masonic temple, 91st street and Exchange avenue. Bridge, other games and dancing have been planned. The Rev. M. S. Kane, pastor, is the honorary chairman, assisted by James E. Brown, general chairman; Miss Margaret Neville, general secretary; the Rev. H. P. Cunneen, Miss Amanda Eggars, Miss Marjorie Maher, Mrs. Agnes Dorigan, Mrs. S. J. Brown, James Malloy, Ronald McCrea, and Donald Mortimer.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

LITTLE RALPH J. McGRATH, 8½ month old son of Mr. and Mrs. James McGrath, 2639 East 93d street, flashed that broad smile, and the photographer flashed his bulb. The combination resulted in this prize winning picture in a contest conducted by a photographic studio. About 3,000 entries were received for the classification in which this photo was entered — that for children up to 1 year old. A staff of five judges selected the winners.

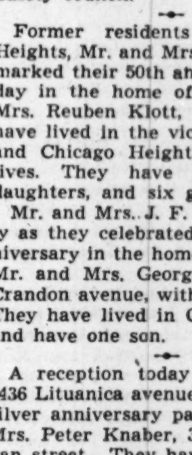
Last Monday Robert M. Casey, 7247 Paxton avenue, appropriately received 80 cards of good wishes in Sarasota, Fla., where he passes his winters. He was 80 years old. A retired city employé born in Chicago, he has four sons, four daughters, and 17 grandchildren.

MASS at 10:30 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's of Perpetual Help church will begin the golden wedding celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mazur, 1055 West 34th place, old settlers of Bridgeport for 53 years. In the afternoon a reception will be held in Syrena's, 4270 Archer avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raphael, 6317 Blackstone avenue, will welcome their friends and relatives next Sunday with an open house in observance of their 57th wedding anniversary. Both were born and reared in Chicago and witnessed the great fire.

A SENIOR who ended his high school career with distinction is James J. Burke, 5730 Maryland avenue. Named as one of the outstanding graduates from Tilden Technical High school, he was awarded the scholarship by the high school for study at Armour institute. President of the Arx and Arts club and a member of the National Honor society, James was selected also as master draftsman in his class. This is the only scholarship given by Tilden to Armour.



James J. Burke.

Last Sept. 13 John Brown sank while swimming in Lake Michigan off 39th street. After he was removed from the water, William P. Connors, 6407 Kimbark avenue, park district patrolman, tried artificial respiration for 10 minutes before natural breathing was restored. For his deed of life saving, Robert J. Dunham, president if the park district, recently awarded Patrolman Connors the President's medal of the National Safety council.

Former residents of Chicago Heights, Mr. and Mrs. William Plagge marked their 50th anniversary Thursday in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Reuben Klott, Galesburg. They have lived in the vicinity of Beecher and Chicago Heights most of their lives. They have two sons, two daughters, and six grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Burhorn recently as they celebrated their silver anniversary in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Fries, 7251 Crandon avenue, with an open house. They have lived in Chicago 20 years and have one son.

A reception today in Ukelis hall, 3436 Lituanica avenue, will serve as a silver anniversary party for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Knaber, 3348 South Morgan street. They have two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hanrahan, 5631 Christiana avenue, celebrated their 24th anniversary at the house warming party given to surprise Mrs. Hanrahan. They have five sons and daughters.

F. McEvoy, Thomas Flaherty, Charles Huguelet, John Flaherty, George Cassidy, Robert Burke, Edward McCloskey, Harold Wilson, William C. Webber, and Joseph Grindell.

CHICAGO GROUP OF 23,844 PLANS 7 DAY PROGRAMS

Dinner Is Listed as First Event.

Because William Boyce, Chicago publisher, became stranded in a dismal London fog one day back in 1909, 23,844 boys in the Chicago council, the largest in the country, will join with the Scout troops, Sea Scout ships, and Cub packs of the whole nation this week and next in the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of the scouting movement.

As Mr. Boyce peered into the screen of smoke and fog anxiously, he held in one hand a piece of paper and in the other an umbrella. He could see the dim outlines of people hurrying thru the streets, but he, a stranger, feared to go out.

Suddenly a boy appeared, asked whether he could assist him. Relieved, Boyce shoved the paper into the lad's hand and followed him to his destination. When he attempted to pay the boy for his trouble, he was stopped by a refusal, as the youngster explained that he was a Scout and glad to be of service.

Learns About Scouting.

Amazed by his apparent good breeding, Mr. Boyce called him back to learn just what scouting in London was. He heard the lad relate the objectives — the teaching of self-reliance and resourcefulness and the preparation for manhood thru a clean, healthy, and interesting life.

Mr. Boyce brought home booklets and pamphlets to help him in promoting the scouting movement in the United States. Feb. 8, 1910, he experienced the realization of his dream, the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America.

From Thursday thru Feb. 14, the thousands of Scouts will observe the birthday with church services, parents' nights, open houses, park exhibits, theater, and window displays. The 4,380 in the 172 units of the south shore district and the 1,286 in the 50 Douglas district units will be included among them as they mark birthday, citizenship, reverence, brotherhood, dedication, service, and fun days. It will really be a double celebration for scouting is 30 years old in Chicago also.

Dinner on Thursday.

In conjunction 1,000 friends of scouting will gather for the 29th annual Chicago council dinner at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House, and volunteer workers will begin the annual financial drive Feb. 12, with a goal of $100,000, under the chairmanship of John F. Fennelly.

Hyde Gillette is the vice chairman in charge of the campaign in the six districts and Edward B. Smith is vice chairman heading the loop activities.

The kickoff dinner for the south shore district is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock Feb. 12 in the South Shore View hotel, 71st street and South Shore drive. Richard M. Lenihan again will direct the district drive, zoning the communities for solicitation by chairmen, captains, and workers.

Under the supervision of Charles D. Murray, the Douglas [colored] district will launch its campaign at 8 o'clock Feb. 12 in the Morris Eat Shop, 410 East 47th street.

Will Be Guest Speaker.

Dr. Glenn Frank, editor of Rural Progress magazine and former president of the University of Wisconsin, will be the guest speaker at the annual council dinner in the Palmer House. Barrett Wendell, the dinner chairman who has been active in scouting since 1922, will be the toastmaster.

James B. Forgan, chairman of the nominating committee, will announce the council officers for 1940, and Philip P. Sachs, a member of the executive board, will present silver beaver awards to outstanding volunteer men in scouting. These include Wayne A. Johnston, 8221 Kenwood avenue, chairman of the south shore district, and Bonnell H. Allen, 6932 Clyde avenue, Chicago council vice commodore in charge of training.

Rabbi Louis Mann of Sinai temple, 4622 South Park way, will present the invocation, and R. Douglas Stuart, president of the Chicago council, will make the opening address.

Other Events Listed.

Other events include reports on the progress of the council by James H. Douglas Jr., chairman of the executive board, and W. Arthur McKinney, Scout executive; recognition of Scouts who became 21 years old during 1939 by United States District Attorney William J. Campbell; introduction by Morton Bodfish, advancement chairman, of 125 uniformed Scouts who achieved the highest rank, that of eagle, and community singing under the direction of Assistant Scout Executive Stanley R. Miller.

It is hoped that the goal of $100,000 in the financial drive will be reached by March 1, Mr. Miller said. These funds will be used for leadership training, expansion of summer camp facilities, rallies, competitions, service to troops, and other work. The council annually receives $50,000 from the community fund and $30,000 from an endowment income.

Twenty-Three Paid Executives.

Directing the activities of the 965 troops and packs in Chicagoland are 23 paid executives and 6,311 volunteer

URBAN LEAGUE APPEALS.

Please place this message for contributors to the Chicago Urban league in the Voice of the People:

Your annual contribution to the Chicago Urban league is deeply appreciated, and we are urging you not only to renew and, if possible, to increase your contribution for the year 1940, but to make the payment of it before March 31.

The league is making this request for the reason that it desires to determine as nearly as possible the amount of annual contributions it can depend upon so that its efforts to obtain additional sums that are required for the maintenance of the league may properly be met by its friends who are interested in making an appeal to others for support.

The volunteer members of the board of directors of the league and its trained staff will be greatly energized and stimulated by the knowledge that proper financial provision is made for their program as planned for the year 1940.

It will interest you to know that the league is no longer an experimental project but has become an established institution in the life of the entire Chicago community. The calls upon the league are increasing from year to year and the league should be secured in the carrying on of its work by adequate funds.

The program of the league is flexible and is ever ready to respond to new needs and new demands that are made upon it. For that reason it is greatly in need of additional funds and we appeal to you accordingly for an increased contribution.

GEORGE D. KELLS,
Chairman finance committee.
BERTRAM J. CAHN,
Treasurer.

REAL SAFETY COUNCIL.

At our recent East Chicago Open House on Safety, more than 3,000 persons attended the three evening sessions. Industrial, traffic, home, and school safety displays and demonstrations marked the inauguration of a 1940 campaign in northern Indiana to caution and educate citizens on the dangers of being careless. Our safety show did not prove to be just a place to go for East Chicago citizens, but rather a place to view at first hand what is being done to protect the worker, safeguard life, and prevent injury. The show proved one thing, at least. People nowadays are vitally interested in a good safety program. The happiness of a family depends upon the breadwinner of the family. Without safety, the most important things in life are impossible of achievement. Safe living is the keystone of our personal and national well being. Accidents destroy economic security.

DEWEY T. BRUSH,
[Secretary-treasurer, East Chicago Safety Council.]

THANKS FROM P.-T.-A.

All of the women in this neck of the woods grabbed their slippers and rushed to their back doors Sunday morning. And low and behold, there was a big presentation in THE TRIBUNE of our P.-T. A. affair. Telephones began to ring. This is to show you that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is now more than ever tops in our P.-T. A. Vanity makes the world go round. Thanks very much.

MRS. P. B. READ,
[Publicity Chairman, Bryn Mawr P.-T. A.]

LEGION TO HAVE TWO VALENTINE FETES SATURDAY

Fort Dearborn American Legion post and Woodlawn post and its auxiliary have planned Valentine parties for Saturday night.

John Tripp, famous as a circus entertainer for more than 30 years, will introduce his clown act for the Fort Dearborn party, which will follow the leap year motif also.

Proceeds from the cabaret party and dance of the Woodlawn organizations, which meet in their hall at 6308 Woodlawn avenue, will be added to the service fund for needy veterans and their families.

George L. McLaughlin, 6837 Merrill avenue, past commander of Jackson Park Legion post, will be installed as commander of the Veterans of A. E. F. Siberia, Central States, at 8 o'clock Saturday night in the Great Northern hotel.

Frank Morrasy, past national commander, also will induct Oscar Hehr, senior vice commander; Arthur B. Glessner, Carl Grabowski, and William A. Thomas, junior vice commanders; Nathan Zimmerman, adjutant; Frank C. Lemke, finance officer; Anton Horn, chaplain; Einer Larsen, historian; Rudolph Shapira, judge advocate, and Fred Kusch, sergeant at arms.

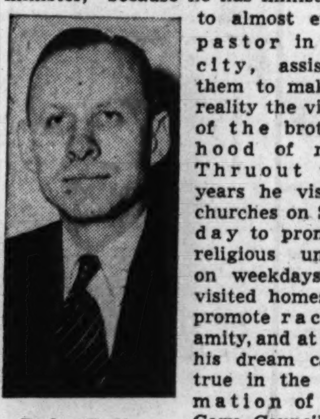
CHURCH COUNCIL IN GARY AIDING RACIAL AMITY

Sponsors Radio Series Starting Tuesday.

BY JOHN ASTLEY-COCK.

Gary folk call him "the ministers' minister," because he has ministered to almost every pastor in the city, assisting them to make a reality the vision of the brotherhood of man. Thruout the years he visited churches on Sunday to promote religious unity; on weekdays he visited homes to promote racial amity, and at last his dream came true in the formation of the Gary Council of Churches, and, as president, Reuben E. Olson has signed its first annual report.



Reuben E. Olson. [Tribune Photo.]

Mr. Olson is a member of Grace Evangelical Lutheran church, pastor of which is the Rev. Albert Keck whose leadership has been invaluable in rallying the Christian forces in Gary. Another supporter of Mr. Olson's work is the Rev. James E. Foster, rector of Christ Episcopal church. These and many others had advocated the formation of a local council. Details were presented to the ministerial association by the Rev. J. Kenneth Cutler, who is now secretary to the council.

41 Churches in Council.

The Gary Council of Churches comprises 41 churches representing 41 faiths. There are seven departments, five of which are headed by ministers and two by laymen.

Dr. Frederick W. Backemeyer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, is chairman of the department of evangelism; the Rev. Harold E. Schmidt, pastor of the Chapel of the Dunes, of world friendship and race relations; the Rev. Ragnar Moline, pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran, of Christian education, the Rev. Clifford Stewart, superintendent of Neighborhood house, of social service, and the Rev. Eugene May, pastor of Glen Park Christian church, is head of the department of church and industrial relations. The department of public affairs is headed by G. W. Collins, and that of Christian youth by Robert A. Peterson.

February has been designated as brotherhood month, and the council has arranged a series of broadcasts over WIND, beginning Tuesday with an address by Rabbi Julius L. Siegel on "Crisis and Decision," the title of a book by Dr. Solomon Goldman, spiritual leader of Anshe Emet congregation, Chicago.

Talk on Education.

The Rev. Fred Westendorff, director of education in the parochial schools of Gary will speak Thursday on "The Crisis in Education." There will be five more guest speakers, all at 6:45 p. m., during the month and the series will close on Feb. 29 with a round table discussion by Dr. Arnold Lieberman, Charles Bonner, head of the social science department at Roosevelt High school, and Miss Esther Tappan, director of International institute, all residents of Gary.

Sunday afternoons at 5 o'clock choirs from the churches in the Gary council will give programs also over WIND. This afternoon the Preradavic choir will feature hymns in Croatian; Israel Colored Methodist Episcopal church will sing next Sunday, and St. Mary's Russian Orthodox church choir on the third Sunday afternoon in February.

"In addition to these formal programs," said Mr. Olson, "the council has arranged for forum groups in the homes of families thruout the community. We have many nationalities and faiths in Gary and a 'know your neighbor' policy, the council thinks, may be highly conducive to racial amity."

Alumni of Hirsch High to Name Staff Tomorrow

Officers of the Hirsch High school alumni will be elected at the annual business meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 76th street and Ingleside avenue. Present officers are: Keith Landers, president; Vivian Cherne, vice president; Catherine McCrohan, treasurer; Lou Jean Coleman, recording secretary, and Mildred Nelson, corresponding secretary. P. H. Hahn is the sponsor.

Spring Feverish

Skipping gaily hither and yon, Angelo Charkas, 7134 Yates avenue, gave his impression of "A Fantasy of Spring from the Mountains of Albania" at the third annual buffet ball of the Wrigley Building restaurant employes recently in the restaurant. His masterful performance assisted in proving the program "entertainment that's different," as it was billed.

OAKLAND GROUP TO CELEBRATE 26TH BIRTHDAY

Dinner-Dance Is Listed for Tomorrow.

The Oakland Business Men's association will have its 26th birthday dinner-dance tomorrow evening in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue, under the chairmanship of Richard S. Kidwell.

Richard S. Kidwell.

Edward Froderman will be master of ceremonies, and Charles L. Leindecker, the new president, will speak. Dr. William F. Slade will give the invocation.

Charge of Dancing.

C. H. Daemicke and William H. Daemicke have charge of the dancing, and Henry Herbrand of the decorations. Others on the committee on arrangements are Edwin Clement, secretary, who is responsible for reservations; Andrew G. Nelson, Miss Allie Anderson, Fred Schumann, T. P. Dee, and George M. Erkert.

Mayor Kelly, Joseph P. Geary, ward committeeman, and Ald. A. H. Cohen [4th] have been invited to be guests.

Mr. Leindecker, at a recent meeting, appointed the committee chairmen for the year who will select the personnel of their committees for approval of the chamber.

New Committee Heads.

The new heads are:

Mr. Herbrand, arts and decorations; C. M. Clarke, beaches and zoning; Mr. Kidwell, entertainment; Mr. Nelson, finance; Harry DeCosta, legislative; Norman R. Elmstrom, schools and libraries; Mr. Schumann, membership; Clarence Poffenberger, police protection.

Mr. Erkert, project; C. H. Daemicke, publicity and solicitation; Dr. Slade, recreation; George W. Fleming, street improvement, and Ernest Wilson, transportation.

Parents to Meet.

The Woodlawn Parents' club will meet at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the library of the Woodlawn Boys' club, 6344 Harper avenue.

TWO SOUTH SIDE BANKS EXPECTED TO PAY $38,000

Will Be Final Refund by Kenwood State.

The 3,800 depositors of two of the closed state banks on the south side probably will soon have another $38,000 in deposits to divide, according to State Auditor Edward J. Barrett.

His prediction accompanied new statements showing the condition of defunct savings institutions in Cook county at the close of 1939. These statements are founded principally on reports made by Charles H. Albers, general receiver for all except two of the banks.

The banks expected to make new payments are the Equitable Trust and Savings bank, which will distribute about $21,000 among 2,200 depositors, and the Kenwood State bank, whose 1,600 depositors can look forward to a final repayment of $17,000, or about 7 per cent.

Four Make Refunds.

Chatfield Trust and Savings bank, 14.7 per cent [final]; Cheltenham Trust and Savings bank, 5 per cent [final]; Industrial State bank, 10 per cent, and Lansing State bank, 9.2 per cent [final].

Here are summaries of the new statement figures for the first group of south side banks, with the receivers best estimates of the amounts remaining for the depositors.

BINGA STATE BANK—Total receipts, $708,171. Paid on prior claims, $77,097. Paid depositors, $295,553 or 27.5 per cent. Costs: receivers, $23,835; legal, $44,352; clerical, $71,973; interest, $488; advanced to protect assets, $175,232, with $190,740 refunded. Cash, $19,657, none of it available for the debt to depositors. The payout may go to 35 per cent.

CALUMET CITY STATE BANK—Total receipts, $224,440. Paid on prior claims, $10,955. Paid depositors, $64,298 or 20 per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,972; legal, $19,183; clerical, $39,184; interest, $1,365; advanced to protect assets, $76,247, with $77,677 refunded. Cash, $9,232. Estimates indicate only a small final repayment.

CHATFIELD TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $236,934. Paid on prior claims, $16,587. Paid depositors, $118,197, or 47.5 per cent. Costs: receivers, $2,199; legal, $7,351; clerical, $26,035; interest, $489; advanced to protect assets, $18,690, with $18,690 refunded. Cash, $47,384, none of it available to make new repayments to depositors.

CHATHAM STATE BANK—Total receipts, $618,527. Paid on prior claims, $212,412. Paid depositors, $135,219 or 15 per cent. Costs: receivers, $8,441; legal, $45,861; clerical, $66,395; interest, $1,483; advanced to protect assets, $119,020, with $107,442 refunded. Cash, $29,687. Only a small additional return is indicated.

CHELTENHAM TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $371,523. Paid on prior claims, $16,295. Paid depositors, $223,088 or 83 per cent. Costs: receivers, $8,357; legal, $21,430; clerical, $27,538; interest, none; advanced to protect assets, $74,812, with $68,457 refunded. Cash, none. The December quarter repayment was the final one.

COTTAGE GROVE STATE BANK—Total receipts, $1,203,398. Paid on prior claims, $651,502. Paid depositors, $47,323 or 5 per cent. Costs: receivers, $5,193; legal, $40,698; clerical, $70,258; interest, $45,777; advanced to protect assets, $304,015, with $265,667 refunded. Cash, $38,628, none of it earmarked for the debt to depositors. The present percentage may be duplicated or bettered.

EQUITABLE TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $449,809. Paid on prior claims, $166,099. Paid depositors, $126,459 or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,656; legal, $16,100; clerical, $54,268; interest, $2,324; advanced to protect assets, $39,494, with $34,845 refunded. Cash, $38,406. A total payout of 40 per cent is regarded as a possibility.

INDUSTRIAL STATE BANK—Total receipts, $247,647. Paid on prior claims, $85,455. Paid depositors, $88,117 or 45 per cent. Costs: receivers, $7,654; legal, $5,048; clerical, $40,347; interest, none; advanced to protect assets, $10,885, with $11,837 refunded. Cash, $10,139. The payout may be increased by 5 per cent or more.

KENWOOD STATE BANK—Total receipts, $382,830. Paid on prior claims, $119,892. Paid depositors, $186,970 or 68 per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,690; legal, $11,718; clerical, $39,495; interest, $3,435; advanced to protect assets, $22,757, with $17,772 refunded. Cash, $11,869. The next distribution is expected to be the final one.

LANSING STATE BANK—Total receipts, $362,365. Paid on prior claims, $72,670. Paid depositors, $166,096 or 54.2 per cent. Costs: receivers, $7,743; legal, $18,678; clerical, $42,189; interest, $922; advanced to protect assets, $54,063, with $54,063 refunded. Cash, none. The recent disbursement was the final one.

LINCOLN STATE BANK—Total receipts, $395,930. Paid on prior claims, $184,905. Paid depositors, $33,148 or 4 per cent. Costs: receivers, $10,107; legal, $28,485; clerical, $56,698; interest, $15,822; advanced to protect assets, $622,006, with $592,856 refunded. Cash, $19,207, none of it applicable to the debt to depositors, who can expect little if anything more.

Similar figures for the remaining south side banks will be published in these columns at an early date.

CHILDREN TEST OWN TEXTBOOK ON DEMOCRACY

Their Reactions Assist Author in Work.

Train the youth and you train the nation. Hitler and Mussolini have found this a valuable principle in establishing their governments. Perpetuating American democracy on the same theory is the goal of a group of educators who have just seen the first edition of their handiwork on this project—a series of seven democracy readers.

The readers, for the primary and first six grades, are edited by Prudence Cutright, assistant superintendent of schools, Minneapolis, Minn., and W. W. Charters, head of the bureau of educational research, Ohio State university. Among the six authors is one Chicagoan, Miss Helen Brindl, former principal of Avondale school, 2945 North Sawyer avenue, who recently took up the same duties at Bret Harte school, 1554 East 56th street.

Show Good in Democracy.

Miss Brindl is the author of Book 4 for the third grade, entitled "Your Land and Mine." Explaining the purpose of the series, Miss Brindl remarked that the committee believes that democracy should be taught, not just accepted.

"Since a democracy thrives on criticism," she said, "grownups discuss how a democracy can be improved, thereby parading its bad points. Children, hearing only criticism, may gradually decide that it is all wrong.

"We want to point out the good elements in a democracy, so that children will not accept them with indifference or treat them with negligence," she added. Her last two statements were quoted directly from the preface for teachers which elaborates on the purpose of the books.

To present the theme graphically, Miss Brindl uses seven chapters to relate the experiences of Ruth and John Brown. Thru their conversations with their parents, the young reader sees the social, cultural and industrial progress of America.

Cites Famous Figures.

For instance, in the first chapter entitled, "Good Workers Help our Country," Father tells Ruth and John stories about Daniel and Rebecca Boone, Steinmetz, Pulaski, Kosciusko, Von Steuben, Alexander Graham Bell, and Ernestine Schumann-Heink. These stories illustrate many ideals of democracy, including respect for the right of private property, freedom of religion, economic and social security, the right of free discussion, active participation in government, the right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, the fundamental and social virtues, freedom of opportunity, universal edcuation, and social coöperation.

Before selecting these particular 243 pages of text, the author read or told three times as many stories to her "testing" group of nieces and nephews. Sheila Walsh, 8 years old, was the youngest to offer her approval or indifference and her 12 year old cousin, Charles Gilles, was the oldest.

"If a group of children of different ages don't like the stories," explained Miss Brindl, "then a group the same age or in one class probably will not enjoy them either. I have found thru my remedial reading work in Chicago schools, that the age of a child does not indicate his reading ability."

Response of Listeners.

Sheila, an appealing little girl with a quick mind, was not likely to scorn any story. Just as soon as Miss Brindl stopped speaking, she was leaning forward asking for "more, more please." Upon request, she will politely recite the poem about a little turtle, but she turns to cousin, Dolly Albert, who also knows the poem, for the author's name, Vachel Lindsay.

Charles reluctantly joined the group to listen to third grade stories, because he is almost ready to enter junior high school, but he soon was too interested to leave.

"'Course, I can understand the stories in the sixth grade reader right off," he insisted, but when questioned, he promptly remembered the third grade story about Maria, who was sent to this country to go to school because her parents could not send her to the school they preferred in their own land.

Other Young Critics.

If the children enjoyed the stories and remembered them, then Miss Brindl knew she had a chapter for her book. Others in the group were Charles Walsh, 6 years old, John, 8, and Ned, 11, all of 6137 South Green street; Rita Bevignani, 13, 7743 South Throop street, and Rosemary Gilles, Northbrook. Dolly resides at 2130 Summerdale avenue.

Miss Brindl has written several other books for children. She was a co-author of "Chicago," published in 1932, and the "Road to Happy Town" and "Adventures in Happy Town." In addition, she was an associate editor on the Gates Reading program. She has taught every grade from first to twelfth, served as an assistant principal, worked on the remedial reading program at Steinmetz and has been principal of Avondale school since December, 1938. Her transfer to Bret Harte school was announced two weeks ago.

Young Critics of Own Lessons

With the publication of the Democracy readers, these children can read the stories they heard last summer from one of the authors, Miss Helen Brindl (left), former principal of Avondale school who has been transferred to Bret Harte school. While Miss Brindl was writing her third grade reader, "Your Land and Mine," she told the stories to her "testing" group to see if they enjoyed them. One-third of the stories which met with greatest approval were used in her final manuscript. Part of the group gathered with Miss Brindl are (left to right) Rita Bevignani, Thomas Vidak, Rosemary Gilles, and (kneeling) Dolly Albert and Sheila Walsh. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

YOUTH TO TALK OF PROBLEMS AT SO. CHICAGO 'Y'

Older Boys' Conference Is Set for Feb. 12.

Dr. E. J. Chave.

With a theme of "Personality—Youth—The Future," the fourth annual South Chicago Older Boys' conference is expected to attract 250 promising boys of high school age to the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. Monday, Feb. 12, according to Horace F. Wulf, chairman of the sponsor's committee.

Dr. E. J. Chave, professor of religious education at the University of Chicago, the principal speaker, will present his first address at the 1:15 o'clock opening assembly, preparing the boys for their discussion groups which will convene at 2:45 o'clock.

Three chief subjects have been selected for consideration. Robert C. Keenan, principal of Bowen High school, and Arthur Armantrout, superintendent of public relations at the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, will lead the discussion on "Choosing a Vocation."

Leading Other Groups.

Leaders for the other two groups will be Harvie J. Boorman, metropolitan boys' work secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., on "Best Use of Leisure Time," and Mrs. Diane I. Holzheimer, Association for Family Living, on "The Problems of Boy and Girl Relations."

From 4:30 to 6 o'clock, representatives of various professions will give individual guidance to the boys. At the dinner at 6 o'clock, reports of the discussion groups will be given, and Prof. Russell J. Greenly, Purdue university, will speak. He is chairman of trades and industrial education in the division of education and applied psychology.

Volunteer counselors who will talk to the boys alone are Frank A. Johantges, electrical engineer; John F. Brown, chief engineer; Fordyce Coburn, mechanical engineer; R. B. Chamberlain, chief chemist; James A. Ahlberg, auditor; Carl A. Channon, business manager; Felix M. Buoscio, attorney; Dr. S. J. Mintek, physician; Dr. L. D. Smith, physician; B. H. Boerner, social worker.

Others Lending Counsel.

E. A. Rosinbum, physical director; C. A. Hansen, building trades worker; J. C. Holt, superintendent of safety and labor; W. H. Collins, teacher; Lieut. Arthur F. Patten, policeman; Mr. Wulf, editor; William T. Rowe, Y. M. C. A. secretary; Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]; E. P. Gissenaas, vocational adviser, and George Tormoehlen, department store official.

Boy officers of this fourth annual conference are Eric Erickson, president; Vic Mintek, vice president; Greg Streb, secretary; Alex Cattanach, treasurer; Sterling Nilsson, chairman of the promotion committee; Gene Nowacki and Milton Blumenthal, co-chairmen of the publicity committee; Andrew Polarek, chairman of the arrangements committee; Gordon Clarke, chairman of the reception committee; Louis Erdelyan, registration committee, and Robert Thompson, records committee.

—DuSable—

Brevet commissions entitling them to honorary rank in the organized reserves were presented to nine graduating cadet officers in the R. O. T. C. regiment at Du Sable High school recently. The awards were given by C. C. Willard, principal, during the graduating ceremonies in the auditorium. They were given to Lieut. Col. Morris Proffitt, Maj. Alfred Cannon, Maj. William Whitfield, Maj. Charles Flowers, Capt. Albert Logan, Capt. Lawrence Carroll, First Lieutenant James Tillman, First Lieutenant Lionel Jordan, and First Lieutenant James Brooks.

Aspire to Be Cadets

TILDEN CADETS SERVE AS FIRE GUARDS IN DRILL

Boys in Detail Named for Semester.

First Lieutenant Russell Pearson has been selected to head the fire guards at Tilden Tech this semester by Staff Sergeant Michael J. Moore, military instructor. The organization, which is made up of R. O. T. C. cadets, supervises the exodus of students during fire drills.

Lieut. Pearson is assisted by Second Lieutenant Robert Szyman, assistant marshal; Capt. Eugene Stark, general supervisor; First Lieutenant Robert C. Johnson, door supervisor; Second Lieutenant William Deeley, floor supervisor, and Sergt. Harry J. Delfs, clerk.

HYDE PARK HIGH WEEKLY NOTES STAFF CHANGES

Following the graduation of four staff members, Miss Helen R. Gallagher, sponsor, recently announced the new appointees for the Hyde Park Weekly, student publication of Hyde Park High school, who began their activities last week.

Jeanne Malstrom again serves as editor in chief, but Helen Biederman takes the position of makeup editor, replacing Margaret Shiu, one of the outgoing seniors. Rita Reichel and Jordon Seskind continue as news editors, and Pat Henderson and Sheldon Sosna will edit the feature pages. Elaine Light has charge of columns. Charles Goldenberg and Don Levy are classed as sports editors, and Lillian Pobersky and Louan Sutton as copy editors.

John Coulter retains his position as assignment editor. Ilse Heilbron and Miriam Klinenberg are the newly appointed public relations editors. The advertising manager is Gwendolyn Sherman, and Eleanor Suloway again is business manager. Francine Felsenthal remains as staff artist. The other three members who received their diplomas are Louise Madden, feature editor; Shirley Goldman, advertising manager, and Ethel Greenberg, circulation secretary.

HOME SCIENCE CLUB TO HAVE VARIED PROGRAM

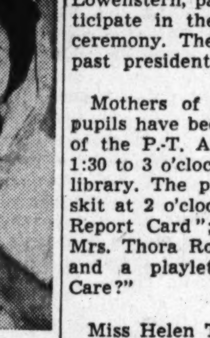
Because the program is crowded, the Hyde Park Household Science club of the Illinois Farmers' institute will begin its meeting at 9:45 a. m., earlier than usual, Friday in the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A.

Talks by specialists are scheduled for the morning session. These include Mrs. H. M. Carlson, 4847 Racine avenue, on "Cosmetics," and Mrs. D. E. Mitchell, 8451 Seeley avenue, on "Taking the Bunk Out of Advertising." Mrs. Frank E. Staley, 9051 Loomis street, will show a film, "The Blind Spot of Science."

After lunch a sound slide lecture illustrating "Homemaking Around the World" will be presented. Then the first 50 who register from 12 to 1 o'clock will go on a conducted tour to view the George F. Harding collection at 4853 Lake Park avenue. This registration will be necessary because museum officials limit the number of guests. All interested in homemaking and consumer research have been invited to attend these Friday sessions.

SCHOLARSHIP STUDENT IN ORIENT TO SPEAK AT WABASH 'Y' TEA

The Junior Hostess group of the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., with the coöperation of the women's committee will present Miss Elizabeth Ann McCree at a tea this afternoon in the "Y." As one of the two girls who studied in the Orient on the Juliette Derricotte memorial scholarship, she will tell about her experiences in India, Egypt, China, and Hawaii.



Elizabeth Ann McCree.

The scholarship fund was established by friends of Miss Derricotte, the first Negro dean of women at Fisk university, to send two American Negro college girls to the orient to study. A graduate of McCosh Elementary school, 6543 Champlain avenue, Miss McCree finished high school in Boston and is now a senior at Fisk university.

The Junior Hostesses will be assisted by 15 young people's groups of the community. These and their presidents are: The Centaurs, Jack Casey; The Duces, William Rhine; El Capitans, Macio Ward; Imperial Cossacks, Frank Anglin; Maidens of Lockinvar, Rachel Mitchell; Iota Chi Mu, Sybil Brown; Nacremas; Les Dauze Etolies; Orchidettes, Sarah Marshall; Chaleydones, Jean Tyler; T. I. D., Rosalie Hartfield; Quadranettes, Emma Anderson; Delta Sigma Theta, Mrs. Hazel Anthony; Alpha Kappa Alpha, Dorothy Giles; and Arcana Celestia, De Lois Hill.

Sinai Forum to Hear Talk on Nationalism in Europe

Prof. William McGovern, Northwestern university, will speak on "Nationality and Nationalism in Europe—What Might Happen After the War" for the regular forum lecture at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night in Sinai temple, 4600 South Park way. Recognized as an authority in the field of politics, Prof. McGovern is a world traveler and author of many volumes.

HYDE PARK P.-T. TO CELEBRATE FOUNDERS' DAY

All Past Presidents on Invitation List.

Hyde Park High school P.-T. A. will celebrate founders' day at 2 o'clock Thursday in room 129, and all past presidents have been invited to attend by Mrs. Scott V. Eaton, 6115 Greenwood avenue, present head.

Miss Frances Swain, head of the department of home economics for the board of education, will speak, and girls of the school will demonstrate the effectiveness of her work. Miss Helen Kriewitz and Miss Lyle Highley will be the teachers in charge.

"Family Companionship" will be the topic of H. D. Edgren, assistant professor of physical education at George Williams college, for the O'Keeffe P.-T. A. at 1:15 o'clock Friday in the school auditorium, as the organization celebrates founders' day and its 15th anniversary. A social hour is planned also.

Instead of the usual formal program of committee reports and an address by a speaker, Kozminski P.-T. A. will have two guest artists for its founders' day at 1:15 o'clock Friday in the school assembly hall. Ann Birk Kuper will give a dramatic interpretation of "The American Way," and Severin Saphir, young member of the Chicago Civic orchestra, will play a group of violin solos.

Mrs. Charles Wren and Mrs. Milton Lowenstern, past presidents, will participate in the cake candle lighting ceremony. The reception will honor past presidents, faculty, and guests.

Mothers of all Wadsworth school pupils have been invited to be guests of the P.-T. A. board at a tea from 1:30 to 3 o'clock Friday in the school library. The program will include a skit at 2 o'clock, entitled "The New Report Card"; musical numbers by Mrs. Thora Rollins, music chairman, and a playlet, "Why Should We Care?"

Miss Helen Thurston will tell how her hobby became her profession and how she makes her own marionettes at the hobbies meeting of the Parkside P.-T. A. parent education group at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday in the school.

The Ray school child study group will hear Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall discuss "What It Means to Live in America and the Influence That Democracy Can Create in Establishing Better Family Relationship" at 1:30 o'clock Thursday in the school.

Mrs. George Bone will review "The Eagles Gather," by Taylor Caldwell, for the book review club of the Arthur Dixon P.-T. A. at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the school, 8306 St. Lawrence avenue. Mrs. Ralph Brock, chairman, has invited all members and friends to attend.

The women elected to serve on the nominating committee of the association are Mrs. Brock, chairman; Mrs. Ross Clarke, Mrs. J. E. Day, Mrs. A. T. Olsen, and Mrs. J. E. Payne.

Revere school children will begin the sale of tickets this week for the annual movie benefit of the P.-T. A., Feb. 12 and 13, in the Jackson Park theater. The pictures will be "Secrets of Dr. Kildare" and "Our Neighbors, the Carters."

Engaged to Wed

The engagement of Miss Hinita Lewitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lewitz, 2024 East 72d street, to Yale Rodkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Rodkin, 1965 East 72d street, was announced recently by her parents. No date has been set for the wedding.

JUNIOR WOMEN TO STUDY BUDGET PLAN FOR HOME

Park Manor Unit Will Meet Tuesday.

Knowing that the way to a man's heart these days is thru a budget, members of the Park Manor Junior Woman's club will prepare themselves for domestic harmony Tuesday evening at a meeting in the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 Union avenue. "Economics in the Home" will be the theme of the evening.

Mrs. Wm. F. McCoy.

Miss Madeline Palucci, the speaker, will discuss "Meal Planning." Mrs. William F. McCoy, American home chairman, will be in charge of the program. Mrs. Bolton A. Dixner will conduct a business meeting.

Chesterfield Juniors.

Members of the club will be hostesses to their mothers at a party tomorrow evening in the Broadview hotel, 5540 Hyde Park boulevard. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock after which a short business session will be conducted by the president, Miss Margaret Geary. Bridge will be played the remainder of the evening.

West Pullman Juniors.

A "Little Women" Valentine party will be held by the club for members of the Aiokaya Campfire Girls Monday evening, Feb. 12, in West Pullman park fieldhouse, 123d street and Stewart avenue. The social committee in charge of arrangements is composed of Miss Lois Harper, chairman; Miss Marjorie Daus, Miss Ruth Feldman, Mrs. Margellan Knapp and Mrs. Ruth Peterson.

JEWISH GROUPS ARE TO ATTEND JOINT MEETING

Dr. Melchior Palyi Will Deliver Address.

All south side men's clubs have been invited to attend a joint meeting at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night in Rodfei Zedek synagogue, 1022 East 54th place, under the auspices of the Rodfei Zedek Men's club, headed by Bernard Jadwin. Dr. Melchoir Palyi will speak on "The Prospect for 1940—War or Peace."

Bernard Jadwin.

Preceding the lecture, the Halevi choir of 50 voices, directed by Hyman Reznick, will present a musical program. Dr. Palyi, an American citizen born in Hungary, was economist for the Deutsche bank in Berlin, the largest continental banking institution, and a member of the faculty of the Universities of Munich, Goettingen, Kiel, and the Graduate School of Commerce in Berlin.

Rabbi Benjamin Groner, graduate of the Hebrew Theological college and a member of the bar, will speak on "This Business of Being a Jew" for the Jewish Men's club of Hyde Park at its 7 o'clock dinner meeting tomorrow evening in the Hotel Windermere East. A musical program has been arranged also, and reports will be made on plans for the fifth annual dance, March 3, in the Hotel Shoreland. Bernard Goodman, the president, will preside.

Rabbi Benjamin Groner.

South Side lodge of B'nai B'rith will sponsor its winter quarter series of courses from 7:45 to 10:15 o'clock Thursday nights, beginning this week, in the K. A. M. community house, 50th street and Drexel boulevard. Subjects and the instructors will be:

International conflicts, Prof. T. P. Sinha, graduate of Geneva, Oxford, and Harvard universities; pyschological analysis of marriage, Dr. Rudolph Dreikurs, graduate of the University of Vienna and formerly associated with Wagner-Jauregg, Nobel prize winner.

Music appreciation, Morton Kestin, graduate of the University of Chicago and associated with the department of music; survey of Jewish literature, Dr. Eliezer Ehrmann, graduate of the University of Berlin and now a member of Chicago's board of Jewish education; chess, Solomon R. Friedman, state champion.

South side chapter, No. 64, Aleph Zadik Aleph, will sponsor its fifth annual roller skating party at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the White City roller rink.

Rabbi Morton M. Berman will review Dr. A. L. Sachar's book, "Sufferance Is the Badge," for the sisterhood of the South Side Hebrew congregation at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the social hall, 74th street and Chappel avenue. Tea and social hour will follow. Mrs. Albert Weisman, 6811 Clyde avenue, is the program chairman, and Mrs. Paul Volk, 6852 Merrill avenue, is the president.

PIANIST AND SOPRANO JOIN IN FLOSSMOOR RECITAL TUESDAY

Albert J. Pugner of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE staff will give his second annual Shrove Tuesday piano recital under auspices of St. John's Women's auxiliary, Flossmoor, this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Law, at Flossmoor. He will be assisted by the young Chicago soprano, Virginia Parker. Among Miss Parker's numbers will be "Air of Asteria," by Gluck, and Tschaikowsky's "None but the Lonely Heart." Both young artists have been praised by many critics. Pugner's difficult program includes works of Chopin, Arditti, Bachelet, and MacDowell.

Miss Virginia Parker.

TOWN AND COUNTRY BREAKFAST
—Every Sunday from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M.—85c

Such a tempting and wide variety of breakfast fruits and entrees to choose from that you'll linger in making your selections—then linger longer to enjoy your breakfast treat. There will be all the standard favorite dishes—but more so many superb, delicious Shoreland "Specials" such as:—

Little Thin Wheat Cakes, Hot Maple Syrup, with Jones Farm Sausage, Bacon or Hickory Smoked Ham.

Golden Brown Cream Waffles, Hot Maple Syrup, with Jones Farm Sausage, Bacon or Hickory Smoked Ham—Waffles the way you like 'em and the pig product so perfect that you're mighty glad Mrs. Jones didn't keep it down on the farm.

Chicken Livers, Parisienne on French Toast—A combination hard to beat—First think of fresh young livers delicately browned—then picture them piled on the most beautiful French Toast—a double treat.

—And many, many more!

We know you'll find the Town and Country Breakfast another outstanding SHORELAND feature.

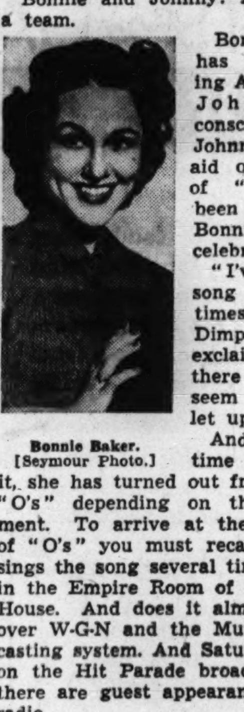
BONNIE IS HAPPY TO GO ON SINGING O'S BY MILLIONS

Singer's Philosophy: Have a Lot of Fun.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bonnie and Johnny! Now there's a team.



Bonnie Baker.
[Seymour Photo.]

Bonnie Baker has been making America, "O, Johnny, O!" conscious. And Johnny, with the aid of an army of "O's" has been making Bonnie Baker a celebrity.

"I've sung the song a million times, I bet," Dimpled Bonnie exclaims. "And there doesn't seem to be any let up."

And for every time she's sung it, she has turned out from 9 to 21 "O's" depending on the arrangement. To arrive at these millions of "O's" you must recall that she sings the song several times nightly in the Empire Room of the Palmer House. And does it almost nightly over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. And Saturday nights on the Hit Parade broadcast. Then there are guest appearances on the radio.

Mililons of Bonnie's "O's."

Besides, more than half a million of "O, Johnny" records have been sold. And in each of these there is a minimum of 21 "O's." All over the country jitterbugs are pushing nickels into groan boxes just as fast as they can to hear those unending melting "O's" pour forth. Almost 350,000 copies of sheet music have been sold. So when you add to Bonnie's "O's" those of a myriad imitators you get a figure comparable to the national debt.

Today fame and fortune are Wee Bonnie's. She takes it all calmly. She's unlike a lot of celebrities. She can't understand her popularity, for one thing. Everything just happened, she says. No credit belongs to her. All of that should go to Orrin Tucker, her boss, she says.

"I owe everything that's happened to Orrin," she says. "He taught me all I know about showmanship; showed me how to use my voice to best advantage. Coached me in every song I've sung. The whole 'O, Johnny' idea was his."

It all started when they were playing an engagement at the Palmer House last year. The floor show had an old fashioned setting. Tucker wanted a song of earlier days for Bonnie to sing in it. One day he started humming a tune he had heard as a kid in Wheaton. It was "O, Johnny" which Abe Olman, a Chicagoan, wrote back in the war year of 1917. That was 23 years ago.

Records Started It Rolling.

Tucker had a time finding a copy of "O, Johnny." Finally he located one in a small shop. The song went over well at the Palmer House. But it wasn't until about six months ago when they recorded it that it started clicking in a big way.

"We got the surprise of our lives," says Bonnie. "The piece caught on and hung like fly paper. And you know the rest."

How does Bonnie explain the craze? She doesn't. Maybe it's because the tune is new to the younger generation. But no, that wouldn't keep it going so long. The little girl way she does it? Or possibly the nursery rhyme effect? [Even two year olds like it, you know.] Bonnie is besieged by mammas and papas every night who tell her how their kids go for it.

Cute Is Word for Bonnie.

"It's so cute," exclaims Bonnie. "Mothers and fathers come in and have a good time, while maybe the kids are listening at home on the radio. The youngsters hear me at home, but mamma and papa see me in person. To even up matters, they take home a menu on which I've written a little note for the kids."

Cute is the word for Bonnie's interpretation of the song, too. Whether the song made her or she made the song is a matter of speculation. But there is no doubt that people like the combination. Night after night it's a sellout. When she was ill recently for a few nights the customers set up a terrific clamor for her.

A little about Bonnie's career: While attending Mount De Sales academy in Macon, Ga., she sang for school parties. A local orchestra leader saw and signed her. When Tucker first met Bonnie in St. Louis four years ago he recognized possibilities in her pert voice. So he engaged her and she has been with him ever since.

Explains Her Philosophy.

Bonnie was born Evelyn Nelson at Orange, Tex. Her mother, Mrs. Leroy Jones travels with her. Bonnie is five feet tall, wears size four shoes; has dark brown eyes; doesn't weigh quite a hundred.

Her philosophy is simple. "Don't let anything interfere with having fun."

Busy as she is, she has a lot of fun. She enjoys her work a lot. She isn't thinking much about pictures, tho some tentative offers have been made.

"It might be nice to make a movie," she says, "but I like what I'm doing now. I think it makes people unhappy to be too ambitious."

She says she doesn't miss parties and boy friends much.

"I don't have time for such things," she says, "because of my work. Besides I have Toby to take up my leisure time."

Toby is a 9 month old fox terrier. She doesn't believe in mixing matrimony with a career. No jitterbug, she plans to settle down sometime. If she marries she will quit professional life. And tend to her crocheting. She's already made a good start at it.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet meeting of the Lincoln club of Jackson, Mich., on Thursday, Feb. 15. His address will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system, from 9 to 9:30 p. m. Col. McCormick's subject will be "The Attempt to Communize America."

Jackson, Mich., is regarded as a birthplace of the Republican party. Since this is a presidential election year the Lincoln club's meeting is of especial significance. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Allegan County building.

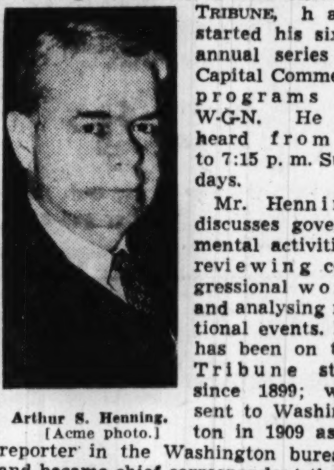
ARTHUR S. HENNING BACK ON W-G-N WITH 'CAPITAL COMMENT'

Arthur Sears Henning, chief of the Washington bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has started his sixth annual series of Capital Comment programs on W-G-N. He is heard from 7 to 7:15 p. m. Sundays.



Arthur S. Henning.

Mr. Henning discusses governmental activities, reviewing congressional work and analysing national events. He has been on the Tribune staff since 1899; was sent to Washington in 1909 as a reporter in the Washington bureau, and became chief correspondent there in 1914. Mr. Henning is an authority on national politics, having covered 18 national conventions of the two major parties beginning with those of 1904.

Scandinavian Position, Subject of N. U. Program

Trygve Hoff, Norwegian economist, and Franklin D. Scott, professor of history, will discuss the position of Scandinavia in the Russo-Finnish conflict on the Northwestern university reviewing stand over W-G-N and MBS from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m., today.

Simone Simon is going to try to project her Gallic charm over the radio today. She hasn't appeared before the microphone often. It's true her name was much on the air a season or two back—the comedians just couldn't resist cracks about it.

But when she makes her bow over W-G-N and the Mutual network this afternoon it will be only her third appearance on the air—and her first from Chicago. Mlle. Simon will be the star in today's "Fifth Row Center" program which each Sunday presents a top-notcher in the entertainment world. She will play the lead in "Model Princess," a comedy-drama by Noel B. Gerson of the W-G-N staff.

Promises an Earful.

As every moviegoer knows and customers at the Erlanger theater are finding out, Mlle. Simon is an eyeful. She is appearing there in "Three After Three," a musical comedy with tunes by Hoagy Carmichael. And Simone is determined that radio listeners shall have an earful, too!

While she has had limited experience on the air, Mlle. Simon will draw inspiration from the rôle she is to portray: a photographer's model who takes the part of a foreign princess, falling in love with an American—with ensuing complications. For at pictorial performing Simone is good—extra good. Her little-girl cuteness, her soft beguilements, her French flirtaceousness all register well on the eye. Since television is not yet here, listeners will have to get along without that.

But she has a fetching voice, too. An intriguing accent and a saucy, pert personality which should be well absorbed and purveyed by the microphone.

Her Outside Interests.

Rehearsals in New York for "Three After Three" have kept her so busy, she said the other day between matinée and evening performances, that she hasn't had time for any recreation.

When she has leisure time, she said, she likes nothing better than to play the piano—and perhaps sing a little. She does a little warbling in "Three After Three." She doesn't go for sports much. The extent of her exercises at present, she said, is writing an occasional letter! She loves picture making and expects sometime to go back to Hollywood.

"In Three After Three" she is costarred with Mary Brian and Mitzi Green. They, too, are to be presented in special W-G-N and Mutual broadcasts. Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will provide the musical portion of today's broadcast. Blair Walliser will be the director.

"Fifth Row Center" is one of W-G-N's innovations in bringing to listeners the best in all fields of entertainment. L. W.

Santa Claus and radio's "Little Orphan Annie" get more letters every year from young children thruout the United States than do any other personalities, according to a survey made last week. Santa ranks first, with little red-headed Annie a close second.

The adventures of Annie are heard over the Mutual Broadcasting system daily, Mondays thru Fridays, from 5:45 to 6 p. m. The program is aired over W-G-N and 83 other stations, the largest network hook-up for a daytime script program.

An average of close to one million children have joined the club which Orphan Annie sponsors every year for the last seven years. In addition, Annie receives literally tens of thousands of letters from her youthful admirers every year.

STORM BULL TO PLAY ON W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Young Pianist to Offer Grieg Concerto.

Storm Bull, 26 year old Chicago born pianist, will be the guest star on the Pageant of Melody, to be conducted by Henry Weber from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Bull, whose grandfathers were nephews of Ole Bull, famous Norwegian violinist, and first cousins of Edvard Grieg, Norwegian composer, will play Grieg's Piano Concerto in A minor.

Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, the octet, and the concert orchestra under the direction of Mr. Weber will be featured in the program with Mr. Bull. Baggiore will sing "Dei Miei Bollenti Spiriti," from Verdi's "La Traviata," and will join the octet in "O Promise Me," by Reginald De Koven, and "I Hear You Calling Me," by Charles Marshall.

The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture" by Felix Mendelssohn and "Sipapu," by Henry Hadley.

Made His Debut at 15.

Storm Bull made his debut at the age of 15 in Oslo, Norway. He has appeared in a series of concerts abroad, followed by engagements in the United States and Canada, both as soloist with orchestra and in recital.

The Concert Revue, directed by Mr. Weber, usually heard at 9;30 p. m., will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. Thursday this week only because of program changes. Kathryn Witwer, soprano, will be heard with the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Miss Witwer to Sing.

For her solo Miss Witwer will sing the love song, "Ich Liebe Dich," by Edvard Grieg, and "Bolero," by Georges Bizet.

"O Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," by Serge Rachmaninoff, will be sung by Miss Witwer, with Michael Wilkomirski playing the violin obbligato and Mr. Weber playing the piano.

Other numbers will include "Abu Hassan Overture," by Von Weber; "Prelude to Act I" and "Oriental Dance," from Granville Bantock's "Judith Suite," and a string arrangement of Warlock's "Serenade."

Mutual System Revises Texas Stations' Lineup

Six leading radio stations in Texas, covering over 50 per cent of radio homes in the state, have affiliated with the Mutual network on a revised basis. Each of these stations is independently allied with Mutual. Heretofore they were connected thru the facilities of the Texas State Network.

The stations are: WRR, Dallas; KFJZ, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KABC, San Antonio; KNOW, Austin; WACO, Waco. Service will be continued to six other Texas stations: KRBC, Abilene; KBST, Big Spring; KGKL, San Angelo; KRRV, Sherman; KTEM, Temple; KCMC, Texarkana.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

MORNING ROOM RETURNS TODAY IN MODERN NOOK

Feature of Home Built in Glenview.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The "morning room" of half a century ago is now definitely with us again; so much so that in homes without number it almost rates as "standard equipment."

Today, however, instead of belonging to very large and impressive homes, and being quite an impressive feature itself, it has taken on a delightful informality, and is found in kitchens that are equally informal and simple.

There is a handsome kitchen in a new home in Glenview which has just such a "morning room." This room, built into the kitchen proper, could be called a "breakfast booth," since it is composed of table and benches, and the back of one bench makes possible an additional working surface in the kitchen at right angles to the sink.

A very gay little breakfast booth it is, too, brought alive by the yellow painted walls and blue painted ceiling. And a very important spot in the home. For the family doesn't live that doesn't get a lift forward on the right foot in the early morning when the day is started in such a corner.

Pantry Can Be Converted.

Possibilities for acquiring such a breakfast corner are almost as numerous as the wealth of materials with which it can be finished. There are so many plans to work from and so many finishes.

Such a room can be a part of the kitchen proper, perhaps even set right down in it, and only a few steps away from the sink and range, cupboards and refrigerator. Or again it may be merely an extension of some cabinet top center, or a breakfast booth, built into the kitchen.

If large modernization is in order, it may be that an oversized pantry can do a right about face and emerge as a morning room, all on its own. Or if one owns an over large kitchen it can be divide dby a low, attractive partition, and a breakfast nook have some space entirely to itself.

With the walls you can do what you like. The new paints are beautiful, and paint and plaster are an inexpensive finish. You can style your floor and be as gay as you please, and dress up your windows to suit your taste.

Has Venetian Blinds.

In this Glenview home there are Venetian blinds at the kitchen and "morning room" windows. Under one large window there is a cabinet type sink, porcelain enamel on cast iron. At the left of this sink is the "morning room"; at the right the range. The floor is linoleum with a cream color base, in mottled pattern and shades of tan and browns and red.

Both a kitchen and a "morning room" should be bathed in light where this is possible. With the market abounding in so many fascinating materials for walls and ceiling and floors, it is important to keep in mind that the colors on those walls and ceilings will have an effect on how much light you get in the rooms. For ceilings and walls can intensify light or absorb it. Careful tests have been made of different shades and what they will do for a room.

How Colors Reflect.

White, of course, reflects more of the total available color light than any other color. It reflects some 80 per cent of all the light that touches it! Cream and light ivory come next, reflecting some 71 per cent. Then there's apricot beige, reflecting 66 per cent; lemon yellow, 65 per cent; deep ivory, 59 per cent; light buff, 56 per cent; peach and salmon, 53 per cent, and pale green, 51 per cent.

Another point to which attention is being given in kitchen treatment is the muffling of kitchen noises by ceiling finishes. There are ceiling "tiles" which can be applied to new or old ceilings. In reality, these tiles are squares of acoustic material.

Dixie Wedding Trip

Miss Clara Belle McKinlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. McKinlay, 7817 Essex avenue, and Clark A. Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Bailey, 10812 Longwood drive, were married recently in the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. Harold L. Bowman officiating. After a reception in the Quadrangle club of the University of Chicago, they left on a wedding trip to the south. Both are graduates of the University of Illinois, where she was affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and he was a Phi Delta Theta.

START CAMPAIGN FOR BRYN MAWR PLAYGROUND

13 Groups to Assist in Filing Petitions.

Representatives of 13 churches and civic organizations last week offered coöperation in a campaign initiated by the South Bryn Mawr Improvement association to obtain a playground at 76th street and Jeffery avenue. Elmer J. Walsh, 1820 East 79th street is chairman of the association's park and playground committee.

Seeking 5,000 signatures of property owners and residents favoring the proposal, members of the improvement group are circulating petitions in the community.

To gain their support and to develop further plans, representatives of parent-teacher associations and other neighborhood groups have been invited to a meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night, Feb. 12, at 1820 East 79th street.

A soft ball diamond and a small fieldhouse with a branch of the public library are proposed for the new park, which would cover the area bounded by 76th and 77th street and Jeffery and Euclid avenues, according to Mr. Walsh.

Those who approved the campaign at the session were the Rev. John M. Spaid, Reformation Lutheran church; James Bridge, South Shore Y. M. C. A.; Thomas J. Sullivan, South Shore Junior Chamber of Commerce; the Rev. Leman Olsenius, St. Luke's Lutheran church; G. R. Bullock, Southfield Community church; J. Leslie Rosenblum, South Shore Lions club and South Shore Chamber of Commerce; Joseph Fienberg, South Side Hebrew congregation; David Pareira, South Central Bryn Mawr association; W. J. Barnes, South Highland Neighborhood club; Mrs. Hazel Bodeman, South Bryn Mawr Wednesday club; Carl Seuring, East 79th Street Business Men's association, and the Rev. Lucius Delire, Our Lady of Peace church.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

LENTEN VOCABULARY.

Lent: Anglo Saxon word for spring. Old English, Lencten; French, Carême; Italian, Quaresima; Spanish, Cuaresma. [These refer to the 40 days.] Greek, likewise 40, or Tessaracost—like Pentecost, 50 days after Easter—in earlier days, nowadays its Nesteia, the fast. Latin, Quadragesima. German, Lenz. Lent first mentioned in Christian history in fifth canon of council of Nicea, 325 A. D. under name of Tessaracost.

Shrove Tuesday. Day before Ash Wednesday. Hearing confession before Lent. To shrive is to hear a confession. Also called Mardi Gras—French for Fat Tuesday—when meat can be eaten without restraint, or Carni Vale [carnivals get their name here], "Goodbye Meat!"

Ash Wednesday. Also called Quadragesima by Latins. First day of lent or 40 week days until Easter. Sundays, being "little Easters," are not days "of" Lent but "in" it. Ashes refer to traditional symbol of sorrow for sin. These generally come from burned palms of previous Palm Sunday.

Fast. Comes from Anglo Saxon Faestan, meaning, to observe [i. e., to observe abstinence from meat]. Defined by Catholic authorities as being a day in which only one full meal is allowed. Fast and abstinence is defined by Catholic authority as a day in which one full meal is allowed but forbids meat or meat broth.

Lætare Sunday, Rejoicing Sunday. The fourth Sunday in Lent. Also, Mid Lent, Refreshment Sunday, and Micarêm. In some parts of England it's Homing Sunday or Mothering Sunday when schoolboys and apprentices come home to visit.

Passion Sunday. Fifth Sunday in Lent. Penumbra of Holy Week when vicarious trial and sufferings of Christ are foreshadowed.

Palm Sunday. Sixth Sunday in Lent. Ushers in Holy week which closes with Easter E'ven at noon on Holy Saturday.

Good Friday. The day of the death of Christ on the cross.

Alfred M. Landon, former Republican presidential candidate, and Mrs. Landon will be chief guests of the first meeting of the Laymen's council of the Chicago Church federation Friday noon in the Morrison hotel. Two thousand business men have been invited to join the council, which will be affiliated with the National Protestant Laymen's commission of the International Council of Religious Education.

The Avondale Methodist church will honor three members of its Boy Scout troop next Sunday morning. Two of the boys won American Legion service awards. These are Jack Allen and Robert Karis. The third, Art Keller, has been elected mayor of the Avondale Public school.

Judge John J. Sonsteby, chief justice of the Municipal court, last week told graduates of the old Brown Public school that in all his years as chief justice no active Boy Scout had ever been arraigned in the Municipal Boys' court. The same, he said, is true of boys who are actively related to church organizations.

"Two-thirds of our nominal communicants are only marginal churchmen. Doubtless many of these are what would be called good people—moved by generous impulses, feeling at times a faint mystical hankering after a higher life and are greatly frightened when sickness or death threatens them. But scratch their beliefs and what do you find? The faith of the church? No. You find instead a pathetic farrago of sentimentality, skepticism, and superstition." [Bishop George Craig Stewart's charge to his Episcopal convention, St. Peter's church, 621 Belmont avenue.]

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 5.

Why not plan to plant nut trees in the yard for beauty and fruit? There are many suburban yards that have room for several; even one is an asset. The pignut is not large and the foliage is clean and handsome. The shagbark hickory will stand a lot of abuse and the shaggy bark is distinct. The black walnut, butternut, and the hybrid pecans and chestnuts are worth a place in any yard. But give them good care at all times.

Tuesday, Feb. 6.

Frequently grass does poorly under trees and it is desirable to use other plants. Among these are the myrtle of vinca minor and the ajuga reptans rubra [purpleleaf bugle]. The myrtle is almost evergreen and spreads rapidly. The ajuga is excellent as an edging plant and may be clipped into form. It is also a good rockery plant, but must be kept in bounds or it will take possession of the place. Plants under trees should be given fertilizer in early spring and plenty of water during periods of drouth. A good, low, spreading plant to grow in the narrow strip between the house and driveway is the goutweed [ægopodium podograria]. It does well in any soil, is a fine ground cover beneath trees or on waste ground.

Wednesday, Feb. 7.

It soon will be time to begin sowing the seed of some annuals for early planting. The seed may be ordered now and sowing begun in March. Petunias, phlox, verbena, flowering tobacco, cosmos, heliotrope, torenia, early asters, scarlet sage, and others are all started early. But remember that it is a waste of seeds to sow the seed thickly. Very fine seeds need not be covered with soil, but merely pressed into it. Large seeds should be sown in rows and covered to about three times their width.

Thursday, Feb. 8.

Don't forget the birds. Hang suet on the branches of trees and scatter chick feed where birds can reach it. Build a shelter for them out of evergreen boughs, cornstalks, or the materials that are at hand. Birds consume an endless amount of insects, but in times of stress they must be aided. Work over and paint bird houses now while outdoor activities are halted. The moisture in rooms may be increased by placing a watertight tray on top of a table or window ledge, putting sand and pebbles in it, and partially filling with water.

Friday, Feb. 9.

Potted bulbous plants are now on the market. Give flowering pot plants plenty of water and, if they are bulbous, keep them growing until the leaves turn yellow; then place in the basement, withholding water. Tulips and hyacinths can be planted in the garden next fall. Do not throw narcissi plants away, but cure the bulbs and plant out in the fall. Paper white narcissus cannot be flowered again and it is tender. Flowering azaleas also are offered; these should be given water and when out of flower kept in as cool a spot as possible.

Saturday, Feb. 10.

Have you ever noticed the size of the pots the florist uses? They seem small to the amateur, for he tends to use large pots, sometimes much larger than the plants require. Try to keep the plants in as small pots as possible, for an excess of soil and too much water may prevent the roots from getting the air they need and a saturated condition may be very injurious.

ASHLAND RATED MOST DANGEROUS OF CITY STREETS

Chicago's most dangerous street from the standpoint of traffic deaths is Ashland avenue. Forty-six persons were killed on this thorofare last year. The toll was 42 in 1938. Western avenue, with a death toll of 36 persons, ranks as the second most dangerous street.

These facts came to light last week in the findings of an annual survey of traffic deaths issued by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Pedestrians are the majority of victims in the city's traffic accidents, the report shows. Of the 46 killed on Ashland avenue 39 were pedestrians, and 22 pedestrians were among the 36 fatalities on Western avenue.

Cautions the Pedestrian.

"We have attempted to show in this annual survey of traffic deaths in Chicago the appalling rate among pedestrians," Mr. Fleming said. "Without regard as to whether the motor vehicle driver or the pedestrian is to blame, the report should make Chicago residents more traffic safety conscious."

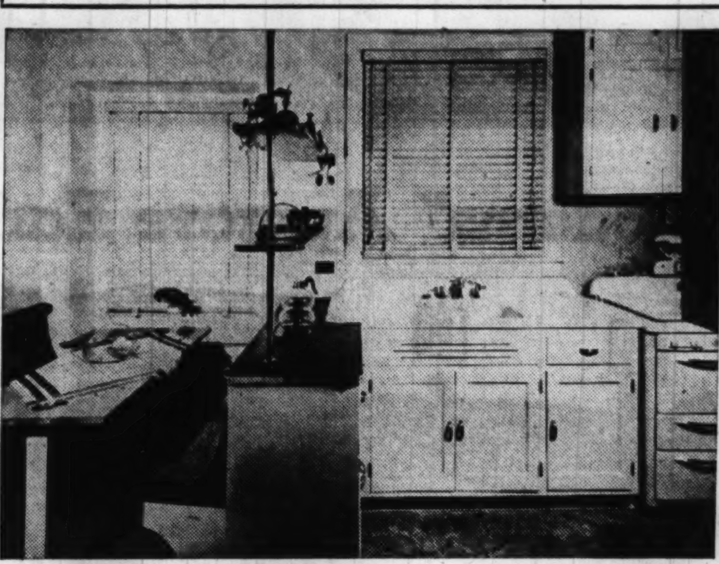
North avenue led the east and west streets with 18 deaths. In 1938 North avenue and Roosevelt road tied for the east-west death toll lead, each having 17 deaths. Last year Roosevelt road showed a decrease of six fatalities. Irving Park road went up last year on the death chart with a total of 17 deaths as compared to 10 in 1938.

13 Die on Racine.

With a death score of three in 1938, Racine avenue climbed to a total of 13 last year. Seventy-ninth street had no deaths in 1938, but in 1939 ten persons were killed in traffic accidents. The death toll on Indiana avenue rose from five in 1938 to ten last year.

Streets whose last year's death toll dropped from the previous year include Archer avenue, with nine in 1939 as against 19 in 1938; Sheridan road, with one last year as against seven in 1938; Clark street, five as compared with 10 in 1938; Damen avenue, seven against eleven in 1938; Belmont avenue, three as against seven in 1938; Division street, two as against nine; Jackson boulevard, eight as against 13, and Washington boulevard, seven against 11. Warren boulevard's 1939 toll of 12 victims remained the same as the 1938 figure.

For That Morning Meal



A kitchen in a new home in Glenview, which includes in its wise planning a "morning room," adjacent to the sink. It is a gallant little spot, all by itself, and very much alive with its yellow painted walls and blue ceiling. Its window is dressed up with Venetian blinds. And curtains have been added since this photo was taken.

Weary Find Peace.

Numerous strangers, men and women, confused in mind and fatigued in body, have lifted the old brass knocker on Fellowship house and entered to live there for years. There have been doctors from the University of Chicago, social workers, school teachers, and others who have earned their keep and found peace by working the farm, cooking meals, and acting as instructors or hostesses.

Each summer a folk school is conducted at the center for 10 selected girls and 10 selected boys between the ages of 16 and 21, and for children from 7 to 14. They come from all walks of life. The older group works on the farm or in the camp for three hours in the mornings and in the afternoons is taught handicrafts, nature lore, geological surveying, leadership, folk dancing, and is helped to formulate a natural philosophy of life.

In preparation for the future, scholarships from various colleges are obtained for those who would continue their education, and jobs are found for others.

Learn About Nature.

In addition to crafts taught by Mrs. Sanders, a University of Wisconsin graduate, and a group of master artisans, the children acquire a knowledge of nature. They know what it is to sick potato bugs off the plants, to see a sow give birth to pigs, to ride a horse, to milk a cow, and to build a dam in the creek. They learn the thrill of having a wild rabbit eat trustingly from their hands. They understand where their food comes from and the labor that is necessary to obtain it.

Winter finds the center the perfect place for hayrack rides and bob sledding, tobogganing, skating, hiking, and treasure hunt parties, all of which climax before the crackling log fire in the lodge.

"Any one may use our winter recreational facilities," says the director.

Educators and churchmen have begun to recognize the uniqueness of the foundation. Fifty to 60 churches use it annually for retreats. Dr. Charles Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, brings his prize pupils out for week-ends. The Rev. Peter J. Geraghty, pastor of the Sag Catholic church, contributes to the center and calls Sandy a "good Irishman."

All Are Welcomed.

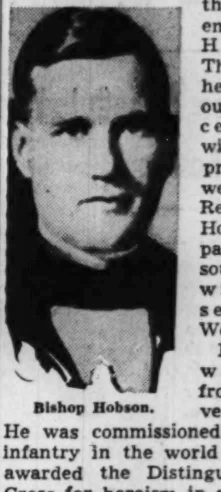
Jews, Protestants, Catholics, and agnostics gather around the log fire each Tuesday and Thursday evening for discussion groups. Married couples see their problems soften in the lamplight on Monday evenings.

Sometime in the future a small wayside Gothic chapel will stand beneath the trees on a hilltop overlooking the highway as a memorial to the lovable old man who helped make the foundation possible, Ernest G. Warner. A number of small shops will center around an ambitious craft project. A huge barn will be built to house all stock, feed, and machinery and an early American type of inn will be built as a comfortable shelter.

Sandy's house by the side of the road will have many open doors because, as he has learned, there are many who would enter.

BISHOP H. W. HOBSON TO OPEN EPISCOPAL NOONDAY SERVICES

The Episcopal Church club of Chicago will sponsor for the 44th year the noonday lenten services at the Harris theater. The services are held daily thruout the week, except Saturday, with a visiting preacher each week. The Rt. Rev. Henry Wise Hobson, Episcopal bishop of southern Ohio, will open the series on Ash Wednesday.



Bishop Hobson.

Bishop Hobson was graduated from Yale university in 1914. He was commissioned to the 356th infantry in the world war and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in action near St. Mihiel in which engagement he was twice wounded. After the armistice he returned to the seminary and in 1921 was called as rector of St. John's, Waterbury, Conn. Ten years later he was consecrated bishop, the youngest to be raised to the episcopate.

In 1938 Bishop Hobson represented the Episcopal church at the international missionary congress of Christian churches held in Madras, India.

Benefit Card Party.

St. Ambrose Mothers' club will have a benefit card party tomorrow evening in the school auditorium, 47th street and Ellis avenue.

SPIRITUAL CALL OF LENT WILL ECHO IN LOOP

Daily Rites Scheduled in Theaters.

Chicago's loop as well as the hundreds of churches of the city will rise to the spiritual call of Lent which begins in penitential ashes on Wednesday. The Erlanger and Harris theaters will open their doors each Lenten noon to worshipers, and the Grand Opera house, with its year round noonday services, will emphasize Lent's message.

Dr. Martin Anderson.

Thousands of Catholic executives and workers in the loop will go to noonday masses at Holy Name cathedral and other inner city churches. At the Harris theater the pioneer noonday service under Episcopal Church club auspices will open on Wednesday with Bishop Henry Wise Hobson of Cincinnati as the preacher. As at the Lutheran services at the Garrick, the meeting will begin at 12:10 p. m. and close at 12:30. The Lutheran services will be broadcast over station WIND.

Will Preach Wednesday.

Dr. Martin Anderson, president of the Norwegian-Danish Lutheran synod's eastern district, will be the Erlanger Ash Wednesday preacher. He will be succeeded on Thursday by the Rev. Theodore E. Matson, regional secretary of the home missions society of the Augustana synod, and on Friday by Dr. Fred W. Otterbein of North Austin United Lutheran church. There will be no Erlanger or Harris services on Saturdays.

On successive weeks during Lent the Episcopal Church club will present the following preachers: The Rev. Donald H. Wattley, of New Orleans, La.; the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Salmon, of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin of New York; the Very Rev. Roland W. Philbrook of Davenport, Ia.; the Very Rev. Austin Pardue of Buffalo, N. Y. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese will be the holy week preacher as in previous years.

The Lutheran committee has obtained representative preachers from various synods for the successive weeks. Dr. T. F. Gullixson, Minneapolis, Minn., of the Norwegian synod, will be the preacher for the week of Feb. 12. The Rev. Dr. Arthur C. Piepkorn, Cleveland, O., of the Missouri synod, will preach during the week of Feb. 23.

Other Preachers Listed.

Other weeks, successively, will feature the Rev. Franklin C. Fry, Akron, O., of the United Lutheran church; the Rev. Edgar Carlson of Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, Minn.; the Rev. Joseph Knutson, Lake Mills, Minn., Norwegian synod, and the Rev. Walter Schutte, Sewickley, Pa., of the American Lutheran church.

The Rev. Andrew Gih, Chinese evangelist, will be the principal Ash Wednesday preacher at the Grand Opera house, where services are conducted by the Christian Business Men's committee. Dr. Dan Gilbert, California religious author, will also speak. Grand Opera house services continue from 12 noon until 1 o'clock, but are divided in two parts, with a separate speaker for each.

Noonday masses will be offered at the following Catholic churches near the loop: Holy Name cathedral, North State and Superior streets; Church of the Assumption, Illinois and Orleans streets; Old St. Mary's, South Wabash avenue and 9th street, and St. Patrick's, Adams and Desplaines streets.

New York's Trinity Pastor to Talk in Orchestra Hall

Dr. Paul Scherer, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, New York City, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. His topic will be, "Hopes That Have Root." During the absence of Clifford W. Barnes, president, trustees of the club will conduct the meetings. Edward Hall Taylor and Edward K. Welles will officiate tonight. The Girls' Glee club of North Central college, Naperville, directed by Miss Mary Cook, will sing at the 7 o'clock meeting.

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO ADDRESS CARROLL FORUM NEXT SUNDAY

Archduke Felix of Austria will address the Charles Carroll forum next Sunday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House. The Rev. James A. Magner, founder and chairman, will preside. Discussing "The Reconstruction of central Europe," the archduke will outline the plan of a democratic Danubian federation as the best plan for the solution of the cultural, economic, and political problems of the Balkan states. Archduke Felix was born in Vienna in 1916, attended the University of Louvain, Belgium, and ended his military training at Wiener Neustadt, the equivalent of West Point. He fled from Austria after the late Chancellor Schuschnigg announced the postponement of the plebiscite, and is the first of the Hapsburg family to visit the United States.

Archduke Felix.

even by its closest imitator and probably never will, for the equipment and additional teachers required for this Superior Training make it impossible for others whose plan is open school room confusion.
There has never been anything like the Moler Course of Theory for in addition to their own Manual, the Moler Text Book—there are daily lectures and weekly examinations that make it practically impossible to fail at State Exams.
And there has never been anything like the wages paid MOLER GRADUATES as a reward for this splendid work, for Moler Placement Service is in touch with good money shops with Glamour Surroundings.
This being the fact, why not HIRE MOLER'S to give you this knowledge and skill that is in demand at the better wage.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

AN OPPORTUNITY SELDOM OFFERED

WHO WE ARE

Nationally known Chicago corporation, highly rated, established 35 years. Business; sales building plans for increasing sales and profit. The business is unusual. Among our clients are over 12,000 of the finest concerns in the country—Leaders in their respective industries such as: General Motors Corp., Sherwin-Williams Co., Quaker Oats Co., General Electric Co., Endicott-Johnson, etc. Due to far reaching acceptance of our plan it is necessary for us to expand our own selling force.

WHAT WE WANT

Several salesmen with wide experience in the sale of advertising, business services, sales promotion, or other lines where the "idea" is sold rather than merchandise. We want men accustomed to large earnings and have a real opportunity for them.

They should be between 30 and 45 years of age, sufficiently well educated to meet top executives on an equal footing and sell them.

The positions require little traveling. A fully protected territory, a thorough training and a liberal commission arrangement with bonus assures the men chosen far above average earnings.

If you feel you can qualify, telephone Mr. L. J. Ingram, Randolph 7515, Monday or Tuesday only, from 9 to 4, for a private personal interview. Out of town applicants Address C H 349, Tribune.

MEN OVER 45.
I want to talk with ten men over 45 who have been turned down because of their age, who are sick of promises of $100 a week and want a position where age is an asset, not a detriment. Such men can secure permanent positions with national food concern where earnings will run $20 at start on a liberal comm. and bonus arrangement, covering established routes. Apply 2220 N. Western, or 810 W. 76th-st., or 7 E. 19th-av., Gary, Ind., Mon. only.

A GRAND OPPORTUNITY for 2 salesmen who can qualify to sell macaroni, spaghetti, and egg noodle products. One to call on wholesale grocers and chains in Chicago and suburbs; the other to call on wholesale grocers, chains and work with food brokers in Illinois and surrounding states. Applicants must know buyers in these territories, otherwise please don't apply. Salary basis. ADDRESS X A 65, TRIBUNE.

REPRESENT world's largest mfr. of low priced rotary slicing machines, now introducing, amazing new model at astonishing price of $5.95. MAN WANTED TO REPRESENT A PHILADELPHIA FACTORY.
We prefer a man who has had business experience, man with a car, man who can stick to an ambitious program. The discount on our McIlvaine Balanced Heat Machine is such that you can create a permanent, live, interesting and profitable business. No investment required.
Our McIlvaine Balanced Heat Invention has proven to thousands of people this winter that even temperatures in a home can be maintained. This device maintains a temperature which doesn't vary. THOUSANDS CAN BE SOLD. Home owners who are now heating their homes with soft coal, gas or oil burners are particularly interested. It can be sold on the time payment plan over a period of one, two or three years.
Because it is wholly a creative selling job, we want a man who understands creative selling. We are interested in men living on the North Side, South Side, and West Side of Chicago, and in cities of 10,000 population or more within a radius of 200 miles of Chicago.
We'd like to hear from men qualified as merchants or business men, and we are not so much interested in your actual net worth as we are in your reputation in the community in which you are living. In other words, we would likely find it necessary to finance you to the extent of $10,000 to $20,000 and your character and integrity is what we would consider.
Our men who have followed this program have made from $4,000 to $12,000 a year.
Please write, giving qualifications and references, addressing your reply to Mr. John H. Wright, care McIlvaine Balanced Heat, 6th and Cayuga-sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

HOW TO GET
Money is not essential to begin business or to develop present business into a winner. I was living on $7 a wk. in one rm., three flights up, in city, had an idea, took it eight miles out into the country, developed it into a satisfactory business, immediately profitable; now operating after 40 years of success. New disclosures, complete, astonishing, convincing. Whatever your job, whatever your product here is news that will make dollars, happiness, contentment. No guess work, everything plainly told. Strong press and public comments: "lives up to its promise • decidedly bright • very wholesome and constructive [so says the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington] • complete surprise • highly original • unique •extraordinary • inspiring • a master hand creating." NOTE: For details write your name and address on postcard, mail it to:

TACKETT
To all associated with the building industry and to a surprising number of the general public, TACKETT and SCARSDALE are synonymous
Tackett originated SCARSDALE, named it, planned it, and developed it. All the beauty, dignity, quality, and refinement so evident in a "House built by Tackett" is also evident in SCARSDALE as a community.
The combination of a "House by Tackett" with a development like SCARSDALE offers an attraction we urge you to see
A few homes are completed and are open for you to inspect. Many more are under construction for Spring delivery.
6, 7, and 8 room houses; 1½, 2½, and 3 baths; 1 and 2 car garages. Screened porches and beautifully finished recreation rooms. Prices from $12,500. FHA financing can be arranged.
A few exceedingly desirable homesites will be made available at exceptionally attractive prices and on convenient terms to those who cannot build at present.
Drive out Northwest Highway, Route 14, to Arlington Heights. Turn left at first stoplight entering town. Five blocks to Scarsdale.

AUCTION
OF 7 FARMS (850 ACRES)
Monday, Feb. 19, '40, 10 A.M.
Sale held in the Varland Co. Show Room, Morris, Ill., seventy miles Southwest of Chicago on U. S. 6 and State Route 47. Farms will be sold in parcels or as a whole to suite the buyers. This is an opportunity to buy some of the best and highest productive land in Grundy County. These farms are located in one of the most fertile areas of the United States, right in the heart of the corn belt.
All modern facilities, well drained, convenient to schools, churches, railroads, and inexpensive transportation to markets on deep waterway. Surrounded by excellent highways. Two farms located on Kankakee river with approximately 5,000 feet of frontage. Although this isn't overflow land it is excellent crop land. Other farms, flat black farmland with no river frontage.
Easy terms: For further information contact owners.
NOTICE TO REALTORS. Any real estate broker will be paid a liberal commission for showing these farms and bringing a buyer. Said buyer to register with legal clerk, Francis P. Kelly, morning of sale.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

IT PAYS YOU TO DO BUSINESS WITH US. For many months we negotiated with a bondholders committee on a 12 apt. building which had been in court for 7 years. The result: The bondholders received a 50% settlement and our client is again in control of his building. All parties concerned are very happy. The bondholders, the owner and we too.

We lend on homes—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old; also 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment buildings, stores, garages, and factories. We also place FHA loans up to 90% of the value. We advance funds to settle estates, taxes, liens, and to redeem property. If even our top loans won't do, we will see your mortgagee or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Interest 4% and up. PEOPLES MORTGAGE CORPORATION, 1976 MILWAUKEE-AV. BRUnswick 6200. Tuesday and Thursday open till 8 p. m.

Mexico Places Restrictions on Highway Billboard Posting

BY HAL FOUST.

Mexico's regulation of roadside advertising on its national highways was applauded last week by delegates to the 37th annual convention of the American Road Builders' association held in Chicago. The provisions of the billboard laws below the Rio Grande were explained in an address by M. E. Brocho of Mexico City, manager of a national congress on street and highway safety. He listed these provisions as follows:

These regulations extend to private property adjoining the right of way of national roads, restricting and preventing the exhibition of advertisments in any region where the scenery may be injuriously affected.

Archæological zones, historical monuments, national parks, and points of rural interest are protected against advertisments.

Zones of 200 Meters.

Alongside highways and starting three kilometers from municipality limits, signs will be allowed only in zones 200 meters long. Distance from the center lines of the highway for their location is fixed at 50 meters. In straight ways of less than 5 and no more than 3 kilometers, just one zone will be allowed. [A meter is 39.37 inches.]

In the inside and outside of curves, no matter what their degree may be, there shall be no commercial signs of any kind.

No signs can be erected 150 meters from any curve, nor 150 meters on either side from a railroad crossing, road crossing, junction, or side road.

Fix Maximum Surface.

Maximum surface of a panel to be not more than 60 square meters. The frame must be steel and the whole of harmonious appearance.

Use of lights and reflectors is prohibited. Use of words similar to those of highway signs also is prohibited.

No signs, posters, panels, can be painted, hung, or structures on rocks, hillsides, or trees.

A license will be paid by advertisers annually; also individual quotas per advertisment.

Seek to Protect Landscape.

"The purpose of these rules," said Señor Bracho, "is to protect travel from unnecessary hazards and to prevent the disfigurement of the beauty and amenities of the landscape, a national asset. Advertisers themselves were finally convinced that the regulations are nonpunitive. The validity of the regulations rests on the principle that the state has the undeniable right to impose limitations to private property and activities when these have demonstrated potentialities for harm to the general welfare.

"In closing, it is only fitting to mention that the source of inspiration for this billboard crusade was one of your foremost engineers and personalities in road construction—Thomas H. MacDonald, commissioner of public roads."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Several signs indicate that the annual spring upturn in automobile sales this year will occur from 30 to 40 days earlier than usual, W. A. Blees, general sales manager of Nash Motors, told midwestern distributors of the company at a meeting in the Stevens hotel on Wednesday. Blees cited improved conditions and the good winter automobile sales as two important indicators. Normally, he explained, sales begin to soar in March and reach the season's peak in April and May. Nash sales in December and in the early part of January were about 22 per cent better than when fall sales were reaching their peak.

Curtis M. Betts, chairman of the show committee for the 17th annual Motor Salon, said yesterday that all space has been taken for the event which will be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel from Feb. 17 to 25. Several dealers wanted twice as many spaces as they took a year ago, Betts continued, which is a good omen for the success of the show.

A new booster unit for use in truck operation has been developed by the Clark Equipment company, Buchanan, Mich., over the last two years and the company states that experimental jobs are giving good accounts of themselves on the road. The commercial car department of the Chevrolet division of General Motors is coöperating in the development from a sales distribution standpoint.

The unit consists of an auxiliary engine located at the rear of the truck - tractor which automatically starts when greater power is needed for a grade. It delivers its power output to the rear axle of a 1½ ton Chevrolet truck or tractor thru a simple over-running clutch. Automatic starting, speed governing, and stopping are provided, the entire cycle of operating of the auxiliary engine being independent of the driver. The device makes available 45 additional horse power when needed. Each phase of the booster engine's operation is said to be automatic and instantaneous. The engine comes into use in low speeds. It is operated by vacuum switches.

George Marshall, Dodge employé in Detroit, has the distinction of being first driver of close to 1,250,000 automobiles. His daily task is to drive finished cars from one of the Dodge main assembly lines. For 14 years he has been doing this at the rate of about one car every 67 seconds. He has operated an average of 432 cars each working day or a total of something like 1,210,000 cars.

The public is to act as the judge of a "beauty contest" for trailer coaches which will be on view in the International Outdoor Sportsmen's show in the International amphitheater, Feb. 17 to 25, states Charles W. Glaser, in charge of the trailer section. More trailers are to be displayed than in any preceding show, Glaser announces.

MOTORIST MUST GIVE CAR CARE ON LONG JOURNEYS

Special Attention to Tires Pays Well.

BY HAL FOUST.

The following are notes from a 16 days' tour of the southland in the Tribune's road car. The trip, covering 4,500 miles, was ended last week.

In this much driving, a motorist's relations with his machine are intimate and prolonged. Unless they are good to each other, the relations are likely to become unpleasant at times. A squeak easily tolerated on trips between home and office becomes intolerable when heard hour after hour and day after day. To compensate for many hours of driving thru rain and snow, we gave our car more frequent grease jobs than the factory specifies.

Special attention to the tires pays well. There aren't many service stations which can be relied upon to inspect the rubber thoroly. We do it ourselves, while the oil is being changed or the car is being greased. It's a good idea to probe tiny cuts. We found a buried piece of glass in a front tire in St. Augustine, Fla. A week later, in St. Petersburg, we extracted an inch piece of nail buried in a rear tire. There was no puncture of the casing in either case.

For years we've carried an extra set of car keys secreted in the car where they can be reached in an emergency without opening the doors. We had heard of owners inconvenienced by the loss of their keys. We didn't consider the great risk of any serious inconvenience, but it was so easy to take precautions that we did.

Driving back from Key West, we found a victim of this accident—the loss of his keys. A man and woman in an Ohio car parked beside the road flagged us to a stop. They were marooned on a mosquito infested islet of a mangrove swamp. While looking for shells on the beach, something had happened to their car keys.

The stalled machine couldn't be towed. It's steering was locked with its ignition. The doors of their car were unlocked and the occupants didn't want to risk a loss of baggage during a ride to town. We left them there awaiting a tow truck that could hoist the front end and carry them to town and to a locksmith.

About once a year, after several days alone on the road, we weaken to a temptation to give a lift to a hitchhiker. The experiences have been unpleasant.

On U. S. 1 near the Atlantic shores in Florida we saw walking the road ahead a man with a sea-going cap on his head, a sea-going jacket under an arm, and a metal box, resembling a bait and tackle box in one hand. He looked like a resident of the water front who might be good company, who might be able to tell us something about the local scene. We stopped for him.

He was a hitch-hiker en route to his California home, he said, after having thumbed his way to Florida in an unsuccessful search for a job. The two previous nights, he said, he had slept in a Key West park after having spent a night in a Miami jail charged with vagrancy.

The man smelled of jail disinfectant. We wondered whether vermin would crawl over leather upholstery to reach a body that had been bathed. We wondered whether our money was safe with a penniless companion who might be desperate regardless of his character. We were glad to leave him on the highway at the first opportunity, a pretense of having to stop at a fishing camp.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

NO HELP FROM POLICE.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 30—I was driving north on the Outer drive when I noticed near Lawrence avenue a car drawn up against the east curb and its driver, a woman, obviously in distress, signalling for help. I stopped and offered to get aid.

She gratefully accepted my offer, not, however, without telling me that even the park police squad car had passed her. Since a snowstorm was setting in vigorously, I hurried off for aid, and then when help had been obtained I went back to ascertain if she was all right. She told me that in the interim, while I was gone for help, that another police squad had likewise passed without a backward glance.

I think that if our heroes of the plush seat have so far lost their manhood that they can't even help a woman a half mile from aid and with the thermometer hovering around 15 degrees they had better go on WPA where their talents for "I don't give a damn," would be more appreciated and less expensive to the taxpayers. EDWIN N. COOPER.

PEDESTRIANS SKID.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—An elderly woman fell and broke her leg recently while crossing the intersection at Dearborn and Madison streets. I have seen numerous other persons fall at this crossing during the last few months.

These accidents are due primarily to the condition of the street, which is paved at this point with a mixture of treacherous and slippery creosote blocks and old, rounded bricks. Street cars turning at this point, whose motormen are more interested in keeping on schedule than in watching out for the safety of the pedestrians, also contribute to the hazards of the crossing.

The city and the street car company share the responsibility of keeping the streets in a safe condition, but they certainly have been derelict in their duty insofar as this crossing is concerned. Possibly a few personal injury suits would induce them to remedy the situation. G. N.

SLIPPERY OUTER DRIVE.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—As a taxpayer and citizen, it behooves me to voice my indignation at the apparent negligence of the city administration, particularly its park commissioners, in not doing something to avoid constantly recurring accidents on the Outer drive along Lincoln park. Recently I witnessed six smashups, which I know could have been prevented if the park commissioners were a little more alert and insisted on their employés getting up a little earlier to spread gravel over the pavement. It is evident negligence on the part of those responsible, who should not only be severely criticized, but made to realize that it is their duty to safeguard motorists, when it is so easy to do so. W. F. BLAIR.

SLIPPERY STREETS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—We have had some pretty slippery streets and will have more before the winter is thru. Some wards are keeping their streets well cindered, while other wards let it stay slippery. It is then up to us who are civic-minded to help keep these crossings covered with ashes. The Boy Scouts could do their good deed daily, too. It certainly would help to cut down accidents. J. FARREL.

WAY OUT WEST.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 28.—If the Tribune road scout is really looking for winter sunshine, why does he go to Florida winter after winter? Folks not so dumb drive to the southwest instead. MISS E.

The New Spring Hats Are Guaranteed as Antidotes to Cure Wintertime Wardrobe Doldrums

By
REA SEEGER

NEW HATS, antidotes for mental or spiritual doldrums, turn the trick every time. Whatever the trickery, they always fascinate and excite, and this year will do more effective face and eyeline flattery than ever before. After that, they'll fit—fit snugly, easily, and comfortably. In other words, you'll know you have a hat on your head, a sensation that will be surprisingly new, because we haven't experienced that comfort for years. That old giddy feeling and that balancing act of trying to appear at ease with what felt like a teetering bit of froth on the headline is something packed away in fashion mothballs.

Skullcaps, bonnets, brimmed casuals beloved of tailored personalities and college and country bound hat enthusiasts will take the fashion spotlight again. Flowers, beguiling whiffs of veiling, bonnet strings, and concoctions that are frankly coquettish creations will be seen on every headline. Fun and pun making men will have the novelty of offering compliments, even a poem or two, over the entrancing vision of what they decide are hats, not wise-crack provocations of straw, birds, and daft arrangements of geometric absurdities.

Flowered turbans are here for keeps, lovely pastels or vivid bouquets in clashing or pleasing color mixups—nasturtiums, begonias, green roses, bluebells, geraniums, moss roses, Parma violets, clover blossoms, morning glories, and lots of old-fashioned garden flowers are tied in fetching nosegays, anchored skilfully to a skull-fitting cap, and presto! the most feminine of flowered toppers to wear with fur coats, with suits, wool and silk ensembles, or with theater or cocktail or Sunday night supper costumes. There is no end to the different array of flowers or colors, no color missing. The combines are the best and most distinctive in years.

This season craftsmanship and workmanship, exquisite sense of beauty, expert swathing, and the finest of bow-tying will mark the best of the hats. Milliners artists, and lots of imagination mix, and the results are bewitching creations deserving the label of hat. Fascinating draped models called chignon turbans are extremely new, the most flattering affairs for young faces. These are the intricately molded hats of straw, fabric, silk, and gauze that are molded over the skull lines and then trimmed at the back with huge concentric whorls of the fabric, so that these formations resemble the lovely chignon hair-dos of the decorative ladies in the Godey's fashion plates of long ago.

Face-flattering brimmed hats are "in" again, wide, drooping, romantic models in straw, trimmed with dashing crown bands of colored silk, or with crown completely covered in flowers, with high crowns in a peak that add inches to the figure despite the width of the brim. Spectator sports brimmed hats of felt have been used for the smart felts for street suits for spring and immediate wear. It's the dashing way you pull the brim up or down or swoop it smartly up at the side that makes the successful brimmed hat. Many brimmed hats fit over skull-wrapped lengths of soft jersey or printed silk crêpe, achieving a distinctive gypsy flavor.

Neat small sailors have a perpetual charm, whether they are skittishly trimmed with wings or pompons or with fat garden blossoms such as zinnias or marigolds. Brief bits of veiling are other seductive additions to these pert, ever-appealing sailors in stitched silk, fabric, or crisp spring straws. They are hats for the first suit parade, the hats for wool and silk ensembles of dress and matching long coat, and they come in every pastel or brilliant color as well as sleek, dark street shades. Such sailors are the compromise between a too big and floppy brim and the difficult brimless turban or pillbox.

Embroidered crêpe is a lovely new material with which such a wizard as Daché achieves the different and all-purpose turban for immediate winter wear. The stuff is wellnigh fluid, clinging to the headlines, shirring beautifully. The colors are most effective with fur or wool outer apparel. Bags to match, Daché's superlative contribution to the complete costume, also are made of this embroidered fabric shirred in repeat formation of the turban and large enough to match the hat for appreciative eye appeal. Jersey in delectable pastels, in startling sugar whites, in strange but lovely shades of bronze green, Degas red, clear strong yellows, gold, and orange make superswathed turbans that may be worn the year 'round and become the gadabout's delight.

Daché does intriguing small hats in felt, such as the sensationally beautiful white felt pillbox sewn with pearls, a design worked with half a dozen differently shaped and sized pearl beads. Thru the back meshes of a veil are edelweiss blossoms worked in pearls to match the same snowy white flowers on the top and straight sides of the hat itself. Bretons, saucerlike in shape, come in contrastingly colored felts, straws, and stitched silks.

Straw will be used as a material, wound in and out like braids of hair, or fashioned in appliquéd circles in small high hats for early suits and ensembles of wool. Shiny black straw, flaming red, a lot of extremely interesting green tones, together with natural or beige tints, provide all kinds of shopping interest for the new straws. Flat, smooth straws are more plentiful than the stiff, roughish textures. All new hats have that smoother look in texture, trim, and outline. Everything is for face flattery!

Sketched and illustrated are the significant new spring hats.

Above: Embroidered silk crepe, shirred down the center front of the exotic turban, is matched by the huge bag. Comes in white and vivid colors with contrasting embroidered flowers. ● Left: Spring song in stunning striped taffeta. A high hat expertly swathed around the headline and a new side drapery effect of the same silk. Long gloves repeat color of the stripe. ● Below: Beautifully quilted silk makes the high, unusual hat and huge matching bag. Part of the quilted design is repeated in the latticelike headband that holds hat in position.

YOUR CHILDREN by Gladys Huntington Bevans | PATTERNS by Clotilde | CAMPUS CLOTHES, for the COED

Low Physical Tone May Be a Cause of Fear

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It is very disturbing to a mother when her little son, who has always seemed to be quite without fear of darkness, suddenly makes excuses so he will not have to go upstairs in the dark or when her little daughter, who has always slept thru the night, wakes up crying and calling out in obvious terror. Again and again letters come in to me about children who have developed fears of one sort or another. Their mothers wonder why this should be so. "Nothing that we know of has frightened our child. We can't understand it. Nor can we seem to remove the fear."

There is a great deal to be said about the fears of children. But one thing is evident to any one who has had wide experience with children, and that is, that there is no sure-fire way of so treating a child that he will grow from babyhood into childhood without any fears at all, or without those dream experiences that seem to be rooted in fear.

The reason for this is that the world is always with them. We cannot guard them entirely from the talk and suggestions of other adults and children, nor from the many fear-producing influences that play upon them. Also we cannot always know what will stir a child's imagination so that fear is created, because with our experience of the world we are not affected as they are: It may be the hoarse cries and cold eyes of a large parrot, a grotesque illustration in a book, like the trees with faces and twisted arms in Arthur Ransome's pictures or the genie in an Arabian Nights, or shadows and sounds in the night. His dreams likewise cannot be made only pleasant ones, no matter what our efforts.

In spite of all these factors we cannot control, there are many we can. We can by a wise management of our child create a feeling of confidence in himself and us, which is fundamentally one minus fear. In addition, we can also try to control our child's daily contacts and experiences with this in mind.

Books, pictures and stories play a big part in creating fears. Even books which are recommended by experts in the field may prove to be undesirable from this angle. Sometimes the story will be guilty, when you least suspect it. One instance comes to my mind. I think it was in the cunning, apparently harmless little story of the Roly-Poly Pudding that my small listener's delight in the tale was changed to horror when the great rats trussed up the tiny fuzzy kitten and rolled him in dough, preparatory to having him for dinner! Small children enter keenly into the adventures of the animals or other characters in stories that are read and told them, tho much of the time we are not aware how much.

Pictures, too, make a sharp impression on them. That is why we should pick and choose carefully as far as illustrations are concerned when buying a book.

Tho all young children are very impressionable it is true that some are more so than others. Some are more imaginative or more high strung. Age is another factor. What will be a nightmarish picture for a 4 year old may be just interesting to an 8 year old.

Children, as I have said, are frightened by things we're not aware of. Fear-play by older children or adults, for instance, is bad. I mean such things as playing ghost in a dark hall, making "scary" faces, or other practices which a child gives evidence of fearing. Naturally some things it is good for us to explain, but on the whole, at a tender age a child should not be frightened.

Any kind of rule by fear, at home or in school, is very bad for a child. It may inspire fear directly or result in a fearfulness of attitude.

And speaking of fearfulness of attitude brings me to one last point in connection with fears—a point not talked about often enough. It has to do with a child's physical condition, for here, too, may be found a reason for an attitude of fear, which will fix upon this or that thing in expressing itself.

The child who is recovering from a long siege of sickness, the child who is chronically below par, or the child whose nervous system is depleted may begin to show fears which will disappear when he is in buoyant health again. This is not always true, of course, but it may be looked into, if a mother is looking for a reason for a new fearfulness.

Suppose a child is generally undernourished and fatigued; suppose he has some physical defect that is pulling him down; suppose he is recovering from an operation in which there has been shock and an anesthetic?

It is quite possible that this child will be more easily made apprehensive, or timid, or jumpy or actually afraid than the child whose health is robust.

In some cases one's child should be taken to a doctor for a building up program or curing of any specific ailment. If convalescence is in progress one must wait for nature to heal, and be especially patient and cheerful, and see that fatigue and strain are avoided. It is comforting to know that fears will usually vanish with the return of high physical tone.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The jacket, blouse and suit idea promises to be such a popular one for spring that we are presenting three patterns today to assist you in assembling this important factor in your new season's wardrobe.

Two of the patterns create jacket and skirt ensembles, and the other some blouses, frilly or tailored, to wear with them.

Woolens are the best choices for the suits, altho heavy silks may be utilized to great advantage, too. Plain colors may be used together for harmony, or a plain skirt may be teamed with a plaid jacket. One style features a one-button jacket with pockets and long rever collarline, and the other presents a "little girl" topper that buttons all the way down the front. The skirts of both are simple and flared, without plaits to need frequent pressing.

The blouses, to be made of sheer silk or cotton, or of heavier fabrics, if you wish, vary from frilly on lace-trimmed versions to typical shirtwaist models. Our suggestion, no matter which style of suit you choose, is to make a variety of blouses for the desirable spic-and-span appearance all busy women must achieve every hour of the day.

Style No. 2523 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16 and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material for jacket; 2¾ yards for skirt; 1⅜ yards of 39 inch lining for jacket.

Style No. 2548 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 54 inch material for jacket and skirt; ¼ yard of contrasting for collar.

Style No. 2722 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2½ yards of 39 inch material for jabot blouse; 2¼ yards for long-sleeved, tailored model.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Lettuce Is Not the Only Green Good in Salad

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The woman who invariably chooses lettuce as her salad green is not only unimaginative, she is a careless cook; for there are many other greens, crisp, attractive and full of vitamins, that will do quite as well as foundations for salad.

Right now there are chicory, watercress, spinach, endive, Chinese cabbage, romaine and, occasionally, dandelion greens to be found for salad making. Rarer greens, such as tender mustard leaves, salsify leaves, nasturtium, and collard tops make good salads. The leaves of young beets and turnips, and of many other plants plucked in infancy from early gardens, are delectable in salads. This is something to remember if you plan a spring garden. Even radish tops and carrot greens, newly out of the earth, make tasty salads.

So why be unoriginal and stick solely to lettuce, even tho there are more than a dozen kinds of lettuce to choose from at various seasons of the year?

The epicure loves his salad of mixed greens dressed only with oil, vinegar and seasonings, and tossed in a bowl with a dry bread cube which has been rubbed with a cut clove of garlic. The cube is removed, of course, before the salad is served.

Two, three or more kinds of greens, crisp and fresh, dried after washing, may be broken, torn or chopped lightly for such a salad. They are then placed in a salad bowl, with or without the garlicked bread cube, and sprinkled with oil, olive oil or a fine grade of salad oil. With the wooden fork and spoon, the leaves then are lifted about lightly until each leaf is coated with oil. The oil protects the leaves from quick shriveling after vinegar and salt are added.

The next step is a light salting and peppering of the greens. Then comes the vinegar. Good wine vinegar, spiced vinegar and tarragon-flavored vinegar are choice. The vinegar, like the oil, is sprinkled over the salad, and then the greens are tossed until a tasting test tells that all is succulent and well seasoned.

Such is a green salad to delight the heart of any gourmet!

There's an old proverb about salad making, which goes something like this: "It takes four to make a salad: a miser for the vinegar, a prodigal for the oil, a lawyer for the salt and spices, and a madman for the mixing." Cooks have amended this last to read, "a diplomat for the mixing." For the mixing must not be done madly at all, but gently, so that the leaves are not bruised and matted, but retain all of their crisp vigor.

Observe these rules of green salad making and you'll become an artist at the business:

1. Use only chilled, crisp thoroly cleaned greens, and have them dry. Dry between soft towels so that there are no standing drops of water.
2. Select good quality oil and vinegar.
3. Mix the salad at the table, so that it does not have to stand in its dressing for long.
4. Sprinkle, do not pour, oil and vinegar, and taste salad to determine when the correct amounts of salt and pepper have been added.
5. Toss lightly but thoroly, so that each leaf is coated with dressing.

You may prefer to use a prepared French dressing, or to make your own and have it ready in a bottle. All right, but observe most of these rules anyway.

And as a variant from greens with plain dressing try greens with plain dressing and cheese, crumbled Roquefort or tiny cubes of some very sharp cheese which you like especially well. Or add a tablespoonful or more of good chili sauce to the dressing or to the greens themselves.

Chicory, watercress and endive make an excellent "Sunday best" salad bowl with plain or garnished dressing. Lettuce and spinach are nice for ordinary occasions. Dandelion greens, when you can get them, make perfection out of any green salad.

The dandelion, considered a front yard pest in this country, is highly prized by European gourmets. The youngest and tenderest leaves make the best salads, just as they make the best cooked greens.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Are you southbound? Every resort wardrobe needs plenty of washable, simple frocks in sunshine shades, and these models may be held over until summer in the north. Having learned from bitter experience that summer often comes so soon that it catches one with only woolens and heavy silks in which to suffer from the heat that I am a firm believer in preparedness. Every year, about this time, southern vacation or no southern vacation, I whip up a few simple summer frocks for those first surprising days when the temperature soars unexpectedly. Apropos of all this, here's a tailored frock that makes up well in silks, linens and cottons, in plain or figured materials.

My own dress is shell pink washable crêpe, with the bow, belt and buttons in a bright dark blue. Below the narrow shoulder yoke of this shirtwaist model is moderate shirring to lend feminine softness to the bustline. The collar is a girlish tailored one, and the bow below it is rather larger than usual for a neckline adornment. The belt slips thru flaps that are buttoned down on the skirt. One of the features of this dress, which may have long or short sleeves, is its plaitlessness. This simple flared and gored skirt is washable in a jiffy.

Style No. T-8659 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 18 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material, and may be made as a one-piece or a two-piece frock.

Thousands of Women in Executive Gov. Work

More than 162,000 women are working in the executive branch of the United States government service. Of this number nearly 47,000 are situated in Washington, D. C.

In Holland the newly married woman feeds her bridegroom a traditional mixture of brandy and raisins as a part of the marriage ceremony.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

Needs No Cooking. Big Saving.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never be without it in your home, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

frank face and dark eyes impressed Brazos favorably.

"Howdy, Sisk," said Brazos. "My pard heah told me who yu air. I'm Brazos Keene."

"How do. I saw you when I came in," returned the young rancher, putting out a hand willingly enough.

"I'm wonderin' if yu need a rider," replied Brazos, after the grip.

"I always need a rider who can work."

"Dog-gone! Work isn't my long suit," drawled Brazos, with his captivating smile. "I cain't rope very wal, an' I'm no good atall at most cowboy jobs, an' I'd just starve before I'd dig fence post holes. . . . But if I do say it myself, I'm pretty fair with guns."

"Brazos, you're that thing impossible to find—a modest cowboy," said Sisk, laughing. "If you're serious, ride out to see me."

"Thanks. I'll do that some day," concluded Brazos, and returned to his seat beside young Sain. At this moment one of the girls brought a generous golden slice of apple pie and a large glass of creamy milk. Brazos stared from these to the charming waitress.

"Do my pore eyes deceive me?"

"Didn't you order apple pie and milk?" she asked regretfully.

"I shore did. But I never even dreamed of such pie an' milk. Will yu duplicate the order, Miss Janis?"

Brazos found his favorite dessert and drink even more delicious than they looked. Both had disappeared as if by magic when the girl returned to set another piece of pie and brimming glass of milk before him.

"Miss Janis, all I want to know is can I come in heah as often as I want an' get a gorgeous supper like what I've had?"

"Why certainly—as long as you pay for it," she replied, trying to keep her face straight.

"But I'm broke a good deal. Money slips right thru my fingers."

"This is a strictly cash business, Mr. Keene," she said demurely.

"Mexican Joe trusts me," importuned Brazos. "Aw, Miss Janis, I shore wouldn't want to be exclooded from this heah lovely place just on account of bein' financially embarrassed now an' then."

She Tells Brazos How to Establish Credit

"Have you any reference as to—to good credit and character?" she asked mischievously. "If you will bring these, we shall be glad to trust you. . . . And, by the way, I am not Janis, but June."

"Help!" prayed Brazos fervently, throwing up his hands.

"What's a fellow gonna do?" implored Brazos, honestly aghast at an unparalleled situation.

"I reckon the only thing a fellar can do is impossible," returned Sain, sagely, from which cryptic remark Brazos gathered no solace. They finished their dessert and had to wait to pay their bill. "Wal, June," said Brazos, taking a chance on this sister and apparently hitting it right, "how much do we owe for that scrumptious supper—an' do we have to stand around on the corner outside till mawnin' to see yu again?"

"Dollar eighty," replied June, as she took the bill he extended "Twenty!—Yes, you're broke."

"Gosh, is thet a twenty?"

While June went to get change, Brazos saw Janis carry a tray to Sisk's table. There was no trouble in ascertaining the state of that young man's mind. Janis might have been in the solitude of the outside prairie for all he cared.

He raised a strong, earnest, appealing face to the girl. And when she had set the several dishes before him Brazos' sharp eye caught him plucking at her hand. Janis smiled down upon him, but shook her head and left him.

"Heah you air, Mister Brazos Keene," drawled June at Brazos elbow. She imitated his Texas accent perfectly, and did it with a straight face. Brazos held out his hand to take the change.

"Say, lady, I've handled girls turrible rough for less than thet," he said

"Pooh! . . . There's yore change. I hope you will become a good customer."

"June, I'll eat myself to death," he rejoined softly. "When can I see yu again?"

"We are off at 10. I'd like you to meet my aunt. She is Dad's sister and lives with us upstairs."

"Thet's just fine. I'll come."

"Jack, you'll come, too?"

"I'm sorry, June. I can't tonight."

When they got outside and Brazos went to the hitching rail to untie Bay, he glanced back into the restaurant. June still stood there, as if alone in the crowded room, her big dark eyes upon him.

They made Brazos' heart leap, and then they sobered him out of selfish exultation. Had he misled this girl and her sister to hope vainly? He cursed himself for a reckless cowboy.

"Evenin', Miss June."

"Jack, where's yore hawse?" he asked gruffly.

"I don't own one."

"Hell! A cowboy without a hawse! . . . We gotta remedy thet. I'll get one from Hank. Where yu live?"

"Out of town. Not far," replied Sain evasively.

"It was doggone good to meet yu, Jack. I kinda like yu," said Brazos, as he tightened his cinch. "We gotta see a lot of each other."

"Well, cowboy, if you have ever been without a job or a hoss or a friend, you'll know how I feel," rejoined Sain, and, bidding Brazos good night, he strode away up the dimly lighted street.

"Wal. Thet boy's in trouble more'n aboot a girl," soliloquized Brazos as he swung up on Bay. "Dog-gone it, there's nothin' but trouble in this world. Heah I am deep in again an' lovin' it!"

Brazos rode out to the stable where Bilyen kept his horse while in town, and, turning Bay over to the boy there, he drifted slowly up the street. Brazos could never control his heart, but he had long been absolute master over his mind. And it behooved him to relegate this sweet insidious emotion to the background and begin cudgeling his brains.

The main street of Las Animas had always boasted of its numerous saloons, gambling dens, and dance halls. These did not appear to be so numerous or so prosperous as during the cattle drives of 1874 and later, but there were plenty left, Brazos thought, and some as disreputable looking as they had ever been.

At length Brazos entered a saloon named Happy Days, which was a new one to him. But the garish furnishings, the noisy drinkers, and the smell of rum were far from unfamiliar. The hour was too early for the gamesters.

Brazos' entrance did not appear to be noted, but, tho he held aloof from bar and guests, he was seen and recognized. He did not need to pretend that he was looking for some one. He actually was, tho he did not know whom, and his presence had a quieting effect upon the inmates.

From this place he passed along the street, taking in the several saloons. Returning on the opposite side, he entered the Call You gambling den, a house that had once been pretentious and patronized by the range elect, but which now was the most sordid he had seen.

He found the bar crowded and the gaming tables mostly occupied. At one sat a gambler who would have attracted a less keen eye than Brazos'. His pale, cold face, enhanced by his dark frock coat, drew attention to himself in a saloon full of range garbed men.

He espied Brazos not many seconds after Brazos singled him out. His glance held more than the cold curiosity of the gambler. Brazos accosted a cowboy on the way out.

"Say, Bud, who's the caird sharp?" he asked.

"Reckon they're all sharps in this camp. . . . That's Howard."

"Where does he hail from?"

"Denver, they say."

"Howard. . . . Is he the only flash gambler hereabouts?"

"You don't see many like him. An' he drops in from the train pretty often."

"I'm a stranger heah," explained Brazos.

"Wal, if you wasn't you wouldn't be askin' questions about Howard."

"Yeah? An' why not?"

"He ain't partial to curiosity."

"Aw, I see. Ladies' man, huh?"

"Cowboy, he's a killer in more ways than one. Haw! Haw!"

Brazos strolled unobtrusively around until he reached a point behind Howard. The gambler sat at a table with three cowboys, playing poker, and he appeared to be ahead of the game.

"Excuse me, but I object to any one standing behind me," presently spoke up the gambler politely.

"Wal, thet's no wonder," drawled Brazos. "I'll go around on this side."

"What you hintin' at, cowboy?" growled one of the three youths at the table.

"Gosh, I wasn't hintin'."

"Hell you wasn't. You'd better——"

"Shut up before you say somethin'," fiercely interrupted the player next to the disgruntled one. "Don't you have no idee who you're talkin' to?"

After that the three cowboys were apparently blind to Brazos' presence, but the gambler was not, tho he did not look up directly. Brazos watched him steadily, studied his features, his frock coat, his white, wonderfully dexterous hands. At length the gambler queried sarcastically:

"Don't you want to sit in?"

"Game's too slow for me."

"You appear mighty interested in watching it. I must ask you to sit in or get out."

"Wal, I'll tell you, mister," replied Brazos. "I'd like to join yu, but it sorta riles me to play cards with a caird sharp when he's got a little gun hid high up under his coat on the left side."

The gambler dropped his cards and his hand quivered while his eyes blazed cold fury upon Brazos.

"Careful, Howard," interposed the eldest of the three cowboys. "Don't be crazy to draw on that fellar."

"Who is he?" snapped the gambler, perceptibly relaxing.

"Wal, I ain't sayin'. He might be Billy the Kid."

"Brazos Keene's my name, if you want to know," said Brazos.

Accused of Breaking Up the Poker Game

At this juncture the losing member of the cowboy triangle leaped up, red of face, to slam his cards down on the table. "Whoever he is, he's busted up this game," he said.

"An' a damn good thing," agreed the third.

They abruptly left the gambler alone. He raked in the few chips and little silver that his fellow players had abandoned. It was obvious that the presence of Brazos and the attention thus attracted to himself were distinctly unwelcome.

"Brazos Keene, eh?" he queried at length, sitting back to flash brilliant icy eyes upon Brazos.

"Yeah. An' I heahed one of yore victims call you Howard."

"That's my name," replied the gambler curtly.

"From up Denver way, I heah?"

"Where I hail from and what I do doesn't concern you, cowboy."

"Wal, I'm not so damn shore aboot the last."

"Were those fellows friends of yours?"

"Never saw them before. It was the way yu hide the little derringer gun thet riled me. I just naturally get cussed when I see thet kind of gun packin'."

"So you broke up my game?"

"I didn't intend to do that. Yu talked powerful sarcastic, so I thought I'd call yu an' see if yu'd throw yore toy pistol," drawled Brazos with glinting eye that did not match his soft voice.

The gambler's face turned a shade grayer, either from anger or realization of what he had escaped.

"Curiosity has cost many men their lives."

"Shore. But not men like me. An now I'll tell yu that I had another reason for tryin' yu oot."

"I had a hunch you did. And what is it, Mister Keene?"

Brazos leaned close to the thin lipped cold face and answer low:

"Ask Lura Surface."

It was a random shot that Brazos hazarded, but it went home. Howard growled his surprise and wrath, and, turning on his heel, strode by the watching line of curious men to the bar, where he ordered whisky.

Brazos backed against the wall and leaned there. He kept a narrowed gaze upon the gambler until he left the saloon. From sundry remarks which came to Brazos' ears he gathered that he had not hurt his status there by offending Howard.

Brazos pondered over the amaze and rancor Howard had evidenced. Indeed there must be something between Lura Surface and this handsome card sharp who secreted a small gun in his breast pocket where he could snatch it swiftly.

A little before 10 o'clock Brazos wended a reluctant and yet impelled way toward the Twin Sombreros restaurant. He could not have resisted the urge if he had wanted to. And he fought off the presage of calamity. When he arrived at the corner he espied one of the twins talking to Henry Sisk. Indeed, the two were arguing, if not actually quarreling, from which fact Brazos deduced that this was Janis. There appeared to be several customers who were being waited upon by a Mexican girl.

Brazos mounted the side stairway leading up to the second story and knocked on the door, sure of the trepidation and another nameless sensation obsessing him. The door opened as if some one had heard his step outside.

June stood there, in a white dress that had never been made in Las Animas. This apparition smiled upon him and Brazos dated his abject enthrallment from that moment. As always with him, when a thing was settled, inevitable, he found his cool, easy poise.

"Evenin', Miss June. I reckon I'm ahead of time," he said.

"No. You are late. Come in."

She ushered Brazos into a cozy, bright little sitting room. "Auntie, this is our new found friend, Mr. Brazos Keene," she said to a gray haired woman who sat beside the lamp table. "My Aunt Mattie—Miss Neece—Daddy's sister."

Brazos made the lady a recipient of his most gallant bow and pleasantest smile. "I shore am glad to meet yu, Miss Neece," he drawled, as he bent to take the hand she hesitantly offered. "Yu favor yore brother an' I'd have known yu."

"For the land's sake! . . . June, this nice looking boy can't be your terrible Brazos Keene," exclaimed the aunt.

"Yes, he is, Auntie."

"Aw, Miss Neece, don't believe everythin' yu heah," implored Brazos, honestly. "I'm not turrible atall."

"I don't believe you are. I'm glad to meet you. Janis filled my old head with nonsense. Said you were a black browed giant—very fierce to see."

"Air yu shore it was Janis?" inquired Brazos.

"Yes, indeed. June has been telling me the . . . well, I'll not give her away. But your ears must have burned. . . . Take his hat, June. . . . And hadn't you better lay aside that cumbersome gun?"

"Wal, lady, I wouldn't feel dressed proper if I did thet. . . . There, I'll slip it around so you cain't see it."

"Thank you. I—I guess that's better," she replied, rising. "Mr. Keene, you met my brother Abraham?"

"I did, an' I shore like him."

"June tells me you cheered him up," she went on, in hurried earnestness. "And Dave Wesley called on me this afternoon. He had just ridden by Bilyen's ranch. He said he had not seen my brother so near like his old self. O, if you are responsible for that, I thank you."

"Lady, I'm afraid I am responsible," rejoined Brazos seriously. "An I shore hope I didn't overdo it."

"Have you any ground to believe Abraham's loss can be retrieved?" she asked, beseechingly.

"I cain't explain. It's what a cowboy calls a hunch. I've trailed up a good many of my hunches an' never lost oot on one yet."

"Only a hunch! O, I had prayed you might have really learned something," she returned sadly.

"Miss Neece, I cain't talk aboot it now. All I can say is for yu to go on hopin' an' prayin', too."

"Perhaps Abraham will tell me. I'll see him tomorrow. Good night, Mr. Brazos Keene. Somehow you inspire me strangely. . . . June, I'll leave you young folks alone. Good night, dear."

Alone at Last with the Charming Twin

Brazos found himself alone with June Neece—and his five endless years of wandering for he knew not what were as if they had never been.

"You must understand Auntie and Jan and me," said June, gravely. "It is not the loss of Dad's fortune and Twin Sombreros ranch that hurts so terribly. It was Dad's broken heart. All these years he had worked for us. The blow crushed him. And he was sinking under it. . . . Then Allen's sudden ghastly death. . . ."

Her face was white and her big eyes shone darkly tragic up at him.

"Never mind, June," interposed Brazos, feelingly. "I reckon I understand. It's hard. But you must bear up. . . . I've had my grief. An' I'm a livin' proof thet grief passes—an' thet joy an' hope come back."

"You have had trouble?" she asked softly.

"For five years I've been a driven cowboy . . . an' my trouble came to an end yesterday—when I met yu."

"Me? . . . O!" She warmed wonderingly to that. "Tell me your story."

"Some day, when I reckon I dare."

They stood at the table, with glances locked, and constraint overcoming the simplicity of that meeting. June turned away with a blush, only to be drawn again to look at him, as if to make sure the situation was real.

"Brazos Keene! . . . To think I'm alone with him! O, I've heard who and what you are. It has been on the lips of everybody all day long."

"Wal, I hope it's goin' to be good for yu thet I am Brazos Keene," returned he, mournfully. "But maybe if I was Henry Sisk or Jack Sain I would have more chance for yu to like me."

"Come sit here," she returned and led him to a little sofa in the corner. They gazed at each other again, questioningly, yet with no hint of doubt or uncertainty. There was something vital, compelling, drawing, that made no allowance for short acquaintance.

"June, I'm gonna be honest. Meetin' yu has thrown me plumb oot of my saddle."

"It means much to me, Brazos—I don't know what."

"Yu're countin' on yore hopes of what I can do for yore dad?"

"Yes. But if we were out home—at Twin Sombreros—and if we had no trouble—I—think I would feel the same."

"Girl, yu can't be in love with Jack Sain?"

"Who said I was?" she answered, smiling. "I like Jack. We played together when we were kids."

"Wal, I was afraid—I reckon I thought yu might care more'n thet. Jack is crazy aboot yu."

"I'm sorry, Brazos. But I didn't flirt with him as Jan did with Henry, Sisk. I'm sorry for Jack in more ways than one. He has had one misfortune after another. And the last is too bad. He had just found a job after being idle for months, then lost it."

"How'd he lose it?"

"Jack said he was running after Lura Surface. Her father caught them meeting on the road one night. He raised Cain and had Jack discharged."

"Ahuh. The Surfaces don't mix up in this thing. Aw no, not atall. . . . June, I'm gonna meet thet young lady oot along the road tomorrow afternoon. But I'm not runnin' after her."

"Already! You? I thought you might be one man proof——"

Brazos took June's hand in his and bent to interrupt her.

"Listen, June. If I hadn't met yu I'd have flirted with Lura Surface. But I have met yu—an' thet's all the difference in the world. . . . Raine Surface is one of these respectable crooked cattlemen. I've met a few like him—to their sorrow—an' my idee in meetin' this girl is to get at things. Thet's my way, June. I cain't explain. But I follow my hunches—please believe me, June."

"They said you were a devil with the women," retorted June, unconscious of jealousy.

"Never mind what I was. It's what I am thet should count with yu. Trust me, June."

WORLD'S GREATEST STORIES

THE ROYAL CINDERELLA

FOREWORD Two hundred fifteen years ago last Sunday died Peter the Great of Russia, the dominant character of the two chapters from Alexandre Dumas' "Celebrated Crimes of the Russian Court" that are presented in today's Fiction Section. "The Romance of Cinderella the Czarina" and "The Revolt of the Strelitz Guard," while adhering closely to historical data as unearthed by Dumas in a visit to Russia in 1858, possess all the thrills of imaginative writings. How Catherine I., a poor peasant girl, became the wife of Peter the Great and the czarina of the Russians is a story that seems as fantastic as the tale of Cinderella herself—yet it is a true story.

The Romance of Cinderella the Czarina

By Alexandre Dumas

IN THE YEAR 1702 the Russian general, Schemeretef, beat the Swedish general, Slippenbach, before Derpt, which he took, with four stands of colors—the first such trophies falling to Czar Peter's arms. This proved that King Charles XII. was no longer the Invincible.

In the summer of the same year this same Schemeretef again beat the same Slippenbach, and captured 16 flags and 20 cannon. This success threw Marienburg into Peter's grasp. The town surrendered at discretion. The people selected their pastor to implore the victor's clemency. This worthy, in the position of suppliant rather than negotiator, sought out Schemeretef, who received him handsomely. But the general noticed in the midst of the family [using the word in the ancient Roman sense of all the household] a remarkably splendid woman, concerning whom he questioned.

Pastor Gluck could tell him that her name was Catherine, but her family name was not known. She believed that she was born at Derpt, about 1686. She remembered having lived at Derpt until, the plague breaking out in Livonia, her parents fled before the contagion and took refuge near Marienburg. But the pest had marked them for its own; it hunted them down and, little Catherine's parents dying, they left to the world three tender children, a daughter at Derpt, under a relative's care, and Catherine and her brother, brought with them. A farmer undertook to take charge of the boy, while the 3 year old girl was given to the pastor. But the plague reached the rectory together with the little orphan, for the pastor died, with some of his household. She was again homeless.

Luckily for her, this same Dominie Gluck, then archpriest of the parish, was sent to Marienburg to attend to the wretched. He entered the rectory as the master was breathing the last sigh. The only living thing in the pestiferous habitation was the child, cowering in a corner, who ran to the good man at once and, plucking him by the gown, called him "father" and, begging for bread, refused to leave him. The good man would not repulse this waif, but took her on his charitable rounds, as none claimed her, and led her away.

On arriving home at Riga he confided her to his wife, where she grew up beside their two girls, but in the post of kitchen wench or little better.

She was about 16 when a young recruit in the Royal Guards of King Charles XII., in garrison at Marienburg, came a-courting her. She was marvelously fair and, with a view of affording her a warlike protector, the pastor consented to their marriage. But three days after the wedding the whole garrison received orders to join the Swedish army, then making war in Poland. As the young wife was left alone and did not know which way to turn to save herself, she came back into the reverend's house, working in the kitchen as before as if her position had not changed.

We reach the point again when Schemeretef saw the charming handmaid. He exercised his right, as the captain, and took her for his share in the booty. It was vain for the priest and the girl to remonstrate; Catherine was forced to become a servant in the general's house. She wept, for the military circle was very unlike the sacerdotal one.

General Buys Girl and Falls in Love with Her

Catherine had been some seven months in Schemeretef's service when Gen. Menshikof came into Livonia; he was a great lord and a skilful general, fit to take command of the Russian forces here. He bore the order to Schemeretef to join the czar in Poland. Schemeretef had to depart instantly, leaving his attendants and taking only what military allowance dictated. Catherine remained with the women discarded. The newcomer noticed her—as all did—and offered to buy her. The departing chief could not do better than be paid for the useless "baggage." He consented. The serf gained a younger and less stern master by the transfer.

But Menshikoff fell in love with the slave and soon she was giving orders as housekeeper to the establishment.

Things were at this point with the women when Czar Peter arrived at Marienburg and took up quarters with his commander there. Catherine was designated to wait on the royal table. Her beauty made the usual impression, for, after the feast, the guest sent all away and held the host alone. The latter expected that there was going to be a conference on state business, but, to his high astonishment, the first question was:

"Where did you get that slave they call Catherine?"

The general told all that he knew about the woman. The next day the czar made a present to the housekeeper of a gold ducat. This was a pretty fee for waiting at table, even at that of royalty, but paltry as a gift from a czar to a beauty he admired. But Peter came back. He had heard complaints of his general's exactions and found that they were true. So Menshikof was amazed at his master's intruding upon him one morning without being announced. He was still more so when the ruler drubbed him with his cane quite vigorously. It was the great man's habit; 10 minutes after the thrashing he would forget all about it, and not bear the flagellated one any ill will. Having administered the correction, he stated the grounds, gave his favorite proof that he was not unjust, and remarked that, as he must live a while in Livonia, he would go into housekeeping on his own account. But he promised to take dinner twice a week with him, which promise he kept. He dropped in two or three times; in fact, without any particular remark, until all of a sudden he asked:

"By the way, where is that Catherine?"

Menshikof could only stammer the name.

"Yes, I do not see anything of her now. You are not greedy, are you?"

"All here belongs to my master and benefactor."

"Well, call the girl! I should like to see her again!"

Catherine came in, blushing and agitated. The host was similarly embarrassed. The czar noticed the disquiet of both and joked the woman about it. But, seeing that her reply showed more respect than jocosity, in harmony with his mood, he became thoughtful, waved her away, and affected not to direct a word to her during the rest of the meal. After supper the strong drink came. The Hebe was Catherine; she brought the tray with liquor glasses to the guest. He looked at her a long while, as tho he did not perceive what she stood there for.

"Catherine," said he at last, with a gentleness not his habit, "it seems we are not on as good terms as when I looked in last."

Her eyes dropped and her hand trembled so that the glasses clinked on the tilting tray.

"But I hope we shall make peace! Menshikof," he went on, abruptly turning on the man, "let me tell you that I am going to take this cup bearer with me!"

Beautiful Catherine Led Away by Czar

With him, to say and to do were one; for he rose and, clapping on his hat, took the woman's hand on his arm and walked out of the house with her to his own habitation.

During two days Peter saw his general without any reference to any topic but state affairs, but on the third he suddenly said:

"I like the handmaid! You must sell her to me."

The other's heart was aching, so that he could not answer; he restrained himself to bowing deeply, and was retiring when the despot remarked:

"By the way, I ought to remind you that the poor thing is not overwell clad, and I hope you are going to supply her with a proper wardrobe! I should like her to be suitably 'rigged out.' Do you understand me, Menshikof?"

Menshikof knew his master thoroly, and how he wanted to be obeyed. So he procured all the clothes which would suit Catherine and, joining to them a magnificent casket of jewels, he sent them all to her, with two slaves to be at her beck and call as long as she would keep them. Catherine found these gifts in her room when she went there.

Surprised to the utmost height at seeing what she had not asked for, she went to her new master and, smiling with the coaxing manner worth a crown, she said:

"I wish you would come as far as my room, for I have something curious to show you."

The czar followed her, having become as much of her dangler as Menshikof had been. Master was turning into slave. She showed him the package of clothes and gravely observed:

"I see that I am to remain a long time at your orders, if I am to wear out these garments in your service! It is all proper that your majesty should see all the riches that befall me!" Laughingly, she opened the parcel and spread the apparel about on the furniture. Wrapped up in the last robe were gems worth 20 thousand rubles.

"Is this a present," asked she, looking fixedly at the czar, "from the old or the new master? If from the former, why, he sends away his old dogs with fine collars!"

Unable to contain herself, she burst into tears and swooned. Peter called for help and, bathing her forehead, brought her to consciousness. Then Peter told her that the jewels were a keepsake from Menshikof, and that she ought to keep them. He was only too pleased that a vassal of his had treated her so highly.

"Accept," concluded he, "and I will testify my thankfulness to him."

Altho Peter had called in assistance, it was he alone who had revived her with noticeable care and attentions. This was the more remarkable, as such courteous refinement was not among the Bear's habits. Many augured that here was a deep affection, and they were not deceived.

As long as he dwelt in Livonia and thenceforward Peter did not see Catherine and did not speak to a soul about her; but when he had to return to Moscow he charged a captain of his bodyguards to conduct her thither, recommending that she should be given all deference, and that he should have a daily report about her health. At the capital Catherine was installed under an old gentlewoman, in a quarter remote from the court. The czar used to visit there, wearing a slouch beaver and ample cloak, for mystery is the concomitant of royal love. In this house were born the Princesses Anna and Elizabeth. She could dream of her future grandeur while the lord was founding St. Petersburg.

After transforming a coarse and shapeless country into a powerful and victorious empire, Peter was to make of the Livonian Cinderella a czarina, to bear the crown which she was to save. For the Czarina Eudoxie had been shut up the last five years in a convent. But it would require 12 years more before the usurper could be lawfully anointed and crowned. A strange occurrence came to remind the sinners of their true position. Among the prisoners made at Pultawa was the guards soldier who had married Catherine—the husband of a day—or two, to be precise. Transferred to Moscow with 14 thousand other Swedes to grace Peter's progress, he entered the old Russian capital. Here he learned what was arranged between his wife and the czar. Instead of being appalled, he felt hopeful, and entrusted the secret to the commissioner watching the prisoners. This man hastened to report the claim to his highest superior.

Her Husband Shipped Off to Siberia to Die

Peter wrote on the warning: "This man is a madman, to be treated like other prisoners."

So he was sent, "like the other prisoners," into Siberia, that land of outer darkness, whence none come out to see the day. He died there, about 1721. It was not till sure of his death that Peter publicly acknowledged Catherine.

All at once, amid the feasts and triumphs, Peter learned that two armies, one Turkish, the other Tartar, were marching upon Jassy. Numbering 200 thousand, they were commanded by Mehemet, the "Woodchopper." He had been servant of all work in the harem, having his own way beside his sultan; he had refused the commandership on account of this low origin, but the grand seignior had insisted, and gave him a jeweled scimitar as warrant.

Peter came out against the Woodchopper with only 30 thousand soldiers, but they were the flower of the Muscovites. He stood on the Pruth banks, without supplies, only a few pieces of artillery, and not three rounds to fire, at that. He commanded a grand forlorn hope on the morrow, and wrote to the home government that he expected to be defeated and, if he were held captive, they were to pay no attention to orders purporting to be from his chained hand.

In the night Peter had an epileptic fit. All great warriors, from Cæsar to Napoleon, were subject to epilepsy. On opening his eyes, who but Catherine stood before him? His bosom counselor, she had followed him over the Pruth. He might well be astonished to see her calm and firm, when he, the champion of culture, lay overthrown by sickness. She came to restore vanished strength and lost hope. It was no use battling—they should bribe!

With gold and jewels, any grand vizier can always be bought, she maintained. As she could not read or write, she had the dispatches read to her from Count Tolstoi, their ambassador to Constantinople. He was a good judge of treachery. As Catherine was sure that the Turkish favorites were in the market, the only thing was to fix the price.

Her voice had inspired the czar to rise. He gave orders to a trusty intermediator.

"But if the Turk agrees," asked he, "where are we to get the cash? These rascals will not take pay in fine words!"

"Here!" replied the deliverer, "for I bring my diamonds with me and, before our courier gets back, I shall scrape together every copper in the camp."

"God speed thee!" said the monarch, using his personal motto.

Catherine mounted a horse and rode about the camp; she made this speech to soldiers and officers:

"Friends, we are in such jeopardy that we cannot save our liberty but on forfeit of our lives, or by making a bridge of gold for our foes to march over. If we take the former course our money and gewgaws will be useless to us. Let us use them to seduce the enemy. I have already laid down my ornaments and gold—you ought also to furnish your quota!" She addressed each officer directly, saying: "What are you going to give me, sir? If we get out of this danger I will repay you a hundredfold—to say nothing of what I shall urge our father the czar to return."

From the general to the rank and file, every man gave what he had, so that there rose heaps of gold! Who shall say that this was not a Cinderella receiving her godmother's harvest?

The messenger had returned to say that the grand vizier would welcome an agent to discuss peace. It is asserted that Catherine, not willing to let a second hand manage the treaty, went herself to the Turk. He said at first that the czar must abjure and, then, "becoming our brother, we can refuse him nothing!"

Peter answered:

"How could the grand vizier believe in the pledge of a recreant who denied his God?"

The second demand was that the czar and his forces should surrender under no promise.

"In another quarter of an hour," replied the negotiator, grand chancellor or Catherine, as the case may be, "my master will fall upon you, and we shall die to the last sooner than accept such shameful conditions."

At all events that night the arrangement was signed and the czar retired with his men, guns, and colors flying.

Things quieting down at home, Peter was able to quit his realm and roam over Europe to crop the sheaf of arts and knowledge, of which he had culled something in his first tour. He took his good angel, the czarina, with him thru Holland and Germany. He wished her to enjoy France, but etiquet opposed it. His consort was not publicly recognized, which was a hollow jest from a kingdom where Mme. de Maintenon ruled.

But one day Peter learned that the crowned Catherine, whom he had anointed with his own hands, had taken a favorite! He would not believe it at first, but he stooped to verify it in person. He burst upon the guilty pair and nearly killed the woman outright by a blow of his cane. The man cowered in the alcove curtains, but he went forth, without saying a word to him. Despite the scandal he talked of having the empress' head cut off in the market place, but, dissuaded by the dread that a doubt would be cast on the authenticity of their daughters, he had the villain, Moens de Lacroix, tried on a vague charge of high treason. He was condemned and beheaded. His sister, held as an accomplice, was doomed to the knout and, it is asserted, the czar flogged her with his own hand. She was then sent into Siberia.

Catherine I.

Czar Watches Execution of Wife's Favorite

From a window in the senate house Peter saw the execution; he went out upon the scaffold, where he took up the severed head and slapped its cheeks. He returned to his palace, where he bade Catherine join him in the carriage for an airing. Altho suspecting some awful sight, she dared not refuse. In the open coach he conducted her to the place where the bloody scaffold still stood, and where the trunkless head was adorning a pike, and led her, afoot, so that she swept up blood drops with her robe. Catherine did not blanch; her marble visage betrayed no emotion.

From that moment all relations ceased between the couple, and only in public would Peter the Great see his consort. He burned the will made in her favor.

To her real crime history, or at least romance, added a fictitious one: she is accused, with Menshikof, of murdering Peter. It is a kind of justice that the woman, who escaped punishment for her actual misdeed, should carry into the grave the burden of a crime not hers. For the Colossus of the North died—years after he had worn out the scabbard of such a sword. Dying after tortures, he recognized that in him "man was but a miserable animal!" and, having paid his debts and released prisoners, he received the last offices, saying:

"I trust God will bestow one look of mercy on me for the good I have done my country!"

He died on the 28th of January, 1725, about 4 in the morning, which was his hour to rise and begin his never finished tasks. Catherine outlived her duped husband but two years.

The Revolt of the Strelitz Guard

IF THERE be a lesson for monarchs to derive from the behavior of their household troops, it is that in leaning upon them they rely on a yielding reed. The story of the Prætorian Guards, the Mamelukes, and the Janizaries unite to tell them that.

Two days after the Czar Feodor's obsequies were celebrated, the Strelitz, the Muscovite militia, flew to arms at the Kremlin, complaining of nine of their colonels for cheating them out of their pay. The officers were cashiered and the men received their money. But that was not enough. They captured these officers, beat them with rods, and, in the oriental manner, made them beg pardon for having given them the trouble to beat them. Princess Sophia interfered in the height of this sedition. She sent the Strelitz a list of 40 nobles whom she denounced as enemies of the country. Her emissaries averred that one of the two brothers of Czarina Nathalia had taken the emperor's robe and posed on the throne in it; that this Naryschine meant to strangle the emperor, and that Feodor had not died of weakness, but by poison from a Dutch doctor whom she named. All this was accompanied by presents and promises of a rise in pay to the drunken troopers.

The plotter had nothing to say about her half-brother Peter, a mere boy of 10, who, she hoped, would disappear in the whirlwind.

At the head of the list were the Lords Dolgoruki and Mattheoff. The mutineers' chiefs broke into their houses and threw them out of the windows, where the pikemen caught them on their points. To punish Ivan Naryschine for the asserted sacrilege, they invaded the palace; but they found none of that race there but Athanase, whom they likewise cast out of the window; when three fugitives on the blacklist took refuge in a church, the Strelitz rushed in and slew them at the altar base.

Czarina Nathalia comprehended that this work was but preliminary; she caught up her sons in her arms, and, quitting the Kremlin, which was the citadel for Moscow, by a side door, fled across the fields.

The Strelitz continued their hideous task. A bystander was killed for Ivan Naryschine. Acknowledging the error, they carried the dead to his father. This Soltikoff was so filled with the terror the swashbucklers kindled that he thanked them and rewarded them for bringing him his dead. The mother, not having this forbearance, reproached him for his meekness, but he said:

"Wait for the hour of vengeance!"

But, tho this was spoken in a low voice, a Strelitz overheard it. Calling his comrades back, he grasped the old man by his hair and dragged him down on the threshold, where they slew him.

They were hunting for the Dutch physician, Dr. Vangard, but met only his son.

"Where is your father?" they challenged.

"I do not know."

"Then you shall pay for him!" and they killed him.

They happened to run up against another doctor, who happened to be Dutch, too. He declared that he was not Vangard.

"But you are a doctor? Then you have been the death of many, if not of young Feodor—so die!"

Finally they found Vangard, disguised as a beggar. They hauled him over to the palace. The other princesses—there were six without Nathalie—were friendly to him, and sued for his release; but the mutineers said that he was a sorcerer and deserved death for that, as well as for being a physician. They had found in his laboratory a stuffed toad and a serpent skin. Is it not by these signs that a wizard is known? Meanwhile they still wanted Ivan Naryschine, and, as they were sure he was hid in the palace, they declared that they would set fire to it to settle him, with all his friends and abetters.

This frightened his sister and the other ladies. They went to his hiding place and told him that they could no longer keep his pursuers from him. The young man replied that he was ready to die, but prayed for religious comfort. The patriarch was sent for, and, giving him an image reckoned miraculous, led him out to the ruffians. But without respect for that, the patriarch, or the princesses, they pitilessly tore Ivan from his hands and drew him downstairs, to add him to Vangard, both doomed to death.

This death was the Chinese one of "cut into 10 thousand morsels," in plain words, hacked to mince. The deathsmen struck the hands, feet, and heads on pikes and paraded them under the balcony.

In the meantime Sophia had perceived the flight of the czarina and her son, Peter, and sent the Strelitz after them. The prince and his mother had gone a hundred miles when they saw the dust whirling up behind them. The shouts showed that they were espied. The woman, resolved to fight for her son's life to the uttermost, dragged him into the first church with her.

The boy was on the altar and the mother standing by it, both praying, when the bravoes entered. They broke down a sanctuary door, and one of them seized the prince and raised his saber, like Abraham's knife over his boy. But this head was predestined; some mounted gentlemen, passing, wheeled, rode inside, and stopped the guardsman's hand. Peter was saved for Russia!

Thereupon, for fear of being accused of fratricide, Sophia proclaimed Peter and Ivan to reign conjointly as czars, and constituted herself regent.

Czarina Nathalia led her boy to the Kremlin in trembling, but he was treated fairly, like a prince. In that capacity he began to make acquaintances.

But the Princess Sophia still had her projects. She sent the czarlet a hundred miles from Moscow, to a village known as Preobrajenski. A hundred young Russians were assigned to associate with him. If, as feared, the boy had any genius, debauchery should extinguish it.

In the midst of exercises, hardening his body, and fortifying his mind, Peter attained his 17th year. He was nearly 6 feet high and growing; he could sail a boat, go thru the manual with any weapon, and use broadax, hammer, and chisel with the most skilled carpenter; he could turn wood, carve, and draw; he spoke Dutch and German along with his mother tongue. With an opportunity he would reveal himself to all eyes. This opportunity soon came.

Peter Enters Moscow at Head of Regiment

In his absence Princess Sophia had had the imbecile Ivan wedded. Peter protested. At this, 600 Strelitz were marched against him. Forewarned, Peter assembled a trained band of soldiers and took refuge with them in that same vault of the Trinity church where his life had been saved so wondrously. Here he proclaimed himself as emperor, and called all faithful subjects to him. The nobles hastened to him; the patriarch, seeing on which side his bread was buttered, passed over; Princess Sophia was declared a usurper, and Peter triumphantly marched into Moscow at the head of his regiment.

The 18th century dawned as Peter stepped on the throne. Soon Tsikler and Sukanine, two leaders of the militia, fomented a conspiracy, in which the young czar, recognized intuitively as an irreconcilable enemy, should infallibly lose his life. The czar dead, they would bring Ivan out of his palace and Sophia out of her prison, and continue under their name the long reign of brutality, orgies, and pillage which is the career of prætorians.

How would the plotters arrive at their goal? Nothing more plain. No playing with a tiger cub! Set fire to a house; Peter would come a-running and mix with the crowd to put it out. A stab would finish him, and into the fire with all these outlanders who sullied the sacred soil!

Midnight was the chosen hour.

The bullies assembled at 11 to sup. Strong waters were not spared to give courage to the flinching. But, before that, two of the conspirators weakened. They begged audience of the threatened man and disclosed the regicide.

Peter took his measure, ordering his captain of guards to surround the meeting place at exactly half-past 11. When they were ready, he was going to leap into the midst and fix their fate! But impatience caused him to advance the hour. He thought his guards were to be on the spot at 11, and he to enter at a quarter-past. So that he found the partisans completely free, drinking, but with their swords by their sides. It was the czar who was caught!

Luckily, the lion could wear the fox's skin. With a smile on his lips, he stepped right into the thick of the amazed revelers.

"Comrades," he said, "thru the shutters I heard the clinking of glasses! My idea is that you were making merry! Room for one jolly fellow more!"

He seated himself among the party, poured out to himself, and raised his glass.

"To our health!" said he.

The intended assassins were forced to drink their victim's health!

But soon the surprised men looked at the situation soberly; menacing looks were exchanged; luck had managed things for them better than they could have arranged. The lamb was of its own impulse under the butcher's steel!

Tsikler bent over to Sukanine, and, half drawing his dagger from the sheath, whispered:

"Brother, it is time!"

But the other blenched.

"Not yet!" he breathed.

Peter caught this word and, at the same time, the sound of the soldiers' tramp without, to surround the house.

"Not yet?" repeated he. "If there is no time for you, dog, there is for me!"

Saved from Plotters by Arrival of Guards

And, springing at Sukanine, he felled him with a blow of the fist. A thundering yell of rage burst out; all the mutineers drew their swords. Herculean as was the daring man's strength, he must have succumbed, since there were a score of armed men against one. But the door was flung open, and the guards appeared on the sill.

"At last!" said Peter, with a laugh. By that the plotters saw that they were outdone. Without trying to defend themselves, they fell on their knees.

"Chains!" said the victor, laconically. He turned to his officer and boxed his ears, saying: "Is this your notion of exactness?"

The captain tranquilly drew the order from his belt. Peter read, "At 11 and a half precisely." He looked at his watch. It was now half-past 11. With the rapidity of intelligence or, rather, of fair play, he acknowledged his wrong, took the officer in his arms, embraced him three times in the Russian manner, proclaimed him true, and set him as custodian over the prisoners.

The wretches were put to torture, not to draw a confession, since they had all been taken red-handed, but to make them suffer all that could befall. They were dismembered, but not allowed to die as long as they had life to feel. Their heads were set on posts, and their limbs adorned the ground beneath.

In 1697, while Peter was in England, the Strelitz revolted again under the urging of Princess Sophia. Peter made such diligence in his return that he passed in at one gate of Moscow while the Strelitz prisoners were pouring in by another. It was the very occasion to finish with the brigands. He had them tried as ordinary assassins. Two thousand were doomed to be hanged and five thousand to lose their heads. This monstrous human battue lasted only one day. Peter was expeditious in such massacres. With his own hand he cut off one hundred of the first lot. He had a hundred axes distributed to his courtiers and he forced them to use them for 10 or 12 heads, when he allowed the soldiers to finish the horrible duty.

Only one Strelitz was spared. He was a fine young fellow, named Ivan. He was nicknamed the "Eagle" Orell. As he was led up on the block a corpse impeded the way. He spurned it, saying:

"Get out, it is my turn!"

This coolness impressed Peter.

"Mercy for him!" he called out to the man with the ax. That was not all. Peter placed the saved one in the ranks.

The solitary Strelitz acquired the rank of officer, and that made him a gentleman. His son, Gregory, governor general at Novgorod, had five sons known as the Orloff brothers. Alexis Orloff was the murderer of Peter III. Gregory was the favorite and almost the husband of Catherine the Great, whom he assisted to reign. The descendant of the Strelitz spared by Peter the Great was to establish Catherine the Great!

Three others had been spared, it is true, but for a worse fate. They had written an address calling the Princess Sophia to the throne. They were hanged close by the princess' room, one of them holding the petition in his hand so that his arm dangled in at the window. The order was that the man should hang until the paper dropped. This shock cured the princess of further thoughts of conspiracy.

TWIN SOMBREROS

By ZANE GREY

(Copyright: 1940: By Zane Grey.)

"Keep this secret in yore pretty haids . . . I'm gonna track down the murderers of yore brother—an' kill them!"

What Has Gone Before Riding the lone trail to Las Animas, with a letter in his pocket from the girl he wooed and lost, Brazos Keene, cool cowhand from Texas, encounters three others riders whose actions are strange. They advise him to put up for the night in a lonely cabin. Blood dripping from the loft of the cabin reveals to him that there has been foul play. About to ride away in the morning, he is seized by a posse headed by Deputy Sheriff Bodkin. On their ride to Las Animas the posse and Brazos meet a group of other riders, including the cattle baron Raine Surface and his beautiful daughter, Lura. After words between Surface and Bodkin the deputy halts along the way to hang Brazos for the murder of the man found in the loft of the cabin, Allen Neece. Inskip, another Texan and a member of the posse, gives Brazos a chance to seize his revolvers. Brazos grabs the guns, disarms the members of the posse and herds them into Las Animas, where he surrenders to Sheriff Kiskadden, also a Texan. The sheriff promises to give Brazos a square deal, and Brazos reads to him the letter from Holly Ripple Frayne, the girl back in Cimmarron, N. M. This letter bears a postscript by the girl's husband, Renn Frayne, in which the name Surface is linked to a suspicious drive of cattle thru his country. At his hearing in the murder case of young Neece, Brazos is set free when it is shown he could not have committed the crime. He soon enlists in the cause of Abe Neece, father of the murdered man, who has been fleeced out of the Twin Sombreros ranch. He meets Surface's daughter, Lura, and he hears glowing descriptions of Mr. Neece's two plucky daughters, the twins June and Janis, who operate the Twin Sombreros restaurant in Las Animas.

INSTALMENT IV.

BRAZOS KEENE rode slowly into Las Animas, oblivious to the glorious red and gold sunset, and to the numerous riders who passed by. He was still wrestling with that familiar urge to ride away. Always the safest thing to do!

Yet all the while he knew he had committed himself to a stern duty that could only end in bloodshed—all the while he admitted the damnable fascination of the intriguing tragedy of the Neeces.

The hour was somewhat after 5 o'clock when he arrived at the railroad station. The restaurant he sought had more prominence than the station itself and had been remodeled from an old adobe building he had difficulty in remembering. A second story had been added and the whole given a coat of whitewash. The building, the location, and the neat sign were all attractive. A hitching rail ran along in front. Brazos dismounted, still too soberly pondering his predicament to awake to the momentous meeting at hand. Tying Bay to the rail, he stalked with his clinking step into the restaurant, expecting to see the cowboy with whom he had an appointment. But Jack Sain was not there. So far as he could see at a moment's notice, the place was empty.

Brazos slid a long leg over the bench and, leaning upon the counter, looked about him. The inside of this new restaurant only added to the spotless white attractiveness of the outside.

"Dog-gone! This is shore a hash joint. Cowboys shore will stuff themselves heah. Wonder who run——"

At this juncture two things happened simultaneously—Brazos remembered the Neece twins, and a door opened to admit a girl. Brazos never figured out what gave him such a shock, but the fact was that never in his life before had any girl produced the effect this one had on him.

She was slight and graceful of form, fair haired but not blonde, and her face was white, sweet, sad. She had seen him before she entered and it struck Brazos that she did not act like a waitress. She approached him and, putting her hands on the counter, she leaned forward.

Her eyes were a tawny light brown. They engulfed Brazos. They searched his very soul. They appeared to Brazos to be the loveliest, saddest, most accusing eyes that ever shook the heart out of a poor cowboy.

"Brazos Keene?" she asked.

"Wal, I—I was thet pore hombre when I come in heah," he said, fighting to smile, "but I cain't say now for shore."

"I am—June Neece," she returned, her low voice breaking a little. "We were sorry you were arrested and locked up on——"

"Thet was nothin' atall, Miss Neece," interrupted Brazos with unconscious pathos. "Shore I hardly ever ride into a town but somethin' like thet happens. I'm a marked man. . . . As for the cause this time, wal, I oughtn't remind you aboot . . . but I swear to Gawd I'm innocent. . . ."

"Don't," she interposed, earnestly. "If you had not been proved innocent I would have known you were innocent." And she pressed a warm little hand in Brazos' upturned palm and left it there while she turned to call: "Jan, come here."

Then it appeared to the bewildered and thrilling cowboy that another June Neece walked in.

"Jan, this is he," said the first tawny eyed vision to the second, and then to him, with a little smile, "My sister, Janis."

These Twin Sisters Couldn't Be Told Apart

There was absolutely no telling these twin sisters apart. The one called Janis blushed and a bright glow suddenly burned out the shadow in her eyes.

"Brazos Keene? O, I am glad to meet you," she exclaimed and, repeating her sister's action, she put her hand in his other as it lay on the counter.

"Wal, I shore am happy to meet yu-all," responded Brazos, coming to himself. There they stood, these unfortunate twins, holding his hands. It was a beautiful, wonderful fact. Two pairs of tawny eyes instead of one pair gazed at him with a soft, warm light of faith, of sympathy. That was the moment Brazos Keene had wanted; that was the spark which set him afire.

Brazos enfolded both of these little white hands in his own hard ones and held them tight. "June an' Janis," he said intensely, "I didn't just happen to ride along heah. There's somethin' back of it. I've met your friend, Jack Sain. Hank Bilyen is an old pard of mine. He took me oot to meet yore dad. An' I've heahed yore story."

"O, I hope Dad was not unjust to you," interposed June. "He's so strange—so dazed——"

"Yore father is a fine man—a real westerner. I told him I was pretty shore aboot what had become of the herd of Texas longhorns he sold to Surface, but lost on the trail north."

"O, are you sure?" entreated Janis, squeezing his hand. June gazed at him mutely as if he were a phenomenon too good to be true.

"Wal, I'd gamble on it."

"That is what Allen was trying to find out. He confided in me."

"Ahuh. Then yore brother was workin' on this deal?"

"Allen swore he'd never rest until he'd got our—our Twin Sombreros ranch back again," answered Janis, with tears brimming her eyes.

Brazos succumbed to the moment, realizing its inevitableness, and that perhaps he was swearing away his life. But the bewitching nearness of these girls, the sense of a great part he had been destined to play in their lives, magnified all his old spirit to do, his reckless disregard of self. He drew the girls closer over the counter, while he flashed a wary look around.

"Listen," he whispered. "An' keep this secret in yore pretty haids. . . . I'm gonna track down the murderers of yore brother—an' kill them! An' what's more, I'm gonna run Surface oot of the ranch he stole from yore dad an' put yu' back there!"

The street door banged, interrupting whatever eloquent acceptance appeared to tremble on the sweet lips of the Neece twins. Jack Sain came tramping in, his sleepy eyes alight, his smile infectious.

"Howdy, Brazos. I see you've got acquainted without my help," he remarked as the girls withdrew their hands from Brazos' grip.

"Jack, we introduced ourselves all around," replied Janis, gayly. June was silent, tho she smiled at the young man.

"Wal, Sain, heah yu air, an' I clean forgot yu," drawled Brazos. "Yes, I've met yore friends an' am I glad? I've been tellin' them what tough luck I'd been playin' in not to be heah long ago. An' thet I'd shore make up for it."

"Jack, this Brazos cowboy is not so slow," said Janis, teasingly.

"Slow! Never in this world could you apply that word to Brazos Keené. Let's get our order in before the gang comes rollin' along," suggested Sain.

"Order? Gang? Say, am I loco?" ejaculated Brazos, mildly.

"You are, an' it tickles me. I'll bet you couldn't ask June or Jan to serve you ham an' eggs—not to save your life."

"Ham an' eggs? Wal, I'll be doggoned! No, I cain't."

"Boys, what will you have?" asked one of the twins. The other had turned to the vanguard of hungry visitors now flocking from all directions.

"Aw, air you June or Janis?" queried Brazos helplessly.

"Never mind. Either of us can serve you. But hurry. We will be swamped soon."

Makes Believe He Has Lost His Appetite

"I was starvin' to death when I come in, but now I cain't eat," declared Brazos, eloquently.

"Ha! Ha! Didn't I have a hunch?" laughed Sain, evidently delighted at something not apparent to Brazos. "I'll order double. Steak, medium, mashed potatoes an' gravy, bread an' butter, coffee—an' tell that Mexican cook Billy the Kid is out here."

While the restaurant rapidly filled with a crowd of various types and the young waitresses flitted to and fro from customers to kitchen and back again, Brazos listened to his voluble friend and eagerly watched for June without any hope whatever of being able to tell which of the twins really was June.

"Ahuh. Wal——" replied Brazos, leisurely complying.

"Kinda spick an' span, at that. But he's got a nice face. Who is he?"

"Henry Sisk, an' he has a nice face, I'm bound to admit. Too damn nice! Women like him a heap!"

"Don't blame them. How aboot June an' Janis, heah?"

"June couldn't see him with a telescope. But I got a hunch Jan likes him. Anyway, it's Jan he 'pears to be courtin'."

"How'n hell does he know which one he's courtin'?"

"He doesn't, unless they tell him, you can bet your roll on thet."

"How do yu tell, cowboy?"

Sain reddened perceptibly, but was not ashamed of it. "I don't. Only the girls are decent enough to give me a hunch."

"Gosh! What'd yu do if they didn't steer you?"

"Brazos, I'd be a plumb crazy cowboy, believe me. But don't get a wrong notion. Both June an' Janis have been friendly to me. That's all. I never even had nerve enough to hold June's hand. They're not the flirtin' kind, Brazos."

"So I see. Wal, how aboot this Henry Sisk? Is he a decent hombre?"

"Yes. I'm jealous, I reckon. Henry is young, good lookin', rich, an' a fine fellow."

"Wal, I'll see if I approve of him," drawled Brazos coolly, as he swung sidewise over the bench. "Jack, yu order apple pie an' milk for me, if yu get a chance."

Brazos gave his heavy belt a hitch and took several slow strides over to the table where young Sisk sat, glowering at no one in particular. His

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Just as truly a breath of spring as the first flowers in the florists' windows is one of the new makeups. It's called "watermelon red," which should give you a perfect idea of the shade of the rouge and lipstick.

White hyacinths in the florists' windows, vivid prints in the dress sections, gay flowers on millinery, and brighter makeup on faces! It all means that spring is on its way and, until it arrives, we women are indulging in the little luxury known as the "pickup."

One of the best of these pickups is a new, exciting "watermelon red" makeup, light, feminine, and gay, wonderful to brighten your dark winter things and fashion right with the spring things that you've already bought to keep your wardrobe and your spirits up.

The rouge and lipstick are a brand new shade, not yellow, not blue, but not a shrill, hard red. They're exactly that rich, luscious shade of the sun-ripened watermelon. Keyed to these two items are powder, foundation lotion, and eyeshadow, so that the whole makeup is perfectly matched and universally flattering.

The ensemble [you can get the items separately] comes in a cunning makeup box, amusingly shaped like a wedge of watermelon, its color showing the green of the rind, the red of the meat, and the black of the seeds. Compactly housed inside are the rouge, the lipstick, eyeshadow, and a small vial of one of the softest, smoothest foundation lotions ever created. The box is delightful and the contents quite superior.

The lipstick case is aquamarine blue enamel dotted with tiny gold stars. Quite something to flash, being virtually a piece of costume jewelry. The texture of the lip rouge approximates perfection and the color won't change on your lips after an hour of wear. Cheek rouge in the matching shade may be either cream or dry, as you prefer. Eyeshadow is peacock green, a stunning complement to the unusual shade of the rouges.

Stomach Pains? How to Forget Them

An important discovery for stomach pains caused by excess acid is the use of bismuth. It coats the lining of the stomach on the sensitive parts, thus preventing the irritating action of digestive secretions and foods. Udga Tablets contain bismuth and other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. They have been praised by thousands. Try a 25c box of Udga for relief of stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, for heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid. Udga Tablets are safe to use and must help or your money refunded. At good drug stores everywhere.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Bedroom lavatories are being seen with increasing frequency in new houses and those which have been remodeled. There are reasons for this, since a lavatory in a bedroom saves steps and reduces bathroom traffic. Of all the plumbing fixtures, the lavatory probably offers the widest latitude of choice. More than 200 different types of lavatories are available at the present time, and some of the modern lavatories, with their generous shelf space, which can be used as make-up shelf, seem especially designed for boudoir occupancy.

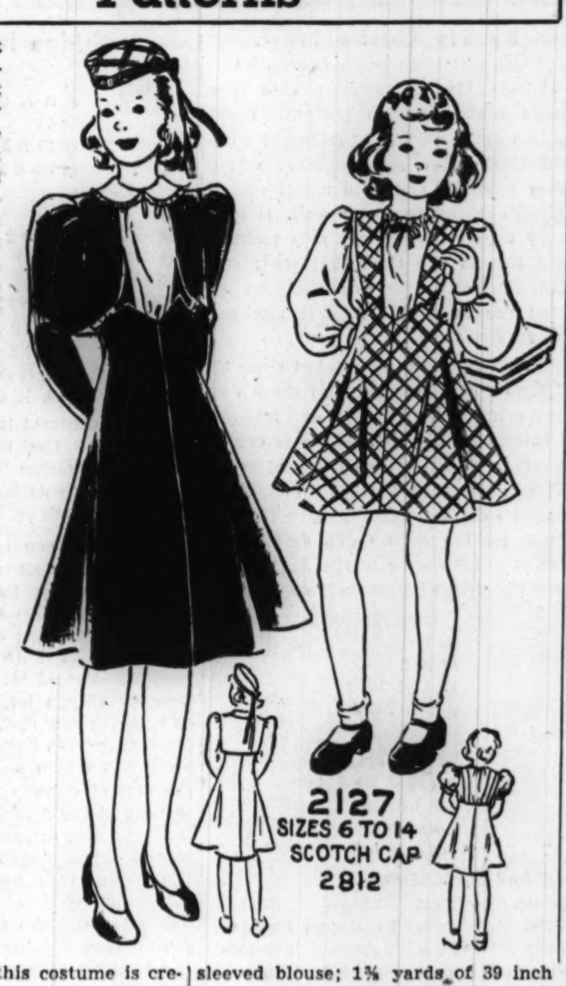
Clotilde Children's Patterns



The Scotch hat is not the only indication of thrift in this early spring costume for the youngest set. There's plenty of economy in the outfit of jumper, blouse and bolero. Its component parts may do varied duty in the wardrobe and the style is so simple that it requires a minimum of time to keep in a condition of neatness and cleanliness.

The jumper has an unusual pointed waistline that also is rather high. The skirt is gored for flare, so there are no plaits. The blouse, of contrasting sheer cotton or silk, may have long or short sleeves, a collar or a drawstring neckline. There's unusual charm in the waist-high bolero with its long puffed sleeves.

The original of this costume is created in navy blue woolen, with the blouse in soft yellow chiffon. A dainty scheme such as this is Easter fare supreme, and made of soil-resistant plaid or plain, with a washable blousette, it goes to school and daytime rough-house parties with the greatest of ease.

The hat pattern, available for 10 cents extra, is No. 2812, and fashions a typically Scotch chapeau with streamers in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10.

Style No. 2127 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 1 yard of 35 inch material for short-sleeved blouse; 1⅜ yards of 39 inch for jumper; ¾ yard for bolero.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Home Owners' Queries

CHICAGO [To the Home Building Editor].—We have been advised, since we are planning to build a small, rather box-like home [for strict economy's sake] to use a covered passage between house and detached garage as one means of widening the effect of house? Is this practical? GEORGE T.

Answer: Yes, a nice solution of your problem, if your lot is wide enough.

AURORA.—Why don't more people build apartments above the family garage? Is this ever done up north? I have such an idea in mind, but can't find much enthusiasm for it anywhere. K. J.

Answer: It has been done, very effectively, in certain instances "up north here." It has to be well done, of course. Apartment must be insulated, well heated, and well designed. See a good architect, tell him just what you want. Or contact a good builder or modernizing firm.

CHICAGO [To the Home Building Editor].—I can't see why a four room home cannot be built with a kitchenette, instead of either a kitchen or a dining room. In that way you could have much more space for living room, and larger bedrooms, and still keep cubic house contents low. LEONARD JONES.

Answer: It is perfectly possible to build such a house. If that is what you want, see an architect or builder in regard to such a four room home. However, keep in mind that such a home, with an out of the ordinary floor plan, would not have the resale value of a house with a more conventional layout.

Sunday Etiquet Bans the Use of Formal Attire

Our mimeographed pamphlet, "Vacation Wardrobes," will help you to plan the kind and number of clothes to take with you on your winter vacation under the southern sun. Just send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

The question has come up as many as three times in one day, and that's rather remarkable, since it is not an everyday problem. It is the question of formal clothes on Sunday evening. And the answer is NO formal clothes on Sunday, any Sunday.

The reason is this:

Sunday is a most inappropriate day to entertain formally. This being the case, if people observed the sanctity and solemnity of Sunday there never would be an opportunity to wear white tie and tails on the sabbath. That means dinner clothes, too. And if there were no opportunity, the question never would arise.

But there are instances, I find, in which some persons make plans for formal parties either ignorantly or in spite of this long and wisely established custom. There also are some religious groups that don't observe the Sunday of the Christian religion, and so it is pointless with them to make any concessions. It is no more the sabbath than Monday, but it still creates a problem.

And the problem is this, that no matter how guests dress for the occasion, they will be wrong. The social tradition and the generally accepted custom are contrary to the local custom. This makes persons who "dress" on Sunday in response to a formal invitation conspicuous in the eyes of the rest of society, yet if they dress informally they are ignoring the command of the invitation and are conspicuous at the party, thus embarrassing themselves and their hostess.

The real solution is for hostesses not to plan formal parties on Sunday, no matter what their own personal religious belief. But until that milenium I can only give advice as to the universal custom, and that prospective guests can take their choice of being overdressed for one group, or underdressed for another. It's a tossup.

Don't stop entertaining. Just keep your Sunday parties simple and informal.

Don't Be Fat!

Says Lovely Irene Rich

Now, without following a strict diet list, or taking exercises or drugs, it is possible to safely lose excess weight.

FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a surprisingly easy, pleasant method to reduce. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most important, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this proved method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.

Watch One Thing Carefully

Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅓ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Tweeds Return to Fashion in Higher Strata

By Bettina Bedwell.

Tweeds have come back to town. While some folks might say they hadn't noticed that coats and suits of this husky fabric had ever left town, they would be wrong. The presence of tweeds around city streets means nothing in fashion's highfalutin' strata unless they're on 24 carat backs. And that's just where they haven't been for some years now. Today it is different. Present at fashionable luncheons and other urban daytime goings-on are tweed suits and coats. They're worn to the accompaniment of sables, mink and fox furs, likewise feathered hats and fancy jewelry.

Tweeds for town started off being news in London some months ago, and tweeds in the West End had been considered an unthinkable social error by the best people for a long time. Then they got to be news in Paris, when Capt. Molyneux' stables of aristocratic devotees took them out to lunch and afternoon doings. Now they're introduced in America by "our betters."

I must say they look good, these first tweed suits, usually worn under a fur coat, and these sleek tweed coats with their luxury fur accompaniment. Quality is woven into the threads of fine tweed and can't be faked. Sleeker townish materials can get by even tho they are made of doubtful stuff, but tweed has to deliver the goods, and a dose of first rate quality is just what the styles need, particularly material quality.

I notice that the new town tweeds don't come in spectacular colors. They come in subtle and sophisticated shades, such as gold, pussyfoot pink, lichen green, brown in infinitely soft tones, and delicate, smoky gray. A very new shade of tweed called "technical white," which is the off-white that fine wool alone has, is being made up into companionate suits with a long and short skirt, and which are worn for both day and evening. Mixed tweed, and plain piece-dyed tweed is what the snooty folks choose for town, rather than the sportier checks, stripes and plaids. Paste this fact in your hatband for reference when you go shopping.

A sleek and streamlined body is inseparable from the chic of tweeds for town. Suits usually are made with fitted, quite short jackets, and easy, moderately flared skirts. Coats are fitted, fastened invisibly, and have small collars or none at all. Big pockets, dear to sports styles, are capoot for town tweeds.

Helen Cookman, one of the distinguished American designers, is very important in this town tweed movement that's getting along so well. She prefers to work in tweed and does it superbly. She's been working with the weavers of Scotch tweeds for years, and the tweeds she uses are enough to make you break down and cry for joy, they're so beautiful.

Blouses, made of sheer white tweed, are another item that Miss Cookman likes and makes. These often are made of the material in technical white, and they're just what a tweed suit needs to make it adequate for a day in town when the wind at the corners bites into your bones. Rather formal silk blouses, with drapery at the bosom, also are charming with these tweed suits.

Sample of the tweed suit for a suave, worldly and elegant place is one which Helen Cookman makes of gold and brown flecked tweed. The short, fitted jacket is trimmed with worked bands of self-material on the collar and the set-in pickets, and it closes invisibly up the front. A white tweed blouse with long sleeves and a high collar goes with this suit. A chechia hat covered with gold ostrich and fox furs are a tuneful accompaniment.

Another coat from the same designer is made of blurred wood brown tweed, closed sight unseen and fitted above a flaring skirt. Sable furs make warmth and beauty around the neckline, and a small, many colored feather hat from John-Frederics goes handsomely at the top.

Made of technical white tweed, with two skirts, is another suit. A belt and tweed purse pocket may be worn with either skirt. The short closely fitted jacket buttons up to a collarless neckline, and blue and white arithmetic beads are worn over it at the neckline.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: by Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: This is a hand that came up tonight. I sat North and a very good friend of mine sat South. We play together whenever possible, and as a result understand each other pretty well. It isn't very often that we get into trouble, but this is one time that we really did. And, of course, as is about 90 per cent the case, this time it was not necessary.

"We were both wrong, but since he flatly refuses to admit that there was any error in his bidding, and because I think that his was the major crime, I refuse to admit that I was at fault. The holdings of the East and West hands I don't remember, save that almost all the high cards except the ace of spades were in the East hand. The other two hands were as follows:

♥ K 2
♦ A K 9 6 3
♣ 9 8 7 6 4

SOUTH
♠ K J 10 6 4
♥ 9 8 7 6
♣ J 10 5 3

"And the bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 diamond	1 heart
Pass	Pass	2 clubs	2 hearts
Double [1]	Pass	Pass [2]	Redouble
Pass [3]	Pass	3 clubs [4]	Pass
3 spades [5]	Pass	Pass [6]	Double
Pass [7]	Pass	Pass

"We were down four tricks vulnerable for a rousing 1,100 point set. My partner was so upset he scored it 11,000, and the argument set in. Let us take it point by point.

"[1] The double. This, he maintained, was an asking double, which is something new to me and, I hope, to you. He realized that we had no game, but felt that if I had a really strong hand we might have a chance to set the opponents and was asking me if I thought so. His early pass showed me, he said, that his hand was weak. However, I interpreted the pass and the double together as showing at least strength in hearts and as having neither of my suits. Since the hearts had been bid twice and I had the king, I did not place any high hearts in his hand.

"[2] My pass. He argued that under no circumstances could I accept the double because of my distribution, and I admit this is the weak point in my argument. But, to make my crime lighter, I must say that the two of us are in the habit of believing each other's doubles, and since I still have never heard of an asking double, and this at this point could hardly have been an informatory double, no matter how you stretch it, I was duty bound to accept it for business. My king of hearts looked pretty big, if only to drive out my opponents' high ones, and while not probable, there was a possibility of a spade ruff. Also, I had no more to bid since he had shown no preference to my suits.

"[3] and [4]. After the redouble he should have showed me not only that his hand was so pitifully weak, but that he preferred clubs by simply bidding three clubs, as I did when it came my turn to bid. I just smelled a rat and ran.

"[5] Referring to the three spade bid, which is almost the crowning glory: His case rested on the argument that if both or even only one of my bid suits had been but four cards in length, I might have had a few spades, possibly a high one—a fact that he had no right to assume since my strength was obviously concentrated in the two suits mentioned.

"Here the argument began to get really warm, and he began to build up my hand to what he pictured it principally dating from the time I accepted his double, maintaining that he was sure I had at least 3½ honor-tricks. It did me no good to mention that had I had such a count I should have bid not two, but three clubs over one heart. While it would not have been the best bid, it would not have been the worst one.

"[6] What else could I do?

"[7] He meant to bid four clubs, but in the excitement he forgot to. Even tho it was a terrible boner, at this late stage nothing mattered much.

"Well, that is the hand, Mr. Culbertson, and when you find another one as badly mistreated by two people who like to believe they know this thing called contract bridge that you and a few of your friends have presented us, let me know.

"While I have tried to present his side as well as my own, I honestly don't think he has much of a defense, and that for bad bids that double of his, to say nothing of the subsequent three spade matter, is pretty near tops. It just doesn't make sense.

"I can't help but think how much trouble would have been averted if, instead of doubling, my partner had either bid three clubs or if he preferred, passed—which is still a mighty informative bid.

"I don't think my friend will accept the authority of any one less than you, so if you would be kind enough to point out the error of both our ways, we would both not only accept your decision and reprimand, but would also appreciate it very much.

"D. R., Illinois."

Perhaps the most interesting thing about this deal is the amazing number of errors that South managed to crowd into his six opportunities to bid. Four of his declarations merit a long string of adjectives, all uncomplimentary, and one of the two remaining can be given no better than a passing grade. Thus, South's batting average on these six trips to the plate is about .220. As a matter of fact, since his only guiltless bid—his original pass—can be figured as no better than a base on balls, his total percentage sinks to the ignominious figure of about .200. He cannot be given great credit for having failed to open the bidding with that particular holding.

Considered against South's performance, North's record on this hand seems almost sterling. The one grave mistake North made was to rebid on the second round when South [presumably] could find no bid or raise over East's one heart. North had opened the hand with minimum strength, and when the heart bid came over him, his heart king virtually dissolved. Hence, it was extremely optimistic, to put it mildly, for him to reopen the bidding with his miserable club suit. If this hand took place at match-point duplicate, this criticism automatically would become reduced to a mild reproof.

Taking up each bid in order:

As indicated, South's original pass and North's one diamond bid are approved. South's second round pass is not approved. He should have grasped the occasion to show his spade suit cheaply at the one level. It is because players restrain themselves from such "stretching" that they later give way to the temptation of showing the same suit and weak hand at a dangerous level—witness South's three spade bid.

As noted, North should have passed to the one heart. Surely he could not hope to "go anywhere" in either of his minor suits, and there was the great danger that East-West might come to life and bid for game which, from North's holding, could be made without any difficulty.

South's double of two hearts was incomprehensible. He had no trump trick; he had no diamond to lead to his partner's opening bid; in fact, he had no sure trick in his whole hand. North's pass to his double, tho undoubtedly very "close," is in my opinion justified. True, he had "lied" about his general strength when he reopened the bidding with two clubs, but as against this, he had the king and one heart which, after South's double, would presumably have greater defensive value than the king of spades or clubs, for example. After all, North could not dream that South's double was so outrageous; he could not know that South could not open a diamond, in which case he [North] would be able to return the singleton spade and possibly get in at least one ruff—in short, from North's point of view, two hearts might be easily and perhaps substantially defeated, whereas North-South could go nowhere.

South's pass to the redouble was awful. Certainly by this time he should have realized that his own double had no bells on it; that he should have sat tight and accepted the redouble is beyond comprehension.

North was shrewd and intuitive to run from the redouble.

South's three spade bid does not get a jet black mark because it might well have been used as a tentative bid with the intention of running to four clubs if the opponents doubled.

North's pass to three spades was correct. As he himself asks: What else could he do?

South's final pass has been reported as a slip, the result of excitement. This, however, can't possibly be considered an excuse. The essence of good bridge is coolness under fire, and perhaps the worst thing that can be said of a player is that he loses his head and "forgets" all about the lines of retreat which he himself has prepared.

It is to be hoped, however, that the 11,000 points erroneously put down was readjusted in North-South's favor.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

South's contract is seven diamonds. West opens the heart ten. Which would you rather have—the East-West cards to defeat the contract or the North-South cards to fulfill it?

Answer—If you are wise you will take the East-West cards; but, putting yourself in the East position, you must be very alert to defeat the contract. South wins opening lead and ruffs a heart with dummy's 10 of trumps. You, East, must discard a trump! If you let go a spade or a club, South now draws all the trumps, discarding from dummy a card of that black suit which you still guard, and the rest of dummy is good after the cashing of the A K Q of clubs. When, however, you discard a trump on the second trick, South cannot squeeze you out of your black suit stoppers inasmuch as you will then follow dummy's discard, i. e., if on the fourth trump lead dummy lets go a spade, you let go a spade; if a club, you discard a club.

Parents Need Enlightenment on Teen Age

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Parental confusion is fairly rife in this country of ours respecting boy and girl relationships. And no small part of adolescent perplexity in romantic situations may be laid at the door of this parental doubt and dismay in the face of rapidly changing social conditions.

Upon this premise Dr. Oliver M. Butterfield in "Love Problems of Adolescence" [Emerson] succeeds in calling parental attention to the fact that the conditions that worry and sometimes frighten them have no particular locale. They are general the country over. Young people everywhere ask the same questions. To mention a few:

"What is the harm in kissing?"

"Is it all right to kiss a boy [or girl] if you just like him [or her]?"

"What should a girl do when her family dislikes her friends?"

"Should a girl ask a boy to come to her house to see her?"

"Should one go 'steady' with a girl at our age [15 to 18]?"

"How may one keep from being jealous?"

"How can I be popular?"

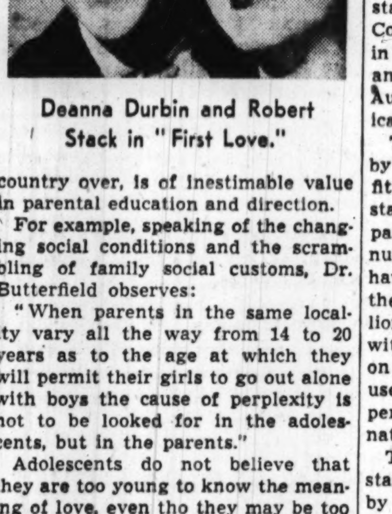
The adolescent mind runs pretty much in the same direction during the emotion budding years. And parents [this we feel to be Dr. Butterfield's important message] are in need of enlightenment in order to meet the perplexities of youth with better understanding and sympathy. Our feeling is that a perusal of Dr. Butterfield's book, based on observation and study of young groups the country over, is of inestimable value in parental education and direction.



Deanna Durbin and Robert Stack in "First Love."

For example, speaking of the changing social conditions and the scrambling of family social customs, Dr. Butterfield observes:

"When parents in the same locality vary all the way from 14 to 20 years as to the age at which they will permit their girls to go out alone with boys the cause of perplexity is not to be looked for in the adolescents, but in the parents."

Adolescents do not believe that they are too young to know the meaning of love, even tho they may be too young to marry. They also resent the idea that their love is not deep or sincere, as implied by adults who talk of "puppy love" and "calf love."

Dr. Butterfield says that young love can be sincere, altho not as stable as mature love, but it should not be ridiculed. To deprecate the emotion or ridicule it leaves youth completely confused and baffled when it comes to making the final choice in love relationships.

In many sections of the country, Dr. Butterfield reminds us, the older conventions of polite society have been radically affected by postwar conditions. The increasing sense of freedom which has come to the modern girl, in education, in business, in social mobility, tends to cause her to regard lightly many of the formalities of an earlier period which were intended to protect her from the unwelcome attentions of the other sex.

"With almost complete freedom to come and go where she pleases without chaperon or escort, and with equal freedom in education, sports, and employment, it is too much to expect that the girl of today will continue to hold the standard of maidenly reticence that characterized her mother and grandmother. Automobiles, allowances, and telephones have served to implement the modern girl's wishes, so that in many quarters girls have nearly as much to say as boys about the making of dates and arranging for social entertainment."

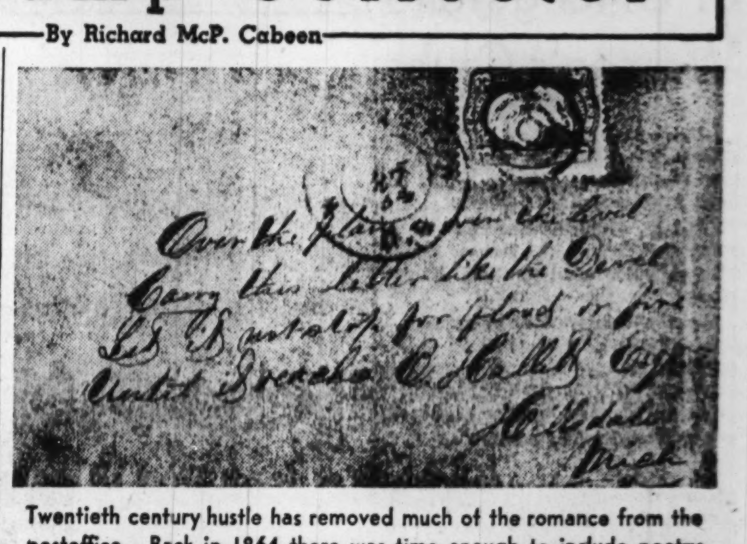
The reason why modern young people have turned to the dance floors, the theaters, and highways for their courting, Dr. Butterfield thinks, is found in the way some families make it very difficult for girls to invite their boy friends to call, by the way in which they tease them, and also by their unwillingness to arrange matters so that the couple have some degree of privacy during their visits.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of The Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Twentieth century hustle has removed much of the romance from the postoffice. Back in 1864 there was time enough to include poetry in the direction of the letter. This is simply an elaboration of the inscription, "Haste, Post Haste," which was used in earlier times.

The second group of stamps of the Famous Americans series honors poets and will be brought to the attention of collectors and patrons of the postoffice when the 1 cent and 2 cent values are placed on sale next week. The 1 cent stamp will be green and will bear a portrait of Henry W. Longfellow. It will have its first day sale at Portland, Me., on Feb. 16. On the same day the 2 cent stamp honoring John Greenleaf Whittier will be placed on first day sale at Haverhill, Mass.

Collectors desiring first day postmarks on these stamps may send not to exceed 10 addressed envelopes to the postmaster at the proper city, together with a cash or postal money order remittance covering the exact cost of stamps to be affixed to the covers. Place a pencil notation in the upper right hand corner of each envelope where it will be covered by the stamps stating how many stamps are to be affixed.

Forward the prepared covers and remittance in an envelope addressed to the postmaster at the proper city and mark the envelope prominently in the lower left corner: "For first day cover service, Famous Americans series."

Collectors are again cautioned to allow for at least three 1 cent stamps or two 2 cent stamps on covers except on covers for local delivery in first day cities where two 1 cent stamps or one 2 cent will suffice. A great many collectors, according to information received from the postal authorities, sent remittances of only 1 cent for the recent Washington Irving covers and will not receive the expected covers. The official first day postmark will not be placed on any mail bearing less postage than one first class rate.

The 2 cent red commemorative stamp which was placed on sale at Cooperstown, N. Y., on Jan. 29, was in honor of James Fenimore Cooper, and was the second value of the Authors section of the Famous Americans series to be issued.

The stamp design measures 85-100 by 98-100 inch, and plates curved to fit the rotary presses contain 280 stamp subjects arranged in four panes of 70 each. Plates bearing numbers 22477, 22478, 22479, and 22490 have been made for this stamp and the printing of the order of 50 million stamps of this value was started with the first two mentioned plates on Dec. 15. Plates are designed for use with both types of electric eye perforating machines and are designated "electric eye, convertible."

The portrait of Cooper used for this stamp is copied from a daguerreotype by Brady in the L. C. Handy collection. William A. Roach is listed as the designer of the stamp, Harry R. Rollins engraved the portrait, Carl T. Arlt the frame, and William B. Wells the lettering.

James Fenimore Cooper was born at Burlington, Vt., on Sept. 15, 1789, and entered Yale in 1802. In 1805 he left school to join the navy, where he remained for six years. His first novel was published in 1821, and following this there appeared a rapid succession of stories connected with the revolutionary war, with pioneer life in America, and with the Indians. Intermingled with masterpieces such as "The Spy," "The Pilot," and "The Last of the Mohicans" were novels and biographical works. Cooper died at Cooperstown, N. Y., on Sept. 14, 1851.

"Minimum Essentials in Stamp Collecting" is the title of a new book for the philatelic library by Mrs. Gerald H. Burgess, in collaboration with Haughton Sanguinetti, philatelic adviser to the Massachusetts department of education.

The text is based upon the notes of Mrs. Burgess' late husband, who was organizer and instructor of the first course in stamp collecting in a state university. This course, which was given by Mr. Burgess at the University of Minnesota, has been described as compact and comprehensive, with an arrangement of basic philatelic knowledge designed to provide the beginning collector with a broad foundation.

The department of education of Massachusetts has approved "Minimum Essentials in Stamp Collecting" as a textbook for teaching stamp collecting in the schools of that state. The book will be used in connection with a course of eight lectures being given at Harvard university under the auspices of the Massachusetts department of education's division of university extension.

The volume contains 198 well illustrated pages, and its chapters discuss collecting both as a hobby and as a vocation. It reviews the history of collecting, tells how to start and develop collections, how to mount and write up the stamps, explains the use of accessories, catalogs, etc., explains paper perforation and printing varieties, and discusses the various sources of stamps. It is published at $2.50 by H. L. Lindquist, 2 West 46th street, New York.

The McKinley Stamp club of Canton, O., announces the ninth annual exhibition at the Belden hotel, in Canton, on Feb. 10 and 11. Lou W. Kreicker of Chicago, specialist in Penny Blacks, will be the speaker at the annual banquet. The McKinley Stamp club commemorate the 100th anniversary of postage stamps by issuing engraved poster stamps which show the McKinley monument in Canton, with inscriptions appropriate to the occasion. Robert L. Chapman, 312 3d street, N. W., will answer queries if a stamped and addressed envelope is inclosed.

Pilgrim Cachets, P. O. Box 158, Bergenfield, N. J., announces printed two color cachets for the birthdays of 31 Presidents. Collectors may start at any time and run thru the series in one year. There is a series of cachets showing the 52 seals of the states and territories which are mailed from capital cities on anniversary dates thruout the year. Pilgrim Cachets also provides cachet service for the Famous Americans series. Full information may be obtained by writing to the above address.

New Fancy for the Tea Table Involves Coconut

For a new tea table fancy try this: Spread rolled-out, rich pastry dough with coconut mixed with a little cinnamon and nuts. Press well into the dough so that it will stick when baked. Using a sharp knife, cut into strips 2 inches long and ½ inch wide. Carefully transfer to a baking sheet and bake until brown—about four minutes. Cool and serve.

Boiled Rice.

A grayish, greenish or yellowish color in boiled rice may be caused by alkali in the water; if so, a pinch of cream of tartar, a little vinegar, or a slice of lemon added to the boiling water will remove it.

Mercolized Wax Cream Skin Bleach Beautifier Lightens the Complexion

A LIGHTER, lovelier complexion can be acquired with the aid of Mercolized Wax Cream. This fragrant, dainty cosmetic contains active ingredients for flaking off the dull, drab surface skin in tiny, almost invisible particles to reveal the fresher, prettier underskin. Freckled or suntanned skin is lightened.

Mercolized Wax Cream has been famous as a complexion lightener for over a quarter century. Get a jar of Mercolized Wax Cream today. Apply it to your skin every night like a cold cream. While you sleep, this delightful cream bleaches your skin to a fairer, more attractive appearance.

PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Removes Superfluous Hair. Try this quick, easy-to-use facial hair remover. Not a powder. Not a cream. Phelactine Depilatory lifts out the surface hair as well as the part embedded in the follicle below the surface.

Let me be your Bridge Teacher

. . . says ELY CULBERTSON

"I will teach you myself . . . at home . . . in your leisure time . . . quickly, easily."

WHAT wouldn't you give to play winning bridge—the nation's favorite pastime! Think of the friends you would make . . . and think of the time and money you would save. Remember, a good bridge player is eagerly sought after at parties, on vacations, wherever people gather for fun.

And what wouldn't you give to learn direct from the world's greatest expert, Ely Culbertson himself!

Probably you have promised yourself that "some day" you, too, would really learn good bridge. You need delay no longer. Ordinarily it would cost you a small fortune to learn from Ely Culbertson himself.

But Mr. Culbertson's New Studio Method, a revolutionary idea in bridge teaching, makes it easy to learn in a surprisingly short time—at a cost so low you can hardly believe it.

A COMPLETE COURSE OF "PERSONAL" STUDIO LESSONS . . . PLAY AS YOU LEARN

It's just as though you were having personal lessons from Ely Culbertson himself! You "talk" with Mr. Culbertson. But you learn in the privacy of your own home.

Clear, conversational lessons are sent to you, just as often as you wish them. With each lesson you get a "quiz" which you return, with your answers, to Mr. Culbertson himself. Mr. Culbertson then returns your quiz with personal comments on your answers—written only for you!

Inexperienced players or average players soon become fine players. Advanced players become experts. And a beginner, in a surprisingly short time, finds himself fully at ease in any bridge game. You learn how to win and still be the most popular player at the bridge table.

It's fun to learn by Ely Culbertson's New Studio Method. It's an enjoyable, profitable way to spend your leisure time.

Don't delay! Take the first step toward being a good bridge player. Send today for Ely Culbertson's FREE BOOK: "How to Become a Good Bridge Player." Send this coupon NOW!

Europe Makes the Most of Wartime Food

By X. Marcel Boulestin.

[Reprinted from Sketch magazine, London, England.]

A GREAT number of women now do their own cooking. I understand that they are adapting themselves marvelously to that new state of affairs and showing achievements of which a professional cook would be proud. No doubt they find it easy enough.

I have often explained how a perfectly good dinner of four courses can be cooked from beginning to end in one hour; and I hope they follow that admirable rule—the maximum of results with the minimum of trouble. But perhaps a reminder of certain principles would be useful. One of the great objections people make to cooking is that "it makes such a mess" in the kitchen. I cannot emphasize too much that mess is entirely unnecessary. Nor is there any need to have a great many saucepans to make a great many dishes if they remember that other excellent rule—wash up as you go along.

You must always have in the kitchen, however small it is—indeed, the smaller it is the more reason for you to be tidy—a supply of hot water, soda, and kitchen soap. You need not have more than two kitchen knives, a small one and a large one, but they must be made of good steel and often sharpened. A damaged table knife discarded from the dining room is not good enough, except for peeling vegetables, for the work is much simplified if you have a sharp knife. That good kitchen knife can be used for everything and all the time; the moment you have finished cutting this or that, wash the knife and it is ready to be used again immediately.

While I am on that subject, here is a most useful tip: Some things, like fish, onion, celery, have a persistent smell and people often complain that they cannot get rid of it [another objection to cooking: it makes the hands smelly]. The tip is this: When you have cut or touched one of the things I have mentioned, never wash your knife or your hands in hot water. If you use cold water there will be no trace of unpleasant smell at all. In the case of the hands, the hot water opens the pores of the skin, and that is why you cannot get rid of the smell, but the cold water system is quite safe.

As for saucepans, the moment you have finished with one, while it is still hot, clean it with hot water and soda; if you put it aside it will become greasy with congealed fat or solidified butter and is then most unpleasant to deal with. Also, that is the beginning of the mess. . . . Plates can easily be washed, too, if they are put in a basin full of hot water the moment they have been used.

As regards silver, I can from experience recommend this: Put forks and spoons in very hot water, with quite a lot of soap, so that the water is really frothy and they will come out very shiny. But do not be mean about cloths; do not try to use a wet cloth to dry things; have always three or four going and use for glasses only good linen ones. Nothing is more ugly on a dinner table than glasses that do not shine.

The following are a few dishes made with winter vegetables which can be served as separate dishes or as an accompaniment to some meat:

CHOUX DE BRUXELLES LIMOUSINE. Clean some Brussels sprouts and remove the outside leaves; wash them well and cook them in boiling salted water on a quick fire for 15 or 20 minutes; then see if they are soft enough, and drain them well. Have some chestnuts, roast them first, then remove the skins and finish the cooking in boiling water. Mix both chestnuts and sprouts, stir in a piece of butter, season with salt and pepper, and serve. For one pound of sprouts have about a dozen chestnuts.

CHOUX DE BRUXELLES MORNAY. The sprouts, as small as possible, being cooked and well drained, put them, seasoned with salt and pepper, in a fireproof dish, covered with a little Béchamel sauce. Sprinkle with grated cheese and brown in a fast oven or under the grill.

CHOU-ROUGE FLAMANDE. The red cabbage, usually served pickled as hors d'œuvre, is very good cooked and can be treated in several ways. Cut it in quarters, remove the hard parts, and cut it fairly finely. Put in a saucepan a small piece of butter, a tablespoonful of vinegar, salt, pepper, and the cabbage. Cook, stirring occasionally, with the lid on, on a slow fire for one hour and a half. Add then two eating apples, peeled and cut in quarters, a tablespoonful of sugar, and cook slowly for another hour.

In Denmark they add to it a tablespoonful of red currant jelly. In Alsace they use pork fat instead of butter and chestnuts instead of apples. It is often served with roast pork or roast goose. It should in any case be cooked slowly and for a long time.

PUREE DE POIREAUX. Boil the white part of some leeks in salt water till soft. Prepare a Béchamel sauce, not to stiff. Chop and mash the leeks, mix them with the sauce, cook a little more slowly, see that it is well seasoned, and serve. This is particularly good with mutton.

As a separate dish it should be garnished with croûtons fried in bacon fat, or it can be sprinkled all over with grated cheese and white breadcrumbs and browned quickly. Cold boiled leeks are very good served as a salad, plainly dressed.

French Novelty Blouse with Hood Has Practical Purpose

SIZES 12-42

By Bettina Bedwell.

We've had ski and skating suits with hoods, evening wraps and coats with the head covering, and even sports coats. Now the designers have gone a whimsical step farther and are putting hoods on tailored blouses. Don't ask me why, because there's very seldom an answer to "why" in the fashion world. All I know is what they tell me. One of my designer correspondents in Paris reports that these hooded blouses are being adopted enthusiastically by the feminine populace in the French capital. It may be the air raid atmosphere, but it stands to reason that such a blouse may be the answer to many a sports attire problem.

This particular design is constructed along softened, tailored lines, with a rather wide yoke and shirring beneath it. There's a bow at the base of the neckline where the hood joins the blouse. The short sleeves are puffed and cuffed, and the hood, which lies down as a voluminous collar when not in use on the head, is lined to contrast. The original, sent over by Clipper, is white sheer woolen with the hood lined in a "live" dark blue.

This style definitely has possibilities. There are times, even in balmy weather, when you are boating or motoring, that a head covering is essential to protect coiffure and the ears. With that practical thought in mind, we turn the style over to you for what you can make of it.

Style No. 5333 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting for hood lining.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns. 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Jewels at the Chignon.

Want to secure your curls together at the nape of the neck? Then try one of the platinum and diamond "curl-confiners"—something like the old-time barrett, except that it opens at the center, not the end.

By Sally Joy Brown.

The words "slum areas" are sometimes without definite meaning to the average person. Unless one has actually seen the miserable living quarters in which the poor of the city are concentrated, it is rather difficult to realize the great discomfort and inconvenience endured by the tenants of those crowded, crumbling structures. Inadequate heating and plumbing, rotting floors, and cracked windows, dingy rooms, frequently infested with vermin, frozen water pipes in winter, windows without screens in summer, these are some of the obstacles to decent living encountered by those in certain income brackets.

During the present severe weather heating such homes is a great problem, particularly when the floors are bare and draughty, as they are in most cases. For that reason we're passing on to you some of the numerous requests for floor covering of all kinds which have come to my desk.

Mrs. C. was deserted by her husband, and she and her three small children are living in a stove heated flat. The floors are bare and, consequently cold. A 9x12 rug would help to make this home more comfortable. The address is on the south side and transportation can be arranged.

Mr. W. is earning a small salary as a laborer. His income provides for no extras for his family of five, and their needs include a rug, standard size, and a baby buggy. The address is west of the loop, and Mr. W. will be happy to call for either item if some reader has it to offer.

Because her husband is ill and unemployable, Mrs. P. has had a hard time caring for her large family. She is much in need of several rugs, a full size bed, and a heater of some sort, preferably a garbage burner. The address is on the south side of the city.

Mrs. C., also on the south side, would be very grateful for a rug. The floors in her home are soft and splintering, and the small children frequently are scratched and injured while playing. Floor covering of any kind would be appreciated.

Mrs. W. always has worked hard to support her three children. She recently became ill, and can keep employment only for brief periods. One son now is working in a factory, earning a small salary which is the family's only income and barely covers necessities. They are in need of rugs and can arrange transportation. The address is on the north side.

Mrs. T. lives west of the loop. There are no floor coverings in the home, and it is difficult to heat rooms without them. A 9x12 rug would help to make her living quarters more comfortable.

There are three children in the H. family on the north side. The father is ill and unemployed. They are able to purchase only a minimum amount of coal, and their stove heated flat is made more uncomfortable by their lack of rugs.

Mr. and Mrs. D. are an elderly couple with an invalid son. In order to economize they have moved into unfurnished quarters, altho they lack many necessities, including linoleum, kitchen table and chairs, dishes and utensils, and living room furniture. They are especially anxious to have an easy chair for their son, who, because of a heart condition, is most comfortable when sitting up.

Breakfast Set Joins Utility and Smartness

"Color Magic in Your Rooms," a helpful, practical little booklet for the home manager tells how to work out pleasing color schemes for every room in the house. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

In the maidless home it's a convenience to serve breakfast in the kitchen or in a small alcove nearby. And for the busy home manager a breakfast set that is attractive to look at and at the same time sturdy and easy to care for is the ideal one.

Choose, then, one of the smart five piece sets with table of porcelain enamel steel top. The porcelain enamel finish is popular not only because it always looks so clean and fresh and bright, but because its colors are fadeless and also because of its practical utility. It is as easy to clean as a china dish. A damp cloth is all that's needed to keep the table top spotless and shining.

Extremes of heat and cold won't affect this porcelain, either, since it has been fused to the steel base at a temperature of 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit. A cigaret left burning on the table edge can't damage the finish. Any mark it leaves can be removed with a damp cloth.

[Zylstra Photo.]

This good looking breakfast set, seen in a modern kitchen, has a table of porcelain enamel on steel. Such a surface is stainproof, impervious to heat or cold, and the colors in the attractive design are fadeless. The chairs of tubular chromium are upholstered in leatherette.

The new porcelain enamel table tops are stainless, too. No need to worry about milk or lemon juice or other acids that have been spilled.

With these tables come comfortable, good looking chairs in almost any color of upholstery. If the design of the table top is blue and white, the chairs can be in blue, to match. Or a red and white patterned table will have red chairs. Because of their tubular chromium construction, the frames are very springy, yet strong. The leatherette upholstered backs of the chair can be piped in a contrasting color, as are those shown in the photograph today.

The table in the picture has extension leaves, made to match the top. These can quickly be snapped into place at the ends where they lock automatically. Or, if you prefer a wider rather than a longer table, choose one with extension leaves at the sides. Four to six people can be seated at either style of table without using the leaves, however.

Patterns of the top come in practically every popular kitchen color. If you prefer, you can get them in grained effects, too, that match various types of woods.

And if you prefer wooden legs to those of chromium, wooden tables with porcelain enamel steel tops are available. With these are sold chairs of wooden frame.

Prices vary in kitchen sets of this type, depending on the style selected. A number of budgets are catered to.

Comedy from Pacific Coast Arrives Here

By Cecil Smith

Moving in an opposing direction to the general stream of dramatic productions, a new farce comedy entitled "Thanks for My Wife" has worked its way east from the Pacific slope by way of Minneapolis and Milwaukee and settles down into the Selwyn theater tonight for an indefinite engagement in Chicago. Most of our plays, of course, are cast, produced, and presented in New York before they reach us. An all-Hollywood product is a rarity, tho Tallulah Bankhead in "I Am Different" followed a similar geographical course in September, 1938.

"Thanks for My Wife" was written by Alan Dinehart, who was a good New Yorker before the movie capital came to command his entire energy, to the extent of 80 rôles. He has written light comedies before, and acted in them as well. Chicago playgoers whose memories go back to the 1920s will recall a popular hit entitled "Applesauce." As an actor Mr. Dinehart also rolled up a considerable record before he

Right: Ruth Terry, at the ripe old age of 19, has won the starring role opposite Pat O'Brien in "Slightly Honorable" (Apollo). Ruth has been singing and dancing in night clubs and vaudeville skits since she was 15 years old.

Comedy Works Way East from Pacific Coast

went into the movies. His last stage appearance here was in Frank Craven's "That's Gratitude," nine years ago.

Perhaps I have not made the fact clear that Mr. Dinehart appears as one of the stars of "Thanks for My Wife." He does, sharing star billing with Glenda Farrell. While Miss Farrell is best known to the present day public as a vivacious, versatile motion picture actress, her first experience, like Mr. Dinehart's was on the stage. After diverse rôles in "Divided Honors," "Love, Honor and Betray" and sundry other plays, she made her first commanding success in "Life Begins," a drama which ran only a week in New York, but furnished the scenario of an exceptionally successful picture, with Miss Farrell in her original rôle.

A third camera luminary in the cast of the Selwyn's new comedy is Lyle Talbot. His pre-Hollywood career was limited to a short span of stock company playing. In the movies he has some 30 parts to his credit. The cast further includes Sheila Bromley, Jack Smart, Austin Fairman, Archie Robbins, and Madora Keene.

Not having seen or read "Thanks for My Wife," I am in no position to preview its plot. Its leading characters are a young playwright [Mr. Talbot], a vain actress [Miss Farrell], a misogynist columnist who strives to tame Miss Farrell [Mr. Dinehart], and a romantically attractive young secretary [Miss Bromley]. The producers of the comedy are Bobby Crawford and William Friedlander.

Official confirmation has arrived from New York in regard to the Chicago engagement of "Ladies and Gentlemen" mentioned in this column last week. The theater will be the Erlanger; the opening date will be March 11, and the play will limit its stay to three weeks. The stars of this comedy are Helen Hayes and Philip Merivale. Charles MacArthur, Miss Hayes' husband, collaborated with Ben Hecht in writing it. In "Ladies and Gentlemen" Miss Hayes and Mr. Merivale celebrate their reunion, for they were co-starred in the east in Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland." In Chicago Ian Keith took over Mr. Merivale's part.

The events of Miss Hayes' professional and offstage life are now common knowledge. Under the title "Letters to Mary", Catherine Hayes Brown, the actress' mother, has written a highly readable book detailing a great deal of hitherto unprinted inside information. Compiled in the form of a series of letters to little Mary MacArthur, the daughter of Helen Hayes and Charles MacArthur, the volume suffers from occasional streaks of cloying sentimentality. But the fascinating documentation of Miss Hayes' personal and artistic development far outbalances this forgivable defect. Indeed, the book almost becomes compulsory reading as preparation for "Ladies and Gentlemen." Random House is the publisher.

Helen Hayes.

The cast of "Three After Three," the new musical now occupying the Erlanger theater, includes a judicious admixture of young talent and older experience. Apart from Simone Simon, Mary Brian, and Mitzi Green, the gay youngsters indicated by the initial word of the title, the group of oncoming newcomers also includes Hugh Martin and his "modern" mixed quartet named The Martins.

At 21 Mr. Martin has already done quite a lot. Birmingham, Ala., his birthplace, explains his smooth, personable southern exterior. He has been to college at Birmingham Southern college, played in a jazz band in Rio de Janeiro [where he sang on a radio program with Carmen Miranda, now starring in "The Streets of Paris," the hit musical due in Chicago in April], came back to this country and to New York to join Kay Thompson's choir, and soon began making a name for himself as an arranger of close harmony. The other members of his present quartet are Ralph Blane and Phyllis and Jo Jean Rogers.

Just when winter begins to seem unendurably long to those of us who cannot get away to softer climes, Burton Holmes arrives with his cheerful and colorful travelogs, to help us get away from it all. Neither the threat of war last summer nor a serious accident which temporarily crippled him kept Mr. Holmes from gathering pictures and material for his 47th series of travel lectures. He opens his season here in Orchestra hall Wednesday evening, Feb. 14. The series consists of five different lectures, each of which is given three times, on Wednesday evenings, Friday afternoons and Saturday evenings. This year's subjects are as follows: Feb. 14, 16 and 17—"Heroic, Friendly Finland"; Feb. 21, 23 and 24—"Around the World a Different Way"; Feb. 28, March 1 and 2—"Great Little Holland"; March 6, 8 and 9—"Mediterranean Odyssey Cruise"; March 13, 15 and 16—"More About Sweden."

In preparation for the arrival of "Life with Father" on Monday, Feb. 19, the Blackstone theater is now in process of complete overhauling and renovation. As indicated in another column, the Illinois Symphony orchestra has moved its weekly concerts to the Studebaker theater in order to leave the Blackstone free for uninterrupted work. The expensive woodwork is being scrubbed and polished. New carpets are being laid. The stage and backstage are undergoing considerable changes. When all these deeds are accomplished, the Blackstone will emerge again as a "class" house. This is one of the happiest events of 1940, for the Blackstone is both a beautiful theater and one with an extraordinary tradition.

Not enough has been said in this column about the exceptional gifts of Nat Karson, whose flamboyant settings and costumes are half the show at the Auditorium theater's "Hot Mikado." Tho he was born in Switzerland, the designer came to Chicago with his family in 1914. While he was still in high school he won a city-wide poster contest, to the extent that all 12 winning designs selected by the judges from a display of 6,000 were the work of one Nat Karson. Later he served as art director for Balaban and Katz, a position he left to design scenes for Radio City Music hall. In designing the "Hot Mikado" costumes he divided the cast into groups according to the qualities of their skin pigmentation. Having started from this point of vantage, he found that the task of lighting the production properly was an easy one.

Muriel Kirkland, who gives an impeccable characterization of Mary Todd in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Grand Opera house, had her first taste of fame in the comedy "Strictly Dishonorable." A period of apprenticeship with the Stuart Walker players in Cincinnati and in lesser Broadway rôles led up to the first big opportunity. In Chicago in the last few seasons she has played in "Pride and Prejudice" and "Squaring the Circle."

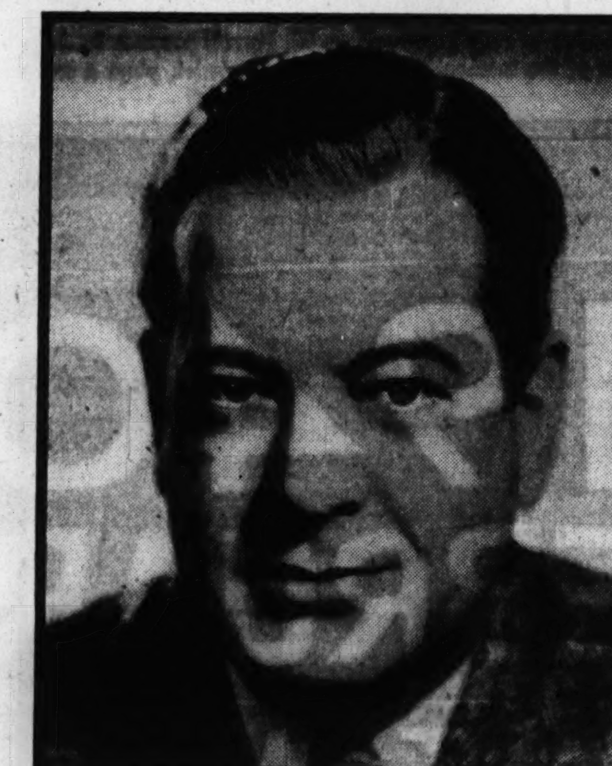
The Pacific coast, or Alexander Woollcott company of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" opens Thursday for a half week of tryout performances in Santa Barbara, Cal. The real première occurs Feb. 12 at the Biltmore theater in Los Angeles. George Kaufman, coauthor of the comedy with Moss Hart, has undertaken the unique task of directing an actor in a rôle representing himself. Mr. Hart, en route to the coast, will spend a few days here this week watching Clifton Webb and the Harris theater company. Last week's business in Chicago: $19,000. An extra row of chairs has been added in the orchestra pit, relegating the between-acts musicians to the invisible locale under the stage.

When the Studebaker theater reopens Feb. 21 with Emlyn Williams' chiller, "Night Must Fall," Sherman Marks will serve in the double function of director and leading man. The production, of which more news will be forthcoming next week, is presented by the Mummers, who have achieved an enviable reputation as Chicago's best local producing group.

"The Gentle People," Irwin Shaw's drama of social implications, will be presented for the first time in Chicago Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings, Feb. 17, 18, and 19, by the Institute players of the Jewish People's institute. The playhouse is at 3500 Douglas boulevard. This will be the third production of the current season, under the direction of Sam Wanamaker. The two earlier ventures were "Room Service" and "Success Story." Altho he is still young, Mr. Wanamaker has already amassed considerable experience. After his graduation from the Goodman theater he remained on the staff of the school. At the 1936 Cleveland exposition he played 781 performances with the Shakespearean Globe theater troupe. He has acted and directed in summer theaters at Woodstock, Ill., and Fish Creek, Wis. He last appeared professionally on the Chicago stage in J. Charles Gilbert's repertory season at the Civic theater last spring.

The Goodman theater, which likes to keep its monthly student productions as varied as possible, turns to Shakespeare in February. For two weeks beginning Monday, Feb. 12, the student actors will give "The Merry Wives of Windsor." A single matinée will be presented on Thursday, Feb. 15.

WRITES THEM AND ACTS THEM



Alan Dinehart has a large interest in tonight's play, "Thanks for My Wife," opening at the Selwyn theater, as he is both co-author and co-star. Also in evidence will be Glenda Farrell and Lyle Talbot.

Lange to Direct Symphony in Berlioz Work

By Cecil Smith.

For a work so fulsomely described in most music history textbooks, Berlioz's "Fantastic Symphony" is played in public with surprising infrequency. The Chicago Symphony orchestra performed it under Frederick Stock six years ago, but at that time it had not been heard in any of the orchestra's concerts since 1907. This week Hans Lange, associate conductor of the orchestra, brings it to attention once more, as the principal item of the Thursday evening and Friday afternoon programs in Orchestra hall.

Most of the output of Hector Berlioz has been neglected, a scanning of the orchestra's tabulated répertoire reveals. Only three Berlioz items have received any emphasis in recent seasons—the two overtures, "Benvenuto Cellini" and "The Roman Carnival," and the standard set of three excerpts from the opera, "The Damnation of Faust." Mr. Lange revived the overture to "Beatrice and Benedict" last season, and the overture, "The Corsair," the year before.

If the Ballet Russe had not presented a successful ballet to the music of Berlioz's celebrated "Fantastic Symphony," therefore, most of us should have had to regard it as a work to be worshiped from afar. And altho the Ballet Russe has increased our acquaintance with this single work, it cannot be said that Chicago knows much of anything, by and large, about the music of Berlioz.

Altho he was a Frenchman, England was to provide Berlioz's most loyal audience. A number of British conductors, among them Sir Thomas Beecham, Sir Hamilton Harty, Sir Henry J. Wood, and John Barbirolli, have been conscientious expositors of his works. At a rough estimate, I should guess that the name of Berlioz appears three or four times as often on London programs as it does on those of Chicago or [even with Mr. Barbirolli] New York.

I have often endeavored to speculate upon the affinity of English audiences for the music of this strange, bombastic, self-advertising French composer, but I have never found a satisfactory explanation for the hands-across-the-channel attitude. Possibly Berlioz's immense enthusiasm for Shakespeare, whose plays inspired a number of his works, found an answer in the Englishman's acceptance of his works. Perhaps all England is repaying him for having fallen violently in love with an English Shakespearean actress named Henrietta Smithson. Or, perhaps, it all rests on musical grounds. For when it is subjected to analysis the actual musical, thematic content of Berlioz's music is not unlike that of such Victorian composers as Sir Arthur Sullivan and Sir John Stainer.

If this last assertion looks too astounding to be true, I can only point out that Berlioz's musical ideas were often patterned after a sort of Mendelssohnian stereotype, as were those of Sullivan, when he wrote serious music not a part of his sparkling opera literature, and of Stainer, whatever he wrote. Berlioz's orchestral music transcribed for piano is likely to be melodically dull, harmonically unoriginal, and rhythmically conventional. He was neither a great melodist nor a great inventor of musical structures.

But give Berlioz an orchestra to toy with, and it all became another story. Along with Meyerbeer, whose extravagantly heroic operas have been relegated to an undeserved limbo, Berlioz was the creator of a large part of modern orchestral sonority. He never tired of studying the capacities of various instruments, and he never rested in his quest for new and arresting combinations of instrumental sound, even tho his quest might lead him to demand such virtually unobtainable resources as 16 kettledrums and a quartet of brass bands.

Wagner owed an enormous debt to Berlioz [and to Meyerbeer], as the flashy sonority of the early overture to "Rienzi" proves. In fact, the whole technique of modern orchestration, with its emphasis upon bold, choral uses of the brass section and its deploying of the wind instruments in a manner far more effective than that of Beethoven and the German romanticists, owes a profound gesture of obeisance to the Berlioz whose "Fantastic Symphony" is so seldom played.

Edmund Kurtz.

The soloist this week is Edmund Kurtz, the orchestra's first cellist. He will play Tschaikowsky's "Variations on a Rococo Theme." The complete Thursday-Friday program follows:

Overture to "The Creatures of Prometheus" .... Beethoven
Ballade, "Tam o' Shanter" .... Chadwick
Variations on a Rococo Theme .... Tschaikowsky
Edmund Kurtz
Fantastic Symphony, Episode in the Life of an Artist .... Berlioz

Mr. Lange will also conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra's popular concert in Orchestra hall Saturday evening:

Music from "Boabdil" .... Moszkowski
"La Mer" ["The Sea"] .... Debussy
Concerto for Viola .... Handel-Casadesus
Milton Preves.
Suite, "L'Arlésienne," No. 2 .... Bizet
Berceuse, from "Jocelyn" .... Godard
"The Swan," from "The Carnival of the Animals" .... Saint-Saëns
Waltz, from "The Bat" .... Johann Strauss

Chatterton Plans.

There is a report that Ruth Chatterton has abandoned "Tonight We Dance" and will make her next stage appearance soon in a new play by the English author, John Van Druten. It is called "Leave Her to Heaven." Edmond O'Brien will play opposite Miss Chatterton, Auriol Lee will direct, and Dwight Deere Wiman will produce. There will be no out of town tour, as was the case with the star's last two vehicles, but the production will open "cold" in New York.

PRECISION PLUS GLAMOR

Baker Play Delayed.

Dorothy Baker's dramatization of her novel, "Young Man with a Horn," will not be produced this season altho the play was on the verge of rehearsal. Considerable rewriting is being done by Charles MacArthur, E. A. Blatt, and Miss Baker, and it is now listed for next season by the producer, Vinton Freedley. Burgess Meredith is still announced as the star.

Michigan May Fete to Include Six Concerts

During the four days from May 8 thru 11, six concerts will be given by the University of Michigan for its annual May festival in the Hill auditorium at Ann Arbor. For the fifth consecutive season the Philadelphia orchestra will be the festival's mainstay, playing on all the programs. Eugene Ormandy will conduct most of the orchestral selections. Assistance will be provided by Saul Caston, associate conductor of the orchestra, and Harl McDonald, composer, conductor and manager of the organization. The latter will offer one of his own works, "Santa Fe Trail."

As usual, the University Choral union will present one contemporary choral composition and one opera in concert form. These will be "The Inimitable Lovers," by the American Charles Vardell, and Saint-Saëns' "Samson and Delilah." Rose Tentoni, soprano, and Robert Weede, baritone, will be the soloists in the Vardell work. In the opera the title rôles will be sung by Enid Szantho and Giovanni Martinelli, and featured parts will be taken by Mr. Weede and Norman Cordon, bass. Thor Johnson, conductor of the chorus, will direct both works.

The Young Peoples' Festival chorus will again participate in one of the afternoon concerts, singing several songs. Juva Higbee conducts this group.

Aside from the soloists for the choral and operatic works there will be three vocal and three instrumental guest artists. Dorothy Maynor, the much-publicized colored soprano, will be heard in Ann Arbor for the first time, while Lily Pons, soprano, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, will make return appearances. Artur Schnabel will be piano soloist with the orchestra on one of the afternoon concerts, and Josef Szigeti and Emanuel Feuermann will play Brahms' double concerto for violin and violoncello on another.

Popular Records

An album of nostalgia recorded on wax is the latest product of Liberty Music shops. Titled "Melodies of the Twenties," the album is an anthology of the songs the country was humming during the postwar decade. Emile Petti and his Savoy-Plaza orchestra, made the recordings, and altho the predominence of strings gives the cuttings a uniform flatness, the rhythm and feeling is essentially true to the period.

With such favorites as "Rose Room," Al Jolson's famous "April Showers," "Somebody Loves Me," "My Blue Heaven" and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" scattered thruout the 10 sides, the album is uniformly appealing, but 1925 gets the palm with "Jealous," "I'll See You in My Dreams," and "Tea For Two." Individual buyers will regret omission of innumerable old favorites, but the selection on the whole is admirably representative. Success of the album would indicate a demand for a sequel from the '30s.

Honegger Suite.

Arthur Honegger, eminent French composer, has used his score for the film "Harvest" as the basis of a concert suite. It is in five movements—"Panturle," "Winter," "Spring in the Hills," "Gedemus, the Knife Grinder," and "Harvest." The piece is scored for full orchestra and is 20 minutes long.

Vladimir Horowitz Will Give Recital Here Tomorrow

Famed Pianist Returns After a 5 Year Absence

By Edward Barry.

Vladimir Horowitz, whose drawing power is excelled by no other performing musician except his father-in-law, Arturo Toscanini, returns to the Chicago stage tomorrow after an absence of five years to play a piano recital in Orchestra hall.

Horowitz was born in Kieff, Russia, on Oct. 1, 1904. He spent a part of his youth acquiring one of those supernatural Russian piano techniques, a part of it filling concert engagements in his own troubled country. Payment for some of his appearances was in butter and flour, for in the chaotic years following the revolution the staples of life were the only mediums of exchange which had any fixed value. In those early Russian days Horowitz often played in concert with Nathan Milstein, then an obscure violinist, now comfortably ensconced at the top of the fiddlers' heap.

At the age of 20 the young pianist decided to try his luck in western Europe. This luck turned out to be very good. During the next several years he was heard in Germany, France, Holland, and Italy. A Paris critic called him "the greatest pianist of the rising generation."

Early in 1928 Horowitz began his conquest of America. His New York debut took place on Jan. 12 of that year. The same season Chicago heard him. He made 12 appearances with the Chicago Symphony orchestra and filled various recital engagements here between 1928 and 1935.

Edward Moore, the late music critic of THE TRIBUNE, helped to build up Horowitz's tremendous following. He consistently emphasized the greatness of his dexterity, but made it plain that this dexterity was customarily used as a means rather than an end. "He makes his incredible technique merely a vehicle by which to present something beautiful. Or again, he has a fabulous technical development . . . yet with this stupendous ability he goes in little for the ornate in interpretation. Essentially everything he does is trimmed down to the most serene simplicity."

During these years of his greatest public triumphs Mr. Horowitz was also doing something about his personal life. In 1933 he wooed and won Wanda Toscanini, daughter of the great conductor. They were married in Milan, Dec. 21, 1933. A daughter was born to them in the same city on the following Oct. 2.

Here was Horowitz, exactly 30 years old, possessed of everything life can offer. Yet adversity, in the shape of serious illness, was just around the corner. An appendicitis operation, followed by complications, necessitated a long retirement.

Vladimir Horowitz.

About 1938 he returned to the European stage and took up his career where he dropped it. The public remembered him well and was more eager than ever to hear him. Seats for one of his Paris appearances early last year were sold out six weeks before the event, with no publicity except an announcement inserted in an earlier program. Much the same thing happened in London. Cables from Europe told of seething, ecstatic audiences.

Horowitz came to the United States earlier this season and has been filling various engagements around the country. Interviewed in New York, he insisted on looking optimistically on the misfortune which made necessary his long retirement. "I will say that in the many months when I didn't play I learned a great deal about music—perhaps more than I could have learned if I had been forced to practice every available minute, then jump on a train and give a concert. . . . I could get outside, mentally speaking, of my music. I could contemplate it from a new point of orientation, and I could see things about the forest which, so to speak, I had not been able to perceive on account of the leaves." Later he said, "Every year of my life I discover new vistas of music, or new aspects in which older creations appear."

The interviewer asked Horowitz about his tastes in modern music and received the following reply: "I have found very little piano music since the Debussy-Ravel period that is attractive to me or that seems to me particularly worth playing."

He inveighed very interestingly against the pianistic style of present day composers:

"The new music is seldom conceived in terms of the piano. It seldom has the conception of either practibility or beauty of tone. It is, for the most part, 'linear,' as the composers like to say—'geometric.' . . . It now affects either the contrapuntal style, frequently on a polytonal or atonal basis, or it considers the piano as an instrument of percussion. Now, I assure you, the moment I conclude that the piano is nothing but an instrument of percussion, to be beaten or whacked in order to make rhythm or some hard percussive sound, and not as an instrument on which to sing, and not as an instrument with the unique and divine resource of the pedal—in that moment I shall lock up the instrument, and certainly never again play!"

The program of tomorrow evening evidences Mr. Horowitz's distaste for contemporary piano music. It is as follows:

Prelude and Fugue, F minor....Mendelssohn
Fantasy, C major, Opus 17........Schumann
Toccata, Opus 7.........................Schumann
Barcarolle ....Chopin
Four Etudes.................................Chopin
Four Etudes.................................Debussy
Variations on a Theme from "Carmen" ....Horowitz

WILL DANCE HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Spanish dances and music will occupy the stage of the Auditorium theater next Sunday afternoon. Their exponent is the gifted Argentinita, accompanied by a troupe of two dancers and a guitarist.

Recordings

The Columbia Recording corporation has recently released two albums containing seldom heard and very rewarding music. One is the sixth concerto grosso of Handel, for which two double faced records suffice. The other is Mendelssohn's "Reformation" symphony, which takes eight sides.

The concerto grosso, dating from Handel's great period [the 1740s], has the nobility, the sturdiness, and the wealth of idea which we associate with its composer. A not too heavy gravity alternates with a sort of thoughtful gayety to make the work a highly attractive example of 18th century instrumental music.

It is played with great beauty of tone and with becoming simplicity of style by the London Symphony orchestra under Felix Weingartner's direction. Weingartner is the man who conducted the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra in Columbia's notable series of Beethoven symphonies.

The "Reformation" symphony, an austerely beautiful work which is much less known than the same composer's "Italian" symphony, makes use of two ecclesiastical motifs—the Dresden Amen and the hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." Most of the music, however, is secular in character. Its frequent restlessness and turmoil may be taken as a representation of the restlessness and turmoil of Europe during the decades when the old religion and the new were coming into conflict.

Schroeder Recital.

Marion Schroeder, soprano, will present a recital in the Civic theater on Sunday, May 12. She has appeared in leading rôles in "Marco Bozzaris" and "Peruze," Greek operas produced here within the last two seasons.

Current Music News

When the Adult Education council, in coöperation with the Society of American Musicians, held its first piano contest last year, Thaddeus Kozuch emerged the winner. This entitled him to an appearance on the council's musical arts piano series this season, and it will take place on Tuesday in Orchestra hall. Born in Chicago in 1913 of Polish parents, he has studied exclusively in this country. His most recent teacher has been Rudolph Ganz at the Chicago Musical college. On Tuesday he will play this program:

Four Sonatas...............................Scarlatti
"Les Adieux"..................................Weber
Variations on a Theme of Paganini..Brahms
"Les Funérailles" ....Liszt
Two Etudes; Two Mazurkas..........Chopin
Scherzino..Ganz
Two Mazurkas, Op. 50; "Tantris le bouffon"...................Szymanowski
Pastorale.......................................Poulenc
"Suggestion Diabolique"..........Prokofieff

On leave from Converse college in Spartanburg, S. C., where he is dean of the music school, Ernst Bacon has returned to his native Chicago to conduct the Illinois Symphony orchestra in its concert tomorrow at the Studebaker theater.

[Redecoration of the Blackstone theater for its prospective tenant, "Life with Father," has made it necessary for the orchestra to play its concerts for Feb. 5, 12, and 19 in the Studebaker.]

In his career as a composer, Mr. Bacon has won the Pulitzer prize for music [1932] and a Guggenheim award. Tomorrow night he will conduct the orchestra in the world première of his Symphony No. 2 and in Songs in Black and White, a cycle based on American folk tunes. In this Winfred Stracke, able Chicago baritone, will be the soloist. The songs are individually called "Low Bridge," "Colorado Trail" and "Brady." The complete program:

Overture to "The Abduction from the Seraglio".........................Mozart
Symphony No. 2...........................Bacon
[First performance]
Songs in Black and White..............Bacon
Winfred Stracke
"A Night on the Bald Mountain" .... Mussorgsky
Mephisto Waltz..............................Liszt

Dimitri Mitropoulos, whose galvanic career has led him from his native Greece thru Monte Carlo and Berlin to Boston and Minneapolis, will visit Chicago on Wednesday night with the organization with which he is now associated—the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. They will give their concert in Orchestra hall under the auspices of the Greek-American Progressive association for the benefit of its orphanage fund. The program will open with Beethoven's Second "Leonore" Overture, continue with Rachmaninoff's Third Symphony and Dukas's "La Péri," and conclude with excerpts from the third act of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger": the Introduction, Dance of the Apprentices, and Procession of the Mastersingers.

For the first of its new music appreciation series the American Concert orchestra will give a program entitled "The Beginnings of Modern Music." It will feature the music of Handel and Bach, and will be given in the Illinois Music project headquarters, 632 North Dearborn street, on Friday at 8:15 o'clock. Ralph Cissne will both conduct the program and lecture on the two composers.

Tomorrow at 2:30 the Musicians Club of Women will give in Curtiss hall its 677th concert. Among the performers on the program will be Katherine Burr Trueblood, Rhea Shelters, Frances Griffith Carleton, Katherine Harbison, and the Alenius quartet. Mrs. Carleton's group of piano solos will include Hindemith's Second Sonata and two of her own compositions.

The Elmhurst Trade and Civic association has canceled the last three items on the Civic Concert course it has been presenting this season. The last artist scheduled to appear was Jeanette MacDonald, motion picture soprano. She will now be presented in a separate recital and not as a part of the abandoned concert course. The date and place of her appearance will be April 3 in the York Community High School auditorium, Elmhurst.

Izler Solomon spent part of last week in Montreal, Canada, where he was guest conductor of Les Concerts Symphoniques on Tuesday. The second half of the program was broadcast and consisted of Warlock's "Capriol" Suite, Sibelius' Fifth Symphony and Enesco's First Rumanian Rhapsody.

The Gunsaulus-Protheroe "Care and Carelessness," Sullivan's "The Lost Chord" and Parker's "The Lord Is My Light" are the anthems which the Central Church chorus, William Hughes, director, will offer in Orchestra hall this morning. The organ solos to be played by Archer Lambuth will be Fletcher's Festival Toccata and Saint-Saëns' Prelude to "The Deluge."

WHIMSICAL GENIUS OF CELLO

Musical mainstay of L'Aiglon French restaurant entertainment is Ennio Bolognini, whimsical genius of the cello. Bolognini's International Gypsy orchestra, Eusebio Concialdi, singing star, and the versatile Fiddlers Three, make up the musical cast.

U. of I. Library Addition Holds 500,000 Books

By the Rev. John Evans.

The University of Illinois has just completed a $225,000 addition to the 10 story book rack section of its library building, thus providing for 500,000 more volumes on 17 miles of shelving. It is now the largest state university library, and among all universities exceeded only by Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and Chicago.

The library already has 1,175,700 volumes, and the annual accretion is 35,000. For reading and reference purposes the home circulation last year was 244,000 and within the building 722,000, and titles are cross-indexed on 2,100,000 cards. Of the 11,000 students at the university only the 1,200 graduate students may seek books for themselves, and they, together with the 2,600 faculty members, are allowed to browse among these miles of shelves. Trained librarians do all the other handling, to avoid misplacement. The main reading room is a block long. There are also 240 cubicles for private study.

The newspaper room has 15,000 bound volumes, including 135 publications in the United States and 30 in foreign languages. Of rare books and manuscripts copied in film photography there are now 600,000 pages for use of faculty and students in microfilm.

In line with various recent proposals for a permanent world peace Clarence P. McClelland, president of McMurray college, Jacksonville, Ill., has announced an institute for Feb. 26 and 27 on "The Essential Elements of a Durable Peace." The principal speaker will be Clarence K. Streit, head of the "Union Now" movement, which is a plea, based on the title of his book, for a union of the democratic nations of the world akin to the governmental organization of the United States. These institutes on world problems were inaugurated by Dr. McClelland in 1930.

Series of Contests

Continuing its aim to further the interests of American music, the National Federation of Music Clubs will conduct regional and national contests for new native compositions. They are open only to native born or naturalized Americans. Musical classifications of the contest include a song with piano accompaniment and either sacred or secular words; a piano solo of not less than 5 or more than 15 minutes' length; a two piano composition with the same restrictions as to length; a composition for two violins and piano, not less than 10 minutes or more than 20 minutes long, and a composition for full orchestra not less than 15 or more than 20 minutes long. Information concerning the contest, which does not close until Dec. 1, may be had from Miss Helen Gunderson, school of music, Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, La.

University of Dubuque [Ia.], announces that the institution has been successful in raising its "freedom from debt" fund of $200,271. The amount actually raised was $202,185, from 3,500 individuals, and represents the university's part in the sesquicentennial fund of $10,000,000 being conducted by the Presbyterian board of Christian education.

Dr. Edward J. Sparling, president of Central Y. M. C. A. college, has announced the appointment of Walter D. Gilliland of Portsmouth, O., as assistant to the president. Mr. Gilliland was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan college and Ohio State university.

Irving J. Solomon, president of K. A. M. congregation, has been elected to the board of managers in the synagogue and school extension department of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. This was announced at the annual meeting of the union's executive board recently concluded in Cincinnati, O. Other members of the executive board from Chicago who attended that meeting were Irving Florsheim, Harry N. Gottlieb, Dr. Felix A. Levy, and Albert F. Mecklenburger.

FILM HAS WORLD PREMIERE HERE

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

To most movie fans, January will stand out as a month among months because during its stay "Gone With the Wind"—long and eagerly awaited screen version of the Mitchell book—was presented.

"Gone With the Wind" was thought by this writer to be "a motion picture of power, sweep, beauty—and bitterness . . . one of the greatest spectacles in color ever filmed. . . . Vivien Leigh unique. She IS Scarlett . . . completely dominates the picture. . . . Characterizations are all sharply etched. Probably no one with the exception of Spencer Tracy, could have been Rhett Butler more believably than Clark Gable. . . . Great direction. . . . It IS too long. . . ."

"We Are Not Alone"—"The story [by James Hilton] has both power and delicacy . . . one senses behind its telling the singing of a mighty faith. . . . No one, of course, could better understand or portray a Hilton hero than Paul Muni. . . . Jane Bryan handles difficult rôle with an intuition and deftness that places her in the front rank of emotional actresses. . . . Direction, staging, photography, scenery are all tops.

"Raffles"—"This is E. W. Hornung's hero brought up to date. . . . David Niven makes a most ingratiating hero. . . . Miss De Havilland is deft and lovely. . . . Dialog's intelligent and there's the gloss of fine workmanship about the whole production. . . ."

"The Mill on the Floss"—English production. "This quietly presented little picture, based on a famous book, will never set the world afire but it DOES have a certain old world charm and distinction. . . ." In the cast, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Victoria Hopper, Frank Lawton, and James Mason.

"Remember the Night"—Featuring Barbara Stanwyck and Fred MacMurray. . . . "One of those hokumy pictures that you can't help cottoning to for the reason that it's so mighty well done by everybody concerned . . . heroine a charming shoplifter and hero an up and coming young district attorney . . . events transpire fast and credibly and are consistently interesting."

"Everything Happens at Night"—"A decided novelty in the way of a Sonja Henie picture . . . a decidedly entertaining little number, well acted and boasting some gorgeous scenery." Male leads, Robert Cummings and Ray Milland.

"A Child Is Born"—"Many-faceted story, backgrounded by the maternity ward of a large city hospital . . . action is pithy, dialog rings true—and the piece only consumes about 75 minutes. . . ."

"The End of a Day"—Prize winning French film. "Well worth the patronage of those who love a thoughtful story artistically presented. . . ."

"The Fighting 69th"—"Pays lusty—and reverent—tribute to Father Duffy, famous war time chaplain. . . . Movie without women. Tells story of life and death in the trenches. . . ." In the leads, James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn, and Alan Hale.

See you tomorrow.

New Elmer Rice Play Tells Youth's Battle With Big City

Kaleidoscopic Bit Called 'Two on an Island'

By Burns Mantle.

New York [Special].—That familiar writing game of taking New York apart and exposing it romantically to the yokelry [especially the New York yokelry] gave us two plays of similar theme this week. One was a kaleidoscopic affair called "Two on an Island," written and staged by Elmer Rice in the manner, but not in the mood, of his "Street Scene." The other was a straight comedy by Arthur Wilmurt, called "Young Couple Wanted," Mr. Wilmurt being a young New Yorker who has written a play or two and has the adaptation of Obey's "Noah" to his credit.

Mr. Rice undertakes to retell the somewhat worn but always holding story of youth's battle with the big city. He brings John Thompson of Iowa and Mary Ward of New Hampshire to New York the same hour of the same day. John takes a cab at one station and heads for the Y. M. C. A. Mary takes a cab at another and starts for the Y. W. C. A.

Thereafter 10 additional scenes takes them into and out of many of the familiar New York institutions, including a sightseeing bus, the subway, a Greenwich Village coffee shop, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, a Chelsea furnished room, numerous street scenes, and the head of the Statue of Liberty. Yet they never meet, and their romance does not develop, until just before the end of the play.

This scheme naturally gives the strained arm of coincidence a touch of arthritis, but the attack is not at all important. It is a pleasant tale about interesting and pleasant people, altho neither can boast a shred of originality.

Of course, Mary wants to be an actress. And John has high hopes of being accepted as a playwright. It is an old American custom for American writers to try to express American life thru characters devoted to their own particular career ambitions, and the actress urge is by far the most glamorous for heroines.

Mary meets the familiar theatrical producer, a cynical, embittered fellow with a strong sex urge. Failing to get started as an actress Mary takes to modeling and is lightly menaced by her artist employers. She goes clerking and has a hard time living on her earnings. And then she meets John in the head of the Statue of Liberty and winds up with him in a furnished room.

John tries to interest the same cynical play producer in his manuscripts. Failing that he takes on a variety of jobs. He is a waiter in a restaurant, a door-to-door salesman of magazine subscriptions, a chauffeur, a panhandler, and finally meets Mary.

Now, both having failed to conquer New York, and John being ready to give up, Mary spins his courage to the sticking point and they go to his room to live together until they can afford to marry. Which they do the day after the theatrical manager hires John as a play reader and is definitely turned down as a protector by Mary.

All very true to formula and a little disappointing, coming from Mr. Rice, but no one can blame him. He has tried hard enough to write serious drama—tried with "Judgment Day," "We the People," "Between Two Worlds," and "American Landscape" recently. And his critics booed him.

Betty Field.

Very well says he, if this is the sort of thing they want I'll give it to them. And he does. And they have been enthusiastic in their praise.

The principals selected for "Two on an Island" are perfect for their parts. Betty Field, the most appealing of current ingénues, plays Mary, and Frank Craven's tall son, John, is the play's John. Luther Adler is the theatrical type, and very good at it.

There are probably 50 parts in all. Most of them sketchy, but all of them well played by Martha Hodge, Whitner Bissell, Earl McDonald, and Harriet MacGibbon among others.

The young people in "Young Couple Wanted" have the same urge to conquer New York, but their problem is entirely dissimilar from that of the John and Mary of Mr. Rice's play. They both belong to the metropolitan district.

Mr. Wilmurt's heroine is Catherine Daly, a Newark school teacher in love with Jed Jones, a college boy who is willing to be classed with the common workers if it will help him find a living job. Catherine and Jed want awfully to marry, but Catherine is sworn to remain single for five years as a teacher, and Jed can't earn enough to support himself. So they decide to live together on the quiet.

Naturally Catherine's parents are terribly upset, so Catherine and Jed, to appease them, marry secretly. Some one tells on them and Catherine is fired. Now they must get along some way, so Jed takes to selling matched toilet sets from door to door and is a failure at that.

Next they try marketing grape jam made by Jed's brother's wife on a New Jersey farm. The jam business is knocked out by labor trouble. Facing failure Catherine and Jed decide to move back to the country and start again from there.

An amiable play and friendly. A little too deliberately worked out in dialog and characters. Mr. Wilmurt has tried to do some sort of justice to the whole social setup by including the opinions of a young capitalist turned revolutionist, a rabid conservative, and a plain farmer to bring in different points of view. A smattering of amusing dialog helps. Arlene Francis and Hugh Marlowe play the leads competently.

The ways of the picture ballyhooers are strange indeed. A few weeks back, it will be easy to recall, they were running special planes, trains, and motor cars filled with actors to Atlanta, Ga., to set "Gone With the Wind" on its way. And what a wind that was! A Selznick triumph of initiative and enterprise, and let the expense accounts fall where they may.

This week we have been entertaining a couple of other junkets organized by the Warner Brothers in Hollywood and flown to New York in the interests of "The Fighting Sixty-ninth," which has just been jockeyed into a klieg lighted opening on Broadway.

Now, somewhere in between these two the 20th-Century Fox outfit has edged in a little something called "Grapes of Wrath," which John Steinbeck wrote, and perhaps overwrote, and Nunnally Johnson and others have transferred to the screen to the complete surprise of the censors.

Well, as I have often told you, I don't know half of what I should know about pictures, but if "Grapes of Wrath" isn't the most important contribution to the screen drama since cameras were invented then I know even less than I thought I knew.

Nothing gay about this one, as you may have already discovered. And nothing set down in extenuation or to make a director's holiday. Nothing dragged in, and amazingly little exaggeration. But an eloquent, impressive, truthful transfer to the screen of not only the story but the spirit of a great work.

I am particular about my reading, and I don't like much of what John Steinbeck puts into words in the cause of saltiness, accuracy, and ugly realism. But that doesn't change the fact that his history of the trek of the migratory Joads toward the promised land of California, and his report of what they found there is 85 per cent pure art and only 15 per cent scribbling on outhouse walls. And in its cleaned up version on the screen it is literally all art and tremendously impressive.

I find myself forgetting the pictures I see in from twenty-four minutes to twenty-four hours. But I'll not forget this drab gray classic in twenty-four years. Or wouldn't if my expectancy stretched that far—not any of the performances in it. Anyway, that's the way I feel today, after having seen "The Grapes of Wrath" two nights back.

Indians for Berlin.

A new play, based on the "Winnetou" series by Karl May and dealing with the American Indian, has made a great hit in Berlin. Its particular appeal seems to be to the youthful Germans interested in adventure.

OPENS HERE ON FRIDAY

"The Band That Plays the Blues," is what Woody Herman calls his orchestra, which takes over the Panther room of the Hotel Sherman Friday night.

RETURNS AFTER FOUR YEARS

Leonard Keller, the "Tone Poet," brings his orchestra back to the Bismarck hotel's Walnut room Tuesday after an absence of four years.

Here Is One Solution for a Music Program

The problem of program building long has been a thorn in the flesh of symphony orchestra societies. Attempts to revitalize a stereotyped répertoire with novelties too often are met by lack of support from the large faction of patrons who prefer the musical staples. From England last spring came word of a new scheme to refresh symphonic programs. Whether it would work or fail is something the English will be unable to test for quite a while, but the plan is worthy of notice. The following quotations concerning it are from a letter by Neville Escombe, secretary of the nonexistent "Erewhon Philharmonic society," London, in the Musical Times:

"In offering to the public their prospectus for next season's concerts the 'Erewhon Philharmonic society' wishes to express to an anonymous benefactor their most sincere gratitude for the generosity which alone has made possible the arranging of the following programs. This benefactor has offered to guarantee the society against any loss it may entail, on condition that, for at least one season, it will leave the beaten track of familiar masterpieces and will offer a series of programs of less familiar works, which, while they may not be generally acclaimed as masterpieces, are well worth more performances than they usually receive.

"The programs consist entirely of music likely to appeal to the intelligent concertgoer, and though all works may be familiar to a few subscribers it is hoped that many of them will be little known to the majority.

"It will be noticed that no arrangements have yet been made with regard to conductors and soloists, and for this reason: The committee intended the programs to stand unaltered, and they are prepared to receive offers to perform the various programs from conductors of repute, and also for the instrumental and vocal items from eminent soloists and choirs. As soon as these negotiations are completed full particulars will be announced, together with the dates of the concerts. There will be no increase in the price of either subscription or single tickets."

Eight programs are offered in the prospectus of the Erewhon society:

First Concert.

Grand Duo in C major..............Schubert
[Orchestrated by Anthony Collins.]
Concerto No. 3, in E flat, for Piano and Orchestra..............Tschaikowsky
Symphony No. 1..............Balakireff

Second Concert.

"La Procession del Rocio"..............Turina
Concerto for Harpsichord and Orchestra..............De Falla
Five Catalan Folk Songs for Soprano and Orchestra..............Robert Gerhard
Concert Champêtre for Harpsichord and Orchestra..............Poulenc
Symphony in C major..............Dukas

Third Concert.

"Stabat Mater"..............Palestrina
Mass in G minor..............Vaughan Williams
"A Boy Is Born"..............Britten
[Choral variations for double choir.]
Two Motets..............Bax
[a] "Mater Ora Filium"
[b] "This World's Joy"
Motet [with organ accompaniment], "Jehovah, Quam Multi"..............Purcell
Motet [in forty parts], "Spem in Alium"..............Tallis

Fourth Concert.

Overture, "The Occasional Oratorio"..............Handel
Concerto for Cello and Orchestra..............Tovey
Symphony in B flat..............Chausson

Fifth Concert.

Suite for Orchestra, "Gli Ucelli"..............Respighi
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra..............Szymanowski
Symphony No. 6, in C minor..............Glazounov

Sixth Concert.

"Psalmus Hungaricus," for tenor solo and chorus..............Kodaly
Symphony for Chorus and Orchestra ["Israel"]..............Bloch
Symphony for Five Solo Voices, Chorus, and Orchestra ["Chinese"]..............Van Dieren

Seventh Concert.

"Carnival" Symphony..............Dittersdorf
Concerto for Violin and Orchestra..............Bloch
Symphony No. 2..............Balakireff

Eighth Concert.

"Saul"..............Handel

While these compositions obviously are not neglected masterpieces [some, such as the Chausson symphony, regularly are played by such an orchestra as Chicago's], they represent to English audiences works which have been played once or twice and then apparently gone into discard.

Mr. Escombe concludes his letter with the earnest hope that "the response of the public to these concerts will be such that the guarantor will not be too much out of pocket, and may perhaps feel encouraged to continue his benevolence for another season." His sentiments are seconded by the "Erewhon society's" long standing motto, "O, that 'twere possible."

Shaw by Shaw

George Bernard Shaw has assembled many autobiographical passages—some of them unavailable in this country—into a new book which he calls "Shaw Gives Himself Away: An Autobiographical Miscellany." This selection includes three of the prefaces which he wrote for the collected edition of his works, scraps from the prefaces to his plays, a contribution to one magazine called "Mostly About People," an answer to a questionnaire sent out by another called "The Candid Friend," and "How Frank Ought to Have Done It," a self-analytical article prompted by Frank Harris' "G. B. S."

Saidenberg

The Saidenberg Symphonietta will play the last of its four concerts for the season in the Goodman theater on Feb. 18. A group composed of four local professional dancers—Eleanore Block, Ana Kurgans, Pearl Lack and Leyah Lucatsky—have choreographed in collaboration three numbers for presentation: Peter Warlock's "Capriol" Suite, a Ravel Scherzo, and Charles Griffes' Two Sketches Based on Indian Themes. Giacomo Rimini and Virginia Haskins will have the singing rôles in a performance of Pergolesi's one act opera, "La Serva Padrona," and the program will be completed with three numbers played by the Symphonietta alone. Daniel Saidenberg will conduct the program.

VALENTINE FOR CHICAGO

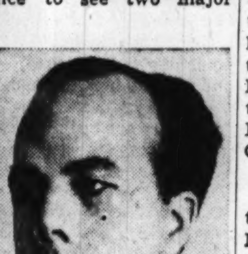
Notes on Music and Musicians

Next Sunday dance enthusiasts will have a chance to see two major groups in action, the Jooss ballet and Argentinita and her company. The former will appear both in the afternoon and evening in the Civic Opera house and the latter in the afternoon at the Auditorium theater. Unfortunately the only opportunity to see Director Kurt Jooss' two new works, "Chronica" and "A Spring Tale," is in the afternoon, presenting a neat problem to those who want to see everything. On its second program the troupe will give four familiar items, "The Seven Heroes," "The Big City," "A Ball in Old Vienna," and its most famous number, "The Green Table." Argentinita will offer selections from her large répertoire of Spanish and Peruvian dances and will be assisted, as she was last year, by Pilar Lopez, Antonio Triano, and Carlo Montoya.



Kurt Jooss.

Walter Wollwage, first clarinet player of the Civic orchestra, will be the soloist on that group's second concert of the season in Orchestra hall this afternoon. He will be heard in Mozart's one and only clarinet concerto. Hans Lange will direct the program, which follows:

Overture to "The Abduction from the Seraglio"..............Mozart
Symphony No. 7, A Major..............Beethoven
Concerto for Clarinet and Orchestra, A Major..............Mozart
Capriccio Italien..............Tchaikowsky

At the Auditorium theater today Northwestern university's History and Enjoyment of Music series will present the Gen. Platoff Don Cossack choir. It will be led by Nicholas Kostrukoff, founder and leader of the group, in all types of Russian folk songs and sacred and secular numbers by eminent Russian composers. Ivanoff and Tavasieff, whose first names have disappeared on their American tours, will collaborate on some Cossack sword dancing to vary the program.

Jan Kiepura, popular Polish tenor, will be the stellar performer at a huge massmeeting for the benefit of Rada Polonia [Polish Relief] in the Stadium next Saturday. Gen. Josef Haller, minister to the United States from the Polish government in France, will be the principal speaker. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

Howard Berhalter [Howard Roberts of the Chicago City Opera company], baritone; Shirley Dickinson, coloratura soprano, and members of the Anne Rudolph dance group will give a concert in Curtiss hall on Tuesday under the sponsorship of the American Health Food association. Mr. Berhalter has appeared in local opera presentations other than those of the resident company. Miss Dickinson sang the part of Meg in the performance of Eleanor Everest Freer's opera, "Little Women," in the Civic theater last fall.

The first recitalist to be offered to the public by the newly organized National Artists Foundation will be Alexandra Veeta, young Chicago pianist. No tickets will be sold for the concert, to be given in the Studebaker theater, since it is open only to those invited by the foundation. However, a limited number of tickets can be obtained without charge from the foundation, 410 South Michigan avenue, by application.

On Tuesday at 8:15 o'clock the St. James Choir guild will give the fourth of its "concert-receptions," presenting the Rockefeller Memorial Chapel choir, directed by Dr. Mack Evans. The affair will take place in the St. James Methodist church, Ellis avenue and 46th street. Admission is free, and the reception in honor of the guest artists immediately follows the concert.

A musical and tea at the Lake Shore Athletic club this afternoon will feature the following artists: Bernice Rickman, soprano, and a trio composed of Eric Sagerquist, violinist; Joseph Novy, cellist, and Walter Dellers, pianist. The program is the first of a series of four Sunday concerts, and will begin at 4 o'clock.

Mary Ann Kaufman, Chicago soprano, will be a soloist in two performances of Brahms' "A German Requiem" next Friday and Sunday in Cincinnati. The performance will be given by the Cincinnati University chorus and the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, with whom Miss Kaufman sang last year also.

Miriam Marmein, eastern mime and dancer, will appear before the Kenilworth Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 13, following an extensive tour of the southwest. She has previously danced for the Evanston Drama club and last fall gave a program in Kimball hall.

The Van Dusen Organ club inaugurated a series of organ recitals last Tuesday evening in the organ salon of the American Conservatory of Music in the Kimball building. The first artist to be presented was Edward Eigenschenk. Others to follow are Mario Salvador, Feb. 13; Wilbur Held, March 12; various club members, April 9, and Winston Johnson, May 13.

A program of sacred anthems by Parker, Baldwin, and Mendelssohn will be sung by the Sunday Evening club choir of 125 voices in Orchestra hall tonight. Edgar Nelson is the director. At the 7 o'clock service the North Central college girls' glee club from Naperville, directed by Mary Cook, will take part.

Cafes Resume Joy Pace After January's Lull

After a January lull, the café world turns on some of its brightest lights again this week.

The Panther room of the Hotel Sherman imports Woody Herman with his "Band That Plays the Blues," Friday night. The same evening, Chez Paree launches its first new show of the year with Ray Bolger and Ethel Shutta sharing top honors. Tuesday evening, Leonard Keller comes back to the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel, and to complete the week's gayeties, Harry's New Yorker stages a special party tonight for the Finnish relief fund.

Woody Herman is no newcomer to Chicago, having played various spots with his own band, and for a long time having been a member of Isham Jones' old crew. Herman's idea of modern music is that it should find its rhythmic inspiration in the only true American musical folklore—the blues of the southern Negroes. Alternating with Herman on the bandstand will be Slim Gaillard, a familiar Chicago entertainment figure who has authored such swing classics as "Vol Vistu Gaily Star" and "Flat Foot Floogie."

The Chez will back Bolger and Shutta with a show that includes the talented tapping of Sunny O'Dea; the exuberant vocals of Ginger Harmon, recently the sparkplug of Phil Spitalney's stately all-girl orchestra; the ballroom dances of Parker and Daniels; and some new Fred Evans productions for the Adorables. Bolger's comic dancing is now in a class by itself, and Ethel Shutta has long since established herself as an amusing and entertaining singer.

Leonard Kellar is returning to the Bismarck after nearly four years. The man who is self-styled the "Tone Poet" played in the Walnut room for 52 weeks at that time. He will be supported by an all new floor show.

Harry's New Yorker is now featuring a show headlined, of course, by Ralph [Cookie] Cook, the only perpetual motion machine still running. Winnie Hoveler's dancing girls continue their excellent routines. Others in the show are Cordano and Corrinne, dance team; the Three Moods, a sister singing act; Mlle. Jeanne, in the exotic department, and Robbins and Revelle, tap team.

Music in the Cuban manner is a nightly offering at the Colony club, especially now that Xavier Cugat is firmly entrenched as the music man. But Monday night has come to be an unadulterated Cuban night since inauguration of the weekly carnivals. Rhumba and conga and tango devotees are given full sway. Vocals for Cugat's dance numbers are supplied by Alice Cornett, who also participates in the floor shows. Currently popular in the shows are Carmen Castilla, singer, and Gali-Gali, the colony's perennial prestidigitator.

With only two nights to go before closing for at least the Lenten period, the Drake hotel Gold Coast room is presenting its best floor show of the season. Starring in his own familiar act and as master of ceremonies is Dean Murphy, whose intelligent approach to impersonations lifts him far above the mine run mimics. From the Drake Murphy goes to New York for a theater engagement, co-starring with Dorothy Lamour, presumably with a sarong in his heart.

Ruth and Billy Ambrose are a cute dancing couple with a fresh and sometimes impudent approach to the usually solemn art of terpsichore. The Hollywood Co-eds, as beautiful as they are agile, turn out a gay routine of surprising flips and leaps, mingled with fast accurate taps.

Next week's major opening is that of Ozzie Nelson at the Blackhawk on Valentine night, the 14th. This visit, to correct a false impression, will be the first in which the team of Nelson and Harriet Hilliard will not appear. Mrs. Nelson has important family matters to attend to for the present.

Vaudeville

Dorothy Lamour.

One of the great Negro jazz conductors, arrangers, and composers holds forth at the State-Lake theater. He is Duke Ellington and he has brought with him his orchestra and a Harlem revue, "The Duke Steps Out." Performing in this are Ivie Anderson, the two Zephyrs, Danny and Edith, and Sonny Greer. The film is "Blondie Brings Up Baby," showing Penny Singleton in her fourth film in this series.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Because little Bonnie Baker missed four performances of her starring show in the Empire room of the Palmer House, false rumors have been circulated that she is not appearing regularly. A cold did the deed, and Bonnie is now back at work every night except Monday, when the entire Orrin Tucker organization takes its day off. . . . Art Kassel, who gives way to Leonard Keller this week, will return to the Bismarck in April. . . . Tuesday nights will be "sweetheart nights" henceforth in the Aragon and Trianon ballrooms. Dick Jurgens will play at the Trianon on those nights, and Jack McLean will go north to the Aragon.

Recitals

Esther Wright will play an organ recital in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, Woodlawn avenue and 59th street, on Tuesday at 8:15. Miss Wright is an American who has spent the last several years in France, studying with Marcel Dupré and concertizing thruout the country. She has been heard in the cathedrals of St. Ouen, St. Sulpice, and Notre Dame in Paris, and it is said that Louis Vierne and M. Dupré have entrusted to her the interpretations of their works in America. She also has officially inherited from her teacher the espousal of his interpretation of Bach's organ works.

Today, at 3:30 o'clock, the Armour Institute of Technology glee club and orchestra will present their annual concert at the Shawnee Country club in Wilmette. Both groups are under the direction of Gordon Erickson.

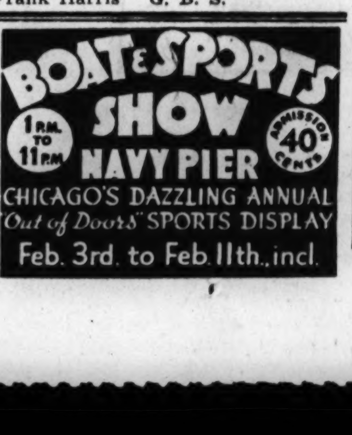
A violin recital will be presented in Kimball hall on Wednesday night by Sidney Miller. Accompanied by Jacob Hanneman, he will play Vitali's Chaconne, Saint-Saëns' Concerto in B Minor and two groups of shorter numbers.

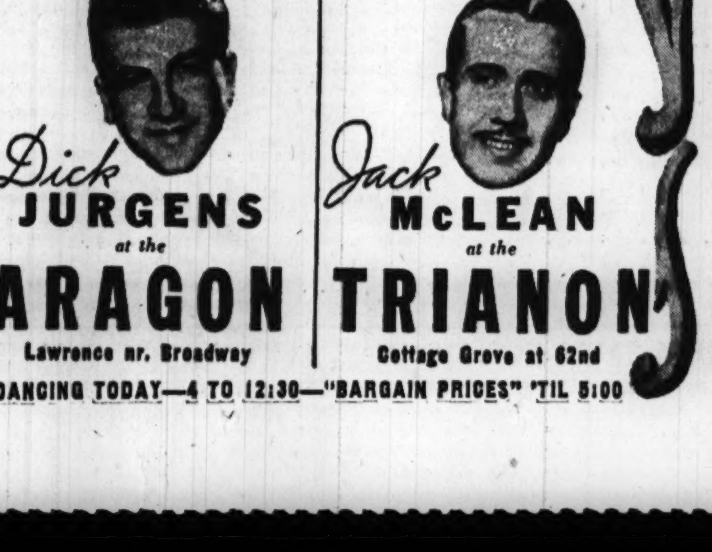
Catherine Venditti, pianist, will give a recital in the De Paul Little theater, 64 East Lake street, today at 4 o'clock.

Add to your list of distinguished recitalists to appear here this season Nathan Milstein, violinist. He will play in Orchestra hall on March 25.

Gilman Chase will give the fourth in his series of six organ recitals in the First Unitarian church, Woodlawn avenue and 57th street, tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The program includes a Benedictus by Couperin, three compositions by Bach, a Prelude by Florent Schmitt, "Pantomime" by Harry Jepson, and three excerpts from Charles Tournemire's "Sept Chorals-Poèmes pour les Sept Paroles du Xrist."

Seats for the Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald concerts will go on sale tomorrow morning at the office of the Harry Zelzer Concert series, 20 North Wacker drive. Mr. Eddy will give his recital in the Civic Opera house on March 3, and Miss MacDonald hers in Orchestra hall on March 29.





Colombia's Orchestra Has Brave Struggle

In recent years the small South American countries have made valiant efforts to establish native symphony orchestras. One of the few to make any headway has been Colombia. In its capital native-born Guillermo Espinosa started the Orquesta Sinfonica Nacional of Bogota back in 1936. He faced several difficulties. Bogota's population, for example, was limited to 200,000, and a large number of it was poorly educated. Recruits from other cities were hard to get because of traveling hazards. For the same reason touring was generally inadvisable, thus limiting the size of the orchestra's audience. Not many natives were able to afford the price of admission to the concerts, and the city lacked the musical Maecenases which flourish in this country to keep the organization going in spite of inadequate support.

Although these discouragements existed, Mr. Espinosa, with the aid of the Colombian national director of fine arts, Gustavo Santos, got a group together. They organized an executive board, composed of a member of the government, a founder member, a musician from the orchestra, the conductor, and the director of the National Conservatory. They set up a staff that included a lawyer, a treasurer-paymaster, and a physician. [The last not only ministers to the musicians in Bogota, but also accompanies the organization on tour.] After the orchestra got under way its members were chosen between seasons through auditions before a jury composed of the conductor and the principals of the various instrumental sections. Once chosen, they receive year to year contracts which are renewed or terminated at each Dec. 31. They get a fixed monthly salary, far from large at present. Yet on occasions when funds were lacking each contributed an equal amount from his own resources or stipend.

Two subscription seasons are presented each year, one in March, April, and May, and the other in August, September, and October, each consisting usually of six concerts. Rehearsals for these are arduous, coming four times a week and lasting at least two hours at each session. It is required that the regular conductor, Mr. Espinosa, direct the first and last concerts of each series, guest conductors sharing some of the others. Programs have been planned "according to a principle of progressive cultural education" in order to acquaint the public with the best music there is. And as in this country series of popular and children's concerts have been instituted for the playing of lighter music.

In spite of the hazards of the poor, mountain roads that have to be traversed, the orchestra has essayed a few brief tours. It visited Barranquilla and Cartagena, traveling by automobile and the Magdalena river steamer. Often the musicians had to push the cars over muddy spots and to haul the steamer when it grounded. Later on it discovered the advantages of air travel and hired five planes for its trips. This made the organization rather unique, for as far as it is known no other American orchestra has journeyed in a body this way.

At this point the orchestra is having subscription trouble. Not new enough to be a novelty and not old enough to have acquired its full potential public support, it is not attracting customers as it first did. Subscription prices are still too high, although often reduced for students and underprivileged classes. Moreover, a typical social evil exists in Colombia—the old custom requiring that entrance be granted to the persons who have the least necessity for asking favors of that kind.

Drama Notes

The Guild theater of Evanston, which got off to a commendable start last week under the direction of Martin Magner, will present their first play, "Night Must Fall," five times more—tonight and Thursday, Friday, Saturday and next Sunday evenings. The theater is at 616 Church street, Evanston.

The Chicago Repertory group, which has moved its performances to Bowen hall, Hull house, 823 Polk street, is this year being directed by Donald Murray. Their first presentation of the season, Marie Baumer's dramatization of Leane Zugsmith's novel "A Time to Remember," will be offered for three consecutive weekends beginning Friday, Feb. 23. The group still maintains its headquarters at 29 East Balbo street.

In May the Chicago Drama league will sponsor the first of a proposed annual series of all-Chicago drama festivals. A playwriting contest, for full length plays by authors living within a radius of 100 miles from Chicago, will be sponsored in connection with the festival. Details may be obtained from the Chicago Drama league, 410 South Michigan avenue. The deadline is March 1. The plays produced at the festival will be cast wholly with actors from the 25 little theater groups comprising the Federation of Little Theaters.

Scholarships

Three scholarships of $100 each will be awarded to winners in the vocal, piano and string sections of the Chicago Woman's Musical club's 20th annual scholarship contest. These awards are paid to the teachers with whom the winning contestants desire to continue their studies.

In addition the club will present the winners in a joint recital.

Application blanks to the contest may be had from Mrs. Alice Baenziger Adams, 1533 East Marquette road. Closing date for entries is March 1.

Return to Concerts.

The war abroad has occasioned the reëmergence of two eminent musicians in London—John McCormack, tenor, and Lionel Tertis, violist. Both retired from the concert stage about three years ago.

Society Will Greet Polish Envoy Feb. 13

By Cousin Eve.

The spotlight glides across our stage and will illuminate on Feb. 13 the venerable features of Gen. Joseph Haller, cabinet minister of the Polish government in France. A large reception will be given for him the evening of that day at 1444 Lake Shore drive. Heading the line will be the new consul general, Karol Ripa, and Mme. Ripa, just getting their breath after a lurid flight from "lightning war" in Poland.

The consul general escaped the disaster by a few days, but his wife and son in eastern Poland turned in to Warsaw and had a harrowing time of it. Gen. Haller was not in warm accord with Marshal Pilsudski, and lived out of Poland for many years, occupying himself with the Polish Red Cross.

Many Poles of high estate were unavoidably missing when the present Polish government began to assemble in France. They were locked up in various countries, caught in the smash of the war. Patriarchs like Paderewski and Gen. Haller were drafted for active service at Angers, capital assigned by France to the Polish nation. You have to hand it to the French—they are wonderful to homeless refugees. The American embassy to Poland is now established there in an ancient palace without central heating. Ambassador and Mrs. Biddle lost everything in Warsaw. They had leased, restored and refurnished the vast Raczynski palace, bringing over table appointments of great magnificence, which with their personal effects were completely destroyed by fire in the ruin of the palace. They escaped with their lives, which in such an adventure is a miracle.

Chauncey McCormick is giving a dinner for Gen. Haller on Feb. 15 at the Casino. Mrs. Richard T. Crane, who is vice chairman of the American Polish committee, is holding a reception the afternoon of Feb. 14, and the Hubert Burnhams are dining the general that night.

One's correspondence bristles these days with war relief letters framed in moving language that would melt a heart of stone. Among the writers is Prince de Bearn, formerly councilor of the French embassy at Washington, a very religious man. He is seeking funds to increase church services on the Maginot line, to keep up the morale of the men.

The next missive comes from Mrs. Bernard J. Mullaney and concerns "la cigarette du soldat." After four months of wrangling with France from her snowy Vermont home, Mrs. Mullaney has permission to ship tax free, and at minimum cost from an American tobacco company, all the cigarets for French soldiers which ready funds can buy. The money goes to "The American Society for French Medical and Civilian Relief," and reaches the poilus later on for their solace.

The next excitement concerns an American-Polish unit, starting up in Paris under the direction of Mortimer Singer, a chic Franco-American millionaire turned 40, grandson and heir of Isaac Singer and nephew of Princess de Polignac, whose town house is one of those slant-roofed maisons particulieres in Place des Vosges, built in the reign of Henri IV., with arcades and facing a central park.

President of the unit is Arthur Kemp and the treasurer is Dean Jay, head of the American hospital and the Banque Morgan. These men have lived in Paris and loved it for all of 40 years. They want above all things to stay on in their Paris houses, and if they can provide canteen and hospital services for the uprooted, and medical relief, the chances are they can stay. These self-exiled Americans are due to lose their passports on Feb. 15, and if they are not in America under the wire, will be men and women without a country.

The exceptions will be those who can prove to the state department at Washington that they are needed in France for humanitarian rôles. Urgent cables were received by Charles S. Dewey, asking him to take the Chicago chairmanship of this American Paris-Polish committee. But he declined the honor owing to the stress of work at home.

Miss Anne Morgan lunched with Mrs. Ogden Armour Monday and with 20 other members of the American Friends of France. The party was given at 2450 Lake View avenue and the guest of honor spoke informally on the overseas work she is electing to do among the French civil populations in three districts. Among the guests were Mrs. Oscar Hayward, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Henry Field, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. H. Bêlin Voorhees, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Miss Marion Phillips, Mrs. James H. Winston, Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Clarence Prentice, Mrs. Frederick Scott, Mrs. Laurence Robbins, Mrs. Kersey Reed, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Arch Shaw, Mrs. Edward Byron Smith and Mrs. James Hume. Miss Morgan wore a vivid jade green silk frock, a dashing black beret, and seemed full of enthusiasm. This daughter of Morgan, the great financier, and sister of the present head of the house has much the look of her father, a buoyant manner, and tall, powerful physique.

At the Racquet club, after 4 o'clock, Mrs. Brewster was receiving her numerous guests, invited to meet Miss Morgan and hear her discourse. The hostess received at the top of the grand stairway. Near by a table was spread with "woollies," all sorts of fluffy little woolen baby coats, shawls, caps and mittens, with piles of wool in bright colors to take home with you. Mrs. Robert H. McCormick and Mrs. Palmer were running this little business, and nearly every one bought wool and promised to knit. Tea preceded the talk, which is the style nowadays, and at a long table the Misses Mary Adams and Pauline Palmer sat in state pouring out tea and coffee for the large company. A number of men were there, too, among them Walter Brewster, Henry Field, René Weiller, André Allabrune, Count Guy de Rochefort and the other four horsemen here from France for the duration to purchase steeds for home consumption.

Mrs. Henry Field presided in the great square salon or lounge of the club, beautifully done over in warm beige and brown. Mrs. Field, the young and gallant chairman of the American Friends, first introduced the French consul general, René Weiller, then Miss Morgan. Two maps of France lined the wall back of the distinguished overseas philanthropist. On these she pointed out the three sectors where her committee works among the peasantry, Haute-Vienne to the west, Aisne, northeast of Paris, and, most easterly of all, the Ardennes. There are 63 villages and hamlets and 25,000 people concerned. Part of her jurisdiction is the little museum at Blerancourt. Miss Morgan described the miseries of the evacuation, the sufferings of the thousands who were dislocated in foul weather toward the south. Also the terrific shortage of blankets. France has 200,000 Spaniards living in tents, other thousands of Czechs and Rumanians, also Germans. So the blanket supply is short for their own people. Miss Morgan dwelt on the quality of the peasantry to the northeast. These tenacious people had actually reclaimed and refertilized the dead "red soil" blasted by shell fire in 1914, never giving up their own "terre" until now it was good as ever.

She cited a singular postmistress in a village held by the invaders in 1914 who demanded her money and papers. For days the resolute peasant refused to give up, even when the life of her husband was threatened, and he finally lay dead before her eyes. She was forced to bury him in front of her doorstep, and only after the armistice did it transpire that the money and documents went into the grave with her mate and stayed there four years.

Acting as ushers at the tea were Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Miss Betty Keith, Mrs. Gerald Hollins, and Miss Sally Perry. There was no solicitation of funds at this meeting. It is against the law of our land to solicit funds for combatants. The American Friends of France maintain a room at the Alliance Française, and any one wishing to contribute work or gifts may do so there.

The French bridge party Tuesday at the Casino went off with a bang, as anything should, worked up so elaborately. Mrs. Ralph James and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, co-chairmen, have had their "fine French hands" in the matter for four months. There were 70 tables sold. Also at least a hundred guests for tea and a very lovely fashion show. There were two beautiful professional models, one red haired, and a bevy of society girls who did more for the frocks than did the specialists.

Miss Mary Adams was slim perfection in various delicate cloudlike tulle creations. Miss Eleanor McClurg and Babbs Carr swept about in rainbow hued dinner dresses, and Diana Winston, youngest and tallest of the group, has a special and most striking sort of Italian beauty, very regal and at the same time appealing. Diana is a great-granddaughter of that doughty old character, Gen. Frederick H. Winston, who was in days of yore minister to Persia. The walls of the Casino were lined with women who came in at 4 o'clock to hear Miss Morgan, to have tea, and see the southern styles.

At the west end of the ballroom a sort of biblical supper table was set high upon a dais and laid with rich brocades and ornaments. And here Miss Morgan was seated for her tea au centre, while M. Weiller, Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Ralph James, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. Walter Brewster, and Mrs. Henry Field were seated facing the audience. Miss Morgan was handsomely arrayed in a bronze lamé frock and small toque, and Mrs. James introduced her with many complimentary, not to say flowery, phrases. Miss Morgan has far too much tact to try to hold down a roomful of bridge players with a long speech, so she briefly spoke of her organization and of the work they would have to do if the alien armies come pouring thru the Ardennes. In neither of her two talks did Miss Morgan refer to opponents of France by name. As an American, she stresses the importance of keeping neutral. After all, this is a peculiar war and nobody can foresee the turn of events.

Mrs. Dewey took the platform for a minute to say that it was too good an opportunity for a politician like Charles S. Dewey, her husband, to miss. He would therefore draw the winning numbers for the door prizes. Mrs. Dewey also remarked that her daughter, Louise Smith, had arranged the bridge party. Many women said the party was the best ever, and I agree. One prize—a charming hat—was won by Mrs. P. A. Valentine, the much loved absentee, now happily recovering from pneumonia at Passavant hospital.

Among the 300 guests were Mrs. Stanley Ford, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Wallace Winter, Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth, Mrs. Robert Dunham, Mrs. Charles Little, Mrs. H. C. Bangs, Mrs. Robert Thorne, Mrs. Warren Fairbanks, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Mrs. Trevor Stamp, Mrs. H. J. McBirney.

Next Thursday afternoon at the alliance library tea there will be an attraction that should draw many, a communication from Mrs. John Storrs. Mrs. Storrs, an American of French birth, is spending a year in France at Orleans with her sculptor husband and Monique, her daughter. She is a brilliant writer and her letters will be literary, even if the censor did not allow all the highlights of the situation to pass.

One of the very good parties last week was a late tea at the Arts club arranged by the English Speaking union for Raymond Massey, the Lincolnesque character now playing here. Mr. Massey is a tall, rangy man who has electrified the country with his characterization of Abraham Lincoln.

There was a reception for Mr. Massey in the club lounge, where members met also the new Chicago president of the union, George Spaulding. After tea Mr. Massey stood up and addressed the party, telling in the most unaffected way how he came to go on the stage. He is a Canadian, and after service in the great war, found himself in Siberia with the overseas troops. In the long nights of winter Mr. Massey organized theatricals and one thing led to another, until finally John Barrymore, I believe it was, advised him to go to London. Here he acted in various companies for five years. Of Robert Sherwood, his author, the inception of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," and the steps contributing to its writing Mr. Massey could only speak with the greatest emotion. He seemed about to break down and weep at the thought that fate had handed him such a great medium. Such humility is rarely seen on the boards, and it was delightful to meet Mr. Massey and his pretty wife.

"Gone With the Wind" opened with much éclat, preceded by many small dinners and at least two big ones. Col. and Mrs. George Langhorne had a party of 35 for Mrs. E. H. Winterbotham, their guest, now lying ill at St. Luke's. And Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn dined over 50 at the Racquet club, where their party spread down the entire center of the big dining room.

One of the interesting celebrations of last week was the 50th anniversary of the Visiting Nurse association, which met for a long while in the old days at Mrs. Thomas Lyons' house, one of the darlings of yesteryear. And from the Visiting Nurse society several others have sprung, the Infant Welfare and the Tuberculosis institute.

The anniversary party, which was also the annual meeting, was held in the Historical Society building in Lincoln park. The reports were read in the theater, where a large audience gathered to hear Mrs. John H. Blair's presidential address. Mrs. Robert Gardiner was chairman of the meeting, and called upon Mrs. Aldis Browne for the auxiliary report, Mrs. Watson Armour for the figures on infantile paralysis, on Mrs. Charles Dewey for the treasurer's report, and Miss Margaret Conover for the financial statement. One of the highlights was the giving of two gold medal pins. One went to Miss Westfall, the superintendent, for half a century of wonderful nursing service to Chicago.

Upstairs in the charmingly set and decorated tearoom among the beautiful relics of our early American past was the spicy aroma of mulled wine. This was provided by Charles B. Pike, president of the Historical society, to drink to the visiting nurses. Among the society's new exhibits in wall cases, which all were wanting to see, was Mrs. Pike's gift recently purchased from a noted collection. These were possessions of George Washington, including shoe buckles and cuff buttons. The Ladies of Mount Vernon, of whom Mrs. George B. Carpenter is the Chicago member, were also in the field to buy these historic treasures, but Mrs. Pike won out. Rivalry is always exciting. The membership of the Visiting Nurse association is largely a hereditary affair, carrying on from mother to daughter.

Distinguished Florida Cast in "Pinafore"

By He en Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

This resort is still resounding to echoes of "Pinafore," which was given Friday night at the Bath and Tennis club as the annual event of the Romany chorus. Presented by an illustrious cast, supported by the Romanies, it was greeted by an audience of equal distinction. Leading rôles were taken by John Charles Thomas, Hope Manning, Adele Rowland, Elwood Hawkins, and Elwood Gary. Pauline Burke Carr, a talented young woman from West Palm Beach, also was in the cast.

Action of the play took place upon the decks of the S. S. Pinafore, an exact reproduction of an English battleship of that period, complete with portholes and wicked looking cannon. Anchored in the swimming pool of the club it looked old enough and experienced enough to have sailed directly from the "Queen's Navee" into these ultramodern and luxurious surroundings.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne and Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Thomas, Romany sponsors, have been busy receiving congratulations since the performance of "Pinafore." The operetta was prefaced by a large number of dinner parties.

Mrs. Charles S. Davis, whose arrival from Chicago was delayed, is now at her Lake Trail home. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Drum, and by Mrs. George Cargile of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper, who have been guests for the last two weeks of Mrs. Vilas Norton, left on Wednesday for Chicago. Mr. Harper indulged in his favorite sport of fishing while here.

Mrs. William F. Bode and George Skinner were Chicagoans attending a dinner this week at the Breakers hotel in gala celebration of the 90th birthday of Gen. J. Ernest Smith of Wilmington, Del., one of the founders and charter members of the Old Guard Golfing society. The Old Guard was founded 40 years ago. Its first president was the late Walter J. Travers, a leading golfer of his day. Gen. Smith succeeded him.

Mrs. Quigley Moffett was among those giving dinners prior to the backgammon tournament at the Everglades club Tuesday evening. There were eight in Mrs. Moffett's party. Next week young Mrs. Moffett is giving a dinner party for ten, after which she will take her guests to see "Gone With the Wind."

Life on the ocean wave is full of thrills for those who go down to the sea in cruisers to lure the big fellows. Competition continues keen in the various classifications of the annual fishing contest engaged in by members and guests of the Sailfish club. A light regulation tackle is used, a 12 thread line, and a rod weighing 6 ounces. Guests and juniors may use heavier tackle. Leaders in the contest are Mrs. W. L. Lyon of Winnetka, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Mrs. Henry Hooper of Chicago, and Ralph Richardson of Wheaton.

Wednesday, Red Cross day in Palm Beach, was busy and successful with Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy at the helm. The Chicago chapter also contributed to the success of the day by responding to an S O S call for uniforms sent out by Mrs. Cudahy and sent down the required number of immaculate white uniforms. Mrs. Cudahy was assisted by Mrs. Charles G. King. Mrs. Cudahy, who is a member of the National Board of Incorporators of the Red Cross, gave a tea for her workers on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High of Lake Forest are at the Vineta hotel for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Reavely, newlyweds, have taken a house in West Palm Beach. Mrs. Reavely is the former Mrs. Mary Louise Kaufman Tonella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis G. Kaufman of New York and Palm Beach. She is the sister of Mrs. Joseph Wintersteen of Chicago, Mrs. Richard Dilworth of Philadelphia, Mrs. Edward Harding III., Philadelphia, and the Countess Juliet de Manlo, London. Mr. Reavely is a commercial pilot and flew the Donahue honeymoon plane to Havana.

British Take Over Normandy Coast Hospital

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.

At the very beginning of the war, the American hospital of Paris, which long has been situated in the suburb of Neuilly, at once began to equip a military hospital of large proportions on the Normandy coast, at Etretat. All kinds of material for the most modern services were forwarded from the United States, where the undertaking attracted the support of those who had long taken an interest in the American hospital at Neuilly, as well as many of their friends. The Casino and the Golf hotel at Etretat were turned over for this enterprise, and soon 1,500 beds were ready.

But the relative immobility of the war, which soon took on the character of a siege rather than a series of great battles, resulted in so few casualties that the doctors of the American hospital presently began to turn their attention to the refugees in central and southern France. It now appears that, in anticipation of greater military activity, the British recently made arrangements to take over the entire plant of the American hospital at Etretat, and the contracts for the transfer have been signed. With 1,500 beds full the cost would be $3,000,000 a year.

Dr. Lawrence Fuller of the American hospital, who was in charge of the installation at Etretat, has in recent weeks been spending a great deal of time, along with other doctors and internes of the American hospital, at Chateauroux and vicinity, where they have been arranging for a hospital of about a hundred beds to take care of urgent work among the French, and particularly the Alsatian, refugees. They have special need of vitamin B, and also of cod liver oil, for cases of rickets among the children.

Mme. Eidé Noréna, singer of Norwegian birth, who recently became the wife of an American resident of Paris, Henry Blackmer, is to appear at a forthcoming gala at the opera, along with Georges Thill and other Parisian stars, in a performance which is sponsored by Norwegians in Paris, the proceeds to be used for the benefit of sufferers in Finland.

Paul Hazard, who has lectured on French culture at various times at leading American universities, and who holds the degree of LL. D. from Harvard, recently was elected a member of the French Academy.

Dormant House Plants.

House plants often need a little nursing at this time of the year to preserve their strength. Because they fail to make new growth abundantly must not be taken as a sign that they are deteriorating. Most plants have a natural resting season. As long as the plant tissues are inactive, watering must be curtailed, and under no circumstances should such plants be fed liberally.

Business and Home Women to Share Views

By Betty Browning.

"The business woman's problems are also the home woman's problems," Miss Jessamine G. Hoagland asserted. "Many business women are homemakers with family responsibilities. Many home women have a stake in the business world, thru a sister or a daughter who is in business.

"That's why we're inviting home women as well as business women to the midwest conference on current problems affecting women in business," Miss Hoagland concluded.

"These problems, we believe, affect all women. If we women, home women and business women, come together and become better acquainted, and if we exchange ideas, perhaps we can find a solution for our common problems."

This is the point of view of the program chairman for the midwest conference to be held next Saturday at the Palmer House. All interested women in the central west are invited, whether or not they belong to the 5,000 organizations whose leaders have received invitations from the 30 odd sponsoring business and professional women's clubs in and about Chicago.

"Home" women not only are to be guests at the conference; they are to have an important place on the program. Five leaders of outstanding organizations will speak for the home woman in a symposium, "Common Problems of Home Women and Business Women," at the opening session Saturday morning. Miss Hoagland explained that the remainder of the day's program will present the business woman's views.

Genevieve Forbes Herrick, journalist, will speak at this same session on "Formulating Public Opinion." Oscar Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and a city official will bring greetings, and Mrs. Jewell Organ Coleman, music chairman of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, will sing. Miss Aubyn Chinn, vice president of the Advertising Federation of America, will preside.

At a luncheon session Miss Josephine Schain, since 1935 chairman of the national committee on the cause and cure of war, representing 11 leading women's organizations, will speak. Miss Schain's subject will be "Our Pan-American Neighbors." Mrs. Edith Jarvis Alden, president of the Altrusa Club of Chicago, will preside.

Miss Josephine Schain.

The afternoon will be devoted to a symposium dealing with various phases of discrimination against employed women, particularly with discriminatory legislation. Miss Mary Anderson of Washington, D. C., director of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor, will speak on "How the Married Women's Bill Will Affect Business Generally." Hugh W. Cross, speaker of the state house of representatives, will discuss "Legislative Procedure—Tracing a Bill from the Time It Is Presented Until Passed or Defeated."

Charles S. Craigmile, vice president of the Belden Manufacturing company, will express the employer's viewpoint in an address, "Regulatory Legislation for Women Who Work." Mrs. Ora Snyder, manufacturer, will speak on "Freedom of Opportunity." Miss Helen Cerise, Chicago attorney and president of the National Association of Women Lawyers, will serve as moderator for a question and answer period following.

At the close of this session Miss Celia M. Howard of Chicago, second vice president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will discuss proposed resolutions regarding married women's bills and other forms of discrimination against women workers. Resolutions are to be formulated by a committee headed by Miss Howard after the conference and are to be widely disseminated in order to encourage similar action by women in other parts of the country.

Miss Hoagland, who is founder president of the Federated Council of Professional and Business Women of Chicago, will preside at the closing banquet session Saturday evening.

Elmer A. Forsberg, Finnish consul, will speak on "Finnish Women Working at War," and will describe the activities of the Lotta Svard, an organization of more than 100,000 women who drive locomotives and trucks, do the cooking and sanitary work of the camps, operate telegraph stations, stand watch for enemy air raids, make uniforms, and otherwise labor in order to free men for the war against Russia. Another speaker will summarize the program in an address, "What's Ahead?"

For out of town visitors who choose to remain in town for the Lincoln's birthday week-end there will be open house all day Sunday at the Palmer House, and a party to see "Gone with the Wind." A tea and fashion show will be held for the delegates Monday at Marshall Field & Co.

Mrs. Clara M. Kelley, district No. 1 chairman of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is general chairman of the conference. Among those assisting her are Miss Elva Boyd White, Miss Hoagland, Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, Mrs. Cora E. Wright, Miss Alma C. Koch, Miss Allie Anderson, Miss Eleana Gould, Miss Helen Vance, Miss Allanora Shantz, Miss Elizabeth Krouse, Mrs. C. E. Henderson, Miss Rose Shackman, Mrs. Mark Wilson, Miss Ludmilla Mazurek, and Miss Howard.

Among the sponsoring groups are Chicago Bank Women, Alliance of Business and Professional Women, Altrusa club, Women's Advertising club, Association of Public Stenographers, Chicago Business and Professional Women, Civic Business and Professional Women, Women Dentists, Chicago chapter, National Executive Housekeepers' association; Dietetic association, Filing association, the Home Economics Women in Business, Credit Women's club; Evanston, Lake Shore, West Area, and Roseland Business and Professional Women's clubs, Hotel Women's association, Office Supervisors' club, Railway Business Women's association, Medical Technologists, Quota club, Soroptimist club, women's auxiliary, Hotel Greeters of America; Women's Finance forum, Women's Traffic club, and the South Side Zonta club.

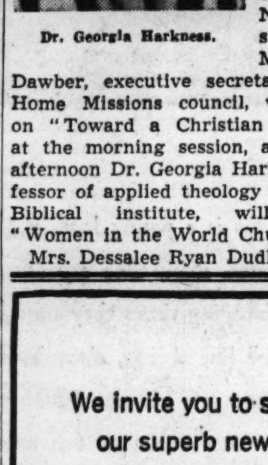
Friday has been proclaimed a world day of prayer and meditation by religious bodies in many countries, and the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation will sponsor an interdenominational service of prayer for men and women that day at the Chicago temple, 33 North Clark street. Dr. Mark A. Dawber, executive secretary of the Home Missions council, will speak on "Toward a Christian America" at the morning session, and in the afternoon Dr. Georgia Harkness, professor of applied theology at Garrett Biblical institute, will discuss "Women in the World Church."



Dr. Georgia Harkness.

Mrs. Dessalee Ryan Dudley of Battle Creek, Mich., international president of Altrusa, service organization for business and professional women, will speak at a dinner meeting of the Chicago club tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club.

Mrs. Erma B. Christy of Muncie, Ind., fifth district governor, and other out of town leaders also will be guests. Mrs. Stella Ford Walker, the Chicago club's education chairman, will present a pictorial chart showing the wide variety of occupations in which Chicago members are engaged.

Housing is a problem very much to the fore on the programs of a number of organizations just now. D. E. Mackelmann, director of the Metropolitan Housing council, will speak on "This Business of Housing" before the 1st district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, at a midwinter open meeting all day tomorrow at the Hotel Sherman.

A club institute is scheduled for the morning with Mrs. James E. Sime, Mrs. E. E. Byerrum, Mrs. J. H. Riemenschneider, Mrs. George A. Harriman, and Mrs. George S. Mandeville, respectively state American home, conservation, Park Ridge, and press and publicity chairmen, and district club institute chairman participating.

Following luncheon Mr. Mackelmann and Capt. William J. Grace, former Illinois state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will speak. Mrs. Arthur R. Webber will give a history of the district and there will be music. Mrs. Richard M. Hallinan has planned the program. Mrs. George Hanly Nippert is president.

Elizabeth Wood, executive secretary of the Chicago Housing authority, and George Schermer, supervisor of tenant selection, will describe the place of the authority in Chicago's housing problems at the next housing institute Thursday afternoon at the Woman's City club.

The Poets' Practice club will meet Thursday evening at the Lyon & Healy building.

AT HOME IN ROGERS PARK

Mrs. Donald R. Kallman, the former Sally Lewis, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence R. Kallman of Park Ridge, were married early this year. The bride is the daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Percival G. Lewis of 6912 Sheridan road. The wedding took place in the First Methodist church in Evanston. Mr. Kallman and his bride are at home in Rogers Park.

Philanthropy Goal of Many Club Affairs

Attention will be drawn to a number of philanthropic enterprises thru events taking place this week. The Chicago Heart association will hold its annual meeting, a joint session with the Chicago Medical society, Wednesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club. Dr. John Herr Musser, professor of medicine at Tulane university medical school and president of the Child Welfare and Public Health association of New Orleans, La., will speak on "The Growing Importance of Coronary Diseases."

Dr. James B. Herrick, honorary president of the Chicago Heart association, will introduce Dr. Musser. Dr. Nathan S. Davis III., president of the Chicago Medical society, will be chairman of the meeting, and Dr. N. C. Gilbert, president of the Heart association, will welcome the guests. The general public is invited.

The meeting will bring to a climax this year's sale of Valentine stamps, thru which the work of the association is supported. This work is both educational and philanthropic in scope. Study courses for laymen, including nurses, teachers and social workers, are sponsored; clinical sections for physicians are held thru the winter months, and data on heart disease are supplied to interested agencies and organizations.

The association also sends occupational therapists into the homes of child cardiac sufferers, instructs the young patients in various crafts and provides needed materials without charge. Wheelchairs are lent to indigent invalids.

Next Friday evening the Bryn Mawr College Club of Chicago will present Eve Curie, author and daughter of Pierre and Marie Curie, discoverers of radium, in a lecture at New Trier High school auditorium in Winnetka. "Science and the Woman" will be Mlle. Curie's subject. Mrs. W. Lindsay Suter of Winnetka, president of the club, is chairman of this benefit for the organization's scholarship fund. Mrs. William L. Eisendrath Jr. of Glencoe is handling ticket sales.

Chicago Alumnae of Frances Shimer college, Mount Carroll, Ill., will raise money for their scholarship fund thru their third annual scholarship dance Saturday evening at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. William L. Rayner is promotion chairman, with Mrs. Thomas E. Maddock of Highland Park chairman for the north shore chapter, Mrs. Charles R. Rothe of Oak Park for the west suburban chapter, and Miss Dorine Goldberry for the south shore chapter.

The women's division of the Salvation Army will hold its first business meeting under its new officers at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. William S. Monroe, president, 64 East Elm street. Luncheon will follow. Mrs. Benjamin J. Rosenthal and Mrs. A. Homer Goodhue are new vice presidents, and Mrs. Edward J. Buchan, corresponding secretary. Besides Mrs. Monroe, officers who will continue in office are Mrs. Joseph F. Ross, recording secretary; Mrs. George Rasmussen, treasurer, and Mrs. Robert F. Bensinger, historian.

A special ways and means committee has been created, with Mrs. Joseph T. Govan as chairman, and Mrs. Holland Flagler, Mrs. George W. Wilson and Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming as members. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Homer H. Cooper have been made assistant corresponding secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Chicago Junior Hadassah's 1,200 members will begin their annual fund raising drive at a breakfast at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Covenant club. Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein of K. A. M. temple, Miss Jennie Groner, junior president; Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, president of the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, and Miss Fay Brustin, chairman of the drive, will be among the speakers. Mrs. Eli Baron will present honor pins to members whose contributions last year exceeded their quotas. Miss Sara G. Turner will give an invocation. Miss Libbie Finkel has arranged the meeting.

This year the national organization of Junior Hadassah has set $60,000 as the goal of its drive. Of this sum the Chicago Juniors' share is $12,000. The children's village, Meier Shfeyah; Youth Aliyah, the movement to establish central European refugee children in Palestine; the Pardess Anna orange grove for training students in citrus farming, and the Henrietta Szold School of Nursing in Jerusalem are projects to which Junior Hadassah contributes. In addition, the organization hopes to raise $18,000 for the Jewish national fund this year.

The Chicago chapter of Hadassah will continue its annual tithe campaign with a series of district meetings Tuesday afternoon. In brief, the programs are as follows: South side, Temple Isaiah Israel community center, Mrs. Bertha R. Rissman, speaker; Fred Spector, violinist. Albany Park, Eugene Field park, Dr. W. Gunther Plaut, speaker; refreshments. West suburban, Columbus park, victory review and dramatic sketches by Blanche Dunn Glick. Austin-Lawndale, B'nai Israel congregation, Mrs. James H. Olshan, speaker; Anna Rubacha, dramatic artist. Northwest, Logan Square Masonic temple, Rabbi Paul Gorin, speaker; radio sketch by Northwest Hadassah players. North, Edgewater Beach hotel, Mrs. Harry Berkman, speaker; Esther Corn, singer.

The Chicago Woman's Aid again is conducting a campaign to obtain discarded eyeglasses. By melting down the metal frames money is obtained with which to supply poor school children and adults with glasses. Last year more than 400 pairs of glasses were supplied to the underprivileged in this way. Glasses may be left at the Chicago public library, at Mandel Brothers' clubwoman's bureau and at the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue. Mrs. William Sultan heads the committee for sight saving and assisting the blind, which sponsors the drive.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Aid society of the Uhlich Orphan home, 3730 North California avenue, will be held at 1:30 o'clock Thursday at the home, 3730 North California avenue. Mrs. Henry Zander Jr. will review the book "Maud," and a Valentine party will follow. The society, which recently celebrated its 73d anniversary, is headed by Mrs. Carl Buehler. Mrs. L. A. Seidel is program chairman.

The Southern Woman's Club of Chicago will hold a Valentine party Thursday at the Congress hotel. A board meeting in the morning will precede a luncheon and a program featuring Esther Wilson, contralto, and Florence Twombley, pianist. Mrs. Edmund Tyler and Mrs. Walter Waltrip, president of the Kentucky society of the south side, will be guests. Mrs. L. Massey Harris is president.

Another St. Valentine's celebration will be the barn dance sponsored by the Hotel Greeters and Women's auxiliary of Chicago Feb. 14 in the Grand ballroom of the La Salle hotel. Octavie Valiquet of the Graymont hotel is receiving reservations.

WINNETKA ROMANCE

Miss Shirley McCoy, whose engagement to Arlan Burnham Converse has been announced. Miss McCoy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. McCoy of Winnetka. Mr. Converse's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arlan W. Converse, also live in Winnetka.

Inner Glory

By Eleanor Jewett

Tonight I have a secret
For doll and teddy bear,
And for my dress and for my shoes
And for my desk and chair—
Tonight I have a secret
Which everything must share.

I have a lovely secret!
My mother must be told
And Daddy and my Uncle Jim and Sis, so she won't scold—
My secret is TOMORROW
I shall be six years old!

I'm going to have a party,
With candles on my cake,
And I shall help myself to things
Nor spill the things I take,
And a napkin, not a bib—you see
The difference birthdays make!

Asks: Why Read Meaning Into Picasso's Art?

By Eleanor Jewett.

There is a poem about a little girl, a heartless infant, who, no matter what horrible catastrophe happened in the body of the verse, invariably in the last line "laughed and laughed and laughed." The poem struck us as being peculiarly appropriate just now in connection with the opening last week of the "Forty Years of Art with Picasso" exhibition at the Art Institute. In fact, that same show, when recently on view at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, had, if the story may be believed, a visitor patterned much after the little girl in the poem.

The visitor was a lady and she went thru the galleries all dewy-eyed innocence, but as the consecutive shocks from Picasso's fertile imagination beat ever harder and harder upon her the innocence gave way to mirth and she laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks. Checking herself at a large canvas inscribed with ambiguous designs that according to the catalog was the "Portrait of a Seated Woman," she dried her eyes and turned to a guard. "Can you tell me," she asked, "where the woman's head is?"

The guard drew himself up. "We are not allowed to give out any information, madam," he answered.

The story stops there, but undoubtedly the lady [like the little girl in the poem] found herself again in hysterics.

Now that the Picasso exhibit is in Chicago, our Art institute guards had better arm themselves with a formula against that moment when visitors will ask questions, because undoubtedly this is a show that lays itself open to questions. It would be wisest, probably, not to go below the surface, not to try to read a meaning into these grotesque exaggerations; if we are really wise we shall be as casual about them as Picasso, who, in the making of them, was merely relieving himself of an emotion which he felt would be better out of his system.

The various "periods" are generously illustrated. Picasso changed his periods like a snake sheds its skin, but with a greater amount of showmanship. The world knew of the Blue period, the Rose period, the Negro period, the Cubism period, the Classical period—apparently Picasso's very latest period, the "Sweet" period [if a Paris critic of last summer may be believed] is not in the exhibit. Which is a pity. One would LOVE to find a pretty Picasso. According to the criticism, these "sweet" pictures were flower paintings, very decorative, very academic, and sold for tremendous prices.

The Picasso exhibition will undoubtedly attract a large audience. It is to be devoutly hoped, however, that a flock of little Picassos will not be one of the results of the show. There have already been hundreds of pseudo Picassos in American shows, just as there have been little Derains, and Cezannes and Dalis and Matisses, Braques and Dufys. There is something about the kind of art these men perpetrate which makes the merest tyro into an artist. He feels the creative impulse throbbing in his fingertips. "If this," he says to himself, "is art, let me at it!" And he creates, just like Picasso, just like Cezanne. The only mistake he has made is that it is not art. But only a few think that [you remember in Hans Anderson's story, "The Emperor's New Clothes," there was only one child in all the vast throng who saw truly enough to know that the clothes simply did not exist] and so his efforts pass as art. He is delighted; his family is bewildered; the juries are berated and the public irritated.

Modern art is, however, not like fine art. Modern art is more concerned with new approaches than with results. Picasso has had a gorgeous time evolving new approaches. Many of them look mad to me, but you may enjoy them. There are, by the way, a few sensitive drawings and a few pictures in the exhibit that suggest what Picasso might have been had he not gone modern. A particularly delicate drawing of a mother and child, with several sketches of hands [beautfully drawn] on the same page, is as much a piece of pure craftsmanship as anything of Raphael's. It makes one regret the things the artist might have done had the center of balance for him been shifted just a little to the right.

The Hoosier salon is going into its very successful second week at the Marshall Field galleries. The exhibit closes next Saturday night. It has again been one of the enjoyable midseason shows.

The Chicago Society of Artists is holding its 51st annual exhibition at the America Fore gallery, 830 Rush street. The "Portrait," by Frances Foy, makes it an extraordinary occasion. The picture is of a young girl, seated, in profile; her pose is simple and the coloring is restrained.

You might think there was nothing much to the canvas, that it is just another picture, but how wrong you would be! Frances Foy has put all the charm and wonder of youth into the expression and poise of that slender figure crowned with its sensitive face and mass of brown hair. She has painted a rare picture—one of those "pictures of the year" which you wish there could be some way of keeping forever on view for our Chicago public. We need the sort of inspiration this painting gives.

There are other pleasant paintings in the exhibit. Julia Thecla shows an intriguing little canvas, "Early Walk." She paints with the meticulous regard to detail which makes a Dali composition a thing of delight, no matter what its context [within bounds]. Ethel Spears has a rollicking sense of humor and an infinite love for vivid color, both of which qualities are found in profusion in the gay "Elgin Park." Yvonne Pryor does things with a steel mill, "Shut Down," that brings thoughts of cathedral roofs to mind. Perhaps a mill needs rest sometimes as much as a church. Ethel Crouch Brown has come out successfully in "Plants," and Macena Barton is still in her mid-Victorian mood with "The Proposal," the portrait of a demure young woman in old-fashioned dress. Elise Donaldson shows "Walking with Father," a delightful study of three backs off for a Sunday stroll. The "Montrose Breakwater," by Donald Mundt, is one of the very nice things in the show, painted in a clear, definite style that is oddly intriguing.

The Arts club, Wrigley tower, opened three exhibitions last Friday. These are the work of Camille Bombois, Abraham Rattner and Yves Tanguy.

"THE RED BRIDGE," BY CECIL LARSON

Cecil Larson of Proctor, Vt., contributed this outstanding landscape to the current exhibit of works by Swedish-American artists at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. It has been selected as the picture to be sent to Sweden to represent in a permanent collection the finest Swedish-American art of today.

Belleair, Fla., Thaws Out and Fun Resumes

BELLEAIR, FLA.

In a last fling, the paralyzing cold of the late spell really froze a houseful of Belleview Biltmore guests here, found it couldn't shake their enjoyment of a winter holiday on Florida's gulf coast and then gave up. Monday of this week dawned clear and warm; Tuesday was even warmer. Two hundred guests nearly cheered the sun and set out in earnest for the golf courses, tennis courts, beach and pool which supply most of the sports interests at this venerable old spot.

Arrivals this last week were slowed up. Few Chicagoans found their way thru blocked roads, but a substantial colony of Chicago dwellers furnished plenty of excitement and action.

Mrs. Arnold S. Kirkeby had as her guests an old school chum and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Murphy, who hail from Montclair, N. J. They proved popular newcomers. Others who have arrived are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Kasch and their daughter, Miss Emily Kasch. She and her father are ardent horsemen and have been seen, regardless of the wind and weather, cantering about the property.

During the week arrivals from Chicago included Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Murrell, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton S. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. John McKinlay. Mr. and Mrs. David M. Yates of Oak Park are with the McKinlays.

The early part of the week will see Kimball Salisbury, a guest for many seasons, and James G. Kemper come in. Mr. Kemper will bring with him 25 executives of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, for a week of golf and relaxation, a practice he has followed for the last few years.

Miss Shirley L. Meyerson a Bride of Jan. 28

The marriage of Miss Shirley Loretta Meyerson to Marvin J. Reskin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reskin of 4059 West Congress street, took place at 5:30 o'clock last Sunday at the Covenant club. Miss Meyerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer G. Meyerson of 1327 Independence boulevard, attendance the school of the Goodman theater.

WINTERS IN ARIZONA

Mrs. Hollis Kirk is spending the winter at the Remuda ranch in Wickenburg, Ariz., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hollis, joined her for Christmas and New Year's. Mrs. Kirk rides a ranch horse that has won prizes in the Phoenix, Yuma, and Prescott rodeos and shows.

Western Cow Pony Crashes Arizona Society

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The cow pony has broken into society. No racing day at the State Fair grounds in Phoenix is complete without an "Arizona" race, in which the entries are western horses. Most of them are of the breed of cow ponies that, for many generations, shared in the work and privation of the range, but the strain has been improved by the introduction of thorobred blood.

In the forefront of the state-wide movement in Arizona to improve the cow pony, is "Doc" Pardee, head wrangler of the Arizona Biltmoré, to whom, 10 years ago, William Woodward, breeder of Gallant Fox, gave two thorobreds, Rattler and File Maker. Two of Rattler's sons, by a range mother, are owned by the Louis Swifts and are now in Chicago learning to jump.

According to "Doc" Pardee, the cow pony knows how to handle himself in rough country, works with a loose rein, and can go great distances to water. He bucks, until broken to the saddle, because his mother has taught him that the only way to shake off a mountain lion, known out here as a "varmint," is to buck. Crossed with the thorobred, whose tradition is running instead of bucking, the cow pony has become the focus of interest in Arizona horse racing.

Last Friday was Chandler day at the Phoenix race track, and the feature of the meet was the San Marcos hotel handicap. Among the San Marcos guests in Gov. Jones' box were the Pullman Lowdens, formerly of Chicago; Proctor Patterson of Clevelang, Mrs. Helen Hyde of Wichita, Kas., and Robert Foehl of the San Marcos.

The Pullman Lowdens arrived at the San Marcos in time for the annual charity ball sponsored by the Junior Service club at Chandler. The proceeds of the ball furnish school lunches for needy children in the community.

The Chicago welcoming committee at the San Marcos are kept busy as each day brings more members to its group. The Judson F. Stones of Wilmette were delayed several hours on account of snow storms, but arrived in time to attend a swimming meet. Edgar Stanton of Winnetka, who arrived recently with Mrs. Stanton, won the weekly putting contest held on the San Marcos fairways. Other recent arrivals are Col. and Mrs. Nathaniel Howard of Winnetka; the William C. Jacksons of Chicago; Charles C. Kerwin of Lake Forest, and his brother, Edward M. Kerwin of Oak Park; the Junior Edwin M. Ashcrafts of Chicago; and Mr. and Mrs. Horton Fall Jr. of Evanston.

Horse racing at Sahuaro Lake ranch, outside of Mesa, has ranch-bred horses for entries, guests for riders, and the "top rail" of the corral for a grandstand. Even when racing is not scheduled, seats are in demand, for Phil Lewis, owner of the ranch, raises and trains his own horses. Just now, six colts are being broken to lead and are fast becoming rope-wise.

Mrs. Roud McCann of Evanston, who is staying the entire winter at Sahuaro Lake, expects to spend the next two weeks visiting with her son, Ensign Jordan McCann, in California. Visiting at Sahuaro Lake ranch now are the Fred Sauters of Chicago; the Wesley Beutlers of Oak Park, and Mrs. Beutler's mother, Mrs. Mary Hahn.

The Arizona Biltmore, with its great arched vistas, lends itself to parties on the grand scale. Saturday night it was the scene of the 25th birthday party of the St. Luke's charity ball given for the benefit of St. Luke's Home in Phoenix. One of the unique features of the sanatorium is the annual spring hegira of staff and patients from the desert to St. Luke's in the mountains at Prescott, where patients may rest thru the summer in the coolness of the pine woods.

Miss Mary Louise Anderson of Chicago and the Biltmore estates has been interested in St. Luke's Home for many years. With her the other night was Dr. Siegfried Maurer of the University of Chicago. Dr. Maurer told us about a Scotch Canadian who visited him in Chicago. Upon his return to his home, the Scotchman wrote that the shot of vitamins Dr. Maurer had given him had produced a curious and most unexpected result. He had become unduly elated and had spent far too much money in the big city.

After completing a trip thru Mexico by truck, a mere journey to Chicago by station wagon holds no terrors for Mr. and Mrs. John Stefan [Ruth Walgreen Dart]. The Stefans left Wednesday for Chicago after spending the last month between the Biltmore, their four hundred acre ranch beyond Squaw peak, and Mexico. The truck was almost an inspiration. It not only served to bring home a load of beautifully colored tile for the kitchen floor of the ranch house, but proved to be a most acceptable bed with the addition of some straw and a bed roll, taken along "just in case." Among the treasures which loaded the truck to the gunwales, the objects of most intense interest to Mrs. Stefan's sons, were beautifully tooled saddle bags of coyote and wolf skin. The boys do not view their return to Chicago with enthusiasm, for it interrupts their prospecting activities with their favorite cowboy, Bob Southers.

The African daisies have made an early appearance this year in Arizona, and are running riot on the grounds of the desert inns. Sweet peas have been blooming for a month. Out at Camelback, Adolph Blanchard, gardener from Switzerland, tends his winter blooms zealously at the foot of these strange western mountains. Two years ago, Adolph returned to his native land to marry a Swiss girl, whose parents saw her depart for Arizona with deep foreboding, for they were sure she would be scalped by the Indians.

Recent arrivals at Camelback Inn are the Wirt Mortons of Lake Forest, the Charles J. Haines of Chicago, Miss Barbara Wells, a daughter of Mrs. John Favill of Highland Park, the Oliver Turners of Highland Park, the C. W. Haskells of Evanston, and the J. H. Wheelers of Glencoe. Mr. Haskell and Mr. Wheeler have not "been on a horse for ten years," but this week they approached Ray Griswold, head wrangler, asking for a couple of gentle horses, and now they are wearing cowboy boots and broad-brimmed hats and looking for new and tougher steeds to conquer.

Miss Leonarda Calcagno Fiancee of Dominic Buttitta

Miss Leonarda Lillian Calcagno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Calcagno of Champaign, Ill., is celebrating both her birthday and the announcement of her engagement at a party at Bradley hall this evening. When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Dec. 18, 1891.

Dear Julia: Did you hear Sir Edwin Arnold when he was in New York? Will and I attended his reading last evening in Central Music hall, and I recommend that you try to hear him if you haven't already done so. You have read "The Light of Asia," I suppose, and it is a wonderful experience, but even more satisfying to sit and listen while he interprets his own words. He has a flexible voice and I didn't mind his English accent, for it was more pleasing than most. There is a fine bell-like quality in his tones that is grateful to the ear. Like most Englishmen of culture, he is courtly in bearing and answered to one's ideal of a man of letters.

Sir Edwin Arnold.

President Harper of the University of Chicago introduced him and I liked his response to the introduction.

"Like all strangers," said Sir Edwin, "when I look at Chicago, I wonder and wonder, and feel that, seated like a queen by the side of her silver sea, she must become a center of civilization."

There was infinite pathos in his voice as he read his poem: "He and She," and the silence in the great hall was almost oppressive as he spoke the first lines:

"There must be pleasure in dying, Sweet,
To make you so placid from head to feet."

It may not be great poetry, but he has succeeded in expressing the sad, baffled feeling we have all had, looking on the form of a beloved one, lying cold in death, with a smile on the lips. Why are the dead so placid? Do they know some secret which we, who call ourselves the living, do not possess?

The lines I love best from his pen are from "After Death In Arabia," dealing also with the mystery of this mortal change, but hinting of immortality. I think I should like these read at my funeral. Will you remember and tell Will and Martha this, if I should go before you? I don't like to mention it to either one, for it hurts them too much, but I can tell you, dear friend of old school days. Have you any wish that I could carry out, if I should linger after you?

Please don't think me morbid. I don't want to die, for I have so much to live for. But once in a while the thought comes to my mind that God may call me suddenly from this pleasant earth, and I have a wish to prepare a bit for it. Here are the lines I mean, from Sir Edwin's poem. They are very comforting, I think, to those who remain.

"He who died at Azan sends
This to comfort all his friends:

Faithful friends! It lies, I know,
Pale and white and cold as snow;
And ye say: 'Abdallah's dead!'
Weeping at the feet and head.
I can see your falling tears,
I can hear your sighs and prayers;
Yet I smile and whisper this:
'I am not the thing you kiss.
Cease your tears and let it lie.
It was mine . . . it is not I'."

In some way I had always had the impression that Sir Edwin was brother of Matthew Arnold, the poet and critic, but I find I was wrong about that. Sir Edwin is not related to the famous educator, Dr. Arnold of Rugby, tho he has been a headmaster, too, one of his schools having been in Poona, India. Like Matthew Arnold, he won the coveted Newdigate prize for poetry at Oxford. His work has definitely been writing, not teaching. He stands high in journalism, having been editor of the London Daily Telegraph. His poetry will mean much more to me now that I've heard him read it.

This week has brought the 84th birthday of Whittier, our beloved American poet. He is quite different from Arnold, but I'm sure they'd like each other.

And now, with love, I am your devoted MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Not So Long Ago.

Mrs. J. J. Strandberg, Belle Plaine, Ia., writes of early days in Woodstock, Ill., when her father, J. S. Medlar, daguerrotype maker, plowing his garden, often found arrow heads, indicative of Indian hunting grounds. Mrs. Strandberg's mother was a classmate of Frances E. Willard at Northwestern Female seminary, Evanston, and spoke in the cause of temperance for many years.

Inspired by an account of Billy Florence, the actor, in a recent issue, Mrs. Charles P. Horr sends us a photograph of her uncle, Col. Stoughton Bliss of Cleveland, O., whom the actor chose as a model in dress and manner in portraying the character of Bardwell Slote in "The Mighty Dollar."

A. W. Sanford, Crown Point, Ind., sends us the best photograph of John L. Sullivan we have ever seen, and one of Billy Florence, saying of the latter: "Your mention of Billy Florence recalls many pleasant recollections of one of America's finest comedians. I never missed seeing Mr. and Mrs. Florence when they came to McVicker's. One of his best portrayals was the character of Captain Cuttle, and the way he managed his false arm, with hook attachment, was a fine piece of acting. When he passed the stage suffered an irreparable loss."

Students at N. U., Chicago Campus to Attend Rally

Some 3,000 men and women enrolled in University college on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university have been invited to an all-college rally at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at Thorne hall. A general gathering will be followed by separate parties at 8:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Themis club, women's organization, and the Knights, men's club.

Short-talks by school officials and the singing of college songs will be features of the general meeting. The Themis club will present a style show with members as models, and there will be refreshments. Miss G. Doris Williams will be in charge.

I Bought a Tube of
MELLQUIST Massage Balm
And it was the smartest thing I ever did! It only cost $1 postpaid, yet it contained 20 applications of the same famous balm which is used in the 19 Mellquist Reducing Salons.
It's made in their own laboratories, by their own chemists. That's one reason why it's so different—so effective.
And that's one reason why my figure is getting lovelier every day! (The other reason, of course, is the Mellquist Reducing Treatments that I take at their salon.)
Send a dollar and try a tube of Mellquist Massage Balm yourself or step in for a trial treatment. Special for this week—20 treatments for $10.00. Call Central 5300—336 North Michigan Ave.

Drama League Will Sponsor Three Events

This week is National Drama week and the Chicago Drama league is sponsoring three programs "to bring a freshened public appreciation of the place drama holds in national affairs." The words are those of Gov. Henry Horner in a message calling general attention to the celebration.

Friday afternoon Harold A. Ehrensperger, recently returned from a tour of schools, colleges, and community theaters in all sections of the country, will speak on "Theater Coming Alive" before the Drama league, the Federation of Little Theaters, and others interested at the Drama league offices, 410 South Michigan avenue. Mr. Ehrensperger is chairman of the federation.

Tuesday evening a party of league members will see "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." On Thursday morning, at the Arts club, John Pollack will address a meeting of league members and their guests. Mr. Pollack is the author of many one-act plays and at one time was in charge of the one-act play department for the Keith-Orpheum circuit. At present he is representing the Playwrights' company in Chicago.

Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, president of the Drama league, and Mr. Ehrensperger have announced that the first all-Chicago drama festival will be presented by the Federation of Little Theaters in May under the auspices of the Drama league. This festival is planned as the first of an annual series.

A play-writing contest open to all persons living within 100 miles of Chicago will be held in connection with the festival. The deadline for the contest is March 1. There are more than 25 little theater groups in the federation.

Another program that promises unusual interest will be presented at a dinner meeting of the National League of American Pen Women, Chicago branch, Thursday evening at the Adventurers' club. Dr. and Mrs. Fay-Cooper Cole will speak on "The Life and Literature of the Tinguians [Philippine head hunters]." Dr. Cole is chairman of the department of anthropology at the University of Chicago. He and his wife lived for almost six years among primitive tribes of the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, and the Malay peninsula. Mrs. Cole has published many articles and short stories and two books, "Philippine Folk Tales" and "Savage Gentlemen."

Byrd Arnold Smith and Flora Warren Seymour also will be presented on this program. The former will speak on "The Psychology of Primitive People"; the latter, on "Our Relations with the Native Americans."

The 128th anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens will be celebrated by the Chicago branch of the Dickens Fellowship Saturday evening at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. David Daiches of the English department at the University of Chicago and formerly a fellow of Balliol college, Oxford, will speak on "Aspects of Dickens and the Victorian Era."

James Winning, concert singer, will present a group of old songs, and Edward F. Rines will offer a toast to Dickens' memory. Mrs. Charles E. Platte is receiving reservations.

Elaine De Sellem, mezzo soprano, will sing, accompanied by McKenzie Smith, and Marion Jaffry will play piano solos. Mr. and Mrs. Royden J. Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Dr. and Mrs. G. Henry Mundt, Lewis Bernays, British consul general, and Mrs. Bernays, Mrs. Charles L. Knapp, president of the chapter, and Mr. Knapp are among those who have made reservations for an informal dinner preceding the program.

The Chicago Alumnæ club of the University of Chicago is inviting members and their friends to a private showing of "Picasso—Forty Years of His Art," with a lecture by Miss Helen Parker, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Art institute.

Tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Nathan William MacChesney will open her home on Hawthorne place for the first meeting of the Circulo Intimo of the Instituto de las Españas of Chicago. A one-act Spanish play will be presented by Mrs. Allen Howes, Mrs. Harry Dingman, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allworthy. Tea will be served.

The Instituto de las Españas, now sponsored by Northwestern university, was, before the Spanish civil war, part of the Committee of Cultural Relations created by the Spanish government to foster an appreciation of Spanish culture. There are now branches in San Francisco and New Orleans, with American headquarters at Columbia university.

Dr. May Bere, delegate to the Pioneer Woman's organization, Zionist organization, and for the last nine years a vocational guidance consultant in Palestine, is returning Wednesday to Chicago for her second visit this winter. At a number of meetings she will describe the upbuilding of the Jewish homeland, and particularly the rôle of women in it.

Dr. May Bere.

Wednesday Dr. Bere will address a luncheon at the Hamilton club and that evening will speak at the Pioneer Women's headquarters, 8 South Dearborn street. Other talks are scheduled for Thursday afternoon at the Rogers Park club, Friday evening at the Graemere hotel, Saturday noon at Mandel's tearoom, and Saturday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Max Dolnick, 935 North Sacramento boulevard.

The Indian Council Fire today will observe federation day with a number of club leaders as special guests. William J. Kershaw, Menominee orator, will be among the Indians on the program to be presented at 32 West Randolph street.

Robert Pippinger, young winner of the Prix de Rome in sculpture, who recently returned after a year abroad, will speak on "Youth's Opportunities in Sculpture" at a dinner meeting of the Woman's University Club of Chicago on Friday evening. Dr. Josephine Vander Wolff will be in charge.

At a dinner meeting tomorrow at the Auditorium hotel, the Catholic Poetry Society of America, Chicago chapter, will hear the Rev. Eugene Doherty discuss "The Poetry of Paul Claudel" and Francis E. Croarkin speak on "Poetry in Temperance." Mary Alice Elson will read Amy Boughan's poems. Mary R. Ryan will be in charge.

A German program is planned for the Independent German American Woman's club following a luncheon Wednesday at the Auditorium hotel. Dr. Hugo F. Simon, former German consul general, will speak; Anna Kruetgen, mezzo soprano and wife of Chicago's postmaster, who has charge of the meeting, will sing, and Irene Stolopsky Davis, violinist, will play.

The Welsh Woman's club will hear a travelog by Crystal Marie Bruning, "Vagabond Girl" cyclist, at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday.

Miss Mabel McCrimmon, who has lived in Chile, will speak on "Our Neighbors Farthest South on the Western Coast of South America" before the Illinois chapter of the International Travel Study club at a luncheon Tuesday at Normandy House. Mrs. Paul Eugene Clark has arranged the program.

Katherine Harbison, Katherine Burr Trueblood, Frances Griffith Carleton, and the Alenius quartet will give a concert under the auspices of the Musicians Club of Women tomorrow afternoon at Curtiss hall.

Visitors Find Miami City of Fashion Shows

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. Miami is passionately fond of style shows. A weekly feature at exclusive clubs, they always are well attended. The most magnificent show of them all was held last week. It was a parade of gorgeous furs, everywhere worn during the late cold spell.

At the races chill winds were powerless against the warmth of furs owned by Miamians, which have been in storage for 20 years. They were brought out with hesitancy, found to be quite in the mode, and were flaunted as never before.

By Tuesday warm sunshine had taken off the chill, but furs are too much fun to be lightly discarded. Prediction is that they will be worn until too uncomfortable to be endured.

Never before has the President's birthday meant so much to this resort. One hundred and fifteen benefits were staged in night clubs, hotels, homes, and wherever charitable minded folk gathered. The lovely Pancoast hotel party was typical of many a social and financial success. Among the diners, many of whom generously gave additional funds toward the hospital, were many Chicagoans, including the F. F. McShanes, Mrs. Perry L. Shaul and her sister, Mrs. Arthur Evans; the Edward Kleinschmidts of Highland Park, and the S. Dewitt Cloughs.

The long looked for announcement of the opening of Miami's "opera under the stars" promises "Blossomtime," under the personal direction of Fortune Gallo, San Carlo's impresario, leader of the Miami Municipal Opera company, next Friday night. Among very first patrons to become subscribers were the George A. Hugheses. Everett Marshall will sing the leading rôle, with Nancy McCord, also of the Metropolitan, singing opposite him.

The Miami Beach concert series, due to lack of suitable music hall, tonight will be moved to the beautiful home of Mrs. H. Strongman Miller in Indian Creek. Arrangements for 200 are being made for tonight, in the patio if weather permits, indoors if more comfortable. Stephan Hero, violinist son-in-law and pupil of José Iturbi, and Frank Bishop, youthful pianist, will be presented tonight.

Tomorrow night the Charles Crandons will entertain at their lovely old type southern home on Red road for Lawrence Tibbett, who later in the evening is to be guest artist in the Miami Civic Music club series, of which club Mr. Crandon is president.

The Surf and Indian Creek clubs have appointed their women's committees for the hospital charity ball of March 7, when the four outstanding clubs of the area will combine in the third annual event. Mrs. William T. Atwill Jr. and Mrs. Terrance Dillon will be Chicago representatives on the Indian Creek club. Mrs. Harold Matsinger and Mrs. David J. Molloy, wife of the club's president, will be special aids. Representing the Surf club will be Mrs. Eugene B. Clark, Mrs. George E. Crandell, Mrs. William F. Whitman, and Mrs. Herbert W. Young, all of Chicago.

The William D. McJunkins have as house guests in their Miami Beach winter home the Gunter Brandeses from New York. Mrs. Brandes [Miss Wilma Harvey] is a granddaughter of their hosts.

Ground has been broken in Miami Shores for Florida's first Catholic woman's college, to be one of the finest of its kind in America and much interest is being directed to its progress.

Anticipation awaits next week's presentation of an old, old favorite, "Two Orphans," lost for many years and but recently resurrected, when Miami Players, Inc., with Cloyd Head as director, present the drama in the Temple theater Feb. 13 to 15. The group, all Miamians and all professionals, have played to capacity houses in the series. The "Two Orphans" is expected to climax the entire winter program. Mr. Head formerly was manager of the Goodman Memorial theater, Art institute.

Mrs. Head, who writes under the name Eunice Tietjens, was editor for 20 years of Poetry Magazine. She is working on a book length poem. A war correspondent during the world war, she visited many sections of Europe with Mr. Head and their son, Marshall, during the last summer, returning just before the war. Marshall Head is technical director of the Miami Players.

Members of the Cermak Memorial association will make a second pilgrimage to Miami for an eight day visit to erect a plaque to Anton Cermak in Miami's Bay Front park. Last year 150 Czechs made the initial trip to arrange for the memorial. A formal welcome will be extended. The party leaves Chicago Feb. 28.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

ESCORTED TOURS

World Is Small if Viewed from Mountain Top

By Mason Warner.

CAPETOWN, SOUTH AFRICA. We took a slow walk thru the city on our way from the ship to Table mountain. The number of full blooded Negroes in this African city's street crowds fails to reach the expectations of most visitors from other continents. Of Capetown's 330,000 population, half are white, while nearly all the rest are of mixed descent—European, East Indian, Malayan and Chinese strains blended with the native. Every hue of skin can be seen, but pure black seems to be the rarest.

The climate and architecture of South Africa and Southern California are similar. The only noticeable difference is the preponderance of Dutch gables in the Cape colony. The majority of public buildings, as well as private homes, are cream colored or white stucco over brick. Government buildings erected in the last 10 or 15 years are of stone or concrete. Many have red tile roofs; others have corrugated iron laid in alternating strips of silver and red.

The older buildings have projecting galleries or balconies. These cause reflections and shadows in the displays in the store windows, to the disadvantage of the merchandise. Even in the best shopping streets the window displays do not compare in attractiveness with those in American department stores.

The hotels have only small entrances on the street level or ground floor. The offices, lounge, and dining rooms are on the first floor—called the second floor at home. In warm weather meals are served on the balconies, and dining there is a pleasant experience, for one can watch the moving throngs on the opposite side of the street.

At the end of our walk we boarded a double decked bus headed for the mountain. Capetown has spread around the base as far up as possible, right up to where the mountainside rises sheer and straight to the top, "forming a theatrical backdrop for the city," as has written every travel writer who ever came here.

The road was steep and twisting, stately homes were tucked in the side of the mountain, but too many driveways hung precariously over the edges of ravines. It would not do to get nervous driving in or out of one's garage, for there is neither time nor space for second thought in choice of approach. Poinsettias were more profuse and larger than in California, and the gorgeous red and pink [with now and then yellow] colors made a striking contrast with the white walls and green shrubbery. Bougainvillea, flame and golden shower vines added their spectacular beauty to the landscape.

When the road became too squirming tortuous for the large bus, we changed to a small one to go the rest of the way to the lower station of the aerial cable. The station and power plant are situated about 1,500 feet from the steep precipice. So the cables are swung at an angle of about 45 degrees to reach the rest house and observatory perched on top of the cliff, 3,500 feet in the air.

The aerial cable equipment consisted of two boxlike cars about 12 by 6 feet, each said to have a capacity of 16 standing passengers, but my daughter and I were contented to be the only two booked up. One car ascends while the other descends.

Even on a calm day the cars swing and sway while going up or down. So it is easy to understand why they are not run on windy days. But the windows afford such attention-gripping views of land and sea that no thought is given to possible danger.

We were told we could see a distance of 100 miles from the top of the mountain. We did not question the statement. There were coin operated telescopes of large size to aid the vision. Big ships close in to the harbor look like toy boats. What looked like black pin points far out at sea were, with the aid of the telescope, discerned to be fishing boats. The Devil's Peak, the Lion's Head, and the dozen peaks known as the Twelve Apostles took on new grandeur and beauty under the brilliant lighting of the African sun.

The sea takes on various shades of blue, all beautiful, and the surf breaks white and high on the rock-edged shore or rolls majestically up on the sandy beaches. You can hear the surf roaring at the rocks, tho more than half a mile above it, and the angry foam seems far away.

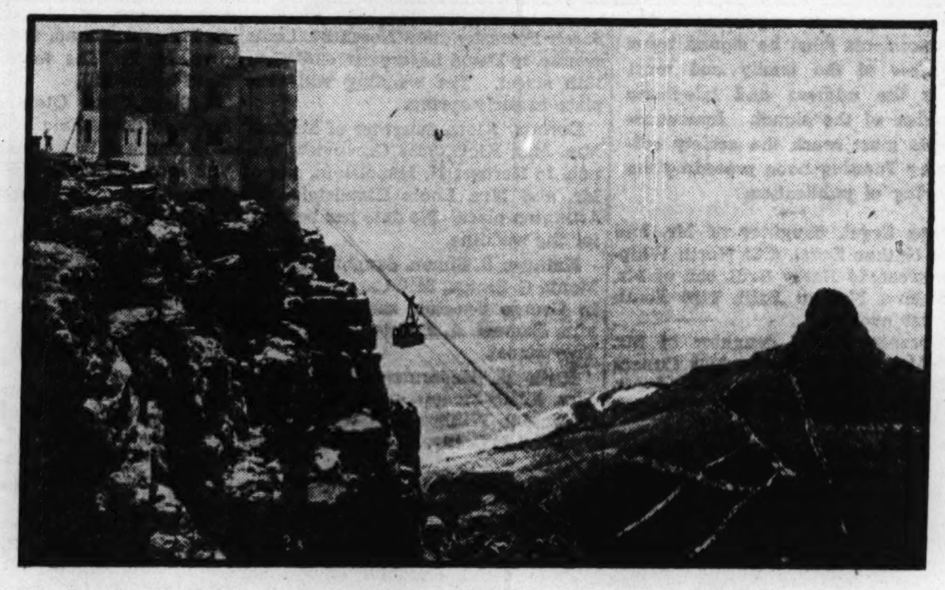
Running from the pier where ships are moored, straight thru Capetown to the magnificent public gardens, is wide and handsome Adderley street. It was named in honor of a member of parliament who put up such a determined fight against the proposal of England to land its convicts in South Africa that it was eventually agreed to send them on to Australia.

Parks and public buildings make pleasing breaks in the checkerboard appearance of the town, spread out in miniature below.

When the aerial cable car takes you down it brings the same sensation as does an airplane landing. The earth seems to be rising to meet you, and coming pretty fast at that. But the cable has been operating since 1929, and there have been no serious accidents.



GOING STRAIGHT UP NEARLY 4,000 FEET

On the aerial cableway, en route to the top of Table mountain from Capetown. It looks dangerous, but the cableway has never had a serious accident.

Travelogue.

The travelogue at the Fair store at 11 a. m. on Friday will show "Western Wonderlands of Color." The movies are in natural color and were taken by Randall L. Jones, who will comment on them as they are shown. They will include many of the national parks as well as Sun Valley, the Teton Mountain region and Salt Lake City.

Grandfather Mountain.

One of the mysteries shrouding Grandfather mountain, near Linville, N. C., is the appearance of tiny lights that twinkle and dance at night. Tho many people have seen the lights from distant points, nobody has ever been able to find their cause or source. Oddly, too, this mountain is the only spot south of Canada where snow birds build their homes.

Havana Opens Carnival with Music, Dancing

HAVANA, CUBA. Ever in a gay mood, Havana has assumed an even gayer tempo with the beginning of its annual carnival, an extravaganza that magically transforms Cuba's capital city into a wonderland of scientillating colors, lilting music, and carefree laughter.

The carnival will feature six full weeks of lavish street parades, costume dances, fancy dress balls, masquerades, colorful processions, sports contests, and special events. On Feb. 15, a military parade and celebration will be held to commemorate Maine Memorial day. United States diplomates officials and Cuban dignitaries will officiate. And climaxing the carnival's last day, March 17, a grand finale of fireworks from the roof of the Hotel Nacional de Cuba will tint the tropic sky with varicolored vividness.

Thousands of visitors are expected to throng to Havana to participate in winter season spectacle. In anticipation of the enormous tourist influx, Havana's theaters and music stadia have accordingly arranged special musical and entertainment programs.

Chamber music concerts will be held, and the municipal and service bands will present a comprehensive répertoire at the National amphitheater. Classical music will be offered by the philharmonic orchestra at the Auditorium.

The center of all the carnival's activity and color will be the palm-edged Prado, and along the famous Malecon, the sea-wall drive that margins busy Havana harbor.

Gay and colorful, a time when Latin restrictions are thrown aside as easily as the confetti which will blanket Havana's streets, the carnival is truly Cuba's holiday of holidays.

Like a bright-hued ribbon, parades and processions of gaily-costumed laughing revelers wind about the city's streets and boulevards. Ranging from dainty Pierrettes to grotesque awe-inspiring masks, the costumes and disguises of the celebrants, in many cases, depict the history and myths of old Spain.

Elaborately designed floats adorned by dark-eyed señoritas scattering confetti and serpentines, pass thru the streets after nightfall, adding brilliant splashes of color to the milling, torch-lighted processions.

Favorites of the carnival parades are the "comparsas," native dancers singing catchy songs as they march in dance-step cadence. Groups of the "comparsas," numbering from 30 to a 100, clothed in novel and amusing costumes, move with a strange, fascinating halting conga step timed to the beat of deep-sounding drums. Patterned after Cuba's native dances of centuries ago, the measures essayed by the "comparas" are distinctly aboriginal.

With shuffling, sliding steps, first to the right, then to the left, the "comparsas" move their elbows in a flailing motion, gyrating in time to the beating drums. Seen in the eerie flickering light of the procession torches, the dancers are remindful of the dance rituals of natives that inhabited Cuba centuries ago. Prizes are awarded for original costumes and the most amusing dance troupe.

N. C. Rhododendron Fete Scheduled for June 16-22

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Date for the 13th annual Rhododendron festival, North Carolina's most colorful floral event, has been set for June 16-22. Thirteen years of experience in predicting the time of year when purple rhododendrons will paint the slopes and summits of western North Carolina has enabled Asheville to set probable time for the wild blossom display.

Mountains of Japan Offer Good Skiing

TOKIO, JAPAN. Skiing has become as popular sport in Japan as it is in Europe and the United States. The Japanese have embraced this western sport with the whole-heartedness and proficiency with which they tackle everything and have developed some front rank skiers who compete with the best in the field. Every week-end during the winter season finds ski-trains leaving Tokio crowded with enthusiastic men and omen bound for such places as famous Sugadaira in the Sin-etu district or the new Kinu-Kogen international ski runs.

Sugadaira, lying just east of the Japanese Alps, offers the best skiing of any place in Japan. There are practice slopes with easy runs for beginners together with numerous courses, ski jumps and race trails for the most advanced skiers. It boasts a semi-European hotel with excellent facilities for a comfortable protracted stay.

Kinu-Kogen is enjoying ever increasing popularity because of its nearness to Tokio and the proximity of the Kinugawa hot springs. It is situated on the Kinu-Kogen plateau, not far from the venerated tourist point of Nikko. This upland is a vast forested region equalling any other skiing grounds to be found anywhere in scenic grandeur. It is also well equipped with rest houses where after a strenuous run one may stop for a warming cup of tea.

In the Nisekoan-Nupri group of mountains on the Island of Hokkaido in the north of Japan, there are numerous practice slopes and thrilling mountain courses which challenge the skier's adventuresome spirit.

This resort is often called "St. Moritz of Japan." The Konbu Spa, comprising the hot springs of Aoyama and Koikawa, is the base for the skiers.

Even in the summertime, the foreign tourist visiting Japan may indulge his skiing desires in several of the mountainous sections to the north.

NEARBY ATTRACTIONS.

Ames, Ia., Jan. 4.—To the Travel Editor: Inhabitants of the middle west need not go to the ends of the earth in search of evidences of other civilizations than our own. For example, a man in Chicago can drive northwest a distance of about two hundred miles and there, view the work of mound builders who lived centuries ago.

Fortunately, this territory belongs to the state of Iowa and is open to the public. A group of interested public spirited Dubuque people have made this possible by presenting to the state a wooded tract of 85 acres. More than 50 mounds bear silent witness to activities of other days.

A few miles north of this place is the quaint town of Lansing, with its picturesque hills. One may drive north a short distance from the town and find himself in another village whose men and women left mor than a score of mounds to mark the site of their community where they worked, lived, loved, and died.

Unless it has been closed recently, another place well worth a visit is a cave across the railroad tracks from the mounds. How old it is nobody knows, but on one wall is a crude drawing of some kind of animal. Was it an object of veneration, worship, or does it reprecent mysterious tribal rites of peoples who have vanished from the face of the earth?

On the other wall is a series of parallel lines. When were they drawn and by whom? One man ventured the suggestion [only a guess] that some one drew these lines five centuries ago.

For a beautiful trip out of the city, a family can drive thru Janesville, Wis.; take route 18 to Prairie du Chien, then up along the river, crossing at Lansing. After visiting the mounds there, one finds good roads west of the river to the 85 acre state preserve.

A short journey to Dubuque, then a drive "on top of the world" on route 20, with hills and valleys on either side—all makes an easy, satisfying, and unforgettable trip in this great empire of the middle west.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Melrose Park, Ill., Jan. 7.—To the Travel Editor: I would be deeply grateful if you could find space in your columns for a lonely little girl of 16 years. For the last four years she has lain in bed, unable to use her right arm and leg. She lives in the northern Wisconsin wilderness, several miles from a small town. Cards or letters would make her very happy. Her name and address: Miss Florence Spielman, R. F. D. 1, Exeland, Wis.

MRS. ANN SMITH.

New Haven, Ind., Jan. 6.—To the Travel Editor: Please place the name of Ellis Akey, Wray, Colo., on your mailing list. He is 40 years old. Several years ago a hoist loosened, letting down the back end of a truck, and crushing the end of his spine. His legs were paralyzed. He suffered intense pain for some time, but this has lessened to some extent. He has spent many months taking treatments in the army hospital at Denver, and these have given him a little control over his muscles. With the aid of crutches, and heavy steel braces from his hips down, he gets around a little, but he is a shut-in thruout the winter.

No Restrictions on Travel Between U. S. and Canada

OTTAWA, Ont.—Tourist traffic continues to flow freely across the international boundary between Canada and the United States, according to the immigration branch of the department of mines and resources, which reports that 3,682,489 visitors entered Canada from the United States during September, October, and November—the first three months of the war.

Altho Canada is at war and her industries have been reorganized on a war basis, no restrictions of any kind have been imposed on the entry of United States citizens into the dominion as tourists. While citizens of enemy countries are naturally subject to special regulations, the movement of bona fide tourists from friendly or neutral countries has not been restrained in any way.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Civilization of Mexico as Old as Egypt's

By Frederic Babcock.

MEXICO CITY

Frank G. Carpenter, who used to do travel pieces for the newspapers, once told of a Hindu who lusted for diamonds.

This Hindu had a small farm in Madras, but he sold it so that "he might hunt for these precious stones. He traveled far and wide over the world, and at last returned home, to learn that the Kohinoor, then the largest and finest diamond ever discovered, had been found on his own little farm."

Mr. Carpenter added: "For many years I had traveled over the world, seeking the diamonds of human interest, before I discovered that one of the rarest of all countries in this respect lay almost under my feet."

That country was, of course, Mexico.

Most other travelers gain a similar impression. Mexico's civilization is as old as Egypt's. A drive of less than an hour out of this city carries the visitor back some 4,000 years into history. Close by modern, bustling cities are areas where time has stood still thruout the ages.

But not all the areas are like that. The country is being crisscrossed with improved highways. Railways are being built into the remoter regions. Deserts are being reclaimed by huge irrigation projects. Much of the land is emerging from a retarded handicraft age into one of 20th century industrialism. A new Mexico is in the making.

Mexico City and the other population centers are in the middle of feverish building activity. Slums are disappearing. Splendid homes, office and apartment buildings, plazas, and playgrounds are bringing about a surprising change in the urban picture.

This city, with its ancient cathedral, its national museum, its Diego Rivera murals, its native markets, and its bull fights, is interesting enough, but its principal attraction to the tourist lies in the fact that it is the jumping-off place for trips to towns and districts that have few rivals in the western hemisphere.

Taxco, Cuernavaca, Xochimilco, the Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon, the Temple of Quetzalcoatl, Puebla, the Toluca valley, Morelia, the Tarascan Indian country, Lake Patzcuaro, and Uruapan—all are reached on short excursions out of the capital.

Everywhere the newcomer gets the impression that the ancient residents of Mexico attained a cultural level far higher than did most of their contemporaries. Of all the Indians in North America, only the Mayas and the Aztecs put their story in writing. Aztec scribes, using a rebus style, in which syllables were represented by pictures, recorded their conquests, their poetry, and their laws. They even recorded the movements of the planets.

These writings included a lot of material about the Aztec gods. After Cortez and his conquistadors had overthrown the Indian tribesmen in the 16th century, the Spanish ecclesiastics moved in, and, of course, they regarded anything referring to the gods as pagan. So they ordered the records burned in the public squares. In doing so they destroyed the written history of the most advanced North Americans of that period.

Today only scattered fragments of that history remain. They are to be seen in the National museum and a few other places, and they give only a meager idea of what it was all about. But one can go to the museum and spend hours in viewing the great circular stone calendar of the Toltecs, and the sacrificial stone of the Aztecs, and all the other relics of antiquity, and trying to figure out what must have been the life of the Mexicans before the white man came along to bring them the so-called benefits of civilization.

Young English Couple Cruise Seas for Fun

By Anson Brown.

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO.

It is hard to determine what it is in the makeup of man that causes him to leave the peace and security of his fireside and take to sea in his own boat. To hear such a person talk you learn it takes a great deal of courage, nerve, but not the nerve that fortifies him against the ravages of the sea. Hurricanes, a fire on board, a crumpled mast are as nothing to him as the "blow" he must put up with before he sails.

His landlubber friends tell him he is a fool and that he shall meet a certain death before a week is past. His family, determined to stop him by any means, make preparations increasingly difficult. Many a cruise in a small boat has been dealt the death blow before it was even commenced.

Bill Robinson, Allan Villiers, Irvin Johnson, Alain Garbault are sailors of note. They have sailed their own boats, both large and small, around the world and are still living to tell their tales, and are still sailing, too. Their fame has come from their writings.

There are others with the same courage and stamina the world knows little about, who have sailed the seven seas searching for new scenery, romance, and adventure.

In 1934 Ralph Zimmerman of Chicago packed his wife and two grown children in his 57 foot Zarak [Zimmerman's ark] and sailed from Lake Michigan down the rivers to New Orleans. There they spent Christmas and put in stores for an ocean voyage. In January, 1935, they left Louisiana in the teeth of a gale "to find out what the boat would do!" A skeptical New Orleans reporter wrote that it was a pity for such a fine man to carry his family to their deaths!

A week or so later they appeared in St. Petersburg safe and happy. From there it was Havana, Jamaica, and finally the Panama canal from where the mother and daughter returned to Chicago. With one additional crew member the men sailed onward, skipper, Larny, and Bill, lingering for awhile at the Marquesas and Tahiti, and then cutting north to Hawaii. They took no needless risks, generally had smooth sailing, and their unpublished log reads like a steamship folder.

When the final port, San Francisco, was reached they sold the boat and reluctantly returned to the office in Chicago. But the "bug" has bitten them and plans for a new boat have been drawn up. Some time, not too far in the future, they will be off again, for the sea has changed two more landlubbers into experienced sailors.

Some time ago, a bit before the thundering of the war storm was heard over Europe, I met a young English couple in the Carribbean. They had sailed their own boat, a 37 foot ketch, down from Halifax, N. S. A white, trim little ship was the Naomi, so sturdy she could withstand the heaviest seas.

Going back a year I can carry the story from there:

Charles and Penny Cox are young honeymooners who dared to do the unconventional. With the help of Boney, their black Nassau boy, they have spent months sailing thru the Antilles. They have rested in colorful out-of-the-way ports, they have been buffeted by storms, they have spent days sailing over the warmth of the Gulf stream.

The Naomi is their home. Below deck is a galley with a two burner kerosene stove and plenty of closet space. Forward of that is the main cabin with a large bunk on each side and a table between. The crew's quarters is up in the bow by the miniature bathroom. Altho it is only 37 feet long there is goodly amount of space to lounge in when the sailing is smooth and the sun is warm.

Skipper Cox himself is an excellent navigator and had gained much sailing experience in 1934 when he sailed across the North Atlantic in the British yacht Seaplane. She was 65 feet long and it took the 11 lads aboard her 22 days to go from Canada to England. But the Naomi is his own boat, built two years ago, and was speedy enough to place fourth in the 1937 Miami-Nassau race.

At Cape Hatian, Haiti, they invited me to make the trip with them to Puerto Rico. Alas, all my clothes and belongings were in Port au Prince, 250 miles away, and they were leaving in the morning. So it was arranged that we should meet in Puerto Rico for a run down to the Virgin Islands.

Thus it was that two weeks later we met again in San Juan. They relate the story of their trip as the worst two weeks of the whole voyage. Gales and storms rolled down on them with such intensity they could scarce keep their course. The small ketch rolled so in the waves that it was barely possible to prepare a meal. The skipper's first mate was seasick, spending most of her time on deck, and had this landlubber been along I'm sure she would have had a companion at the rail.

And now I'm leaving with them for the 24 hour run to St. Thomas. Seasick or not, I'm going to find out what it is to travel by sail in a small boat.

Miami Season Breaks Records

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3.—Miami's current resort season is breaking all records. Hotel and apartment house figures show a 30 per cent increase; train travel has mounted from 60 to 78 per cent. Bus transportation is up 25 per cent. There is a 33 per cent increase in yacht arrivals. Almost 46,000 students are enrolled in Dade county schools, compared with 35,455 last year. Foreign air travel from South America is up 33 per cent. Domestic air entries jumped 25 per cent. Automobile travel has climbed to 1,400 car arrivals daily, a 35 per cent winter increase.

Indians of San Blas Islands Still Primitive

COLON, PANAMA.

Few sights anywhere in the Americas are more picturesque than the curious San Blas Islands, just a few hours from here. These islands offer visitors a unique opportunity to study the new world's most unspoiled primitive Indian life.

Rising out of the ocean like enormous emeralds, with giant palms bending under the weight of cocoanuts, the islands have a story book atmosphere reminiscent of the South seas. The natives leave their rude palm-thatched huts and paddle forth in dugout canoes to greet new arrivals. These dugouts are the principal means of transportation and are often used to make long ocean voyages.

Ashore the visitor may explore the villages of the San Blas Indians, who have kept their race pure by never marrying outside the tribe. The Indians provide fascinating subjects for the anthropologist, photographer, or tourist in quest of something different, for they still live the same primitive lives they have since pre-Columbus times. They are one of the few examples of complete racial isolation over centuries of existence.

One of the most astonishing facts about the Indians is their low stature. Few are over 4 feet tall.

While still young the Indian girls have their noses pierced to wear gold or silver rings as ornaments. These they proudly exhibit to the vistor.

The San Blas women also dress in beautiful colored garments of primitive design which they weave and dye themselves with the skill of centuries. The designs on their garments have been compared by experts to Egyptian work.

The accepted age for marriage among the Indians is 19 for the men and 13 or 14 for the girls.

The men are expert fishermen and hunters. They are powerful swimmers and learn to manage a canoe while still children. The Indians enjoy a measure of self-rule under Panama.

SAN BLAS BELLE.

Women on San Blas Island are seldom over four feet tall. They dress in bright colored garments which they weave and dye themselves, and at an early age have their noses pierced so that they can wear gold or silver rings in them.

Relics of U. S. S. Maine Decorate Cuban Memorial

Anchor chains and cannon from the U. S. S. Maine, blown up in Havana harbor in 1898, decorate the base of the memorial on Malecon drive there. It was erected as a testimonial of Cuba's gratitude to America and the men who lost their lives in the disaster that started the Spanish-American war.

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What are the principal sightseeing attractions in and around New Orleans? A. H.

The Vieux Carre, Jackson square, the cathedral and cemetery of St. Louis, the French market, the levees, the city park, Audubon park, Metairie cemetery, the dueling oaks, and the battlefields of the war of 1812.

Are there any winter sports facilities in the Iron Mountain-Kingsford region of Michigan's upper peninsula? L. R. E.

Yes. There are cross country trails, excellent slides, and a new open slope for both slalom and downhill skiing. The Pine mountain ski jump has a total drop of 500 feet.

We hope to spend some time in Bermuda this spring. Where, after we arrive there, can we get accurate information about the things to see and do? C. K. McK.

Go to the visitors' service bureau, near the docks at Hamilton. It can answer nearly every question—whether it be regarding renting a cottage, hiring a speedboat, or buying a piece of English doeskin.

PRESIDENT PROCLAIMS TRAVEL AMERICA YEAR
Urges Devoting 1940 to Seeing More of This Hemisphere
Special to The New York Times.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation declaring 1940 "Travel the Americas Year" and urging increased travel among the American countries to consolidate unity through greater acquaintance. He indicated that the facilities of the government would be used to encourage the program.
The President's proclamation read:
"Whereas the exigencies of international conflict may be expected to deter travel by American citizens to the areas involved, and
"Whereas no such deterrent to travel exists among the friendly nations of the Western Hemisphere, Respond to the President's suggestion, not only because of the security assured—not only because it's the "Good Neighborly" thing to do—but also because you will have such a good time!
"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do proclaim 1940 as Travel the Americas Year and do invite our own citizens and friends of other lands, to join in a great travel movement, so that our peoples may be drawn even more closely together in sympathy and understanding."

THOUSANDS TO CHOOSE FROM. STYLES AND SIZES FOR CHICAGOLAND'S JUNIORS, MISSES, WOMEN WHO SEEK SMART FASHION AT A LOW PRICE

Spring Street Dress Classic

- Top fabrics of the season were specially selected
- Advance styles and favored types were carefully chosen
- Detailing in each is the caliber of more expensive frocks
- Yet the price was kept to this miraculously low figure

A brilliant array. Variety . . . value-packed. Hundreds of colors and combinations that will be worn. Fresh, frilly types for young figures. Mature styles that cleverly avoid the large size look. Subtle sophistication in loads of the misses' styles. Distinctive women's dresses. Travel-south types . . . for here, later . . . and still more too numerous to mention.

Fabrics are rayon crepes, processed duco dots, rayon jerseys, spun rayons.

Be here early Monday morning and you'll be one of the first to wear the NEW, the ULTRA CHIC—and be kind to your budget.

MODE FOR THE SUN BATHER.

Miss Elizabeth Stuyvesant Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish of Washington, D. C., is a popular debutante. Here, she and some of her deb friends primp between dances

Washington's smart young people take an active interest in national affairs. Miss Fish shows out-of-town guests some of the city's historic landmarks.

QUESTION TO MISS FISH:
Miss Fish, when do you believe a girl should begin guarding her complexion with regular care?

ANSWER: "The younger the better! I think if you want a nice skin when you're older, you have to take care of it when you're young. That's why I began using Pond's 2 Creams when I reached my 'teens. Every girl wants a lovely complexion! Using both Pond's Cold Cream and Pond's Vanishing Cream every day helps to keep mine clear."

QUESTION TO MISS FISH:
Would you describe what each Pond's Cream does for your skin, Miss Fish?

ANSWER: "Yes, of course. Every morning and evening I use Pond's Cold Cream to freshen up my face. These regular cleansings help keep my skin looking soft and healthy. Pond's Vanishing Cream serves an entirely different purpose. I use it before powdering to give my skin a soft finish that holds powder smoothly for hours."

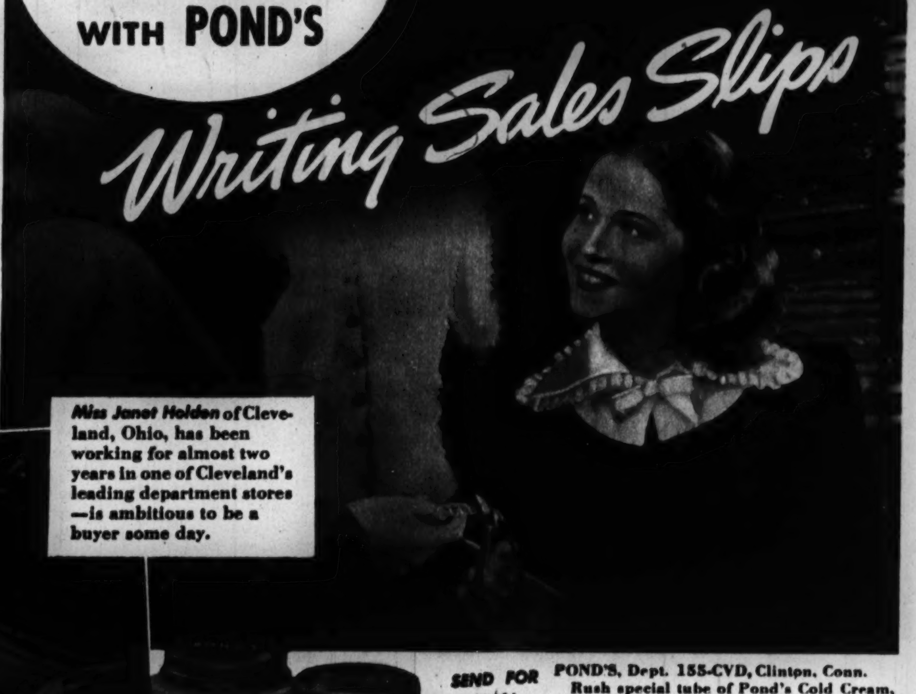
BUT BOTH HELP KEEP THEIR SKIN FRESH AND YOUNG LOOKING WITH POND'S

QUESTION TO MISS HOLDEN:
In your opinion, Miss Holden, what things help most in a career girl's success?

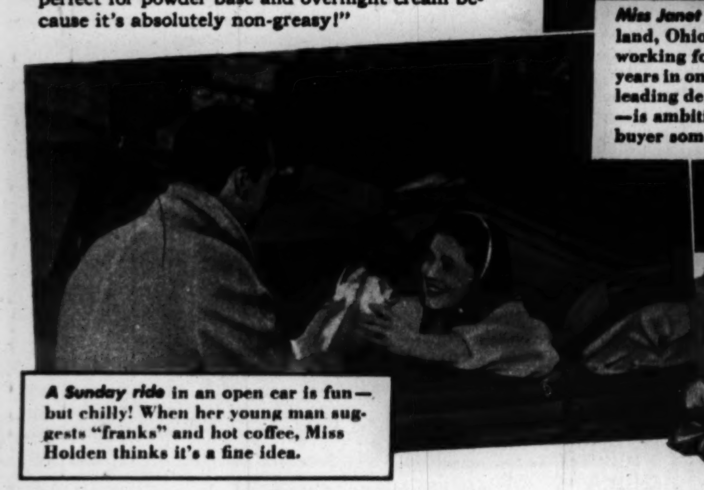
ANSWER: "Interest in her job, willingness to work and a good appearance! But nothing cheats your looks like a dull, cloudy skin, so you can bet I'm always sure to use Pond's Cold Cream to keep my skin really clean and soft. I can count on it to remove every trace of dirt and make-up!"

QUESTION TO MISS HOLDEN:
Doesn't the wind off Lake Erie make your skin rough and difficult to powder?

ANSWER: "Well, Cleveland is mighty breezy, but little skin roughnesses don't worry me a bit. I just use another Pond's Cream to help smooth them away. By that I mean Pond's Vanishing Cream. And besides smoothing and protecting my skin, it's perfect for powder base and overnight cream because it's absolutely non-greasy!"



Miss Janet Holden of Cleveland, Ohio, has been working for almost two years in one of Cleveland's leading department stores—is ambitious to be a buyer some day.



A Sunday ride in an open car is fun—but chilly! When her young man suggests "franks" and hot coffee, Miss Holden thinks it's a fine idea.

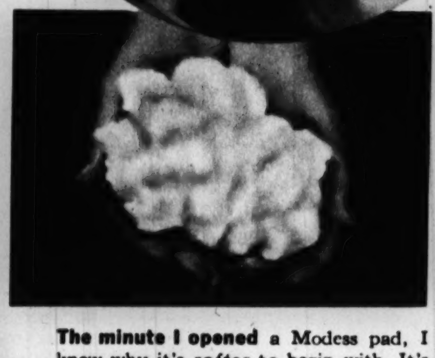
Mind the baby—pick up house—do the marketing! Believe me, life was no picnic on "certain days"! I used to chafe so badly every step was torture. Then I discovered Miracle Modess. The softer napkin with that wonderful new feature— "Moisture Zoning." And glory, what a difference!



The minute I opened a Modess pad, I knew why it's softer to begin with. It's made of downy fluff—not a bit like layer-type napkins. And Modess stays softer because "Moisture Zoning" acts to direct moisture inside the pad, keeping sides dry and comfortable longer than ever before!

Happy? Say, I scarcely ever fret about "difficult days" since I found Miracle Modess. And as for safety—well, Modess has a moisture-resistant backing to guard against accidents. Yet for all its extra comfort and security, Modess costs no more. Try a box—you'll love it!

Try it now!

MEN ARE SO IMPRESSED

when your skin has this Fragrance they love!

Before you use any soap to combat body odor, smell the soap! Instinct tells how much more alluring you'll be, bathed in the costly perfume of Cashmere Bouquet Soap—the fragrance men love.

HERE'S a guide to glamour that smart girls never ignore. Always give a man credit for noticing more than he seems to. That's why you must be mighty careful of the fragrance that bath soap leaves on your skin.

Lucky for you, there's a more delicate, a more feminine way to bathe away body odor. Women adore it, because this enchantingly scented soap is in tune with the rest of your make-up.

Yes, go by the smell test when you buy soap to combat body odor. Instinctively, you will prefer the costly perfume of Cashmere Bouquet. For Cashmere Bouquet is the only fragrance of its kind in the world, a secret treasured by us for years. It's a fragrance men love. A fragrance with peculiar affinity for the senses of men.

Massage each tiny ripple of your body daily with this delicate, cleansing lather! Glory, too, in the departure of unwelcome body odor.

Thrill as your senses are kissed by Cashmere Bouquet's exquisite perfume. Be radiant, and confident to face the world!

You'll love this creamy-white soap for complexion, too. Its gentle, caressing lather removes dirt and cosmetics so thoroughly and leaves skin smooth and fresh looking.

So buy Cashmere Bouquet Soap before you bathe tonight. Get three cakes at the special price featured everywhere.

SENATOR: Hey, June—my pills! You know dang well I can't get along without 'em!
JUNE: Never mind the old pills, darling. You come along to breakfast and I'll show you something. You shouldn't let yourself have these bad days. I have a hunch you can prevent that old constipation instead of trying to "cure" it every time it comes.

JUNE: It's so simple even a statesman can understand it. We all need a little of a special kind of food called "bulk" to help us keep "regular." You probably don't get enough in your diet. If so, we'll get at the cause of the trouble by having KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for breakfast. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water.
SENATOR: Good logic, June! And blamed if ALL-BRAN doesn't taste good, too. Pass the cream.

JUNE: Oh, Dad, you shouldn't have done it! It's too much for just a little idea about what you should eat for breakfast!
SENATOR: June, little ideas have changed the fate of men and nations! Why, I'm practically a new man since I took your advice about KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN and joined the "regulars."

HELP HIM BUILD GOOD TEETH, MOTHER! Give him cod liver oil. Many doctors claim that nothing takes its place in aiding children to develop strong bones and sound teeth. Cod liver oil is also an excellent tonic for helping grown people to recuperate after illness. And now there is a BETTER WAY TO GIVE COD LIVER OIL . . . SCOTT'S EMULSION!

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes into the intestines.

3—Easy to take—Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Easy to take and retain by children and adults.

4—Economical—Scott's Emulsion is an economical way to obtain the Vitamins A and D so necessary to strong bones and sound teeth.

Master Voice Quality in a New Type Radio... Big in Performance...Generous in Size...Low in Price

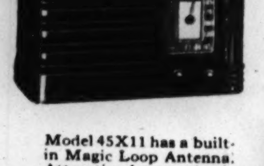
THE OPERA BOX. "Finest radio at its price we have ever built," says Chief of RCA Victor Engineering Dept.... Five preferred type RCA Victor Tubes giving 7-tube performance; built-in Magic Loop Antenna. AC-DC. Standard broadcasts, 1 police band. Walnut cabinet 8 5/16" high, 14½" wide, 7 7/16" deep. Model 46X3.

$19.95*

These RCA Victor Radios are Worthy Companions to the Opera Box!



Sets shown are AC-DC Superheterodynes with Beam Power Output, preferred type RCA Victor Tubes; Electro-Dynamic Speakers. This is Model 45X1 in brown plastic cabinet 5 inches high, 8½ wide, 4¼ deep. $9.95

Model 45X11 has a built-in Magic Loop Antenna. Attractive brown plastic cabinet is 6⅝ inches high. 9¾ wide, 5⅛ deep. RCA Victor Tubes. $12.95

Model 46X12. Has 49-meter and police bands. Double duty tubes give 7-tube performance. Lovely Ivory plastic cabinet. 8 inches high, 12 wide, 7 deep $22.95

SCORE up another victory for RCA Victor—and a big slice of pleasure for you! Something wonderfully new has happened in radio! The Opera Box—a big radio in convenient size. A radio that brings you the rich resonance of a symphony . . . the living warmth of a voice . . . and the full range of a swing band with clarity and brilliance previously available only in much larger instruments.

Years of intensive research in the RCA Laboratories stand behind this RCA Victor triumph. Years devoted to the task of finding the right way to put the quality characteristics of a big radio into one of convenient size.

SMOKER: "And that's why you say crops have improved in recent years?"

MR. MOYE: "Yes. Even though crops do vary with weather—tobacco today is better than ever."

SMOKER: "Does the tobacco that goes into Luckies come from these improved crops?"

MR. MOYE: "Yes, sir. Luckies always have bought the finer tobacco sold on my warehouse floor. That's the reason I've smoked them myself for years. And it's also the reason why Luckies are the 2-to-1 favorite of independent tobacco men—buyers, auctioneers and warehousemen."

GIBBONS of the TRIBUNE!

The Life Story of a Great Reporter

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

IT WAS COLD. A February wind swept the night air above the North Atlantic. A score of German U-boats ranged the waters below —their orders: Destroy all shipping without warning.

Between these two grim elements off the west coast of the British Isles in the year 1917 ventured the 18,000-ton Cunard liner Laconia, rolling stiffly in the troughs of the waves—a black, lightless hulk against the stars.

In the artificial cheerfulness of the vessel's interior sat a big, hearty young man. He was 28 years old. His broad face was lit with Irish eagerness, his mind too intent on his fellow passengers and the coming excitements of Europe and war to contemplate the immediate danger of disaster. Already his bones felt a hunch of his future destiny as the most famous of newspaper correspondents produced by the World war.

His name was Floyd Gibbons, and he was on his way to the front in advance of the American army to live and write at first hand of war for The Chicago Tribune.

Floyd Gibbons was a big man, more than six feet tall and with a virile, self-confident manner. And he was big in mind. He saw the big side of everything. He looked at armies thru the eyes of a general and at nations thru the eyes of a king. And yet he could glean the drama in a flower crushed under a corporal's heel and flash it before his millions of readers as a symbol of world-shattering events.

Tho he dramatized everything and stones became jewels in his handling, he never fooled himself or up-staged a friend of his humbler days. Overwhelmingly his disposition was cheerful, enthusiastic, optimistic, and many of his closest friends can't (Continued on page two.)

recall ever having seen him depressed.

In philosophy he was practical and big-hearted. He sympathized with the underdog and detested injustice, but was too practical to retain for long the socialist leanings of his earlier years. He was at once provident and extravagant and took out insurance, while being one of the few reporters in history to own a penthouse, a yacht, and a country estate from his own earnings.

His weaknesses were drinking and spending money, but during his years with The Tribune, which were his best years, his ability far outshone his shortcomings. With unfailing self-reliance he repeatedly proved himself able to outthink and outmaneuver the most experienced news gatherers in the business. He was not a grind, but when he decided to work he put his whole soul into it—and he won his place by living his job.

Such was the man who sat in the Laconia's smoke room talking with a group of fellow passengers on the night of Feb. 25, 1917. How he happened to be there and could later record so vividly the disaster that befell the Laconia was no mere accident, tho luck played its part. Two other reporters on The Chicago Tribune who were senior to him in experience had been offered the chance to go to Europe as war correspondent, but had declined. When the editor introduced the idea to Gibbons his reply was unhesitating.

"When do I start?" he said.

Within a few days The Tribune had arranged passage for Gibbons across the Atlantic on the Laconia, which would sail from New York for Liverpool on Saturday, Feb. 17. The Laconia was one of the largest Cunarders in the Atlantic service, and was carrying a cargo of munitions and other articles of war.

With Germany's newly announced policy of unrestricted submarine warfare against all shipping to the British Isles, it was clear that the Laconia would be as likely a target for a torpedo as any ship that could be found. Since it would be carrying American passengers, its sinking might be just the additional "overt act" that would bring the United States into the war.

That was the reason the editor of The Tribune picked the Laconia for Gibbons' ship. He wanted to have his ace reporter on a liner that if torpedoed would actually bring about America's declaration of war. Gibbons felt the same way, and, far from being apprehensive, he obviously itched for the adventure of being torpedoed in midocean. He knew it would be one story in a lifetime, and his self-reliance felt itself easily the master of the personal danger involved.

That is how Floyd Gibbons of The Chicago Tribune happened to be sitting amid a circle of men, mostly Britishers, in the smoke room on the after boat deck of the Laconia on that dark night in February, 1917, somewhere west of Ireland. The group was seated about an open-hearth coal fire, discussing the war and Germany's attempted submarine blockade of England.

"What do you think are our chances of being torpedoed?" asked Gibbons of his companions.

The deliberative Henry Chetham, a London solicitor, was the first to answer.

"Well," he drawled, "I should say about one out of four thousand."

Then Lucien J. Jerome of the British diplomatic service advanced his opinion with characteristic emphasis: "Nonsense, Chetham. Utter nonsense. Considering the zone that we are in and the class of the ship, I should put the chances down at one out of two hundred and fifty that we meet a sub."

At that minute a jar shook the liner. It was like the feeling you have on a ferry boat when it bounces off the piling while coming to rest in the slip. A muffled bang could be heard at the same time—not extremely loud or sharp, but like the slamming of a large oak door a good distance away. That is how Gibbons remembered the explosion as the torpedo struck.

"My imagination was rather disappointed at the slightness of the shock and the meekness of the report," he wrote. "One or two chairs tipped over, a few glasses crashed from table to floor, and in an instant every man in the room was on his feet."

"We're hit," shouted Chetham.

"That's what we've been waiting for," said Jerome.

Five sharp blasts sounded on the Laconia's whistle. That was the signal to abandon ship. Every one recognized it at once after the daily lifeboat drills all the way from New York.

Floyd Gibbons walked with the rest of the smoke room's occupants down the corridor leading to the main stairway, which was amidships. He noted that his wrist watch said 10:30. The men walked fast, but there was no panic. Passing the gynmasium door, Gibbons saw a medicine ball and a lot of dumbbells and Indian clubs rolling toward the starboard side of the ship, and he became aware of the list that was increasing with every minute. Going thru the lounge, the reporter's alert ears noticed that the mahogany phonograph in the center was still playing the dying strains of "Poor Butterfly."

As a crowd of men and women hurriedly stumbled down the stairways to get their life belts out of their staterooms, Gibbons lit the way with a pocket flashlight he had bought before sailing—just in case. Reaching his stateroom—B-19 on the promenade deck—he put on a light nonsink vest which his editor had presented to him in Chicago. Over that he wore his overcoat and held his life preserver in his left arm, with his flashlight in his right hand. Other articles with which The Tribune had provided Gibbons for the anticipated emergency were woolen flannels, wool gloves, a pocket knife, and a flask of chartreuse, which had been recommended as the most concentrated of stimulants.

Just as he regained the deck, which was a confusion of moving people in the darkness, the exterior of the ship burst into light. The chief steward had thrown a switch, an act which probably saved many lives. By this time the Laconia was settling perceptibly, the water rushing into a gaping hole well astern on the starboard side.

"I looked over the side and down upon the water 60 feet below," Gibbons recalled later. "The sudden flashing of the lights on the upper deck made the dark, seething waters seem blacker and angrier. They rose and fell in troubled swells.

"Steam began to hiss from some of the pipes leading up from the engine well. It seemed like a dying groan from the very vitals of the stricken ship. Clouds of white and black smoke rolled up from the giant gray funnels that towered above us.

"Suddenly there was a roaring swish as a rocket soared upward from the captain's bridge, leaving a comet's tail of fire. I watched it as it described a graceful arc, and then with an audible pop it burst in a flare of brilliant color. Its ascent had torn a lurid rent in the black sky and had cast a red glare over the roaring sea.

"Already boat No. 10 [to which Gibbons was assigned] was loading up and men and boys were busy with the ropes. I started to help near a davit that seemed to be giving trouble, but was sternly ordered to get out of the way and to get into the boat.

"Other passengers and members of the crew and officers were rushing to and fro along the deck, strapping their life preservers to them as they rushed. There was some shouting of orders, but little or no confusion. One woman, a blonde French actress, became hysterical on the deck, but two men lifted her bodily off her feet and placed her in the lifeboat.

"We were on the port side of the ship, the higher side. To reach the boats we had to climb up the slanting deck to the edge of the ship. . . . The slant was so pronounced that the lifeboats, instead of swinging clear from the davits, rested against the side of the ship. From my position in the lifeboat I could see that we were going to have difficulty in the descent to the water."

"Lower away," came the order, and Gibbons and his companions began the jerky descent. Several times on the way down the whole boatload was in grave danger of overturning as the bow and stern alternately got stuck or the gunwale jammed against protruding parts of the steamer's side. A hatchet and Gibbons' flashlight were passed the length of the dangling boat several times as the frantic, cursing occupants, several from the Laconia's engine room, fought to free snarls in the ropes and pulleys. "Many feet and hands pushed the boat from the side of the ship" during the "sagging, scraping, sliding, jerking descent. It ended as the bottom of the lifeboat smacked squarely on the pillowy top of a rising swell."

It felt good to be on the solid, heaving surface of the sea, but there was still a lot of thrashing around and hacking at tangled ropes before the boat was free. During this time a man jumped from the Laconia's deck and landed with a great splash beside the lifeboat, later to be pulled aboard, his teeth chattering.

"I was trying to loosen the bow rope in this boat," he explained. "I loosened it and then got tangled up in it. When the boat went down I was jerked up back on the deck. Then I jumped for it. Holy Moses, but this water is cold!"

As the lifeboat pulled away from the steamer Gibbons noticed the receding terraces of glowing portholes and deck lights towering above him. The Laconia was slowly turning over.

The problem of establishing order in the boat now occupied Gibbons' attention. He had never been on the sea before, but he had a definite genius for organization. Many of the boat's occupants were waving the long oars around, trying to insert them in the locks for rowing. One jittery member of the Laconia's crew kept shouting: "Get away from her! My Gawd, get away from her! When the water hits her hot boilers she'll blow up the whole ocean, and there's just tons and tons of shrapnel in her hold."

Floyd Gibbons made his way to the stern of the lifeboat. There he saw an old man huddled up in a big overcoat and life preserver. It was a white-haired sea captain of the Nova Scotia fishing fleet, a man whom Gibbons had talked with during the preceding days of the voyage.

"Captain, will you take command?" suggested Gibbons. "We've got to get some authority here."

"Our boat's rudder is gone," the old man replied in a quavering voice, "but we can steer with an oar. I'll take charge if you want me to, but my voice is gone. I can tell you what to do, but you will have to shout the orders. They won't listen to me."

Gibbons decided that the only way to get the attention of the whole boatload of people was to shout forth an overpowering blast of profanity. He did so and effectively enough to bring silence even to the hardened engineroom hands that composed about half of those aboard. Then he announced that, in the absence of a ship's officer assigned to the boat, the old captain would take charge. There was no dissent, and under the captain's orders the lifeboat's bow was held into the wind to prevent danger of swamping by the increasing swells.

After a few minutes the craft was floating easily, and all bickering had ceased among the crew. The twenty-three persons aboard rested on their oars and gazed at the still lighted Laconia as it listed farther and farther over to the starboard. Suddenly a dull thud came from the ship and a noticeable further settling of its hull. The German submarine had dispatched a second torpedo thru the engine room and the vessel's vitals. Within a minute the tiers of deck lights dimmed slowly from white to yellow, then to red, and then nothing was left but "a mean, cheese-colored crescent of a moon above a rag bundle of clouds low in the distance" and the "dim outlines of a blacker hulk standing out above the water line like a jagged headland, silhouetted against the overcast sky."

The ship sank rapidly at the stern until forty minutes after the first torpedo had struck its bow rose up straight in the air and it slid silently down and out of sight "like a piece of scenery in a panorama spectacle."

As lifeboat No. 3, which was nearest the place where the Laconia went down, struggled to keep afloat in the churn of the after-suction, a black shape suddenly appeared near by. It was glistening wet and stood about eight feet above the water as it slowly moved toward the boat. It was the submarine.

"Vot ship vass dot?" came a guttural voice from a figure standing beside the conning tower.

"Vot?"

"The Laconia, Cunard line."

"Vot did she weigh?" came the next question from the submarine.

"Eighteen thousand tons."

"Any passengers?"

"Seventy-three," said Ballyn. "Many of them women and children—some of them in this boat. She had over two hundred in the crew."

"Did she carry cargo?"

"Yes."

"Iss der captain in dot boat?"

"No," answered Ballyn.

"Vell, I guess you'll be all right. A patrol will pick you up some time soon." Silently the submarine moved off and disappeared.

"I thought it best to make my answers sharp and satisfactory, sir," said Ballyn afterward to Gibbons when he told him the story of his interview with the submarine commander. "I was thinking of the women and children in the boat. I feared every minute that somebody in our boat might make a hostile move, fire a revolver, or throw something at the submarine. I feared the consequence of such an act."

As the night wore on the black rim of clouds took on a more ominous look and the wind seemed to be rising. The questions of how much rougher seas the boat could weather, had the Laconia had time to send out an S. O. S., had it been heard, and was there enough food and drinking water aboard—these were debated pro and con among the twenty-three in Gibbons' boat. The latter question resulted in an inventory of the craft, which eventually produced a lamp, a can of powder flares, a tin of ship's biscuit, matches, and spare oil.

The lamp was lighted. Other lights in other lifeboats also became visible and could be seen as the boat mounted the crests of the swells. The boats at first kept fairly close together and occasionally came within hailing distance. Gibbons heard the familiar Harry Lauder-like voice of the second assistant purser in another boat singing "I Want to Marry 'Arry" and "I Love to Be a Sailor."

Water somehow seeped into lifeboat No. 10 and filled the bottom. "We bailed it continually," wrote Gibbons later. "Most of us were wet to the knees and shivering from the weakening effects of the icy water. Our hands were blistered from pulling at the oars. The boat, bobbing about like a cork, produced terrific nausea, and our stomachs ached from vain retching."

Some of the other lifeboats were having serious trouble. No. 8 had been on the same side of the Laconia as Gibbons' boat. On the descent its ropes had become hopelessly jammed. After it had dangled against the ship's sloping side for some ten minutes one of its occupants had

Looking at Hollywood with ED SULLIVAN

"Like Father, Like Son" Is True in Case of Chaneys

Hollywood.

WHEN Lon Chaney Jr. stepped out and won critical acclaim in "Of Mice and Men" it was significant in movie history because the talent of the fathers or mothers rarely is visited upon the sons or daughters. Red-headed young Chaney, son of a famous father, is one of the exceptions to the rule that the second generation shall have only a theatrical name as recommendation. Equally exceptional in this respect have been two other youngsters, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Tyrone Power the younger, both of whom stemmed from famous dads and both of whom have showed some of their fathers' instinct for make-believing.

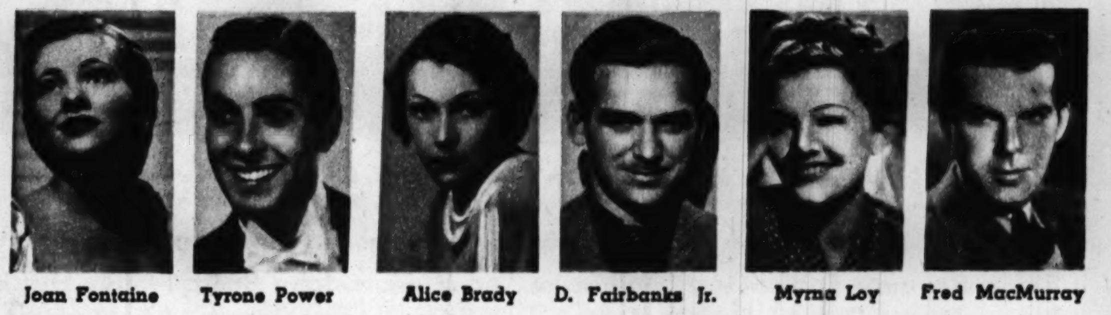
"Of Mice and Men" indicated that young Chaney may be the greatest of the three sons. Doug Jr. and Tyrone have had greater publicity, but neither of them yet has evinced dramatic depth. Because of their looks Doug Jr. and Tyrone have been used to stress the love interest in films. Chaney Jr., however, has a feel for drama that seems to hint at greater things. The rôle of Lennie in the Steinbeck opus was not a casual rôle; it demanded an actor who could project an unusual character and yet hold the sympathy of the audience. In every respect the rôle was onerous.

Yet to this reviewer there is no doubt that Chaney Jr. did a far more impressive job with Lennie than Charles Laughton did with the title rôle in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Laughton, with far greater experience and with the use of a grotesque makeup, missed fire as the hunchback, in my opinion, because of his inability to command sympathy. It would have been far better if Laughton had remained mute in the picture. His voice did not measure up to his makeup. Mute, he might have achieved a masterpiece.

There were times in the film that Laughton so completely missed the conception of his characterization that he actually romped and semi-jigged and waved his hands. The result almost was farcical. Young Chaney, with less experience but perhaps wiser direction, was betrayed into no such blunders in projecting Lennie. The youngster intuitively sensed the demands of the part, and the figure he brought to life on the screen was so true artistically that you marveled at the talent of a boy who might have been pardoned venial sins of acting. Chaney Jr., in other words, turned in a characterization that Laughton should have authored. In fact, I am quite certain that Chaney Jr. would have been better infinitely in the title rôle created by his father than the elder Laughton proved.

William A. Brady's daughter, the late Alice Brady, proved to be a chip off the old block. The younger Brady was a fine actress, and her performances in the legitimate theater and in pictures added to the family prestige. Bonita Granville, daughter of a famous musical comedy juvenile, Bunny Granville, has followed in her dad's footsteps. Connie and Joan Bennett, daughters of Richard Bennett, while never approaching their father's talent, have won a fair measure of success, more on their personal attractiveness than deep-seated acting ability.



Joan Fontaine Tyrone Power Alice Brady D. Fairbanks Jr. Myrna Loy Fred MacMurray

One sister who clicked on her own and spurned the family name was Joan Fontaine. Miss Fontaine could have won immediate attention and favors had she identified herself as the sister of Olivia De Havilland. Joan, who is now Mrs. Brian Aherne, refused to take advantage of her sister's eminence, and just recently scored a triumph in "The Women."

One of the most talented youngsters out here is Lind Hayes. He is the son of Grace Hayes, former vaudeville headliner, and the boy has a fine talent. His mimicry is first rate, his singing better than passable, his master-of-ceremonying bigtimey. The eldest of the Charlie Chaplin sons is an expert mimic, but the father has discouraged each attempt of the sons to go on the stage or in the movies, fearing that the name would be exploited.

Generally speaking, nonprofessional parents have given the screen and stage its most famous names. Spencer Tracy, Bette Davis, Jimmy Stewart, Clark Gable, Fred MacMurray, Irene Dunne, Charles Boyer, Robert Donat, Adolphe Menjou, Carole Lombard, Myrna Loy, Gary Cooper, David Niven, Charles Laughton — you'll seek in vain for some ancestor who trod the boards to explain their talent.

New Camay's Mildness Superior to Soaps Costing more than 5 Times as Much!

We tested Camay against a number of other well-known toilet soaps. Included in this test were six of the most popular brands and also beauty soaps costing more than 5 times as much. Camay showed itself to be milder than any of these soaps!

ART KASSEL

This Week

The lilting, nostalgic strains of Lehar's famous "Merry Widow Waltz" are presented to you in new, thrilling form by Art Kassel, whose "Kassels in the Air" orchestra has been a fixture in the American dance scene for years. The graceful beauty of the original music, and the zest of today's swing tempos, make this a memorable addition to the series of Old Tunes in Swing Time.

Old Tunes in Swing Time!

EACH WEEK IN THIS SECTION: A NEW SONG HIT

Benny Goodman, Bob Crosby, Art Kassel, Orrin Tucker, Paul Whiteman, Glenn Miller, Anson Weeks, Horace Heidt, Griff Williams, Skinnay Ennis, Guy Lombardo, Ted Weems, John Scott Trotter, Hal Kemp, Ted Fio Rito, Jan Garber, Dick Jurgens, Kay Kyser, Jimmy Dorsey, Harold Stokes, Lee Kuhn, Harry Sosnik, Abe Lyman, Tommy Dorsey—world-famous orchestra leaders —are collaborating with THE TRIBUNE to present to readers a unique musical gift: old songs in new dress. The songs are familiar, haunting favorites; but the versions in which they are to be presented . . . special swing time arrangements for the piano, never before published . . . are as new as the musical hit of tomorrow. Whether you play them, sing them, whistle them, or dance to them, you will find these new-old tunes infectious, irresistible.

Merry Widow Waltz - 2

THERE WAS MUSIC IN THE AIR—and not all of it from whiz-bangs—that the A. E. F. breathed in France. One of the Yanks who amused themselves and others by thinking up catchy tunes between shell bursts was Art Kassel, a young chap in the 33d division. Kassel composed them, the boys of his outfit sang and whistled them.

Kassel had got away to an early start as a composer. At the age of 11, when he was playing clarinet in an orphanage band, he began making up tunes. He was only four years older, however, when he assayed his own musical ability, decided he would be better at something else, and signed off. He would be a commercial artist. He studied evenings and eventually landed an art job. But then the war interposed to put him back among the quavers and semiquavers.

After the armistice, when general headquarters was devising ways of keeping up the morale of the overseas forces, Kassel was drafted for a regimental show troupe which toured France, playing before thousands of soldiers thruout the A. E. F. That experience was enough to persuade him that he had been right in the first place when he made his childhood start in music.

HEAR HAROLD TURNER PLAY AND MARION HOLMES SING THIS ARRANGEMENT OF THE "MERRY WIDOW WALTZ," AS WELL AS OTHER POPULAR ART KASSEL HIT TUNES, ON W-G-N AT 2:45 P. M. TODAY

Back in America, Art joined up with a four-piece orchestra, all the members of which had belonged to his army outfit. His first professional job was in a cabaret on Chicago's north side. In 1925 he organized his own orchestra. It was not until 1930, however, that he got what he looks back upon as his first real break, an engagement at the Bismarck hotel. There for the first time he introduced his orchestra to a downtown audience.

The director of "Kassels in the Air" first starred as a big name popular composer with his present theme song, "Doodle-Doo-Doo." That was distinctly the hit song of 1923. Millions of night club habitués and radio listeners are well acquainted also with his "Hell's Bells" and "Around the Corner." Latest from his pen are "Just an Old Rag Rug" and "The Guy Needs a Gal."

For the swing version of "The Merry Widow Waltz" presented for Tribune readers today Kassel rearranged the words as well as the music.

"The Merry Widow Waltz" is the most popular song in the most popular light opera of modern times, and its Hungarian creator, Franz Lehar, is one of the most popular of living light opera composers. From Lehar's pen have come 29 operettas and nearly 200 songs and musical numbers. Originally produced in Vienna in 1905, "The Merry Widow" has been performed several thousand times in the United States, not to mention other parts of the world.

cut its ropes with a knife. The boat suddenly dropped at one end, smashing itself like an egg-shell against a protruding condenser exhaust pipe on its way to the sea.

Once in the waves, the lifeboat quickly foundered. There was no use trying to bail it out, because the water was pouring in too fast thru the gaping hole in its side. The twenty passengers were drenched as the boat sank and the swells washed over its gunwales on both sides. Only the air tanks kept it from sinking out of sight, and the gasping men and women had to cling to their seats for life as each swell rode clear over their heads. They had to hold their breath in the icy water until they came to the surface again each time.

Rowing under such conditions was out of the question and all the terrified passengers could do was huddle together on their seats and try to keep their courage up for the next inevitable ducking. In five minutes their heads were aching from the cold water, their flesh was going numb, and their hopes were ebbing away as they saw the other lifeboats pulling off into the darkness. As one survivor told Gibbons the next morning, "The cold water just takes the life out of you."

Near the stern of the foundering lifeboat sat two Chicago women, Mrs. Albert H. Hoy and her daughter Elizabeth. They were never less than waist deep in water, even between the swells, and just clung to each other in horror, trying to get a little body warmth with which to face the dunes of ice water that kept relentlessly sweeping over them. They whispered to each other and prayed and whimpered in each other's arms, and the men tried to shield them from the force of the waves. But it was useless. The smart of the cold turned to a dull ache that wrung their bones and smothered their minds. After two hours there was nothing left but numbness and a limp craving for relief—any kind of relief — unconsciousness—death—peace.

How it happened with the Hoys was told briefly to Gibbons: "The women got weaker and weaker. Maybe they had been dead for some time. I don't know, but a wave came and washed both Mrs. Hoy and her daughter out of the boat. There were life belts around their bodies, and they drifted away with their arms locked about one another."

The sighting of the rescue ship was like a symphonic overture to Gibbons' pen. "And then we saw the first light," he wrote, "the first sign of help coming—the first searching glow of white radiance deep down the somber sides of the black pot of night that hung over us. I don't know what direction it came from—none of us knew north from south — there was nothing but water and sky. But the light—it just came from over there where we pointed. We nudged dumb, sick boatmates and directed their gaze and aroused them to an appreciation of the sight that gave us new life.

"It was 'way over there—first a trembling quiver of silver against the blackness; then, drawing closer, it defined itself as a beckoning finger, altho still too far away to see our feeble efforts to attract it. Nevertheless we wasted valuable flares, and the ship's baker, self-ordained custodian of the biscuits, did the honors handsomely to the extent of a biscuit apiece to each of the twenty-three occupants of the boat."

"Pull starboard, sonnies," sang out the old captain, his gray chin whiskers bristling joyfully in the lantern light. Oars plunged and heaved and lifted for a new stroke. Had the flares been seen?

When the oncoming vessel flashed on its green and red sidelights and turned slightly to come exactly toward the bobbing lifeboats, every one knew that the rescue was not far off. An unpleasant thought, however, was the realization that the submarine that had destroyed the Laconia still lurked near by and might also torpedo the rescue ship.

"Come alongside port!" was the order barked thru a megaphone at the ship's rail when at last the vessel was in position for the rescue. It was about as hazardous getting up the side of the rescue ship as it had been getting down the side of the Laconia. But finally, in Gibbons' words, "A score of hands reached out and we were suspended in the husky, tattooed arms of those doughty British jack-tars, looking up into their weather-beaten youthful faces, mumbling our thankfulness and reading in the gold lettering on their pancake hats the legend 'H. M. S. Laburnum.' We had been six hours in the open boat."

The scenes of reunion that followed were heart-gripping. Men who had been strangers aboard the Laconia now wrung each other by the hand or embraced with joyful tears the frail little wife of a Canadian chaplain who had found one of her missing children delivered up from another boat. Prayers were said, and hymns of thanksgiving played on a little wooden organ.

But the rescued forgot about lifeboat number 8 that was still drifting almost submerged with its eighteen remaining occupants clinging helplessly to the dim, numb life that remained in them. Boat No. 8 of course had no light, nor had it been able to follow the other boats as they drifted or rowed off to leeward.

"Towards morning," said a survivor from No. 8 later in describing his craft's plight, "we saw the rescuing ship come up into the cluster of other lifeboats that had drifted so far away from us. One by one we saw their lights disappear as they were taken on board.

"We shouted and screamed and shrieked at the tops of our voices, but could not attract the attention of any of the other boats or the rescuing ship, and soon we saw its lights blink out. We were left there in the darkness with the wind howling and the sea rolling higher every minute."

It wasn't until the dawn illumined the sea that lifeboat No. 8 was seen and its remaining nearly dead passengers rescued. Among these waterlogged survivors was the captain of the Laconia, and a rousing cheer greeted him as he was helped to the deck of the rescue ship, one crushed hand hanging limp at his side.

The crowded officers' quarters under the quarter-deck were turned over to the shivering women and children. Two of them, stewardesses from the Laconia, passed boiling basins of navy cocoa and aided the other women in unsnarling their hair and drying their wet clothes. The men grouped themselves over the grating of the engine rooms, where new life was to be had from the upward blasts of boiler breath flavored with the smell of stale oil and bilge water. The few who had strained backs, wrenched legs, or other injuries were put under the care of the ship's doctor.

As the rescue vessel steamed toward Ireland from the point of the torpedoing (about 200 miles west of the Irish coast), a count was made of the rescued and it was found that out of the Laconia's 294 passengers and crew 13 had been lost, most of them from the effects of the first torpedo and the sudden flooding of the shaft alleys and the after parts of the engine room immediately following the explosion.

Gibbons' story of the sinking of the Laconia was read on the floor of the senate during a session that was pondering the advisability of going to war. (President Wilson addressing a war session of the congress.)

On docking at Queenstown in southern Ireland the following night shortly after ten o'clock, Gibbons immediately set about writing his story and arranging its transmission to Chicago. From the local telegraph station the story had to go to London to the censor's office, from where, after it was carefully read and passed, it would be cabled to New York and relayed to its destination.

That night Gibbons was able to get only a brief message to his paper preparing the way for his big story to come the next day. His message, published on the front page of The Tribune, Feb. 27, 1917, read: "QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 27.—Tribune, Chicago: Am cabling three thousand Laconia sinking. Two Chicago women victims. Please expedite with Western Union thru New York. Gibbons."

The only other mention of the disaster to appear in American papers that day were a few brief bulletins extracted from London papers whose correspondents in Queenstown had been able to get interviews with one or two survivors. It was the following morning, Feb. 28, that the Chicago Tribune gave America and the world the first and only complete story, cabled to it the evening of the 27th by the only newspaperman or qualified writer to witness the actual sinking.

"HOW LACONIA SANK" read the banner headline across The Tribune's front page on Feb. 28. Sub-headlines read: "FLOYD GIBBONS CABLES FIRST COMPLETE STORY OF LINER TORPEDOING. — Concert and Dancing Change to Rush to Life Craft; Heroism and Discipline Save Many of Passengers."

Under the line, "BY FLOYD GIBBONS," the story began with the writer's characteristic drama and intimate style. "QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 26.—(Via London, Feb. 27.)—I have serious doubts whether this is a real story. I am not entirely certain that it is not all a dream. I feel that in a few minutes I may wake up back in stateroom B-19 on the promenade deck of the Cunarder Laconia and hear my cockney steward informing me with an abundance of 'and sirs' that it is a fine morning.

"It is now a little over thirty hours since I stood on the slanting decks of the big liner, listened to the lowering of the lifeboats, and heard the hiss of escaping steam and the roar of ascending rockets as they tore lurid rents in the black sky and cast their red glare over the roaring sea.

"I am writing this within thirty minutes after stepping on the dock here in Queenstown from the British mine sweeper which picked up our open lifeboat after an eventful six hours of drifting and darkness and bailing and pulling on the oars and of straining aching eyes toward that empty, meaningless horizon in search of help...."

The story sold a large quantity of extra Tribunes that morning to Chicagoans eager to know what had actually happened to the Laconia's passengers and crew. And it was quickly distributed by syndicate to other papers all over the nation. It was read aloud on the floor of the senate in the capitol at Washington that afternoon to legislators already seriously debating the question of whether or not the United States should enter the war against Germany.

II.

It was from Queenstown, Ireland, that Floyd Gibbons had just sent off what was perhaps the most sensational and significant scoop of his career, in which scoops were common. From Ireland, too—the north of Ireland—came his family. The dominant force in Gibbons' early life was his father, Edward T. Gibbons, an honest, God-fearing teetotaler who ran a butter and egg business in Washington, D. C., used the strap on his children, and was noted for his showmanship, something his eldest son Floyd inherited and absorbed to an even more marked degree.

Pop Gibbons wore a red beard and drove a truck which said, "Edward T. Gibbons Butter and Egg Co. Inc. No. 2" on one side and "Edward T. Gibbons Butter and Egg Co. Inc. No. 12" on the other. The beard was for purposes of personal publicity, and the truck signs for business: "If people think I am doing well enough to own at least twelve trucks," he explained to Floyd, "they think of me sooner when they next order their butter and eggs. That's showmanship, son."

Pop Gibbons also affected a tall silk hat with an Ascot tie with his wife's diamond engagement ring pinned on it just below the knot, and was glad to note that it won him many a second look from passers-by on the street. He sent young Floyd to Gonzaga, a school run by monks, in the hope that he would grow up to be devout and a total abstainer. He also gave him a "job" helping in his butter and egg store.

As a schoolboy Floyd Gibbons was tall, thin, and frail and has been described as having "black hair and wide blue eyes." One of his father's ways of building up the boy's strength was giving him liberal doses of a tonic after every meal. In fact Pop Gibbons took the tonic himself and gave it to all the other members of the family. A friend had strongly recommended it to him as a "marvelous new essence of concentrated nourishment." As he smacked his lips after each tablespoonful he would exclaim, "Fine stuff, that!"

It was a black day in the Gibbons home and a lasting shock to the red-bearded prohibitionist when, after years of devotion to the "tonic," a newspaper article announced that it had been exposed and banned as containing nothing but alcohol with a little flavoring.

When Floyd was about fourteen the family moved to Des Moines, Ia., where there was no law against the carrying out of Pop Gibbons' latest idea: giving away premiums with his butter and eggs. Floyd didn't want to go much, because he had a goat cart and two goats and he was told he couldn't take the goats in the train. He loved the goats so much that he had begged for two years to be allowed to keep them in the house in Washington, smell and all.

In Des Moines Floyd went to high school and replaced the goats in his affections with a dog, which he gave the dramatic name of Chop Suey Noodle Yellow Bird Gibbons. He developed a fondness for going to fires, and always at his heels trotted Chop Suey . . . Gibbons, the faithful.

After three years of Des Moines the restless Pop Gibbons moved to Milwaukee because it promised more butter and egg customers. Now 17, Floyd got his first job as a curtain raiser in a small burlesque theater. He was thrilled with the job and frankly envied the actors and actresses their ability to mimic and pick up new expressions. The frequent visits of reporters, the excitements of applause and public acclaim, the easy manners and suavity of the old troupers — all were champagne to his naive senses.

Miss Elizabeth Hoy

Because his parents decided that he should be a lawyer, Floyd was sent to Georgetown university after having been graduated from high school. But his heart could not warm to Latin phrases and cool juristic logic. Early in his second year he was expelled for burning down a historic wooden fence to celebrate a football victory—probably an act that Pop Gibbons secretly approved for its showmanship.

A few weeks later Floyd was in the city room of the Minneapolis News. He was interviewing his father's friend, William G. Shepard, the editor.

"So you're the son of Ed Gibbons and you want to be a reporter?"

"Yes, sir," said Floyd, his heart in his mouth.

"All right, son," returned Shepard. Calling an assistant, he added, "Get Mr. Gibbons a police card and show him the ropes."

Floyd Gibbons was in heaven at last. Now he could talk with cops and firemen on equal terms, get free tickets to all the shows, and rush off to strange places at all hours of the night on business—the most fascinating business in the world.

That was in 1907. But a little more than a year later Floyd was given a terrible shock. Shepard called him into his office one day and said curtly: "Get your pay from the front office when you leave tonight. And don't come back tomorrow. You're fired."

The young reporter couldn't understand how such a thing could happen to him. He had come to work late pretty often, but he was sure he had made up for it by digging up more stories than any other man on the staff. He was hurt, but he went home to Milwaukee and soon got a job on the Milwaukee Free Press. It wasn't until many years later in Rock Island, Ill., that Shepard and told Gibbons just why he had fired him.

"I knew you had it in you to be a reporter," he said. "But there was a man who was getting to be important in advertising who demanded that we fire you — and so hard that you'd never bounce back. We thought we'd better do as he asked. . . . That man was your father. He said he didn't want you to be a lousy, half-starved reporter."

It was in 1910 when he was on the Minneapolis Tribune that Floyd Gibbons was given his first really big story—the siege of Cameron dam, a story that swept the headlines of the nation and gave the cub his first chance to prove his coolness under rifle fire. How he outwitted all his rival reporters and turned in a scoop on the climax of a battle that had been going on in the Wisconsin woods for six years will be told in next Sunday's instalment of this personal history.

It's a tale of wit and daring in the life of perhaps the most dramatic reporter the journalistic profession ever produced, and it launched him on a career that proved second to none in the annals of excitement, war reporting, and all the varihued glamor of the front page.

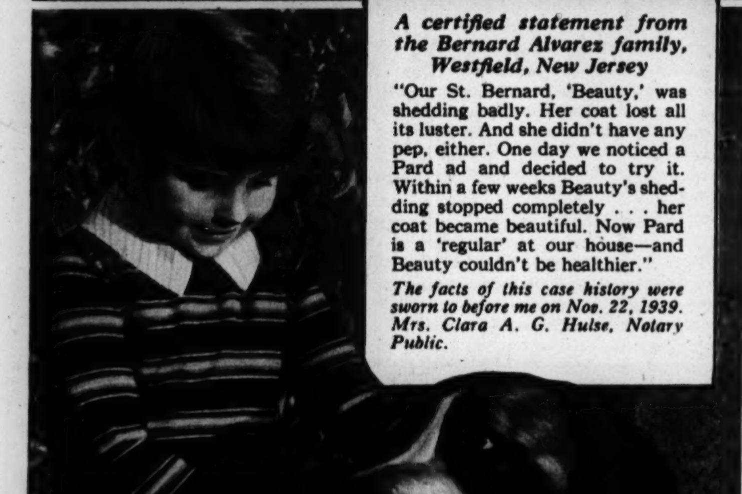
"OUR DOG SHED CONSTANTLY —till we started PARD diet"



A certified statement from the Bernard Alvarez family, Westfield, New Jersey

"Our St. Bernard, 'Beauty,' was shedding badly. Her coat lost all its luster. And she didn't have any pep, either. One day we noticed a Pard ad and decided to try it. Within a few weeks Beauty's shedding stopped completely . . . her coat became beautiful. Now Pard is a 'regular' at our house—and Beauty couldn't be healthier."

The facts of this case history were sworn to before me on Nov. 22, 1939. Mrs. Clara A. G. Hulse, Notary Public.

Hit-or-miss feeding, leading veterinarians say, is most frequent cause of common ailments. None ever appeared among the Pard-fed dogs at Swift's Kennels!

Veterinarians point to faulty diet as the most persistent enemy to canine health. For malnutrition due to improper feeding is more often than not the real cause of such general troubles as excessive shedding, listlessness, dietary skin irritation, and many others. What's more—these ailments sometimes point to serious afflictions of a graver nature.

More and more veterinarians are recommending Pard because of the scientific evidence established by the Pard Feeding Study. The records show that 290 pedigreed dogs—representing 4 successive generations—were raised on Pard exclusively. While on Pard, none ever experienced any of the common diet-caused complaints. All grew up into sturdy, splendid specimens of their breeds.

You can give your dog the same opportunity for a healthy, happy life. Feed Pard regularly. It contains necessary food elements, plus essential vitamins and minerals.

MANY VETERINARIANS RECOMMEND PARD! Dr. A. B. F........., of Illinois, says: "Malnutrition is the real cause of the majority of common dog ailments." To counter-attack malnutrition, Dr. A. B. F......... recommends Pard.

He leaps to the running board; he opens fire with two rapid-fire pistols of submachine gun type. His bullets kill Alexander and Barthou and gravely wound a French general; they wound also twelve bystanders; five of these victims are women, one of whom dies . . .

The Puzzle of Twins

By GREER WILLIAMS

ALL identical twins are of human interest. Alexandre Dumas takes advantage of this fact in the story from his musketeer series popularly known as "The Man in the Iron Mask." Dumas supposes that Queen Anne bore Louis XIII. twin sons instead of a single child in 1638. The problem is obvious: neither can be the uncontested heir to the throne. Hence, one is palmed off as the son of Musketeer D'Artagnan. But he grows up to become the "skeleton in the closet" of his no-good brother, King Louis XIV. The latter, when he learns of his twin brother's existence, has an iron mask clamped on him.

History is surprisingly barren of reference to twins who became great men in any field.

Dr. Horatio H. Newman, professor of zoölogy at the University of Chicago and authority or the heredity and environment oi twins, suggested one possible explanation of this. Twins handicap one another both in their pre-natal and post-natal development. Nutritionally, they get off to a bad start in life. The death rate is higher in twin than in single babies.

This results in a shorter life expectancy for the average twin. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which estimates that the United States contains 4,000,000 pairs of twins, sets the life expectancy for male twins at 46 and for female twins at 50. The life expectancy for a single-born man and woman is 59 and 63 respectively.

Dr. Herluf H. Strandskov, collaborator with Dr. Newman in the study of twins, points out, on the other hand, that the failure of early scientists to investigate twins may be a reason why a greater number of distinguished twins are not on record.

Numerical competition, of course, may be a contributing factor to the lack of great twins. Only one of every 87 births produces twins.

The twin birth ratio was determined by W. W. Gruelich, University of Colorado statistician, by the study of 100,000,000 births in various countries. He found that the ratio of multiple to single births increases by the multiple of 87. Thus Greulich determined that the chance for a triplet birth was one in 7,569 (87 squared); for quadruplets, one in 658,503 (87 cubed); for quintuplets, one in 57,000,000 (87 to the fourth power), and for sextuplets, one in 5,000,000,000 (87 to the fifth power).

Of course, the chance for fame increases with the multiplicity of the birth. The fact that the Dionne quintuplets—now nearly 6 years old—were born and lived has made them famous. Twins and triplets are too common to benefit in this way, but quadruplets have a fairly good chance for prominence.

Take, for instance, the Keys quadruplet sisters, now 24, of Oklahoma City. They are all said to be good musicians and contemplate a stage career together. It is natural that all persons of multiple birth find their best opportunities in the fields of entertainment and amusement, because of the attention they attract.

Dr. Strandskov was able to recall only one pair of twins who have made any claim to fame in times before our own. They were Johann Ambrosius and Johann Christoph Bach, seventeenth century German court musicians. They were members of the large and illustrious Bach family, most talented of which was Johann Ambrosius' son, Johann Sebastian Bach, the great composer.

Among the distinguished living twins are Auguste and Jean Piccard, 56. They were born and educated in Switzerland, Auguste becoming a physicist, Jean a chemist. Later both became famous in the field of aeronautics.

Identical twins seem to delight in perpetuating the old story of confusing their friends and sometimes their lovers. Dr. Newman tells one version of this "double trouble." One twin was courted so assiduously that the young lady grew bored, but instead of sending the young man on his way she had her sister substitute for her on some evenings.

The night the misled suitor selected for a marriage proposal was unfortunately the night when the substitute twin was on duty. He told her, unwittingly, that unlike others he found a great difference between her and her sister, and all in her favor. The substitute then confessed the deception, but he merely believed she was testing his fidelity. "In the resultant confusion," said Dr. Newman, "the young man made such an ass of himself that neither twin had any further use for him."

The plot of the serial story "Twin Sombreros," by the late Zane Grey, which is being presented currently in The Tribune's Fiction Section, revolves around identical twins, two beautiful girls who capture the fancy of the hero of the story, a cowboy named Brazos Keene.

Cases of twin stars in sport are rare. Some twenty years ago Yale had its Driscoll twins, one an oarsman and the other in track. The Bigelow twins played hockey for Harvard ten years ago. North Texas State Teachers' college had twin distance runners, Blaine and Wayne Rideout, several years ago.

Virginia and Marian Hopkins hold many American and world swimming records. Arthur and Alfred Gueppe, Marquette university half backs, who received all-American mention, couldn't tell themselves apart when they looked at football action pictures of themselves.

The likeness may go much farther than physical appearance, however. Many identical twins have similar handwriting. Robert Saudek, London graphologist, found that 5 per cent of them wrote so much alike that no variation could be detected.

Madeleine and Marion Fairbanks, who starred in the musical comedy, "Two Little Girls in Blue," independently of one another would write letters to friends which proved to be almost exact copies of one another's thoughts.

The likeness of identical twins is carried out even in disease and in crime.

Two German investigators found that in 75 per cent of 80 cases where one identical twin had a tendency to tuberculosis the other also had this tendency. Fraternal twins, which are no more alike than single brothers or sisters, in contrast, showed only a 25 per cent duplication of the tendency in 125 instances.

Johannes Lange of Germany found that of 56 cases of dementia praecox in identical twins, 52 had mates likewise affected. Lange examined the prison records of 30 persons who had twin brothers or sisters. Thirteen were of identical twins, 10 of them having an opposite twin with a criminal record--even the type of crime being the same. Of the 17 fraternal twins, only 3 were paired with a twin of criminal type.

What causes identical twins to have so much likenesses and fraternal twins to have so many differences?

The first factor is their biological origin. Identical twins result when a fertilized egg cell splits in the womb. Fraternal twins occur when two separate egg cells are fertilized during conception.

Dr. Newman says that the twins will be more nearly alike if the egg cell splits early in its development. This more often happens, producing twins whose right sides and left sides closely match. If, however, the split occurs in a later stage the right side of one twin will closely match the left side of the other twin. This is called mirror-imaging, the right fingerprints of one twin tending to duplicate the left fingerprints of the other. The effect is the same as when a person looks at himself in the mirror.

The apparent cause of this phenomenon is that each half of a split egg cell must reproduce another half to form the other side of the body. If the original half is well developed it is the stronger and becomes the leader when the missing half is replaced.

Triplets, or more, are produced by extension of the identical or fraternal twinning process. Triplets may result if one egg cell splits and then the two cells split, but one dies, as is sometimes the case. Or they may result from the fertilization of two eggs and the splitting of one. Three American scientists, Robert, Wallace, and Malcolm Brodie, physicist, chemist, and zoölogist respectively, are believed to be examples of this—two being identical, while the third is fraternal.

Quadruplets may be two splits of one egg cell, a split of two fraternal cells, or, in the cases of the Keys sisters, three fraternal eggs, one of which split, producing two identical twins in addition to two fraternals.

Many other combinations are possible if one allows for the death of some of the cells. There has been much speculation on the egg relationship of the Dionne quintuplets. Their doctor, Allan Dafoe, from the first believed them identicals, and exhaustive scientific study of their development as children has supported him.

Every indication is that they started as a single egg cell which split twice to become four. Three of these were Yvonne, Annette, and Cecile, and the fourth split again to become Emilie and Marie. Many factors bear this out. Emilie and Marie were the smallest at birth. They differ from the other three in eyesight, slenderer faces, growth of teeth, and the way they grasp a spoon. But Marie is more like her sisters than Emilie, since the latter is apparently the mirror image of Marie. Emilie is left-handed, whereas all the others are right-handed, and her hair whorl, or direction of hair growth at the crown, is clockwise, whereas that of all the rest is counterclockwise.

A study of 521 twin cases at Johns Hopkins university leads to the conclusion that the bearing of identical twins is due mainly to chance. About 25 per cent of all twins are identical.

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher of Johns Hopkins produced evidence, however, that the 75 per cent who are fraternal twins are apparently brought about by one of three influences. One is heredity. That means the tendency to have twins runs in the family.

Two other factors influencing the double egg fertilization producing fraternal twins is the age of the mother and the number of children she has had. Young mothers and mothers of only one or two children do not tend to have fraternal twins.

"As yet," said Dr. Newman in his book, "Evolution, Genetics, and Eugenics," "we do not know enough to enable us to control or to permit the production of twins. So we can give no practical advice to those who desire to have twins or to avoid them."

Old-Time Drink You Now Eat as Dessert

Old-fashioned syllabub has become a new-fashioned dessert. It's flavored with wine.

Syllabub Makes Delicious Dish; Heart Salad for Valentine Party

By MARY MEADE

YOU WON'T find a recipe for syllabub in just any cook book. You will find one, however, in many an old-time collection of recipes. For syllabub is an old-time delicacy. It was the New Year's drink of the seventeenth century. In the south it grew famous as a dessert.

Drinkable syllabubs consist of wine and plain cream, with lemon juice and sugar. Whip syllabubs are similar, except that the cream is whipped and the "drink" must be eaten with a spoon. Ladyfingers or vanilla wafers accompany syllabub as it is served nowadays.

It's an excellent and very simple dessert. Top each serving with a cherry if you wish to have syllabub for a February party.

Domestic wines, many of which are very inexpensive, are the kind to choose for such a dessert.

SYLLABUB
(Serves six)

½ pint whipping cream
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup California tokay, port, or muscatel
Ladyfingers

Whip the cream and add the grated lemon rind. Stir in the wine gradually. Pile the fluffy mixture high in ladyfinger-lined sherbet glasses. Garnish each serving with a cherry if you wish.

Cherry gelatin molded in a heart shape can be salad, dessert, or salad-dessert at a Valentine themed party. It isn't quite as simple as a syllabub, to be sure, but it's far from difficult to make and is certainly attractive.

VALENTINE SALAD-DESSERT
(Serves ten)

2 packages cherry-flavored gelatin
1 pint boiling water
1 pint cold water
1 cup pineapple wedges
1 cup seeded white cherries
¼ pound marshmallows
8 maraschino cherries, halved

Dissolve cherry gelatin in hot water and stir until dissolved. Add cold water. Pour into a mold and chill until almost thick. Add fruit and all but four or five marshmallows, cut in quarters. Chill until firm.

Use the reserved marshmallows to make decorative flowers for garnish. Cut each marshmallow in half thru the rounded side. Then, dipping scissors frequently in water, cut four or five tiny pie-shaped wedges from each half. This gives a petal effect. Unmold gelatin on a large plate. Arrange halves of maraschino cherries in the centers of the marshmallow petals and use to decorate the top of the mold. Garnish with chicory (curly endive) and serve with mayonnaise or whipped cream.

Individual heart-shaped molds may be made instead of the one large one.

If you like the syllabub, as I'm sure you will, you may be interested in other wine and spirit flavored desserts—macaroon trifle (sherry), rum and pineapple charlotte, or eggnog pie. The recipes for these treats are in a booklet, "Cooking with Wines and Spirits," which sells for 5 cents by mail. Included also are rules and a chart to guide the homemaker in serving wines, and recipes for wine-flavored meat, fish, and vegetable dishes. Address orders for this booklet to me in care of The Tribune.

FOUR MASTERPIECES IN COLOR

● Reproduced in their original colors on page one of the Picture Section of this issue are four famous masterpieces which were among those of the celebrated art collection recently exhibited at the Art Institute of Chicago.

CONSPICUOUS among the old masters of Italian art are the four who are represented by paintings elsewhere in today's Tribune—Antonio Allegri da Correggio, Lorenzo Lotto, Titian, and Bernardo Cavallino. Of the four Titian is the greatest and the best known. The three first named lived in the late fifteenth and in the sixteenth centuries. Cavallino was a product of the seventeenth century.

ANTONIO ALLEGRI, better known as CORREGGIO, after the little town in northern Italy in which he was born in 1494, was a master of mural decorations painted on a large scale upon plastered walls, yet he produced many separate pictures on canvas, mostly of sacred subjects, to be hung above church altars.

Of the school of northern Italy, Correggio was an enthusiastic artist, his work free, joyous, and full of fancy. In his day one of the most popular subjects for the brush was the Holy Mother and the Child, and in this subject he excelled to full measure. The particular Correggio "Madonna and Child" reproduced in The Tribune today, like others painted by him, is replete with the charm of womanhood.

Correggio died in 1534.

LORENZO LOTTO was born in 1480. His birthplace was Venice; and, altho much of his life was spent away from his native city, his school of art truly is the Venetian. In his long life—he lived to be 76—he produced a vast number of paintings, a majority of which were of a religious nature.

Of Lotto's "Portrait of a Young Man" A. Venturi in his "Storia dell' Arte Italiana" writes:

". . . a bewitching composition which is not surpassed in elegance, transparency of shadows, decorative sense of line and color. . . . The youthful figure bends along the diagonal of the canvas, and two folds of the curtain complete the construction with a synthesizing accent; against the lilac background of the vest flutter black velvet ribbons, and the ray of sunlight that sets off from the shadow of the lowered hat and the cheek a bit of the face gives the last touch of a stupendous pictorial improvisation, to a moment of life seized upon with a sense of the instantaneous which is entirely modern. The diffident eye, the delicate mouth here appear fixed in a dazzling mask of light."

TITIAN, whose name was TIZIANO VECELLIO, was born in 1477 and died in 1576, and thus his life almost covered the full span of a century. He was a Venetian, and pronounced by many the greatest artist of the Venetian school. He engaged in art of virtually every kind.

Nearly all the celebrities of Titian's time posed for him—popes, emperors, queens, cardinals, princes, dukes, and grand ladies. So marvelous was his genius in reproducing the tresses of golden-haired women that to this day a certain type of feminine red hair is frequently referred to as Titian.

Describing Titian's "Portrait of Pope Paul III." in their volume, "The Life and Times of Titian," J. A. Crowe and G. B. Cavalcaselle write:

"The quality of life and pulsation so often conveyed in Titian's pictures is here in its highest development. It is life senile in the relaxation of the eyelids and the red humors showing at the eye corners, life of slow current in the projecting veins which run along the backs of the hands or beneath the flesh on the bony projections of the face and wrists, but flashing out irresistibly thru the eyeballs."

BERNARDO CAVALLINO was a Neapolitan and thus of a school different from those of the aforementioned painters. He was born in 1622 and died in 1654—died, it is said, of the ecstasies of poetry, of melancholia, and of too much drink.

Aldo de Rinaldis in "Neapolitan Paintings of the Seicento" writes of Cavallino's work thus:

"If we were asked to sum up Cavallino's place in art we should describe him as the painter of the seventeenth century who beyond all others was gifted with charm. . . . A spirit of exaltation exudes, as it were, from the 'St. Cecilia' of the gallery at Naples [reproduced in the Picture Section]. The saint falls on her knees at the approach of the angel who has come to crown her, and extends her arms in an eloquent gesture of submission, while her eyes are fixed on the celestial abode to which her soul is soaring. Her lips are parted as tho to inhale the sweet intoxication of her own music."

For Valentine's day—a cherry gelatin and fruit salad-dessert. With mayonnaise it's salad, with whipped cream it's dessert.

CARAMEL WALNUT CAKE

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup milk
2 cups cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Cream together Crisco, sugar, eggs, salt and vanilla. Sift flour with baking powder twice. Add flour mixture alternately with milk (about ⅓ of each at a time). Pour into two "Criscoed" and floured layer pans (8-inch size). Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 35 minutes. When cool, ice with—

CARAMEL ICING: Combine 1½ cups brown sugar, 1½ cups granulated sugar and 1½ cups milk. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (232° F.). Add 1 tablespoon Crisco and 1 tablespoon butter. Remove from stove. Cool until lukewarm. Beat until thick and creamy. After cake is iced, decorate with halved walnuts, or chopped walnuts.

Torpedo similar to one in sketch being fired from deck tube of British ship.

The Torpedo Explained by Diagram

OF ALL of man's war inventions the torpedo is perhaps the most intricate. Containing more than 6,000 working parts, most of which are made with as much precision as the works of a small watch, the torpedo costs approximately $10,000.

The torpedo shown in the sketch is a British type, differing slightly from the American. The British torpedo is driven at 40 knots by a hot-air motor weighing only a few pounds but developing 350 horsepower. As indicated in the drawing, air for driving the motor is stored at a pressure of 2,500 pounds to the square inch in the chamber immediately behind the war head, which contains the explosive. Before going to the motor the air is mixed with fuel gas and steam produced by the combustion of paraffin.

The safety screw "whisker" on the nose prevents firing of the explosive charge until the forward motion of the torpedo unscrews the "whisker." The driving propellers revolve in opposite directions to prevent the twisting motion that would throw the torpedo off course if only one propeller were used.

Torpedoes are launched either from the deck of a vessel by a small explosive charge, or from beneath the water, by compressed air.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms
You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG
—if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At drug, pet, dept. stores.

A Forum for Owners of Pets

WE HAVE a setter that is eight months old. It's a very affectionate dog with a good disposition. But it is so lively and is doing so many things to upset us that we may have to give it up unless we can learn how to control the dog. For example, the other day it was playing outside in the yard and in the course of its romping around it knocked down a little girl. I can't get it to sit down and stay quiet anywhere in the house. Can you tell me what to do with this dog? We like it and hate to give it up.—J. H. O., Terre Haute, Ind.

You undoubtedly have a very lively and healthy dog that simply is getting out of hand due to the fact that you are not training it and teaching it that it must respect your commands. Your dog will benefit by a course of obedience training. This training will teach it to sit down on command, come when called, and stay in one place when ordered to do so. I suggest that you visit a trainer and talk with him about your dog.

Recently you ran a picture of some Samoyede puppies in the dog column. Will you give me some information about this breed? Is it a large breed? Does the Samoyede have long hair?—MRS. O. A. W., Verona, Wis.

The Samoyede is a working breed, a sled dog that has been used by many polar explorers. Males usually weigh from 45 to 55 pounds. Samoyedes have a dense, close undercoat of hair, with harsh longer hairs growing thru it to form the outer coat, which stands straight away from the body. It's a beautiful breed, intelligent and gentle, too.

My boy John has a very intelligent cocker spaniel aged 20 months. In the evening while sleeping this dog twitches and jerks to such an extent that she often wakens herself. We feed her twice a day, and we give her worm medicine at intervals of three to six months. Recently we gave her two capsules, but she jerks about as much as ever. Will you suggest what we can do for this dog?—C. L. S., Chicago.

If you have been giving your dog worm medicine every three to six months it would be surprising if your cocker didn't twitch and jerk in her sleep! Worm medicine is not a cure-all for all sorts of ailments. Furthermore, why give the dog worm medicine if you don't know that it has these parasites? It's possible to worm a dog safely at home if a reliable remedy is used and if directions for giving it are followed, but in this case you are giving your dog strong medicine that it doubtless doesn't need. We would suggest that you have a veterinarian examine your cocker spaniel.

This attractive, woolly keeshond puppy, which is only eight weeks old, was photographed at his first puppy match. The keeshond is a very old breed of Holland. Its origin is believed to go back to the year 1552.

I am interested in getting a dog suitable for two lively boys 7 and 9 years old. We are navy people, so we may be moving to Panama or California soon. I prefer an Irish terrier, Airedale, or Welsh terrier. Your advice on which breed will be most adaptable to a warm climate and also for my boys will be appreciated.—MRS. P. A. S.

The coats of the Welsh, Airedale, and Irish terriers do not differ greatly. The Irish terrier's coat is dense and wiry in texture. The Welsh has a hard, wiry, and close coat, and the Airedale is another terrier with a hard, wiry coat. We are unable to say whether any one of the three breeds is better adapted than the others for a warm climate. We would guess that all three, if properly groomed, would fare all right in a warm country. All are typical terriers, alert, smart, and full of pluck. The Airedale, of course, is the largest of the three.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the thirty-fifth of the series.

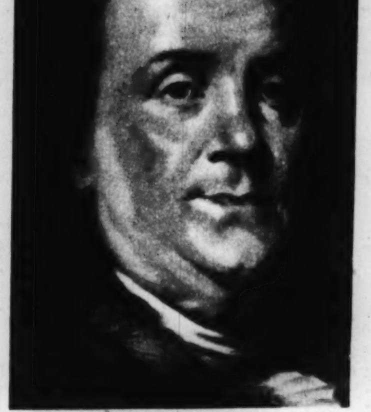
ALTHO Benjamin Franklin was 81 years old when he took part as a delegate in the constitutional convention held in Philadelphia in 1787, he played an important part at the sessions of that historic gathering. While he suggested or advocated only a few of the final articles of the constitution, his influence, constantly exerted in favor of coöperation and compromise, contributed strongly toward the famous document. His wisdom was expressed on several occasions when he spoke before the convention, particularly in the address in which he pointed out the dangers of a salaried bureaucracy, the hazards of making officeholding too profitable. An excerpt from this address follows:

"There are two passions which have a powerful influence in the affairs of men. These are ambition and avarice: the love of power and the love of money. Separately each of these has great force in prompting men to action, but when united in view of the same object they have in many minds the most violent effects. Place before the eyes of such men a post of honor that shall at the same time be a place of profit and they will move heaven and earth to obtain it. The vast number of such places it is that renders the British government so tempestuous. The struggles for them are the true sources of all those factions which are perpetually dividing the nation, distracting its councils, hurrying it sometimes into fruitless and mischievous wars, and often compelling a submission to dishonorable terms of peace.

"And of what kind are the men that will strive for this profitable preëminence thru all the bustle of cabal, the heat of contention, the infinite mutual abuse of parties, tearing to pieces the best of characters? It will not be the wise and moderate, the lovers of peace and good order, the men fittest for the trust. It will be the bold and the violent, the men of strong passions and indefatigable activity in their selfish pursuits. These will thrust themselves into your government and be your rulers. And these, too, will be mistaken in the expected happiness of their situation, for their vanquished competitors, of the same spirit and from the same motives, will perpetually be endeavoring to distress their administration, thwart their measures, and render them odious to the people.

"Besides these evils, sir, tho we may set out in the beginning with moderate salaries, we shall find that such will not be of long continuance. Reasons will never be wanting for proposed augmentations; and there will always be a party for giving more to the rulers, that the rulers may be able in return to give more to them. Hence, as all history informs us, there has been in every state and kingdom a constant kind of warfare between the governing and the governed; the one striving to obtain more for its support, and the other to pay less. And this has alone occasioned great convulsions, actual civil wars, ending either in dethroning of the princes or enslaving of the people. Generally, indeed, the ruling power carries its point, and we see the revenues of princes constantly increasing, and we see that they are never satisfied, but always in want of more. The more the people are discontented with the oppression of taxes, the greater the need the prince has of money to distribute among his partisans, and pay the troops that are to suppress all resistance, and enable him to plunder at pleasure. There is scarce a king in a hundred who would not, if he could, follow the example of Pharaoh—get first all the people's money, then all their lands, and then make them and their children servants forever. It will be said that we do not propose to establish kings. I know it. But there is a natural inclination in mankind to kingly government. It sometimes relieves them from aristocratic domination. They had rather have one tyrant than five hundred. It gives them more of the appearance of equality among citizens; and that they like.



Benjamin Franklin

"I am apprehensive, therefore—perhaps too apprehensive—that the government of these states may in future times end in a monarchy. But this catastrophe, I think, may be long delayed if in our proposed system we do not sow the seeds of contention, faction, and tumult by making our posts of honor places of profit. If we do I fear that, tho we employ at first a number and not a single person, the number will in time be set aside; it will only nourish the fœtus of a king, and a king will the sooner be set over us."

Never has it been claimed by many that Franklin was a man of great eloquence. Yet all admit that he was possessed of profound wisdom. The foregoing utterances by him plainly disclose his talents for clear thinking and his ability for expressing his thoughts in unmistakable terms. It is not difficult to conjure up the picture of the venerable Franklin before the constitutional convention. In even terms, without resort to flights of eloquence or beautiful figures of speech, he pours out to his fellow delegates the truths that are in his honest heart. How they must have treasured his words! Not a magnificent declaimer, Franklin, but surely a forceful speaker.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

No matter how full of human interest your picture may be, lens flare caused by stray light rays would ruin it. When taking pictures with strong side-lighting like this one it is advisable to use a lens shade in order to exclude stray light.

Accessories Often Come In Handy

GOOD pictures have been made with inexpensive cameras and a minimum of accessories, but there is no denying the fact that a good camera and certain additional pieces of equipment go a long way in helping you to get striking prints. Amateurs are inclined to overestimate the importance of gadgets and to forget that it is always the man behind the camera who composes the picture and who must be able to use his equipment. On the other hand, good equipment helps in producing technically perfect results.

If your camera has a ground glass you can easily check the sharpness of your focus. A magnifying viewer, placed on the ground glass, will aid in getting better focus. If you own a roll film camera not equipped with a ground glass you will have to use one of two methods in focusing. You either guess the distance of your subject from the camera and set the lens accordingly, using the focusing scale, or you actually measure the distance of the object. In place of the yardstick you will want to use a range finder, which may be either an instrument independent of your camera or a range finder coupled to your lens. In the latter case you focus your camera automatically by focusing your range finder.

Correct exposure, too, can be either guessed or measured. Mere guessing is inadvisable unless you have had years of experience. Exposure tables will help you get approximately correct timing, but meters are preferable. There are two fundamentally different types of meters. In one your eye measures the intensity of the prevailing light with the aid of the meter; in the other the photo-electric cell and mechanical devices do the measuring.

Supplementary lenses are of great value. Any one lens limits the size of the image on your film. You may want to "take in more"; get a larger picture, even tho shooting from relatively great distance; or increase the image size by going nearer to your subject than your present lens permits. Wide angle, telephoto, or portrait attachment lenses respectively permit you to do so.

You can put color filters to good use, because no film records the colors of your subject in the same relation to each other as the eye sees them. Besides, you will need filters to create special pictorial effects which you cannot photograph with any other means.

A lens shade is essential to prevent stray light from falling on the lens and causing flare or a certain type of fog. A lens cap will protect your lens against breakage, scratches, finger marks, and dust.

For exposures longer than 1/20 sec., and for carefully posed pictures in general, a firm but flexible camera support is necessary. A tripod with a tilt top will do the job. You can use makeshift supports, but you will be working under handicaps.

If you want to make yourself independent of prevailing light conditions you had better provide your own light sources. Photoflood lamps, preferably in reflectors, will enable you to make short time exposures and snapshots of slow speeds when shooting indoors.

Flash bulbs give greater flexibility. Their current is furnished by a small flashlight battery, so that they can be used indoors and out. Their light is strong enough for using the fastest shutter speeds on your camera. A plain "hand flash," consisting of battery, reflector, and flash bulb, is sufficient for taking many types of pictures. But greatest flexibility and independence are achieved by using a synchronized flash gun which releases the shutter of your camera and sets off the flash bulb simultaneously.

You can construct many of these useful accessories yourself.

Certain dramatic pictorial effects such as a dark sky contrasting with brilliant highlights can only be achieved with the aid of filters. Yellow, orange, or red filters darken the sky.

QUESTIONS

Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered here. No individual replies, other than those published, can be promised.

I'm planning to take some action shots at ski meets this winter. My plan is to stand somewhere near the end of the ski chute and snap the contestants as they leave the chute and jump into the air. What shutter speed must I use to prevent blurring?—S. S. V.

ANSWER: To be on the safe side you had better use a shutter speed of at least 1/300 second. Of course, if lighting conditions permit, and your camera is so equipped, you're safer using speeds of 1/500 or 1/1,000 second. The more nearly your moving subject approaches the camera head-on the longer exposure you can use without getting blur in the picture. If you could photograph the ski jumpers coming straight toward you, you might safely use a speed of 1/200 or possibly even 1/100 second.

I have been informed that customs regulations require that all pictures taken in Mexico be developed and inspected before leaving that country. Is this true, and, if so, what about Kodachrome, which I usually send to Rochester for processing?—W. F. W.

ANSWER: The Mexican consulate in Chicago has just informed us that any such supposition is erroneous. Your black-and-white films may be processed in Mexico, or you may take them out of that country undeveloped. Kodachrome film may be sent to Rochester for processing as usual. It is claimed that there are no restrictions whatsoever regarding taking or sending exposed film out of Mexico in an unprocessed state.

How can I keep my viscose sponges pliable, so as to be ready for use?—L. P. D.

ANSWER: One good way of doing this is to store them in an airtight fruit jar, moistening the sponges before putting them away.

Find Your Best Role, and Play It!

In Beauty, Style, Manners, Advice Is: Be Yourself

Irene Dunne—decidedly the patrician type.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

BEFORE you know it you'll be on the rampage for the new Easter bonnet, the spring suit, and a new dress or two to bring your wardrobe up to date.

Let's make a suggestion. It isn't as dramatic or sensational as it may sound at first. It's what a lot of our clever women are doing. Here it is:

You're an individual. You are a person with a temperament of your own. Think of yourself in such terms. Don't be another sheep, following what you see headlined as "the last word." We urge this on the slightly unusual score that, following the pack, you are or may be "out-shaped" by some one with more money to spend on herself than you have. We urge you to think of yourself in that rôle and dress the part, when no one can outshine you at your own game.

There's a lovely line in Booth Tarkington's "Some Old Portraits" (Doubleday-Doran) in which we think there is a magnificent lesson for women. It reads: "She wasn't 'plain.' She could have been thought comely had she thought herself so and shown a consciousness of her good looks, but there was no fascination about her at all."

That's what we mean when we suggest that you cast yourself in a rôle and play that rôle in coiffure, dress, accessories, and to a modified extent, if you choose, in manner. We wouldn't want to see one going to extremes were one a dramatic type, say, or the coquette type. But your own good sense would save you, would direct a compromise with good taste, sense, and fitness, but show a consciousness of your own self-appreciation by expressing you yourself.

Romantic is the term that applies to Garbo.

Billie Burke and coquette are synonymous.

We've been scouting around the high spots and listening in avidly to advance news in coiffures, dress, and so on. We will say that there's one trend that is dominant and can be acceded to even tho one does pursue her own individual rôle. It's the substitute of softness for the sleek, worldly, hard look you've come to associate with the supersophisticate in coiffure particularly, and in dress as well.

Likewise, if you are the coquette variety of femme, compromise on the sane side of the ingénue, but be the coquette, in which category you might include Billie Burke or Lily Pons, with their petite figures, retroussé features and femme coiffures. If you are feminine and gay, provocative, dainty, the type you think of as mistress of a charming home, you'll not go for tailored things. Dresses of soft materials and colors will tell your world you're not one of the aggressive women.

If you're a romantic individual (Garbo and Merle Oberon would be stellar examples here) you'll choose soft dressmaker suits, simple frocks of sculptured lines with no fussy details about them. Your hats won't be "witty" ones nor one-eyed gadgets. They'll carry out the costume mood.

You might get your cues from the gamin type with boyish figures, impudent features, and rebellious hair. With Katharine Hepburn as an example, you'll be your gamin self in dress, probably favoring sports tweeds, tailleurs, pajamas instead of tea gowns. You might even introduce the Tyrolean note, the toreador, the gypsy.

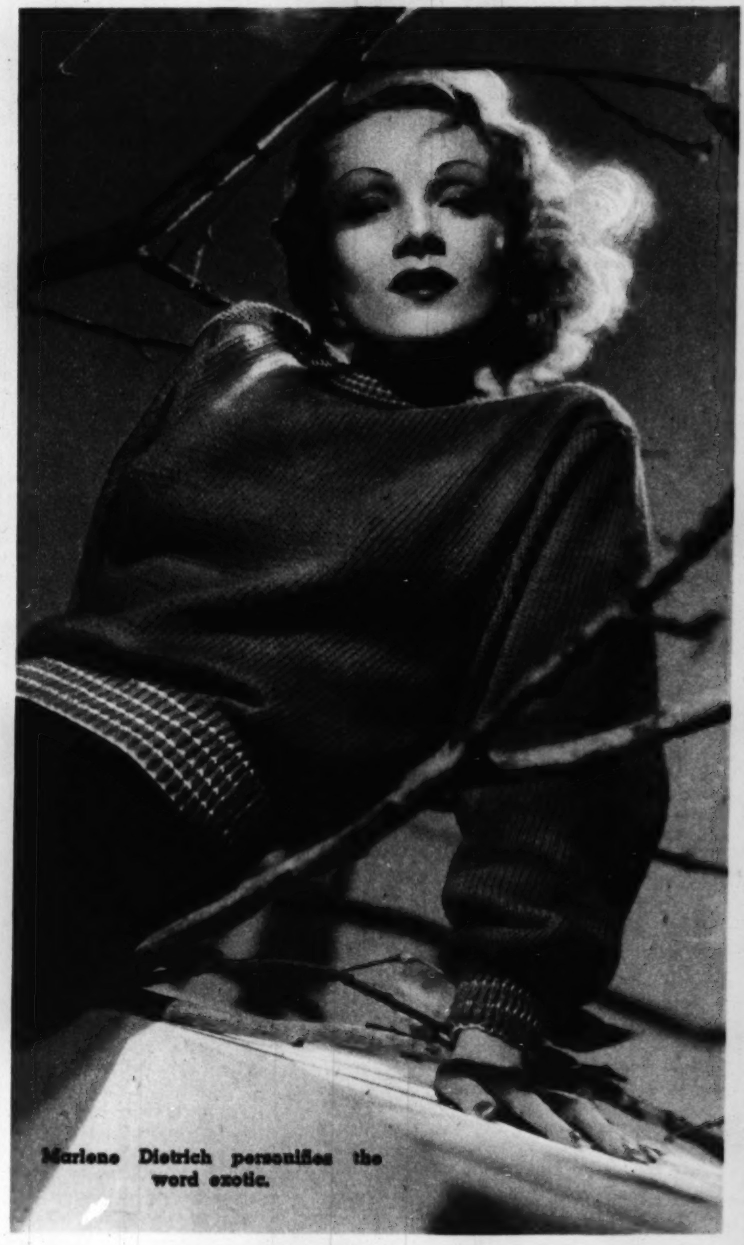
The exotic, such as Marlene Dietrich or Tallulah Bankhead, might provide you hints for your svelte figure, pale skin, large eyes, and extreme coiffures. The femme fatale sort of thing is what the French create for the type. Yours will be a costume outfit; not simple things, but costumes complete with hat and barbaric jewelry—never sports clothes or suits.

"Even in homeopathic doses this sort of thing will lend a fatal fascination," says Margaretta Byers, author of that excellent volume, "Designing Women" (Simon & Schuster). "If you're tired of being called 'that nice little woman,' try dressing exotically. And the women will start calling you 'that woman,' and the men will start calling you on the telephone."

There's the patrician lady, with Irene Dunne and the duchess of Kent playing leading rôles, who avoids the spectacular, is ultraconservative in her tastes but nevertheless achieves definite distinction with her town tailleurs.

The foregoing hints do not begin to cover the field of possibilities, but are suggestions for that actress part of you.

Cultivate a personality, your personality, so that you escape the charge of being just another woman in a new spring outfit. Be a new, interesting woman in another spring outfit.



Marlene Dietrich personifies the word exotic.

The Dornier Planes Nazis Use to Photograph England

By WAYNE THOMIS

DORNIER twin-motored bombing planes have been used more than any other type in the numerous photographic flights made by Nazi pilots over both France and England since the current European war began last September. Herewith this department presents a review of the latest types of these machines and a sketch that shows the construction and internal arrangement of the machines.

Newspaper dispatches that have described the reconnaissance flights and a number of aerial battles between intercepting French and British fighters have indiscriminately called these planes Dornier 170s. Actually there is no Dornier 170. But there are two other types—the Do-17 and the Do-21E. The German designation of the last is Do-21 Mark V, or, more abbreviatedly, Do-21-5. This is sometimes made to read Do-215.

Whatever the numerical designation of the bombers, however, they are all high-wing monoplanes with a long, thin pencil fuselage terminating in a double fin and rudder much like the Lockheed planes with which we are familiar. The Do bombers were the first modern planes to go into production for the Luftwaffe and have been successively modified and fitted with three different types of motors.

The first Do-17s had two 660-horsepower B. M. W. liquid-cooled upright motors and a top speed of 249 miles an hour at sea level. Later this plane was fitted with two 880-horsepower B. M. W. radial engines—developments of the Pratt & Whitney Hornet—that jumped the top speed to 279 miles an hour at 10,000 feet. The very latest types have been fitted with the Daimler Benz 600 and 601 motors that range in power from 1,100 to 1,375 horsepower. And the top speed of the Do-215 with the 601 motors is 317 miles an hour at 16,400 feet.

All these machines have virtually the same dimensions—span 59 feet, length 53 feet, height 15 feet 9 inches. The gross weight of the Do-17 is 18,080 pounds, while that of the 215 is 18,960 pounds. The range in each instance is 1,000 miles for 2,800 pounds of bombs. When used for reconnaissance extra tanks can be installed to give the Do-17 1,300 miles range and the 215 an additional 200 miles.

Dornier Do-21E in flight, wheels retracted.

Both airplanes are full cantilever types with metal skin and framework. Both have stubby, wide wings with the amazing low aspect ratio of 5.6 to 1. Three different types of noses have been tried. The first plane out had a long, tapered nose; the second was shorter, with a circular transparent front fitted with transparent panels for bomb aiming. In the 215 the nose is even wider than the short-nosed 17, with a full "conservatory" top, in accordance with the German craze in recent models for magnificent visibility.

The wings have two open-section Warren girder spars. The covering is smooth metal stressed skin except on the under side between the two spars that carry right thru the fuselage, where the covering is fabric for easy inspection. Flush riveting is used thruout—a technical improvement over the old round-headed rivets—that pays high dividends in speed.

On the Do-17 there are slotted flaps and slotted ailerons. The flaps are lowered for takeoff and climb as well as to steepen the glide at landing. All control surfaces have trimming tabs, and all controls, including rudders and elevators, are both mass and aerodynamically balanced. The fixed control surfaces—fins and stabilizer—are metal covered. The movable surfaces have fabric covering.

The undercarriage retracts hydraulically into the engine nacelles. The engines in each case, regardless of type, are set with their centers below the mid point of the wings, so that they appear to hang from the wings. They are anchored to the main wing spar on welded steel tube bearers. All the airplanes are fitted with the highly efficient German V. D. M. electric full-feathering constant-speed propellers. The main fuel tanks are in the wings, inboard of the engines. The auxiliary tanks are placed in the fuselage.

In the 215 the pilot's control wheel is suspended from the ceiling so a front gunner can duck under the instrument panel and man a machine gun in the nose. Ordinarily the crew is three, altho in the 215 the crew is usually four—pilot, gunner, bomber, and radio-navigator.

All the Dorniers have high landing speeds—being brought down at about 100 to 110 miles an hour in the glide and landed at 75 miles an hour. The machine is large and heavy, however, and these speeds are not extraordinarily high. The wide landing gear and the long fuselage make them extremely stable on the ground. As soon as the plane is down the brakes can be applied hard, as the main landing wheels are well ahead of the center of gravity.

These planes are very strong and have been looped and rolled—maneuvers that few machines of their size are required to perform. They rely chiefly on speed to avoid attack. When used for reconnaissance they carry a battery of three fine German cameras mounted in the bomb compartments and operated by remote control from the bomb aimer's position.
